MOHEGAN INDIANS OPEN THEIR SIXTY-THIRD ANNUAL WIGWAM FAIR

Descendants of the Mohegan Indians opened their 63rd annual Wigwam on Wednesday on the grounds of the Mohegan Congregational church. Throughout the day and late into the evening several hundred people came to the wigwam from various points of Eastern Connecticut to enjoy the delightful menu served by the Mohegans, or to purchase the various articles which had been made by the members of the Ladies' Sewing society, one of the oldest in New England, having been organized before 1831.

The grounds around the old church, which was built in 1831, years after the Bible studies had been held in the old Fielding homestead under the hill. A spacious wigwam had been built by Burrill N. Fielding, consisting of heavy green foliage spread over high posts of white birch. Beneath this were placed the various tables on which were displayed the articles for sale, consisting of baskets made by Indians in Maine, wooden spoons, bows, arrows and mixing bowls of the old Indian type made by Mr. Fielding, cake, candy, ice cream, soda, fancy work, aprons, and many other articles.

A feature of the wigwam was the fortune telling tent which was in charge of Mrs. Albert G. Fielding, this tent being a popular one throughout the day. Another feature was the grab-bag which was in charge of Mrs. Mary Meech.

As usual the meals were well patronized and old Indian dishes of yokeag, clam chowder, oyster stew, succotash and sandwiches, also cake, ice cream, coffee and soft drinks. Younger members of the church assisted at the tables.

On display in the wigwam was an old mortar which has been used for over 63 years for grinding the corn and has been handed down for generations to the present generation. The bowl, which was carved out of a huge log of oak, stands about two feet high and is in wonderful condition after having been used for many years.

A mortar similar to the old one had been carved out by Chief Matahga, Burrill Fielding, and was also on display with many wooden mixing spoons and bows and arrows also made by the chief. As usual Chief Lemuel M. Fielding was in general charge and greeted the visitors in the full regalia of the once powerful Mohegan tribe.

The committees in charge of the 63d annual wigwam were as follows: Mrs. E. C. Fowler, general chairman; Burrill N. Fielding, building of wigwam, making of chowder and succotash; Mrs. Harriet Quidgeon, Mrs. Burrill Fielding, Mrs. Elizabeth Fowler, Mrs. Samuel M. STR. PLYMOUTH DISABLED IN LONG ISLAND SOUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 22.—Steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line of the New England Steamship company, bound from New York to Fall River, was disabled in the sound late last night and this noon the craft with her several hundred passengers was towed into port, the passengers boarding a special train for Fall River.

The Plymouth had reached a point off Faulkner's Island, west of New Haven, when a high pressure tank pin broke. The mishap necessitated the steamer coming to a stop in an endeavor to make temporary repairs. When repairs could not be perfected a signal was given summoning the steamer Chester W. Chapin to the aid of the Plymouth. The Chapin put alongside the Plymouth and in trying to get a hawser to the disabled boat the Chapin was carried against the Plymouth by a heavy sale, the impact being so great that no further attempt was made to get the Chapin alongside the Fall River liner. Finally a hawser was made fast to the two boats, but when the strain was put upon it the hawser parted. A wireless message was then sent to the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company here and at midnight two tugs went to the assistance of the Plymouth. By the time that the tugs had reached the Plymouth the wind had greatly abated and but little difficulty was experienced in getting a hawser to the craft, and this accomplished, good time was made to this port.

PLAN TRIP TO STRANGE SEAS FOR RARE SPECIMENS

The chance of adventures in strange seas and in lands far distant from modern day civilization has been sufficient to attract men who are willing to make up the crew of the schooner that is to leave New London about Sept. 1, under the command of Captain George Comer that is to go to far southern lands in search of specimens for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Arrangements for the expedition have been going forward without much publicity having been given to it. But lately a three-masted schooner has been secured for the expedition and purchases of gear, including water casks and whale boats, have been made in New Bedford, the gear to be shipped overland to New London, which will be the point of departure for the expedition.

In addition to purchasing gear at New Bedford Captain Comer has had in view securing a mate and two hands in New Bedford from among the men who have had experience in this line. Two prospective members of the crew made themselves known when Ernest Tremblay and Arthur Voleiu, of New Bedford made inquiries concerning the expedition. The young men were referred to Pemberton H. Nye, who has been the New Bedford agent of the expedition, and if the young men come to terms with Captain Comer they will likely be members of the crew of the schooner.

The expedition under the command of Captain Comer will be gone from America not more than two years. There will be three scientific men aboard in addition to the captain and crew of the ship. Dr. P. M. Rea is to be in charge of the scientific end of the expedition, and the plan is to visit various out of the way islands for the purpose of collecting specimens and photographs of fish, bird and animal life for the collection of Cleveland Museum. The islands to be visited include St. Paul's Rock, Fernandoroma, St. Catherine's, Trinidad, Martin Vas Rocks, South Georgias, Tristan de Cunha, Gough's Island, Crosettes, St. Paul's and Amsterdam Islands, Kerguelen and St. Helena.

PHEASANTS ARRIVE FOR TOWNS AROUND NORWICH

Norwich sportsmen were interested Tuesday evening when the 7 o'clock train arrived at the New Haven road station as it brought a consignment of two hundred and fifty ring necked pheasants from the state game farm at Madison, for the Norwich Fish and Game association. By an error the crates were billed to New London and did not reach here at the time expected. When they failed to arrive Secretary W. W. Ives of the association got busy on the wires and finally located them and had them brought to Norwich on the regular passenger train.

William LaRochelle, Albert Boardman, C. A. Gager, Roy Fillmore with the secretary were at the station and immediately took the birds away and after giving them feed and water started to liberate in the localities chosen. It was nearly 11 o'clock before the work was done. What were not placed were taken out Wednesday.

The birds have been placed in Norwich, Preston, Lisbon, Bozrah, Franklin, Sprague and Montville. It is expected that there will be good hunting when the season opens.

Not all of the birds that were liberated last fall were captured as is evidenced by reports that have been received by the association of numerous flocks of young birds that have been seen this summer. This section of the state seems to be well adapted for the propagation of this species of game and it is hoped that the increase may continue.

It is the purpose of the state board of fisheries and game to strictly enforce the laws relating to game. Under new legislation passed by the last general assembly the game wardens will be kept on guard during the entire hunting season and efforts will be made to stop all illegal hunting. Some so called sportsmen in the past have utterly disregarded the law relating to the killing of the female pheasant. If they are caught this fall they will be severely dealt with. Violation may be punished by a fine of fifty dollars.

Shipments of trout are expected later as the association has suggested that owing to the low condition of the brooks it would not be advisable to stock the brooks at the present time.

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful It Is to Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when properly prepared and taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest quality willow charcoal powdered to extreme fineness, then compressed in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. They are also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and you get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

How a light Ford truck owned by Aime Goodreau, a Goodyear business man, was stolen and recovered in Providence on a recent evening makes a tale of unusual interest. With two friends Mr. Goodreau went to Providence on a business trip. Arrived in the city, it was discovered that a new taillight was needed for the car and while this was being purchased at a store someone stole the truck. Left stranded, the Goodyear men sought a public service car to bring them home and were coming out through the city when they saw the Godreau truck speeding along ahead of them. They gave chase, a motorcycle policeman became interested and joined in with the speeding machines and was on hand to halt the driver of the stolen car when the proper time came. A conference ensued at which the car thief convinced the motorcycle officer and two other policemen that came along—almost—that the Godreau party had let him take the truck to try out with a view to purchasing it. Fut this yarn was finally overcome as pure buncombe and the thief was placed under arrest and locked up. It appears that the prisoner has a record of having been mixed up in some irregular affairs around Providence and Pawtucket and the prospects are that he will meet with difficulty when presented in court.

The Bulletin hastens this morning to correct an error that appeared in the Danielson column Wednesday morning. It was Peter Morse and son, not Peter Masse and son of Baltouville, that were before the town court Tuesday. The elder Morse will be in court again today, to which time his case was adjourned.

Convinced that there is going to be another shortage of hard coal during the coming winter, number of householders here are making their plans to use soft coal in heaters during the cold period that will be at hand in about two months. It appears that the people of this section of eastern Connecticut are becoming enured to hard coal shortages and to the use of substitutes. Quick to sense that there will also be a heavy demand for cord wood during the fall and winter, owners of woodland property are getting out large supplies of it, and it is not likely that there will be the shortage of this commodity experienced last winter, when supplies of seasoned wood here were exhausted and much green wood had to be used. It is at least a comfort that, having faced a number of cold seasons during which there has been worry over the fuel supply, that people are becoming accustomed to it and no longer get the impression that they are going to freeze because things are no longer normal. There will in any event be a considerable supply of hard coal available and with the substitutes comfortable homes are assured.

In these closing days of August, those who are charged with the duty of operating the necessary political machinery of the town are giving their attention to arrangements for the caucuses at which candidates for town offices will be nominated for the annual town election, which this year comes on the first day of October.

Entrance into the field this year of a third party in Killingly will make the town election more than ordinarily interesting. It is not likely, however, that it will bring about any material changes in the republican or democratic nominations, though, as to minor offices, some new names may appear on the tickets. In all probability there will be six candidates for selectmen. Such a set up of candidates will be certain to result in a keen contest at the polls. Another sharp battle is probable for the office of tax collector.

What has become of the thousands of chinook salman htat were releasde a number of years ago in Alexander's lake? That is a question that interests fishermen who like to angle on that body of water. Not one of these fish has been taken in all the years since the release was made, yet some of the fish were eight inches in length and apparently well able to take care of themselves when they were put into the lake. It has been held by some that the salmon are still there and are not being caught because the proper methods of fishing for them are not followed. As salmon normally bit well in September an effort will be made to catch some out of the lake during the coming month by employing methods used in lakes and streams where salmon abound.

These are days when hundreds of children of school age in the town of Killingly are looking forward with mixed emotions to the opening of another school year. With the approach of the opening day coming nearer at hand preparations are being made for the work of the year. During the long vacation school buildings have been renovated and such other work as has been necessary has been done. It is thought likely that there will be an increase in the enrollment this year, although this is difficult to forecast at this time. At Goodyear there will be additional facilities this fall for caring for the children of school age in that community.

An appeal to the superior court has been taken by Victor Delude, of Moosup, from a fine and jail sentence imposed upon him by Justice Matthewson presiding in a court at which liquor cases have been tried at Central Village this week. Delude is one of the number who became involved as the result of raids made for liquors by the state police in villages of the town of Plainfield the past week end. The fine imposed in court was $200 and a jail sentence, execution of which was suspended. Delude, who was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back, appealed and the case will come before the superior court at the fall term, in all probability. This is the first appeal noted in such cases in this part of the county for a long time.

Today at Central Village the court will again be in session considering liquor cases and another case will come up for a hearing next week.

DEP. SHERIFF G. F. HOLBROOK REACHES 80TH BIRTHDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 22.—Deputy Sheriff George F. Holbrook, veteran of the Civil war, receiving wounds at the charge on Fort Wagner from which he never fully recovered, bedridden since November 1919, reached his 80th birthday, Wednesday, in excellent spirits and with soldierly fortitude. On account of his condition there was no special observance of the day, but post cards and little gifts found their way to his bedside.

Mr. Holbrook is a decendant of ancient families of New England each from a line of fighters. Thomas and John Holbrook with a party from Weymouth, England, migrated to New England in 1624 and gave the name of their home town to the settlement they established in Massachusetts.

Mr. Holbrook was born in Pomfret, Aug. 22, 1843, youngest of four children of whom he is the only survivor. His father, George Washington Holbrook, was born on the old homestead in Pomfret and was a miller and prosperous farmer. His grandfather, George H. Holbrook fought in the war of 1812 and served at New London.

Mr. Holbrook was educated in the schools of his native town and was brought up on the farm of his ancestors. When the call came for volunteers to serve the government to put the southern rebellion young Holbrook, 18 years old, on September 5, 1861, was among the first to answer the call. With the fighting blood of his ancestors coursing through his veins he led the young men of the town and was the first to enroll in Company K, Connecticut Volunteer Infantry.

Holbrook served under Major Jas. R. Hawley and his first captain was Captain Burton and the second Jerome Tourtellotte of Putnam, who later became a major, and who still lives in Putnam. The company was assembled with its regiment for the charge on Fort Wagner, a stronghold of the southern forces, and when the word to charge was given the federal soldiers were met by volleys that mowed them down like grain. Young Holbrook was among the first to fall. A ball passed through his body near the hips and he was unable to move, so fell into the hands of the rebels, a prisoner.

The Pomfret soldier boy was first incarcerated in Libby prison, then on Belle Island. He suffered the tortures of southern prison life but his hardy stock, his young, healthy body, stood the hardships to which thousands of less hardy men succumbed. He existed on the roots and herbs possible to find in the camp with an occasional piece of wormy bacon and more wormy corn meal. Even these worms were eaten as a means of sustenance.

Nursing his own wounds, young Holbrook survived the weary months until finally he was paroled and sent to Annapolis, Md., and then to the United States General Hospital at New Haven, where he was gradually nursed back to health. On account of his wounds, that however never fully healed, his fighting days were ended but he remained for the term of his enlistment as a nurse in the hospital to which he owed his life. He was honorably discharged September 12th, 1864.

Mr. Holbrook returned to Pomfret and the old homestead. For two years he lived in Providence but not caring for city life returned to the farm.

Mr. Holbrook was appointed a deputy sheriff for Windham county by Sheriff E. C. Pomeroy, of Willimantic, in 1895. His expressed wish to remain a deputy sheriff all his life was well known and to honor his long years of service and to show their respect for him as a man he was recently reappointed to office by Sheriff Charles A. Gates and holds his commission for a period of two years more. Although he has arrested hundreds of prisoners, it is his boast that he has never had to club a man nor to draw a pistol and that he never lost a prisoner. He used humane methods in the treatment of unfortunates and trusted them and the trust was never betrayed. When a Sunshine Box was made up for him, some of the men he had taken to jail were the first to respond to solicitations for a fund.

Twenty-two years ago Deputy Holbrook moved his office from Pomfret to Putnam and seven years later moved with his wife to Putnam and has since made this city his home. He married December 29th, 1866, Miss Delia M. Nye of Pomfret and she is still living and able to bring him comfort in the home. They observed their golden wedding anniversary in November 1916. Five children were born to them, three of whom are living, George C., a machinist in Woonsocket, Henry N., on the old homestead in Pomfret and Mrs. B. K. Smith, who occupies the upstairs tenement in the Holbrook home on South Main street.

In November, 1919, Deputy Holbrook had a lad to take to a reformatory institution in Meriden. He left Putnam in his automobile and at Pomfret suffered a chill. Feeling that he should perform his duty he made the trip and returned. When he reached home he was seriously ill and took to his bed. During almost four years he has been unable to leave his bed. He lies near a window where he can look out and see people passing and re-passing. Friends wave to him and he returns their salute. He has remained in this condition month after month with no hope of again taking an active part in affairs but through it all maintains an optimistic spirit, although expressing a willingness to go when the call comes; he is not only willing but unafraid.

STONINGTON

Commander Edward H. Sheffield, 85, of J. F. Trumbull post, No. 52, G. A. R., died at his home on Water street at 7.30 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was born in Stonington and served many years with the Mystic Mariner for five years in the U. S. navy, and the whole period during the Civil war. He had sailed the seas on errands of peace and could tell many interesting stories of his trips.

Commander Sheffield was custodian of the exhibit of the Stonington Historical society in 1914, at the time of the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Stonington. His courtesy to visitors is well remembered. For some time Commander Sheffield had been blind and was a suffered from an incurable malady.

He was born June 23, 1838. His father was a well known shipbuilder and his mother was a daughter of Captain William Potter, keeper of Stonington's first lighthouse. He had made trips on famous old ships such as the Concord and Sam Russell, going to China and Japan.

When the Civil war broke out, and men were needed to command boats in the navy, the government sought the advice of the clipper ship owners as to men of ability and on the recommendation of the firm of A. A. Low & Co., of New York, Mate Sheffield was sent to the navy yard at Philadelphia for examination as to his fitness and was granted an ensign's commission. He was also raised to the rank of Acting Master's Mate and sent to join the South Atlantic squadron to help in the blockade of seven ports, under the command of Admiral DuPont. He was later raised to the rank of Acting Master and served on the United States steamship Blenville and was also executive officer of Winona. He was a charter member of the First Baptist church, of Pioneer Hook and Ladder Company and of Trumbull post, Stonington. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Moses A. Pendleton of Stonington, and two brothers, Oscar S. Sheffield of Jersey City and Arthur D. Sheffield of the borough.

WESTERLY

The community hospital fund reached the total of $192,952 Wednesday when the campaign workers met at their third rally lunch in the state armory at Westerly and reported a total for the day of $69,517. This brought the total up to $192,955.

The largest gift so far announced was reported Wednesday through the team of Thomas Perry. It was a subscription of $16,500 from George C. Moore. $1,500 of this is for a ward bed in memory of Dr. John L. May, and the remaining $15,000 is for the two operating rooms.

It is stated that a majority of the memorials available in the new hospital have been taken, not all of them having yet been announced. Those so far announced are as follows:

JEWETT CITY

Jewett City has revived the old time baseball spirit. Tuesday evening "Ted" Shea and his team of married men were seen at Asland Park preparing for the big game to be played on Saturday against the single men. They showed the old time form, but are still a little slow on bases. By Saturday the manager hopes to develop a good all round team. Mr. Shea, who first brought "Babe Ruth" before the baseball world received a baseball Wednesday morning from Ruth, with Ruth's signature on it, also a letter, wishing him victory.

The single men have a strong bunch but lack of experience of the gray-haired team. The game promises in every way to rival the old Norwich K. of C. and Jewett City game.

Following will be the line-up:

Single Men—"Dead Shot" Dudkowski c, "Barney" Benjamin and Sleepy Nap" Liberty p, "Spark Plug" Melady and "Senator" Welsh 1b, "Durant" Doolan and "Rabbit" Wallace 2b, "Killem" Jodoin and "Deacon" Willis 3b, "Hefty" Jodoin and "Bon Homme" Ritchie ss, "Street Commissioner" Farrell and "Fatima" Driscoll cf. "Honeymoon" Dudkowski and "Johnnie" Blake rf, "Judge" Dudkowski and "Mayor" Geary lf.

Married Men—"(Hal)-l-but" Chase c, "Spike" Liberty p, "Flat Tire" Hiscox 1b, "Stubby" Driscoll 2b, "Statue" Liberty 3b, "Peanut" Jarvis ss, "Babe Ruth" Shea lf, "Lucky Strike" Robertson rf, "Ginger" Raille cf.

During the last year of the war the government sent a detachment of men to Jewett City to make measurements of the streams and to report upon the available water power of the Quinebaug, at a point a few hundred feet below the railroad bridge. They established a cable ferry line across the river, with a car suspended from the wire, which was operated by a light-power gasolene engine. A small house was built on the Brewster side for the engine, and as a place in which certain tools were stored. At that time there was plenty of excitement, many went to witness the daily sounding operations. The Quinebaug at Jewett City is unlike other rivers of the state. In winter its volume and power is exceedingly erratic; one day it may be a raging torrent, only to return to normal stage the next. On summer mornings before the mills start up the line, and before the discharged water from their wheels has reached here, the volume of current over the Quinebaug bed could be encompassed within a flume the size of a hogshead. In the afternoon there is plenty of water for boating and bathing, where only a few hours before, stones and sand were to be seen.

After the armistice was signed and the war was over, the current-estimating activities ceased. Now after several years a graduated system is again established. Theodore Davis, a Jewett City lad, makes certain measurements twice every week, which he duly reports to the government.

Wednesday in the borough was a day for taking out screens and closing windows and shutting the doors. Along toward early evening smoke was noted curling from several chimneys, proving that a little heat didn't go bad, as the evening hours were passed in reading over the just-a-little discouraging coal strike news. One borough man, with an empty bin, says that although the strike stories are perennial, and old stuff, yet with an early and severe winter promised by the local weather sharps, it is [illegible] alarming to say the least. Following close on the heels of a southerly storm, Wednesday was unseasonably cool. Many were seen on the streets with extra wraps. One man appeared with the novel combination of a winter uister and a straw hat.

The guest of honor was Mrs. George H. Prior, state president. With Miss Burdick are Mrs. Anna Cummings of Brooklyn, Conn., and Miss Ethel Roode of Griswold. Mrs. W. R. NEW LONDON MAN IN HOSPITAL, DUE TO DRINKING WOOD ALCHOHOL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 23.—The largest bond ever imposed for the holding of a rum-runner in this state was demanded of Nostrano Facchini, 72 Goshen street, this forenoon, when Facchini was brought before Justice of the Peace John James Floyd in Waterford, charged with transporting liquor in violation of the Volstead law. Justice Floyd found probable cause for holding Facchini for trial at the next term of the superior court and fixed the bond at $10,000. Facchini was unable to furnish a surety and was taken to jail.

The arrest of Facchini, it is understood, was the result of the activities of Police Sergeant Samuel Hick and Prohibition Enforcement Agent H. W. Avery, working out of the office of State's Attorney H. A. Hull, in an endeavor to put a stop to the running of liquor into the city and its sale here; for Facchini was arrested at Station 7, Waterford, at what is known as Leverone's grove by the officers at 4.30 o'clock this morning, and when Facchini had a truckload of alcohol which he intended to store at the grove.

Facchini, who had been suspected a long time of being a booze-runner, was known to have been expected to arrive at a house located in the grove during the night, so the officers stayed in waiting throughout the night for his coming. About 4.30 o'clock Facchini and his truck appeared and he was held up. On the seat with Facchini was a companion, and as the truck stopped the man leaped from the machine and bolted for the woodland adjoining the grove. The officers fired at the fleeing fellow, but he succeeded in making his escape.

When the truck was searched it was found to hold 50 five-gallon containers of alcohol. This was seized, as was the truck, and with Facchini was taken to the police station. Facchini was held a prisoner until 10 o'clock this morning, when he was presented before Justice Floyd. Thomas E. Troland, acting for State's Attorney Hull, appeared for the state; Attorney Max Boyer was counsel for Facchini.

Later in the day the alcohol was removed to a place of storage in the custom house and the car was placed in permanent storage.

On the exterior of the truck, which is covered, was the wording "Fruit and Vegetables, Long Distance and City Trucking."

It is understood that State's Attorney Hull has been informed that the liquor traffic is common among residents of the grove and that it is not only stored there but its sale is made from the place, and that search warrants for every building on the place will be issued without delay.

The arrest of Facchini, it is reported, is the result of jealousy among the Italian bootleggers in New London; one of their gang is providing the authorities with information against the others.

An effort is being made this afternoon to obtain surety on Facchini's bond and it is not improbable that within a day or two the accused will be at liberty.

The fire department was called out at 1.30 o'clock this afternoon, when the footbridge of the New Haven railroad spanning Shaw's cove became ablaze. When the fire was discovered about 100 feet of the structure, near the Hamilton street end, was blazing and an alarm was sent in from Box 49, corner of Hamilton and Howe streets. The department made quick time, but it required a half hour's work before the fire was subdued. The blaze originated, it is believed, from a lighted cigar but, or match being dropped beneath the bridge, where a large quantity of excelsior had been thrown away.

Miss Penniman, superintendent of Long Lane farm, the state institution for wayward girls at Middletown, this morning communicated with the police, requesting them to apprehend Mary Lombardi, aged 16, who had made her escape from the institution earlier in the day, should the girl put in an appearance in New London. Mrs. L. L. Snyder, 964 Bank street, complained to the police this morning that her home had been entered and that $40 had been stolen. The money had been placed in a safety box and the latter placed under a bed. Apparently, the thief had knowledge of the hiding place of the money.

Tony DiMarco will be in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with breach of the peace in assaulting Joseph Forman, another public service operator, at the Union station this morning. DiMarco was at the stand in advance of Forman, but there was no place for DiMarco's machine, the stand being full. When a vacancy did occur, DiMarco alleges that Forman, who had arrived with his car, endeavored to take the place that rightfully belonged to DiMarco. A war of words followed with the alleged result that Forman is alleged to have struck DiMarco a blow on the head. DiMarco then beat up Forman and was arrested when Forman lodged a complaint against him.

James W. Wing of Portland, Me., was before Justice of the Peace Thomas I. Merton in Waterford this morning, charged with evasion of responsibility. A nolle was entered upon Wing paying the costs of the court, $13, and agreeing to recompense Ralph Gurney of New London, whose car was in collision with Wing's for the damage incurred. Wing was operating his machine to New Haven last night and in passing through Waterford his automobile grazed the machine of Gurney. Instead of stopping to determine what damage Gurney's car had sustained, Wing continued on his way. He was taken into custody at the Saybrook toll bridge by State Policeman L. J. Cuneo and brought back to New London. Wing was allowed to spend the night at the Hotel Mohican and this morning he continued to New Haven after agreeing to a settlement with the court.

Following the revelation that Frank Parks of 115 Blinman street, an employe of the ship and engine company, had been removed from his home to Lawrence hospital last night suffering from wood alcohol poisoning, three places were raided this afternoon and the proprietors arrested charged with violation of the liquor law, for Parks declared that he purchased drinks at each of the stores of the accused, although the raiders found no real evidence at either place that liquor was dispensed there.

The arrested men are Matthew Kasiah, former conductor in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, proprietor of a fruit and hop store, No. 278 Main street; Genaro DeLuca, proprietor of a store No. 334 Bank street, and Muriano Barca, proprietor of a cigar store and pool room, 706 Bank street. Each of the accused was released upon furnishing sureties on their respective bonds of $500 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. George H. Beck became surety for Kasiah; Antone Cassavent bond for Barca and Reuben Lunchansky became surety for DeLuca.

At Keenan's establishment two bottles of home brew were found and seized, but at the other two places the only evidence of liquor selling that was obtained were several broken whiskey bottles, which were taken as evidence.

Last night Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Philopena and Cavanaugh were informed that a man had been injured and had been taken to Lawrence hospital. The officers went to the institution and there it was revealed that instead of having been received at the institution for injuries, Parks was under treatment for poisoning caused by drinking wood alcohol. Parks' left side is paralyzed, but his recovery is predicted.

Hay Fever

Complete Relief in 24 Hours Reported in 95% of Cases Under New Treatment

Just in the nick of time, when millions of hay fever victims stand in hourly dread of their annual plague, comes the announcement that hay fever has at last yielded to modern medical science.

Dr. M. G. Platt, of the Clinical Laboratories, Cleveland, after 8 years' intensive study of hay fever, asthma, catarrh and kindred affections—has recently perfected a new and amazingly successful method of treatment, entirely different from any heretofore used. With characteristic professional caution, the doctor does not call the new treatment a cure. But with it he has been able to banish all symptoms in 24 hours—not in a few isolated instances, but actually in 95% of the thousands of cases which have come under his clinical observation.

A Remarkable New Discovery

For years hay fever has been one of the stumbling blocks of medical science. It has long been known that certain plant pollens in the air were the "immediate cause." Till very lately it was thought that these merely irritated certain areas of the eyes and nose which were supersensitive in certain persons. But this theory accounted only for the local symptoms of excessive mucous and sneezing.

It did not at all explain the wider effects of headache, fever and general prostration. Certainly local treatments, intended to relieve the irritation, never effected more than local relief.

Then, on the same theory as vaccination, "serum treatment" was tried. But hardly more than 50% of the cases treated responded in a satisfactory degree.

The fact is, no previous treatment has really gotten to the actual cause of hay fever in the system.

The True Cause of Hay Fever

The correct theory of the cause of hay fever, now confirmed by the research work of Dr. Platt, is as follows: The pollens floating in the air are known to contain protein. When we EAT protein food, it is properly digested in the stomach and intestines before entering the blood.

But the protein in floating pollens is absorbed through the membranes of the eyes and nose RAW AND UNDIGESTED. It then creates in many persons a direct disturbance of the nervous system and seriously upsets the proper balance of the blood. Medical men call this a toxic infection. It is a sort of overloading and poisoning combined. The result is soon seen in fever, headache and general depression, as well as in greatly increased secretions of mucous in the eyes, nose and throat.

It can thus be seen that hay fever cannot possibly be cured by surface treatments like nasal sprays, washes, ointments, cauterizing and inhalation, or by drops in the eyes. These cannot prevent the pollens from lodging on the membranes and the continued absorption of their protein content.

An Entirely New Treatment

The only way to correct the whole condition is to neutralize the raw, undigested protein as fast as it is absorbed. And this, it has been proved, can be done effectively through Dr. Platt's new internal treatment.

This new treatment differs from any other hitherto known or used. Dr. Platt's prescription, which he calls RINEX, contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs, and has no bad after-effects. It acts directly to neutralize the raw protein which is being taken into the system. Users say the amazingly prompt relief seems little short of miraculous.

Results are positively guaranteed. The regular size package of Dr. Platt's RINEX Prescription costs only $1—to be returned in full if it does not do the work. But just now, through a special introductory arrangement, you can obtain a trial treatment entirely FREE.

Simply go to any of the drug stores named below and ask for a trial package of RINEX. Take this prescription for just 24 hours—just TRY it. We KNOW it will do what we say. But here you can have FREE PROOF—if you act at once. But don't delay. Be sure to ask for your free treatment within the next three days—this offer is limited. RINEX is also offered under the same positive guarantee to completely relieve asthma and catarrh. It may be obtained in this city at Total stock sales, 693,900 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 99.13, net loss .66. High 1923, 105.33; low, 85.91.

Twenty railroads averaged 78.76, net loss .55. High 123, 90.63; low, 78.78.

MARKET CLOSED STRONG.

New York, Aug. 23.—Concerted selling of the railroad shares unsettled today's stock market after an early period of [illegible] a number of industrial stocks. Net changes, however, were largely of a fractional character.

Reports of another deadlock in the coal miners' wage conference brought a substantial volume of over-night selling orders into the market and impaired a heavy tone to the United feelings. These offerings however, were well absorbed and the market was not long in resuming its recent upward trend. Equipments led the rally and gains of 2 or more points were not uncommon before noon.

The rally was accompanied by the usual bullish rumors and tips which included reports of mergers, dividend increases and higher metal prices. The Iron Age, in its weekly review, declares that "rail buying is the main point of interest in a market that has not yet given definite advance signs of fall activity." The blowing out of six blast furnaces in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts, it says, has made more men available for the third shift at the mills, thereby acting as a stabilizing influence.

The relatively poor Union Pacific earnings report for July combined with the failure of the carrier shares to participate extensively in the recent advance, furnished an excuse for the selling of those shares. Union Pacific lost 1 5-8 on the day; Delaware & Hudson, 1 7-8; Canadian Pacific, 1 1-2 and Northern Pacific, 1. Omaha touched a new low for the year.

Baldwin was one of the early strong spots, touching 133 3-4 an dthen falling back to 122, up 1-4 on the day. Gulf States Steel sold between 79 1-2 and 83 1-2, closing at 81 1-8 for a small fractional loss. National Lead jumped to 124 1-2. Sinclair preferred dropped 5 points to 81, a new low for the year, and Foundation Co. slumped more than 6 points but rallied 2 before the close.

For the first time in nearly three weeks call loans were renewed at 5 per cent., but the rate softened to 4 1-2 in the last half hour. Rates continued to ask 5 1-2 per cent. for time money, with brokers bidding 5 1-4 and arranging a few loans at the lower figure. Commercial paper was moderately active with 5 1-4 per cent. the ruling rate.

Foreign exchanges were irregular with principal interest centered in the French franc, which dropped 7 points to 5.36 1-4 cent. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.55. Greek drachmas jumped nearly 15 points to 1.91 cents, but the other rates showed only nominal changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Buying of December corn just before the close started a covering movement on the part of shorts and served to increase demand for grain from other sources. As a result wheat prices rallied and closed near the top prices of the day, final figures showing a net gain of 3-8c to 3-4c with December 1.05 to 1.05 1-8, and May 1.10 1-2 to 1.10 5-8; corn was up 1-4c to 1 7-8c, oats 1 1-8c to 1 1-3c higher, and provisions unchanged to 15c lower.

Wheat prices failed to deviate much in either direction from the close of the previous day, predictions of frost in parts of the northwest, causing apprehension to the Canadian crop, failed to materalize. Low temperatures, however, were reported from some sections of that country as well as from parts of the domestic area and resulted in some scattered selling while the advance at Liverpool furnished an incentive to buy. In the late dealings there was a covering movement on the part of houses which were short on corn, and this acted as a stimulant to wheat.

Trade in corn was marked with irregularity. Orders in September were light, but it was difficult to execute them, and prices rose and fell in turns. Buying of this delivery was mainly by shorts, while the selling was in the way of accepting profits. More distant months were relatively firm and benefited by the advance in hogs. Weather and crop news was generally favorable.

Oats exhibited firmness during the greater part of the session.

Provisions were in light trade and the tone weak, despite the firmness in hogs.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22.—Bond prices moved within narrow limits in today's trading which again was in comparatively small volume.

Active United States government bonds were either unchanged or slightly improved. There was some selling of the French issues on speculative apprehension over the European outlook but the losses were not large. Mexican 5s declined 1 1-4.

Railroad mortgages held relatively firm in quiet trading. Great Northern 6 1-2s, Series B, dropped 1 on reports of new financing. Third Avenue refunding 4s were in fair demand closing 1 1-8 higher.

Aside from the movement of several speculative issues there was little activiey among industrial lieus. Cerro De Pasco Copper 8s moved up a point and Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s, with warrants, dropped 1 1-4.

It was reported that a $25,000,000 Brazillian loan may be offered in the New York market soon. There were reports also of a $6,000,000 issue for the Public Service Company of Colorado, to be offered shortly.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 22.—Selling orders again predominated in today's curb market with the result that the list displayed a reactionary tone during most of the day. A brief flurry of buying took place in the early afternoon, but the rally was not maintained.

Active oil shares showed only fractional changes on the day. A cut in mid-continent crude prices by an independent refiner was not regarded seriously and failed to bring out any extensive liquidation. Magnolia Petroleum dropped 6 points on odd lot transactions and Prairie Oil & Gas lost 2 on sales of less than 200 shares. Standard Oil of Indiana, the leader in point of activity, closed 1-2 lower at 52 1-2 ater having sold nearly a point above that figure.

Durant Motors climbed 2 1-2 points to 42 1-2 but eli back later to 40 3-4, up 1-4. Other motors registered small fractional losses.

The feature of the mining group was the establishment of a new high for the year by Continental Mines.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Another well-known novel made its appearance on the local screen last night when "Tillie" was presented at the Breed theatre as the latest Mary Miles Minter Realart starring vehicle. "Tillie" is an Alice Eyton adaptation of the Helen R. Martin novel "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid" and play by Frank Howe, Jr. Mary Miles Minter appears as "Tillie," the forlorn little girl whose youth has been bogged down by almost unbelievable narrow-mindedness and cruelty; who is given a glimpse of the real world of books and people just as she is emerging into womanhood; given this glimpse in a manner that provides tremendous dramatic emphasis to a really absorbing story.

It is entirely different from Miss Minter's usual type of plays—effectively demonstrating the real versatility of this beautiful and popular screen star.

Miss Minter is supported in the production by an excellent cast including Noah Beery, Alan Forrest, Marie Treboal, Ashley Cooper, Robert Anderson, and Virginia Adair. To Frank Urson goes credit for the excellent direction. Elmer Harris supervised.

"Tillie" will be shown again today at the Breed theatre as the feature attraction and for the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in "The New Teacher." Movie Chats completes the bill.

A special feature for Friday evening will be an enlarged orchestra composed of twelve union musicians.

Vaudeville at the Strand Theatre

A very fine diversified program of B. B. Keith vaudeville is assured at the Strand theatre the last half of this week consisting of the following acts:

Morlen and Doran in "Surprise" will offer musical novelty.

Charles Tobias is a comedian that can be depended upon.

Leon and Dawn, those romping rollicking rascals appear in "Kids is Kids."

Nora Jane and Carl will offer "Dancing de Luxe."

The shiek episode, without which no picture is complete, has given a new twist in Tom Forman's film production of "The Girl Who Came Back," the Tom Forman production now showing at the Strand theatre.

A costume ball staged with the picturesque "rim of the world" as a background, serves as the opportunity for the extravagantly staged feature of the picture, Kenneth Harlan, a recent acquisition of the B. P. Schulberg organization, appears in the role of the shiek.

Owing to the fact that the picture was filmed during California's rainy season it was decided that the big garden "exterior" should be constructed indoors, bushes, trees, pool and all. Incidentally the decision made it possible to bring into play the Schulberg studios new lighting paraphernalia—used for the first time on an "exterior" scene.

A complete garden, with colossal gateways and silken hangings was therefore erected on one of the stages, which had been previously cut away to make room for a set in "Poor Men's Wives." In the center is a novel pool, on which floats a flower-decked boat, and in whose depths splash oriental maidens.

In the picture, which is a film version of Charles Blanney's famous play of regeneration appear such favorites as Miriam Cooper, Kenneth Harlan, Gaston Glass, Za Su Pitts, Fred Malatesta and Joseph Dowling.

BALTIC

The carnival given under the auspices of St. John's band, at the entrance to Sayles Field, was well patronized, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

M. P. Cote and a party of friends motored to Rocky Point Tuesday and enjoyed a Rhode Island clambake.

Frank Bastien and Leon Peloquinn are in Magog, Canada, spending their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Blais have returned from Montreal, where they spent six weeks, guests of relatives and friends.

A large delegation of members from Court Sprague, No. 90, F. of A., attended the clambake given recently by the joint courts of Norwich, Taftville and Sprague, at Taftville.

Dudley Burr is home from Newport, Vt., where he spent part of his vacation.

The Baltic Rifle team had its weekly practice Saturday, when some good scores were made. Through the full N. R. A. course two more of the boys are inspecting rifles from the director of civilian marksmanship at reduced prices. The government has listed twenty rifle camps for try-outs for riflemen who aspire to earn a place on the rifle team, which will represent this country in the international matches. The try-outs will be held under the supervision of officers detailed by the corps area, commanders or by the commanding officer of the separate posts; the regular 200-yard range will be used in all tryouts and contestants will be allowed to use any ammunition and any make of rifle with metallic sight. The conditions call for forty shots standing, thirty shots kneeling and ten shots prone, to be fired each day for three successive days. Candidates giving promise of ability will be selected by a committee; the shooting selected will be ordered to Camp Perry and their transportation and subsistence will be provided. Any young man who cares for rifle shooting and wants to practice has a chance to get in on this by joining the N. R. A. and can have a great vacation free, and see the world's greatest riflemen.

IN MEMORIAM
In Memory Of
ALBERT D. ROGERS,
Who Passed Away Aug. 23, 1922.

A precious one from us hath gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom hath recalled
The boon His love hath given,
And though the body slumbers here
The soul is safe in heaven.

POETRY

AS I CAME DOWN FROM LEBANON.

As I came down from Lebanon,
Came winding, wandering slowly down
Through mountain passes bleak and brown,
The cloudless day was well-nigh done,
The city, like an opal set
In emerald, showed each minaret
Afire with radiant beams of sun,
And glistened orange, fig and lime,
Where song birds made melodious chime,
As I came down from Lebanon.

As I came down from Lebanon,
Like lava in the dying glow,
Through olive orchards far below
I saw the murmuring river run;
And 'neath the wall upon the sand
Swart sheiks from distant Sacarcand,
With precious spices they had won,
Lay long and languidly in wait
Till they might pass the guarded gate,
As I came down from Lebanon.

As I came down from Lebanon,
I saw strange men from lands afar,
In mosque and square and gay bazar,
The Magi and that the Moslem shun,
And grave Effendi from Stamboul,
Who sherbet sipped in corners cool;
And, from the balconies o'errun
With roses, gleamed the eyes of those
Who dwell in still seraglios,
As I came down from Lebanon.

As I came down from Lebanon,
The flaming flower of daytime died,
And Night, arrayed as is a bride
Of some great king, in garments spun
Of purple and the finest gold,
Outbloomed in glories manifold,
Until the moon, above the dun
And darkening desert, void of shade,
Shone like a keen Damascus blade,
As I came down from Lebanon.
—Clinton Scollard.

NANTUCKET.

When summer comes to the city, I send out to a land
Where sun-warmed moors dip gently to an even stretch of sand, Waiting ever patiently the touch of the sea's bold hand.

Little groups of wind-grayed homes with roses burning at each door;
Hollyhocks, so stiffly gay, nod to heather-
on the shore;
Up on high, 'neath the azure sky, the white-winged seagulls soar.

Under the cliff where the lighthouse stands the waves with fury break—
Great untamed tons of strength that never a rest may take;
Spitting forth angrily, always a ceaseless boom to make.

Narrow, winding streets, rough cobbled, that so soon end their quest
In wavering green cornfields, mothered at the moor's dry breast,
Framed in crazy fences by hands a century at rest.

Just a little sun-kissed island set in a sky-blue sea;
A few brown miles of wind-swept moors,
with a lighthouse on the lea;
Remotely alone, forgotten, it is the world to me!
—Florence Wilson Dunn, in Boston Transcript.

ABE DAVIDSON SUES MUSICIANS' UNION FOR DAMAGES OF $40,000

Alleging a conspiracy to injure his business and destroy his reputation, Abe Davidson, proprietor and manager of the Broadway and Strand theatres, Wednesday brought suit against Musicians' Protective union, No. 235, of the American Federation of Musicians, and twenty-six members of the local union, claiming damages of $40,000. The damage suit has been brought by Mr. Davidson through his attorneys, Arthur M. Brown and V. P. A. Quinn. Attachments to cover the damage claim were served Wednesday.

The defendants named in the complaint are as follows:

The allegations in the complaint are as follows:

For more than a year past the plaintiff has been the lessee and proprietor of the Broadway and Strand theatres in said Norwich at which places vaudeville, moving pictures and so-called "one night stands" are presented.

For the successful carrying on of said theatres it is necessary that the plaintiff employ orchestras of musicians who are members of the American Federation of Musicians.

The said American Federation of Musicians are an organized body of musicians located throughout the United States of America and having ——— in many towns and ——— including the town and city of Norwich. The ——— organizations are known as locals.

Under the rules and regulations of the said federation no member can play in any ——— city or town where there is a local organization of said federation without first being affiliated with said local organization ——— by a fine or expulsion ——— said federation.

The defendants are members of the local organization of said federation, known as Musicians' Protective Union, Local No. 235 of the American Federation of Musicians.

On or about the 28th day of May, 1923, the plaintiff caused to close the Strand theatre and the orchestra at the Strand theatre was given a two ——— notice as provided by its contract ——— on or about the 5th day of June 1923, the orchestra at the Broadway was given a two weeks' notice as provided by its contract.

On the 12th day of June 1923, Local No. 235 requested by ——— that the plaintiff ——— to ——— Broadway theatre, ——— to close the Strand theatre ——— was refused.

The plaintiff is ready and still is ready and willing to comply with all the rules of the American Federation of Musicians.

On or about the 12th day of June 1923, the said defendants, together with certain other persons, unknown to this plaintiff, conspired together for the purpose of ——— and destroying the plaintiff's said business, which conspiracy still exists.

Pursuant to the said general conspiracy and as a part thereof the said defendants refused to permit any members of said Local No. 235 or of the American Federation of Musicians to enter the employ of the plaintiff as members of the orchestras in the said theatres, and refused and prevented members of Local No. 235 to make contracts with the plaintiff to furnish music in said theatres, through threats of fines and suspension from said members were willing and anxious to make said contracts and to furnish music and further refused to issue the "transfer cards" so called, to any member of the American Federation of Musicians who desired to come to Norwich and enter the employ of the plaintiff as musicians.

And in further pursuance or objects of said conspiracy the defendant Lang by and with the knowledge and direction of the executive board of said Local No. 235 and the other defendants on the 28th day of August, 1923, refused to give a contract blank to one ——— a member of Local No. ——— that ——— could not enter into a contract with the plaintiff to furnish music for the said theatres of the plaintiff, though the plaintiff was ready and willing to abide by all rules and regulations of the American ——— of Musicians and further refused permission to any member of Local No. 235, to make any contract with the plaintiff to furnish music for the said theatres.

Under the laws of the American Federation of Musicians the plaintiff has the right at any time to hire as a leader of an orchestra any member of Local No. 235 but by reason of the conspiracy hereinbefore set forth, the plaintiff is prevented from engaging any member of Local No. 235, or of the American Federation of Musicians as a leader, and no member of Local No. 235, can accept any engagement to furnish music for the plaintiff.

Also on said August 16, 1923, and in furtherance of said conspiracy the defendants Lang stated that Local No. 235, would permit no member to make any contract to furnish music for the plaintiff, unless he, the defendant Lang, was engaged as leader and that the contract would contain no "two weeks' clause" and that the plaintiff must give bond, and further that the American Federation of Musicians had ordered Local No. 236, to make no other contract, than as above set forth. The defendant Lang, the executive board of Local No. 235, and the defendants as well as all other members of Local No. 236, knew or should have known that no such condition or contract had been demanded of the plaintiff by the American Federation of Musicians, but said Lang, the executive board and the other defendants made said conditions in furtherance of its said conspiracy.

On August 20, 1923, George Tourtelotte, a member of Local No. 235, and former leader of the Broadway theatre orchestra was requested by the plaintiff, to make a contract with him to furnish music for the Broadway theatre or Strand theatre, but was not allowed to do so by Local No. 235, and the defendants, in furtherance of its said conspiracy.

As a result of the actions and conspiracy as above set forth the plaintiff has been compelled to hire non-union labor with which to operate the Strand theatre and by reason of employing said labor is unable to secure certain vaudeville acts, is unable to secure or engage union moving picture operators, to engage union stage hands, or to have legitimate "one night stands" so called, such classes of employes and performers being members of organized bodies which are affiliated with the American Federation of Musicians, through and in connection with the American Federation of Labor and refuse and decline to accept employment or to give performances in any theatre, the orchestra or musicians of which are not members of the American Federation of Musicians which facts were well known to the defendants and each of them and with the result intended by them in the formation and carrying out of the said conspiracy.

On August 16, 1923, the plaintiff had contracted to have Neil O'Brien's minstrels at the Broadway theatre, which said contract was made in May, 1923, on August 30, 1923, the Gingham Girl and on September 5, 1923, Give and Take, both of which contracts were made in May, 1923, but by reason of said conspiracy and the refusal of the defendants and Local No. 235, to allow the plaintiff to engage union musicians, Neil O'Brien's Minstrels were not allowed to present their performance at the Broadway theatre and the performances of the Gingham Girl and Give and Take have been cancelled by the producers because of the conspiracy above set forth.

The said action of the various defendants as set forth heretofore in this complaint were wrongful and malicious and were made from motives of malice, jealousy and avarice and to injure the business and destroy the reputation of the plaintiff.

By reason of the said conspiracy the acts of the various defendants heretofore set forth, the plaintiff has sustained great loss and damage of his business, and has been forced to close the Broadway theatre and is prevented from carrying on his business as above set forth.

And the plaintiff alleges that he has thereby sustained great loss and damage as a result of said conspiracy and by the acts of the conspirators in pursuance thereof and the defendants intended that his business should be injured and destroyed and that he should be put to great expense and loss of business as result of said conspiracy; that the plaintiff is unable to definitely state the extent to which he has suffered and will continue to suffer by reason of said conspiracy and the various acts done pursuant thereto, but that he, the plaintiff, has suffered damages in a sum not less than $40,000.

The plaintiff claims $40,000 damages.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance.

take Organic Iron; not metallic iron, which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorbtion and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

NEW ENGLAND GOVERNORS COMMEND STORROW PLAN

For Prompt Rehabilitation and Restoration of the Two Largest New England Railroad Systems—Coal Situation Also Was Discussed at Meeting in Boston—Favor Action by States Individually—No New England Program Advisable.

Boston, Aug. 23.—Responding to a prearranged call from Governor Cox of Massachusetts the governors of all the New England States came to Boston this morning and met at the State House for he purpose of considering the railroad and coal situations as they affect the six states.

They came primarily to act on the Storrow railroad committee report, which has been in their hands since early in July, but the coal situation has suddenly become urgent and was presented to them through the instrumentality of the Massachusetts coal committee.

Both issues were taken up, and after a two-hour conference behind closed doors the governors unanimously issued statements relating to both matters.

While not committing themselves to the railroad committee plan for New England, stating that definite action at this time would be premature, they say that "it was the first and it still remains the only plan that has been put forward for the rehabilitation and restoration of our two largest New England systems to full vigor and ability to serve satisfactorily our New England people ant industries."

The governors announce that they have requested the New England railroad committee to represent them at the hearing on the consolidation question, which is to be held by the interstate commerce commission in Boston on Sept. 24, and they urge the public to give full expression of their views on the Storrow report, and conclude by stating: "It should be remembered, however that the adoption of the report and all its main features depends in large measure upon the action which the security holders of the several railroads and their managements take."

After briefly discussing the coal situation the governors issued a second statement which said: "All the governors expressed their intention of attending the conference to be held in New York on Tuesday next, or to be represented. They expressed their confidence in President Coolidge, as he understood the needs of the New England people. While various methods of meeting the situation were discussed it was felt that "action must be taken by the states individually and no New England program was advisable."

The statements were signed by all six governors, showing that their views on both the railroad and coal situations, to date are unanimous. The governors present, in addition to Governor Cox, were Percival P. Baxter of Maine, Fred H. Brown of New Hampshire William S. Flynn of Rhode Island, Charles A. Templeton of Connecticut and Redfield Proctor of Vermont.

SAVINGS BANKS FOR MERGER OF NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

Hartford, Aug. 23.—Consolidation of the New England railroads will be recommended at the meeting of the interstate commerce commission at Boston on September 24, by the Savings Bank Association of Connecticut, following action taken at a meeting at the Hartford club today. President P. Leroy Harwood of New London said tonight that he did not know who would represent the association at the commission meeting.

The sessions of the association an hour in the morning and almost three hours in the afternoon, were devoted to discussion of the railroad situation by the forty-five bankers present. Vice President Edward G. Buckland, of the "New Haven" road attended the afternoon session and advocated the consolidation plan endorsed by the directors of the "New Haven" road, for a combination of the railroads in New England rather than combining individual roads in this section with outside systems.

President Harwood was authorized by the association to appoint a committee of six, with himself and Secretary William J. Dumm, of Wallingford as members, to investigate the railroad situation in detail and report to the association when their report is completed. President Harwood will appoint the committee within a few days. No date was set for the next meeting of the association.

BOSTON TO BUY CARGOES OF WELSH ANTHRACITE

Boston, Aug. 23.—Mayor Curley today instructed the city purchasing agent to buy two cargoes of Welsh nthracite, if obtainable at $11.50 or ess per gross ton. The agent at his equest asked the navy department at Washington to let the city use coal pockets of the Charlestown Navy yard for storage.

The City Hospital is to have oil-burning apparatus installed to make it independent of coal for heating, according to Mayor Curley's plan.

GOVERNORS REVIEWED STUDENTS AT CAMP DEVENS

Camp Devens, Mass., Aug. 23.—The governors of the six New England states reviewed the 1700 students in the citizens' military training camp here today after a luncheon at which they were guests of Governor Cox of Massachusetts at Boston. Major General A. W. Brewster, commander of the First corps area, escorted the inspecting party.

CONDUCTOR REFUSED TO PLAY THE "STAR SPANGLED BANNER"

New York, Aug. 23.—Tonight's concert in Central Park was cancelled by Commissioner Gallatin when Harry Barnhart, the conductor, refused to play the "Star Spangled Banner," which he denounced as a gloomy song too stimulating to national hatred. He flatly refused to obey an order by the park commission directing him to begin every concert with the anthem.

Mr. Barnhart, an American, said the issue was the result of a disturbance raised a week ago by Irish agitators who protested vehemently when the "Star Spangled Banner" was omitted from the program.

In explaining the views on the subject the conductor said:

"Francis Scott Key's song, with all due difference to those who have been led to believe that it is our national anthem, has no legal or official status whatever. A bill to legalize it was defeated in the last Congress. During the war when one of my sons served overseas, I led songs in army camps, and I have conducted the 'Star Spangled Banner' hundreds of times. But that was when war and fighting was the program.

'With the memory of the war still with us the 'Star Spangled Banner,' with its 'rockets red glare' and 'bombs bursting in the air' is associated with harrowing and dreadful scenes. It casts a gloom over those who have experienced the death dealing touch of war."

COOLIDGE STUDYING THE MERCHANT MARINE PROBLEM

Washington, Aug. 23.—Aside from the anthracite situation, President Coolidge is understood to be giving as much study these days to the merchant marine problem as to any other governmental question.

The chief executive has before him a voluminous report submitted by Chairman Farley of the shipping board, outlining the commonly known Lasker-Farley plan for indirect government operations of the nation's fleet. Today he discussed the general shipping question with Matthew Brush, formerly head of the Hog Island shipbuilding company and one of his personal friends of long standing, and touched upon the subject briefly in a conference with former Chairman Wilcox of the Republican National committee.

Mr. Brush after seeing the President said he discussed the shipping question only in a general way with the President, and that he himself was entirely in sympathy with Chairman Farley's administration of shipping board affairs.

$1,000,000 INSURANCE POLICY FOR FORMER OFFICE BOY

New York, Aug. 23.—From an office boy at $4 a week to the position of president of his firm and considered valuable enough to have an insurance policy of $1,000,000 taken out on his life is the record of William B. Greve of the Prudence Bond corporation, Brooklyn. At the age of 39 Mr. Greve takes his place among the less than 50 men in the entire country who have been insured by their companies for this amount.

WARD CHARACTERIZED AS "A COLD BLOODED" MAN

New York, Aug. 23.—Walter S. Ward, slayer of Clarence M. Peters, who is awaiting trial for murder in the Westchester county jail, was characterized by a former employe testifying before the grand jury which investigated the killing as "a cold-blooded and close-mouthed man with a wonderfully alert mind, and an expert pistol shot."

This was revealed today when part of the grand jury record was made public by Ward's attorneys. The testimony quoted was given by Palmer Tubb, chief assistant under Ward in the purchasing department of the Ward Baking company, who said he was discharged in February without apparent cause.

Tubb described frequent visits to Ward's office of two men, one called "Ross" with whom he said Ward appeared to be on friendly terms. According to a statement by Ward concerning the shooting, two men known to him as "Jack" and "Ross" were involved with Peters in a blackmail plot against him.

The witness further told the grand jury that Ward was the best shot among the higher officials of the New Rochelle police force, of which he was a commissioner.

Another witness whose testimony was made public was Earl N. Hardy, of Haverhill, Mass., an uncle of the slain man. He said Peters never appeared to have much money, even after the time when the blackmail plot was said by Ward to have been levied.

"I don't think he had a mind capable of doing the things reported," he said. "For instance the blackmail plot; he didn't have head enough to do that."

KU KLUX KLAN MEMBERS SENTENCED FOR FLOGGING

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 23.—Ben F. Sikes, Grover G. Sikes and Earl Sack, of Broken Arrow, confessed members of the Ku Klux Klan, tonight pleaded guilty to rioting charges before District Judge W. B. Williams and were sentenced to serve two years each in the state penitentiary. Their arrest came, as a result of the investigation by Adjutant General B. H. Markham into the recent floggings in Tulsa county.

This is the first instance in which klansmen have confessed in court that they were members of a flogging party and the first time they have been sentenced for participation in a mob outrage, state officers here said they believe.

The Sikes brothers and Sack entered pleas of guilty before District Judge and were given the minimum punishment—two years. The maximum is ten years.

Five Indicted For Defrauding Gov't

Through Sales of About $2,000,000 War Supplies to Private Concerns.

New York, Aug. 23.—Five men, including Col. Launcelot M. Purcell, former chief of the surplus property division of the United States army, were indicted today charged with defrauding the government out of about $2,000,000 through the sale of certain surplus war supplies to private concerns. The merchandise involved was said to have been saddles, harness, and similar equipment.

Besides Col. Purcell, those indicted were:

John C. Skinner, chief of the Sales division, Quartermaster corps, a civilian office; Harry Miller, a merchant, trading as the Harry Miller company, dealers in textile and general merchandise of this city; Bertram Weiss and Herman Canter, trading as the Universal Sales Company of New York.

Fr. Mathew J. Traynor, Bridgeport.

President Donnelly, in the course of his address, said he considered the Irish question settled temporarily and that the Irish Free State is in a similar if not in a little better position than the dominion of Canada.

YOUTHFUL CONFIDENCE MAN IS "WORKING" BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Aug. 23.—For the twenty-fifth time, police today received notice that a youthful confidence man who is "working" Baltimore with a brand new automobile game, is still up to his tricks. The latest victim is Mrs. Margaret Roberts who said the youth got $4.67 from her.

The game which the young man is playing has been the same in each instance. He calls in a house and asks for its mistress by name, taking care that the man of the family is not at home.

"Your husband," he says, "has won an automobile in a contest. There is a small charge for delivery. If you will give me this amount I will drive it around."

SHIPS WITH IMMIGRANTS TO LAND THEM IN BOSTON

Boston, Aug. 23.—Boston will again be used as a port of entry by many liners on September 1 with immigrants whom they wish to land in time to make the various national quotas. Among the first scheduled arrivals are in Samaria, the Winifredian and the White Star liners Haverford and Celtic. The latter which runs usually to New York, has been routed here to avoid the heavy landings at her usual port of call.

Several steamers, in addition, will probably be ordered here.

Friendly Relations With Mexico Certain

Officials Assure That the Announcement of Recognition is Not Far Off.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Resumption of friendly relations with Mexico is regarded here as virtually a certainty, and it is expected that official announcement of such a step will be made shortly by the Washington government.

The attitude of the administration on the question, it became known today, has been revealed to diplomatic representatives here of several foreign governments which, it is believed, will extend recognition to Mexico once the United States has done so.

Announcement was made today that Charles B. Warren, one of the American commissioners to the recent Mexico City conference, had concluded his work, for the time being at least. Mr. Warren said he was fully confident as to the results of the negotiations and this assertion was taken as an additional indication that a recognition announcement was not far off.

"When I returned to the United States from Mexico City," Mr. Warren said, "I announced that the report of the proceedings there was satisfactory to the Mexican government, and I hoped would be found satisfactory to our government. Now, I can say that I [illegible] point and I am going home entirely satisfied as I [illegible]."

It was authoritatively stated that the records of the Mexico City conference contained signed agreements between the representatives of the two governments which fully protected their mutual interests and it was indicated that relations would be resumed on the basis of these agreements.

DESPERATE IN SEARCH FOR KIDNAPPED INFANT

New York, Aug. 23.—Still without a definite clue after six days of feverish search for three-months-old Lillian McKenzie, who was kidnapped from her carriage in front of a West 18th street store last Saturday, detective Captain Funston today issued a sweeping order for the detention of every woman seen with a small infant who acts at all suspiciously.

Clue after clue has been run down by the 165th detectives detailed exclusively to the kidnapping case, while all the city's policemen and taxicab drivers have been on the lookout for the missing child. But these efforts, as well as appeals broadcast throughout the country, have failed to produce results.

One of the most promising clues—recovery by Washington police of an abandoned infant—failed today when inspector Lahey, after communicating with the Washington authorities, said the baby held there was not the McKenzie child.

On the recommendation of Second Assistant Postmaster General Henderson, now in Omaha, Mr. New said he had ordered the tests curtailed to four days. Flights which were to have started Saturday, he added, have been called off to give the small force of aviators, who, he said, have been under terrific strain, an opportunity to rest.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN IRELAND IS ORDERLY

Dublin, Aug. 23 (By the A. PERFECTING FUEL DEFENSE PROGRAM FOR EMERGENCY

"Emergency Report" is Being Withheld in Hope of an Ultimate Settlement of the Anthracite Controversy—A Number of Government Bureaus Are at Work on Plans—The Department of Justice is Studying the Situation.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Final phases of the government's program for supplying fuel to anthracite consumers in the event of suspension of work in the hard coal mines were taken up today by the several bureau to which the reparations had been assigned, but hope of an ultimate settlement of the controversy between operators and their employees continued to be expressed in various quarters.

Chairman Hammond, of the coal commission, after a conference with President Coolidge, announced that the commission's "emergency report" on the situation would be held up until the last minute so its conclusions might not hinder any move of the disputants to get together. He declined to say whether the commission was in receipt of information which led it to expect such a move. His visit to the White House was explained as for the purpose of reporting progress in the distribution program.

The threatened suspension of anthracite production was reflected in the activity of a number of government bureaus today as the administration's "defense" program began to assume definite shape. In the interior department, the bureau of mines completed the preparation of instructions for those who would be called upon to substitute soft for hard coal, and the geological survey prepared final data on available and prospective additions to the normal fuel supply.

F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor, completed arrangements for the meeting of representatives of the governors of eleven anthracite consuming states in New York next Tuesday, which his assistants conferred with the Interstate Commerce Commission on a proposed system of priority for transportation. The shipping board was said to have prepared a list of ships most adapted for use in supplementing railroad transportation of special grades of bituminous to New England and New York.

While there has been no official intimation that recourse might be had to a restraining order from a federal court, the department of justice was understood to have interested itself in the situation. A representative of the attorney-general was said to be engaged in a study of the legal background with which the department would have to deal if it were called upon to act. Other agents, as in the case of any domestic crisis holding possibilities of disturbances, have been scattered throughout the anthracite territory with instructions to report at frequent intervals on developments.

Possibility of sympathetic action by organized miners in the bituminous fields arising to impede the government's program has not been lost to view, it was stated officially, although confidence was expressed that the contract under which bituminous miners are employed would prevent any general disaffection on their party.

MINERS' UNION LEADERS AND OPERATORS NEGOTIATING

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 23 (By the A. P.)—Anthracite mine operators and officials of the miners' union, firmly convinced that September 1 would see a complete stoppage of their industry as a result of failure to make a new wage contract, remained today in Atlantic City though all communication between them had been suspended for 48 hours. Both groups had been definitely told that the federal government has no ground for intervening further to prevent the shutdown, and neither had changed in the slightest degree the conflicting attitudes which made them break off negotiations Tuesday. Arbitration for every disputed point was the last offer the employers had to make, it was repeated, while the union spokesman, John L. Lewis, steadfastly adhered to the ultimatum that the men would stay away from work unless a wage increase was assured.

But it also appeared during the day that the miners' union and the operators had a point to settle together before separating finally to take the measures which are necessary in what both sides now concede may be a finish fight. It will take about 4,000 men to keep the pumps going in the deep mines through the Pennsylvania region, to keep up the maintenance work underground and to mine the coal that will fire the power plant sections which must be kept running. In practically all of the strikes in the anthracite field, a truce between union and employers has been made sufficiently effective to assure the conduct of these operations. Unless it is done again, it was said by those familiar with the industry, anthracite mines might be so flooded and deranged within a few days or weeks as to make them incapable of production for many months. Grave as are the inevitable prospects of a strike that would involve the rank and file of the mine workers, a failure to provide for the maintenance work was said to be even graver.

S. D. Warriner, chairman of the general policy committee of the operators, said that the subject had not been brought up. Mr. Lewis was, however, holding in the city all the 38 members of the miners' scale committee, and there was said to be a likelihood that this group would be called tomorrow in a general meeting. There is no clause in the existing wage contract in the anthracite region, which expires September 1, to fix the terms and conditions on which the maintenance and pump crews may continue in employment, and the outlook was that a miniature wage scale negotiation might be set up in the matter.

Mr. Lewis also consulted during the day with officers of the Central Pennsylvania district of bituminous mine workers, which fact gave rise to rumors concerning the possibility that the soft coal miners might be induced later to walk out in support of the anthracite workers. Except to say that the meeting with the Central Pennsylvania representatives has nothing whatever to do with the anthracite situation, hte miners' president would not discuss the sympathetic strike suggestions.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN LARGER CITIES OF STATE

Hartford, Aug. 23.—Week by week the roll of automobile accidents in the larger cities of Connecticut continues to increase. During the week ending August 18 there were 167 major accidents reported to the motor vehicle department, and experience shows that belated reports will increase this figure.

Hartford, which has become the worst city in the state in number of accidents, took a slight brace last week in total number, although two fatal accidents were reported, against none the week before. The latest records show 51 accidents in Hartford during the week of August 11, while 47 are recorded for last week. In both fatalities the victims were young children who ran in front of cars as they were proceeding down side streets. This total is an increase of six over the figures for the corresponding week last year.

For the moment New Haven seems to have passed Hartford in the race to damage autos, property and life. The record of the past week there is 54 accidents with one fatal. This is an increase of 50 per cent. over the previous week and more than 68 per cent over the corresponding week last year.

Bridgeport, where a safe driving and safe walking campaign has carried the city from the worst in the state to the best, in a year's time, shows a lapse in the last report but is still far ahead of the other two large cities. There 24 accidents, one fatal, were recorded, contrasted with 17 the previous week and 21 last year.

Waterbury has recorded 32 accidents for three consecutive weeks, although one fatality occurred during the past week. A year ago 15 were reported.

Meriden has dropped from to three in the past week. New Britain records 16, one less than during the week ending August 11. New London reports seven, almost 100 per cent decrease in a week, and one less than a year ago.

Throughout the state an increase of 21 per cent is recorded in the seven larger cities over the corresponding week in 1922.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN THE KNITTING CONTEST

New York, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, was among the winners announced tonight in the knitting contest she entered a few months ago while summering in New England. But she has at least the satisfaction of knowing that a New Englander won the capital prize, and, incidentally, she won honorable mention.

The winner of the first prize, $2,000, was Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wyman, of Jamestown, R. I., whose sweater and scarf set was adjudged to be the most beautiful and workmanlike of all the thousands of articles submitted.

Mrs. Coolidge has announced that the baby carriage robe she knitted will be used to tuck around her first grandchild when he—or she—is born.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS PLAN TO TERRORIZE SACRAMENTO

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 23.—Sacramento is to be subjected to a "reign of terror" by the Industrial Workers of the World, and members of the organization plan to give the city "the same kind of a dose that was administered to Centralia, Wash." state authorities who are investigating the activities of the organization in California reported today.

Inside details fo the plan of the I. W. W. to retaliate for prosecution of its members under the criminal syndicalism act, were obtained by the investigators during a meeting in a nearby city a week ago.

The time set for the drive is the early fall, according to one of the I. W. W. officials, who told at the meeting of plans to "teach Sacramento a lesson."

The speaker is declared to have said that the I. W. W. "should invade Sacramento with as many members as can be gathered together, open a hall, start a free speech campaign, fill the jails of both the city and county then have parades and start a general "reign of terror" in the city.

DEMOCRATS TO FORM VICTORY CLUBS IN STATE

New Haven, Aug. 23.—Promotion of the organization of Victory clubs in this city, new campaign move in democratic circles was the chief topic at a meeting of town chairmen and registrars of the democratic party from the fourth and fifth congressional districts and members of the democratic state central committee which took place today at Savin Rock.

Democratic leaders of Connecticut are hoping to sweep the state and organize a victory club in every community before the active fall campaign opens, it was indicated at the gathering.

E. S. Yoemans, chairman of the Central committee and Thomas Spellacy, former assistant United States attorney and democratic candidate for U. S. senator last year, were among the speakers who told of organizing matters concerning the party in Connecticut.

Today's meeting was the first of a series, the next being scheduled within two weeks in Waterbury to be followed by meetings in Hartford and New London.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
11 Church Street Telephone 1082

"Al-Pierre Tabarin" is the name selected from a list of 233 which were sent in to Pierre J. Laramee and Albert J. Piche, the owners of a newly remodeled dance hall on Valley street. The name contest closed Wednesday evening and the selection was announced Thursday. The judges were Frank P. Fenton, Aime J. Mattineau and P. D. Donohue, and they deliberated until midnight before arriving at a conclusive selection. Mrs. Charlotte A. Donovan of Willimantic was the winner of the contest. Other suggestions had been sent in from Hartford, New Britain, Providence, Norwich, Manchester, Putnam, Stafford and this city.

There will be big doings at the pumping station grove Sunday, Sept. 2, when San Jose council, No. 14, K. of C., will have its annual old-fashioned clambake. A committee hard at work making arrangements includes Gilbert P. Flynn, chairman, Thomas O'Brien, Arthur P. Bergeron, Henry Sypher, Daniel Kelly, E. J. Lapan, Homer Brindamour, Florimond J. Bergeron, John P. McQuillan and Frederick A. Moriarty. The usual field sports and baseball games will be a feature.

Should the series of petitions being filed with the mayor and common council be taken into consideration, and action taken on behalf of the petitioners, it is probable that the suggestions adopted at the recent public meeting to solve the parking situation will come to naught. The Church street business men petitioned to retain the same traffic regulations on that street and now the North street store and property owners step up and protest against the recommendation that automobiles be parked only on the west side of that thoroughfare from Valley to Main streets. They ask that conditions remain the same with one exception and that is that the rule prohibiting parking on the east side of the street from a point opposite Strong's fish market to Main street be rigidly enforced. It is argued that the only congestion on that street is at that point where several trucks are often backed to the curb for unloading purposes. Some two years ago signs were placed at the congested points, but the ruling prohibiting parking there has never been strictly enforced. Others contend that the congestion there would be further lessened if the truck drivers remained backed up to the curb only during such time as they are engaged in unloading and loading, thus relieving much of the interference which they cause to [illegible]

[illegible] statement was made to a representative of The Bulletin Thursday that as the result of the lack of advancement in arriving at a solution of the parking situation on the city streets, one of the aldermen would possibly present a list of resolutions to be voted upon by the common council, with a view to settling the question. The resolutions will probably be in utter disregard of the suggestions drawn up and voted upon. The plan would undoubtedly be a good one, as the general public seems to fail in arriving at any kind of a definite agreement, a great majority appearing to be content with the existing situation, although all admit that it is growing worse each year, with the increase of automobiles. Taking into consideration the petitions recently filed with the council, the suggestions as they now stand represent but little that would tend to solve the parking problem.

A matter soon to be taken up in the form of resolutions to the common council is the addition of two officers to the police department so as to have a patrolman at the lower village section and another on Pleasant street at what is known as the "over the river" district. A resolution will possibly be submitted soon to secure another motorcycle officer so that one may be assigned to day duty and the other work all night.

August Nukala, 18, Herbert Martyn, 8, and Arthur Martyn, 9, of Chaplin, were injured Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock when thrown from a wagon soon after the horse which Nukala was driving bolted and ran away. The accident took place on the highway a mile beyond Chaplin Center. Herbert Martyn received a broken left arm above the elbow and a fractured left shoulder; he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in this city. Arthur Martyn sustained cuts and contusions about the face and chin. Nukala who was driving, had the reins wound about his right wrist and when thrown from the wagon he was dragged along the highway for quite a distance before the horse came to a stop. The boy was badly lacerated about the arms and body and was given treatment at his home.

The 13 year old daughter of a local man appeared before the police court Thursday morning dressed in knickers and a white sweater. The girl wept bitterly when charged with being in manifest danger of falling into habits of vice. She told a story which incriminated Stanley Wojick, 17, of this city, on a serious charge. The girl's father notified the police Wednesday that his daughter had not been home for four nights, and later that evening Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria found the child at Recreation park in the company of Wojick. The girl had been frequenting the park and confessed to spending a whole night there with a young man. A warrant was made out for the arrest of Wojick on the charge of rape, and the latter entered a plea of not guilty through his guardian ad litem. Judge Frank H. Foss ordered a continuance of the case until Monday morning to allow Wojick time to confer with his parents and secure counsel. He was let out under bonds of $500 furnished by his father. The girl will be in charge of Miss Elizabeth Anderson, secretary of the welfare bureau, until given a hearing in the juvenile court Thursday, Aug. 30.

Following the posting of an edict by the state board prohibiting bathing in the lake on the grounds that it contaminated the water which is sold to the villagers for drinking purposes by the South Coventry Water Supply company, legal advice was sought by the cottage owners, and Thursday afternoon Henry J. Mathieu, secretary of the Mutual Protective association of cottagers at the lake, appeared in a bathing suit and went for a swim. He was arrested by State Policeman Russell I. Harmon, who was patroling the water in a motorboat. After the arrest Mr. Mathieu donned his street clothes and, with a party of friends, accompanied the officer for a hearing in a justice court. The accused was found guilty and an appeal was taken to the superior court. Bonds were furnished by friends. The trial is the beginning of a test case to ascertain from the courts if bathing at the lake is a nuisance and a violation of the law.

A very large congregation gathered to hear Rev. John L. Davis, of New Britain, Wednesday evening. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles E. Barto, of New Britain. Scripture was read by Rev. A. Earl Kernahan, D. D.

A beautiful pageant was carried out just before the sermon. It was prepared by Miss Marjorie Stephens, of Vernon, and depicted in pantomime the beautiful hymn, No. 481 in the Methodist hymnal, Brightly Beams Our Banner. While this was being sung by Miss Lenore Elwood, of New London, two young girls who had come in each with a lighted candle, stood at the foot of the platform, the electric lights being turned out. These were Elizabeth Kellogg of Uncasville and Dorothy Valencourt, of Hartford. Christine and Arline Burdick of Jewett City and Eleanor Bromley of Little Crompton, R. I., enacted the pantomime, the first named bearing the banner of Willimantic M. E. church.

The Master is Come and calleth for thee," Matt. 11:28, was the text of Mr. Davis. How does God call us? 1. By nature. "The heavens declare the glory of God." He is seen everywhere, in flowers and trees, in mountains and seas. 2. Bible. The Scriptures say, "Come" 600 times. But lots of folks don't read it. 3. Preachers, but over 60 million don't go to church. 4. History. Many don't read history, but that of yourself and your associates you know. 5. Conscience. The devil did not make that. 6. The Holy Spirit speaks to every man. 7. Providence—the things that happen to you.

Mr. Davis gave many illustrations, both from his own life and that of his acquaintances showing how God had called them. He said that the death of his six-year-old brother in Oklahoma was the means of converting father, mother, brothers and sisters.

Mighty Healing Power of Peterson's Ointment

"I wish I could publish all the grateful letters I get every week," says Peterson. "I don't believe anyone on this earth has such a happy time at work as I have. All I do is make Peterson's Ointment and read letters like these that come right from the heart.

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 30 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. I got one box of your ointment and it almost healed it and it was entirely healed before I had used the second one. I don't think there is a better remedy on earth." Mrs. J. C. Henderson, 520 Sprague St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. There isn't anything in the way of pimples or face blemishes that it won't chase away, and for sore feet, chafing, sunburn, scalds, cuts and bruises there is nothing so sure or speedy. 35 cents, 60c, $1, $2.50, $5.

INVESTIGATION TO BE MADE INTO CHARGES AGAINST TWO REDS' PLAYERS

New York, Aug. 23 (By the A. P.)—Charges that two Cincinnati players were approached by gamblers recently on the eve of a crucial series with the New York Giants will be sifted to the bottom, John A. Heydler, president of the National league, announced tonight after a hearing before him earlier in the day at which the players, Second Baseman Sammy Bohne and Leftfielder Pat Duncan, flatly denied the accusations.

The charges were published last Saturday by "Collyer's Eye," a Chicago weekly sports paper, but the first official recognition given them was at today's hearing in the office of the National league executive, who established a precedent by inviting Cincinnati newspapermen traveling with the club to attend. The publication alleged that Bohne and Duncan, in addition to a third player whose identity was not revealed, had been approached by gamblers with an offer of $15,000 each to influence their play in the series with the Giants at Cincinnati the first week of August. Color to the gambling charges, it was declared, was added by the fact that the Reds lost five straight games to the Giants in that series.

Today, however, both players denied, under oath, that they had been approached either directly or indirectly by gamblers, while President Heydler, after the hearing, asserted "the charges against Bohne and Duncan appear to me to be silly and unfounded." Nevertheless, the league executive emphasized, every effort would be made to trace them to their source.

"We are going to do all in our power to make this publication show cause why it attacked two of our players," said Mr. Heydler. "We are not satisfied to favor clean baseball; we will fight for clean baseball."

After hearing the players this morning, President Heydler advised them to institute legal action against the publication. He also urged that the Cincinnati club take similar action, a suggestion which was followed by an immediate declaration by August Herrmann, president of the club, that he would back the players in any legal course they took.

"This hearing was called by me in order to take the offensive against any effort by anybody to start anything against baseball," said President Heydler in discussing the case. "A weekly sports publication in Chicago recently ran a black headline across its front page, 'Another Scandal Rocks Baseball,' and it used the names and pictures of Duncan and Bohne in connection with the article. The players were attacked only by inference, suggestion and innuendo. The paper has no great influence in sports circle, and none to speak of in baseball circles, but nevertheless I felt impelled by past experience to make instant investigation.

"I called the Cincinnati newspapermen accompanying the club to be present throughout the hearing. Both players took oath before me that they had not even been approached by any gambler or betting man.

"I consider this attack as calculated to damage these players and their club, and I suggested that they at once bring civil and criminal action against this sheet. I also urged the Cincinnati club to take similar action.

"Both players favored this suggestion strongly and declared they would at once do so. In conclusion, I wish to take the ground that no publication is too small or unreliable, or no biggest charge against a National league player, be it ever so craftily or 'safely' worded, is too insignificant for us to afford to pass it by. The charge may be unfounded, but whoever makes it will have to go through with it to the end. A court investigation will quickly clean an innocent player, and it will also bring out much to give weight to charges against a guilty player.

"The charges against Duncan and Bohne appear to me to be silly and unfounded, but that has nothing whatever to do with the National league's duty towards the game in general. We are going to do all in our power to make this publication show cause why it attacked two of our players. We are not satisfied to favor clean baseball; we will fight for clean baseball."

HERRMANN WILL BACK PLAYERS TO THE LIMIT

Cincinnati, Aug. 23.—Announcement that the Cincinnati National league baseball club would concur in any action taken by President Heydler following today's hearing in New York, when Outfielder Pat Duncan and Second Baseman Sammy Bohne denied under oath, that they had been approached by gamblers as stated in a recent issue of Collyer's Eye, was made tonight by President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati club.

Mr Herrmann said that while no definite steps had been decided upon, the club would stand behind the players to the limit should they decide to file suit against the publication which made the charges.

This statement was in line with Mr. Herrmann's letter in answer to one received from Mr. Heydler suggesting a showdown in court as the surest way to force the truth to the surface. Mr. Heydler's letter was received shortly after the publication of the article.

"Last Thursday, when my attention was called to this article," Herrmann wrote, "I immediately wired Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis as follows:

"'My attention has been called to current publication. This matter should be investigated. Articles are libelous and subject to prosecution. Cincinnati club will be glad to follow matter up.'

"I received a wire from Commissioner Landis saying:

"'The character of the paper rather refutes any assertion made in its columns. However, any suggestion, even from such a source, will receive thorough investigation.'"

CUBS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM PHILLIES

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—Chicago took the opening game of the series from Philadelphia today 5 to 4 by piling up a big lead in the early innings, driving Glazner from the box. Betts held the Cubs to four scattered hits in the last seven innings.

"Cy" Williams hit his 21st home run of the season in the eighth inning, the ball hitting the top of the wall in right field and dropping out of the park. Score:

REDS PICK UP ON GIANTS BY BEATING DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Although Cincinnati bunched eight hits for eight runs in the fifth inning today they were forced to call on two relief pitchers for Rixey to win by 10 to 8. Rixey was taken out after the first three batters had singled in the eighth. Pinelli made a great one-handed stop and throw for the final out. The Reds got 16 hits for 25 bases and the Dodgers 18 for 24. Daubert led the attack with four hits. Manager Robinson used 18 players including four pitchers in his vain attempt to stop the Giants' most dangerous rivals.

YANKS LOSE FIRST WESTERN SERIES OF SEASON

Detroit, Aug. 23.—The New York Yankees lost its first series in the west this season, when they dropped today's game to Detroit, 2 to 1. The best the Yankees can do is to win tomorrow's remaining game, which will make this series stand two losses and one victory. Heilman made his fifteenth homer of the season in the last half of the second, after Pipp had cracked out one in the first half.

More than 1,500 school lads were the guests of the Elks to help celebrate "Babe Ruth day." The Rambino, however, failed to clout out what all the lads wished for. The Yankee slugger was presented with a full size silver baseball and bat by the Young Men's Order of Detroit. Hellmann and Pillette of the Tigers received a diamond ring and a pair of diamond cuff links, respectively from the order.

Everett Scott, the Yankee short stop played his 1,100th consecutive game. Score:

GIANTS LOSE HALF GAME IN DOUBLE BILL WITH CARDS

New York, Aug. 23.—New York's lead in the National League was reduced by another half game here today, when the world's champions divided a double header with St. Louis. The Giants won the first game, 8 to 7 and lost the second 7 to 4.

In the first game St. Louis rallied in the eighth and ninth innings, scoring three runs in each and tying the score. Mousel's home run then won the game in New York's half.

Meusel hit another home run with Bancroft and Frisch on base, in the first inning of the second game, but St. Louis knocked out Ryan in the second inning, and scored seven runs before Barnes could retire the side. St. Louis scored on triples by Mueller and Freigau, three singles, two bases on balls and a fielder's choice. The score:

NUGGETS LOSE BY ERRORS TO TAFTVILLE CLUB IN FIRST GAME OF THE SERIES

Taftville A. A. took the first game of the series with the Nuggets Thursday afternoon on the Providence street grounds by the score of 6 to 2. Errors coupled with some hard hitting by Taftville were responsible for the villagers' six counters. Up to the fourth inning the game was close and exciting, but in the fifth frame Taftville hit Kelly hard and errors by Manchester gave Taftville two runs. In the sixth errors by Berry and Manchester accounted for another brace of runs. Two successive hits, one a double, gave Taftville their last run in the seventh inning.

The Nuggets scored their first run in the third inning on singles by Hull and Fox and a two bagger by Ed Harris. The other run came in the first of the seventh inning on hits by Manchester and a fumble by DeCelles. Aside from the few costly errors, the Nuggets played good ball. In the outfield Mack Connelly played a wonderful fielding game, making several spectacular catches. Ed Harris, the big first baseman of the Nuggets, also contributed to the fielding sensations with a brilliant catch of a foul fly after a long run.

For Taftville, Chip Dugas was the outstanding sensation. Although Chip is well along in years, he played like a youngster, making several spectacular one-hand stops of hard hit balls. Chip also showed marvelous speed on the base paths, but was robbed of two stolen bases by Base Umpire Hymie Schwartz. Another Taftville player who exhibited a stellar brand of baseball was the little second baseman, Jerry Peltier, who pitched for Taftville, hurled a nice game and also given good support in the pinches. He allowed only six hits, keeping them well scattered over the nine innings. Kelly, the Nugget pitcher, also displayed ability and should have deserved a better fate.

The second game of the series will be played Saturday afternoon at the same grounds, when Taftville and the Nuggets will have much stronger teams in the field. Manager Madden of the Nuggets is scouting for several players to strengthen his team. He will probably use Big Ed Harris in the box with a real catcher to do the backstop work. Weak points in the infield and outfield will be filled with out of town talent. The Taftville team will use either Morin or Peltier in the box and the regular Taftville A. A. team will be in the field.

DEMPSEY PUMMELS HIS PARTNERS WITHOUT MERCY

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Jack Dempsey switched from light to heavyweight sparring partners today, confining his work with the gloves to two rounds each with Jack Burke, Pittsburgh heavyweight, and George Godfrey, 225 pound negro.

The heavyweight champion, due to the chill wind that swept through his out door ring, wore a heavy woolen shirt under full length trunks to protect himself, while the 400 spectators wrapped themselves in sweaters and overcoats and shivered through the brief but spirited workout.

Although both Burke and Godfrey are suffering from the bombardment received while preparing Dempsey for Tommy Gibbons, they were forced to take another pummeling. Burke managed to evade Dempsey's hooks for the first round, by continually retreating, but Dempsey, his teeth gleaming in anger, drove him into a corner in the second and all but knocked him over with a right across to the chin. Burke fell into the ropes and clinched until his dizzy brain cleared.

Dempsey's left hooks and jabs were working to perfection against Godfrey, who faced the champion for the first two rounds.

DUMB PLAYING BY PROFS GIVE WORCESTER GAME

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 23.—A combination of hitting, three passes and dumb work on the part of New Haven gave the Coal Heavers a dozen runs in the opening inning of today's game and enabled a Worcester victory by 17 to 10 score. After Davenport retired at the end of the second, Worcester scored but two runs. The champions made a strong finish, scoring four runs in the ninth. They were retired with the bases filled. QUEZON HURTS HIMSELF.

Eagerness to discredit Governor General Wood prevented Senator Quezon of the Philippines from recognizing just what a reflection his own declaration was bound to have upon himself, and he of course cannot fail to weaken whatever standing he may have had with this government.

The Filipino leader has been bothered because General Wood was not disposed to cater to his efforts in preference to standing for the welfare of the islands and adhering strictly to his duties as governor general. Inasmuch as General Wood has been revealing conditions in the islands which make it evident that they are not as near independence as they hoped to be Quezon attempts to injure General Wood by pointing out that he has named as mayor of Manila a man with a prison record.

On the face of it it might seem damaging and yet anyone who knows General Wood knows that he would not be playing with criminals. Investigation discloses that there is some degree of truth to the claim, that the mayor of Manila, who was recently appointed has served in prison, but it was over a score of years ago when he was 16 years of age, but since which time he has proved himself a worthy citizen who has repeatedly held public office and on several occasions was elected to such by his fellowmen.

During all these years Quezon presumably knew the facts. He knew that the present mayor of Manila had been mayor of his home town, governor of his province to which he was elected twice as well as holding other public offices but he had never raised his voice to proclaim him a convict and did not do so when Governor General Wood sought to and did name him as mayor of Manila.

Well does General Wood say that the matter speaks for itself. Quezon hoped to justify the attacks he has been making on the governor general by this disclosure. It is bound to react to his detriment and emphasize his weakness as a leader.

AUTOS AND HILLS.

Perhaps more attention is being given to the automobile accident in the Alps, where a number of lives were lost and many injured, because there were Americans involved. However that may be, it is a matter that calls for careful consideration in these days when so many fatalities and accidents are due to the improper handling of motor vehicles.

It was admittedly a bad grade and what made it worse there was an abrupt turn at the bottom. It called for complete control of the vehicle on the part of the driver. Public vehicles in such a locality should reasonably be expected to be equipped with brakes that will permit the chauffeur to have his car under control at all times, and the concern of the driver should be for safety rather than a record breaking completion of a sight-seeing trip.

This appears to have been an instance where there was not possessed a proper control of the car and possibly not a proper regard for the danger that prevailed and the safety that was called for in the transportation of the passengers.

Bad equipment and wild driving make a bad combination. Probably too little consideration is given to driving down hill by many drivers. If everything works perfectly the coaster or the one who races down hill because he can go faster may escape accidents but it means taking a chance that is unwarranted. It involves more than the one who has hold of the wheel of such a car. It increases the danger of motoring and increases the hazards of the highway in general.

With proper control of that car in the Alps, and added precautions taken because of the lives at stake, the grade was not so bad but what it could easily have been negotiated in safety. Control would made it possible to have averted serious trouble even though something did go wrong. It is through the observance of just such lessons that many needless accidents can be averted.

ENCOURAGING LAWLESSNESS.

Cases of flogging which have been reported from the states of Georgia, Texas and Oklahoma must be regarded as the extension of the lynching spirit. It is in those states that mob rule is from time to time manifested, and those who undertake in such a way to direct the punishment of others for real or imaginary wrongs are simply operating in defiance of the law and by their acts encouraging a greater disrespect for established authority and order.

There can be no sympathy for those floggers who have been caught and seem likely to be brought before a court of justice. It is the punishment of such that is needed in order to let it be known that laws really amount to something and that the states do not sanction such practices.

Lynchers and floggers are all actuated by the same spirit. They live under but have no respect for laws. Instead of insisting upon the observance of law and order through the methods that have been established for insuring such, they proceed to show their disrespect for such machinery by ignoring it and taking things into their own hands. They defy not only the laws of their state but the federal constitution. They insist upon taking life or flogging without the formality of a trial or making sure whether they are dealing with innocent or guilty persons.

Whatever they may say regarding the slowness of legal machinery they fail to recognize their duty to improving it. Lynch law puts to shame all talk about civilization and well may the governors of those states exercise their efforts for the proper punishment of those who uphold and practice it.

THE FRENCH REPLY.

France hasn't been budged from her position concerning Germany and the Ruhr, if we are to judge from the reply that has been made by Premier Poincare to the recent British note. France has insisted upon certain things. It takes the view that it is justified in what it seeks and what it has done and it is determined to stick to its course. Nothing has caused it to alter its opinion concerning Germany—not even the British communication.

Those who have been giving close attention to the European situation have pointed out the Ruhr as the big obstacle at the present time. France in its response deals with that and it reiterates the fact that the occupation of the Ruhr was due to the persistent refusal of Germany to pay when it was and still is believed by France that it can pay. Through the taking of the Ruhr, France moved to force the payment, and conditions there have been made far worse than they otherwise would have been because of the resistance that has been encountered and the encouragement that it has been given by Germany itself.

Germany was responsible for the occupation of the Ruhr and it can overcome the difficulties that it has caused by putting an end to that resistance. That will not end the occupation but it will end the obnoxious features thereof, and then when Germany pays what it owes it can again get possession of the Ruhr. Such a course is clear. It is no different than France has maintained from the first. It clearly shows that it isn't moved by what it considers the crocidile tears Germany is shedding over its condition. Instead of bemoaning its position and asking for leniency France wants Germany to admit its defeat and settle down to the task of making good on reparations. It is emphatic in its insistence that it doesn't intend to yield to the German tactics.

The reply may not be what the British had expected but there may be in it that which will help to smooth out the situation.

THERE WILL BE FUEL.

Just what action the government will take in case there is no settlement of the coal dispute is not disclosed. There are several ways in which action might be taken, but it is impossible to disregard the brief statement that has been made by President Coolidge when he says that the people will have fuel.

What it will be, how they will get it or what it will cost is not mentioned. Beyond the supply of anthracite that is on hand and will serve normal requirements for the next four months it is not indicated that the president's statement means that this is the fuel he refers to.

If a coal strike develops and the consumer is made to face the winter with anthracite production at a standstill there is satisfaction in knowing that substitutes will at least be available and there will be an eagerness on the part of the public, which is bound to get the full benefit of that trouncing which President Lewis of the miner workers promises, to utilize that means of meeting the situation.

Anthracite is not the only fuel that is available. It has been depended upon but it only requires a few such emergencies as that of last winter for the public to learn that it is by no means dependent upon hard coal, and when the president says that there will be fuel there is good reason for believing that he is stating facts and will back them up by action that will properly protect the fuel users. It is one of the ways in which the threatened grip on the consumer of the hold-up men can be shaken off. If there is something that will serve the purpose it means protection against hardships.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is an interesting situation where the rum runners expect police protection against the high sea pirates.

The man on the corner says: These are the interesting days when the returned vacationists insist on telling how they get their sunburn.

The budget system has plenty to do in keeping down expenditures, but it remains to be seen how closely congress will stick to it.

It is difficult to se how the miners expect to get any sympathy in their demands which if granted will increase the price of coal $2 a ton.

From the amount of it he is doing the impression is gained that Magnus Johnson is another senator who plans on earning his salary by talking.

The fact that the former secretary of agriculture estimates the effectiveness of Senator Brookhart at only 30 cents will be more galling than the actual loss of the lawsuit.

The one trouble with the condemnation of a million ice cream cones during the war that have made their appearance again is that condemnation did not carry destruction with it.

Now that it is being pointed out how prominently New England figures in Washington and congress, it can be readily seen what a howl would have gone up had the president selected his private secretary from this part of the country.

THE PLAID DRESS

The man from the old home town was sitting in the parlor looking at the family album, under the direction of the youngest member of the family, when the head of the house arrived by way of the kitchen door.

"Who's in the parlor?" Bickerby whispered to his wife.

"It's your old friend, Lew Morris from Browntown," replied Mrs. Bickerby, who was busy with the preparation of dinner.

"Huh!" was Bickerby's comment, "that means an evening of talk, for Lew is the biggest windbag I ever met and it means a long visit, too."

"He's been real quiet," said his wife, "since Bennie dug up that old album from somewhere. He seems to be interested in the photographs."

Bickerby entered the parlor and greeted the visitor.

"Thought I'd drop in and pay you a visit," began Lew. "The little shaver here brought out the album and I've been greatly interested."

Bickerby rubbed the palms of his hands together and nodded pleasantly. "I suppose you've lots of news to tell me of happenings back home."

"Yes," replied Lew, with his eye still on the album, but he was not as fluent as usual and, much to his surprise, Bickerby had to fish vigorously for any bits of news. During the dinner Lew was still thoughtful and distrait and his host was finally prompted to ask whether his health was good.

Lew woke up. "Oh, yes," he replied, "never felt better. I suppose you think I'm rather quiet and knowing me as you do, might imagine that I am under the weather or something like that. But the fact is, I've had rather a shock. You know I'm a bachelor and always have been."

"Yes," said Bickerby. "But I never knew why you and Em broke up."

"We quarreled," explained Lew, "because I was jealous. I asked her to go to the county fair and when I drove up to get her she said she had to stay home on account of her mother's not being well I had to go on alone."

"I don't suppose," observed his host, "you'd ever think of missing the fair."

"Certainly not," said Lew, "you see it was only held once a year and I looked forward to it. So I got there and strolled alone through the crowd, feeling a bit bitter and wishing Emma was with me, when whom should I see but Emma with another fellow! She had on her new plaid dress and was as happy as a lark. I was mad. I turned around as if I'd been shot and drove straight back home and missed the best part of the program.

"The next day I saw Emma and we had it out. She tried to tell me then she hadn't been at the fair, and here I'd seen her with my own eyes. I'd a known that dress anywhere. We haven't spoken since."

"She's still unmarried, isn't she?" asked Bickerby.

"Yes."

"But what has the old album got to do with it?"

Lew cleared his throat and looked embarrassed. "It's a picture I saw here of a girl in a plaid dress, standing next to a man, and I recognized him as the fellow I had seen at the fair. I looked close at the girl. If she were not Emma she was Emma's double. The photograph was dated, too, and was taken at that fair in 1903. There was a photographer there in a tent. Now I want to know about all this."

Bennie brought the album to the table and Mrs. Bickerby looked at the photograph. "Why," she cried, 'that's my sister. That's Josie. She married the man standing there with her. They have five children and a fine farm.

"May I borrow that photograph?" asked Lew.

"Certainly," replied Mrs. Bickerby. "You may keep it, too."

"I'd like to show it to Emma when I call on her tomorrow morning."

"Tomorrow?" protested Bickerby. "Why, man, you've just arrived."

"I'm sorry to have to break away so soon," said Lew, "but the sooner this is cleared up the better."

"If I was in Emma's shoes," said Mrs. Bickerby after the visitor had gone, "I'd let that man cool his heels for a good long time before I'd forgive him."

"She has waited twenty years for him to call," observed Bickerby, "and I don't imagine she'll slam the door in his face."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George Wharton Pepper, who is expected to lead that faction of Pennsylvanir Republicans who oppose the presidentials aspirations of Governor Gifford Pinchot, has been one of the United States senators from Keystone State since January, 1922, when he was appointed to succeed the late Senator Penrose, being subsequently elected for the full term. Senator Pepper comes from an old Philadelphia family. He was graduated in 1887 from the University of Pennsylvania, of which he is now a trustee, and from the law department two years later. He has had wide experience in the civil practice law. Stories That Recall Others

"Hard Boiled."

Little Emily heard a great deal of slang and although she did not understand all of it, she was willing to try using it.

One morning her mother complained of being ill. Emily was all sympathy for her mother's sufferings and feelingly inquired, "What's the matter, mother? Are you feeling kind o' 'hard boiled' this morning?"

Dog Not Ailing.

Among the passengers crowded into an elevator a few days ago were a boy and his dog. The boy was holding the dog with one arm around its body. After passing one floor he inquired of the operator what floor a certain doctor was on.

Several passengers had left the elevator by this time, and those remaining could give more attention to the boy.

One man, with sympathy evident in his voice, said: "What's the matter with your dog, son?"

Instantly the boy replied, proudly: "There ain't nothin' the matter with my dog; it's me."

The Old Place on the Corner

You said you'd like a letter, Bud, from us back here at home—
Things must git purty drab sometimes away up there in Nome
Well, now, let's see—to start with—I guess you've heard the news
They've struck oil on the corner where you used to buy your booze.
Yep, down there on the corner where young Duffy had his bar
They have a filling station now—but for a motor car.

It don't seem like the corner, Bud, where all the boys dropped in
To shoot some poor and irrigate between the nose and chin.
The old bar with its railing, the sawdust on the floor;
The smell, the smoke, the mirrors all have gone forevermore.
The cops don't come a-sneaking through the old back door to wait
For Duffy's foaming tribute to the sentinels of state.

Ah, yes, the scene is changed, old pal; young Duffy drives a truck
And buys his oil and gasoline where once we said: "Good luck!"
The eder's not as fragrant, Bud, the talk is not the same,
Where once we bought "Old Oscar Pep" they now sell "Flashy Flame.'
The "Free Lunch" sign we loved so well when we caverted there
Has been replaced by one that gives the gas-gazelles "Free Air!"

For 22 years the brothers conducted the business and in 1902 Henry Church sold his interest to his brother who has since conducted the business. PREPARE WAR CONTRACTS FOR EMERGENCY USE

Several manufacturers in the state have been called upon by the war department to assist in the preparation of a uniform type of contract to be used in the event of a national emergency requiring speedy production of munitions.

The move is in line with the preparedness plan laid before Governor Templeton by means of which the organization which had charge of the drafting of Connecticut men for the military forces in the World war would be called into action without a moment's delay "if necessity arose."

In the event of another war, it is planned to avoid the many complications delaying immediate production of army supplies which sprang up in 1917 after the United States had declared a state of war with Germany. One Hartford manufacturer described it as a plan to shorten any future war and save lives by avoiding needless delays in the delivery of munitions to the American armies.

"Cost-plus contracts" will be eliminated, as far as possible, if the present intention of the war department, as expressed to captains of industry in this city, should be carried out. Two other types of contracts are considered feasible for time of war, one the straight form as used in every-day business, and the other a form based on government commandeering.

A tentative form of contract has been submitted to several Hartford manufacturers for criticism, and it is understood that the war department intends to send a representative to Hartford in the near future to engage in an open discussion of this form with the men who have been invited to co-operate in the plan. The tentative form covers about thirty type-written pages and is said to be considerably complicated. It gives wide latitude to army inspectors on the premises who would have the power of final rejection.

The question of conscription of labor as well as of man power for the military forces has been brought up in commission with the subject of war contracts and is likely to be brought up for discussion at any conference held for the subject.

Hauled Lunch Cart From Jewett City.

People on the streets in the center of the city Thursday evening were treated to a novel sight when a truck was driven through the city carrying a large lunch cart on wheels. The lunch cart stood far above the truck and barely cleared the wires of the trolley company as it passed through the city to its final destination on Franklin street where it was unloaded. The lunch cart had been hauled from Jewett City, a difficult piece of work for those in charge of the moving.

CHILDREN PRESENT SIX PLAYS BEFORE AUDIENCE OF 500

Thursday evening at the entrance of Mohegan park the dramatic department of the recreation commission city playgrounds wound up their season's work when six fairy plays were presented by the girls from the Falls, Hobart avenue, Elizabeth street, Lake street, Greeneville and Laurel Hill play centers.

Over 500 people witnessed the exhibition and the plays presented a most charming picture. They were given on the lawn surrounded by the beautiful shrubbery and trees of Mohegan park. The arrangements were unique, the grounds being roped off for the stage, with shrubbery for scenery and shelter, together with Japanese lanterns casting a soft glow. The children from each play center were appropriately costumed in paper dresses and it would have been a hard task to decide as to which play was the better. Members of the recreation commission, M. J. Fitzgerald, chairman, Mrs. J. C. Macpherson and Mrs. Drew, judges, were not agreed as to the best play, each one naming a different play center.

It is safe to say that the three best productions were Laurel Hill, presenting Little Red Riding Hood, the Falls, presenting The Red Shoes, and Lake street, presenting The Fairy Ring and The Buttercups by the Pond.

The stars of the evening's performances who made a hit with the audience were Anita Averill, who played the part of the wolf in the Laurel Hill production of Little Red Riding Hood; Antonette Protean, who again demonstrated for the Falls her ability as a star, as well as Mary Foley, the woodman's youngest son, in The Fairy Ring, from the Lake street department.

Although these three plays seemed to find favor with the judges, mention must be made of the spectacular features of the Hobart avenue production, Granpa Maypole, as well as the vegetables of the Elizabeth street center and the scattered scenes from the Greeneville center.

The casts for the six plays were as follows:

PRESTON GIRL FOUND ROAMING IN NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 24.—Ruth Herrick, 12, residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Herrick, of Preston, was detained at the police station several hours this morning, the girl being found roaming about on Ocean avenue.

About 1.45 o'clock, Joseph Kaika of No. 338 Main street, who was operating his automobile from Ocean Beach to his home, observed the girl walking in the highway between Glenwood and Neptune avenue. Because of the hour and the youth of the girl, Kaika stopped his car and offered assistance to her. The girl stated that she resided on Main street, between Hill and Shapley streets and when Kaika offered to convey the girl to her home she consented to go with him. When the location on Main street where the girl had declared she resided was reached, she stated that she did not reside there, but that her home was in Norwich. Kaika hailed Patrolman Thomas Lyden and the girl was taken to the police station. Captain J. J. Twomey of the Norwich police department was notified of the detention of the girl and he informed Herrick. The father came to New London at 7.30 o'clock and took charge of the girl, who had absented herself from Norwich since 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Whether she was accompanied to New London, it is not known.

OVER 1500 PEOPLE ATTENDED BLOCK DANCE

Over 1500 people attended the block dance held on Mechanic street Thursday evening and enjoyed dancing until 10.30 o'clock while two orchestras waged a battle of music. The dance was one of the largest ever held in the city but owing to conditions the crowd could not be held back and space for dancing soon became so small that it was decided to play the closing dance numbers at 10.30 o'clock instead of 11 o'clock as had been first planned.

Those who attended the dance enjoyed several fine exhibitions of soft shoe and buck and wing dancing and the participants received a fine hand at the conclusion of their numbers. Of the soft shoe dancers Mr. Brown of New York gave an interesting and varied exhibition showing many novelty features. A. Perrin, Felix DeBaros and J. McDonald, all of Norwich entertained with buck and wing numbers. The solo work of "Pete" Goldberg was also enjoyed and during the evening he rendered Barney Google, I Stutter, and other jazz hits.

RUSHING ROAD WORK ON WEST MAIN STREET

Work on the road repairs on West Main street is being rushed by Street Commissioner Albert E. Cruthers in order to finish the last stretch of new tar bound macadam before the New London county fair opens on Labor Day. Smaller rock will soon be put in and the work of tarring the road will complete the work.

Work on Laurel Hill is also being pushed rapidly, the cement having been laid from Laurel Hill bridge beyond the top of the hill. The east side of the avenue is now open to traffic, leaving the city. Traffic coming into the city, however, is still routed over Talman street.

QUICK WORK PREVENTS LARGE FIRE LOSS

Quick action by the firemen on the roof of the Wauregan Hotel Thursday afternoon held back a fire that might have proved serious. The loss is estimated as not more than $500. The call came in by telephone at 2.32 o'clock and Squad A and Chief Stanton responded. Immediately on his arrival Chief Stanton called out Engine Co. No. 1, Truck Co., No. 1, and Engine Co., No. 5, and a line of hose and a line of chemical were laid and the blaze put out in short order. The fire started under the kitchen.

LEE WORTHY TAKES RICH STAKES AT NORTH RANDALL

North Randall, Cleveland O., Aug. 23.—(By the A. P.)—It was decidedly a Guy Axworthy day here today. Lee Worthy, a grandson of the famous sire won the "Firs tEver" purse $10,000 for trotters that have never acquired a record of better than two minutes and his own son, Truax, had no trouble in annexing the main division of the rainy day sweepstakes for two year old trotters, with a value of $10,950.

Lee Worthy, owned and driven by Ben F. White, Lexington, Ky., was forced to go three heats to win his event. He came from behind to take the first heat by half a length from the fast coming Periscope but in the third and deciding mile he led practically the entire distance, again defeating the entry of J. L. Dodge, Lexington. Lee Worthy was unequal to the task in the second mile, Periscope trotting the last quarter in 29 4-5 seconds. The first four horses finished noses apart in this heat.

Truax caused an upset when he took the sweepstakes. Driven by Dick McMahon, the W. M. Wright, Chicago, colt won as he pleased. Mr. McElwyn nad Eris Guy, both sons of Guy Axworthy, were overwhelming favorites in the betting, in which they were coupled, but never contenders.

Walter Cox's Athalie had no trouble winning the rainy day sweepstakes consolidation division with a value of $2,000. The filly took both heats pulled up, with Miriam Harvester second and the others way back, the flag having been waived.

Fred Edman, the Memphis horseman, who was injured yesterday, was discharged from a hospital today. He and Vic Fleming, the Canadian reinsman, also injured, will be able to drive before the season ends, they sad.

THE BEAUTY OF HEALTH

Newspapers and magazines are devoting columns to magic or over-night beautifiers. There is a beauty in health that is far more attractive to men than mere regularity of features or a made-up complexion. Health should be the first essential of women who want to win and hold admiration, respect and love. At the first indication of ill health as indicated by dark circles under the eyes, a sallow complexion, headaches, backache, pain in the side, nervousness, irritability and melancholia, women should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the standard remedy for women's ills, which has been proven to help 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

WESTERLY

Reporting a pleasant stop at Naples, with the health of the party of the best, the steamship Tuscania, on which Miss Mary M. and Miss Bernice E. Whipple of Westerly have been enjoying a Mediterranean voyage, sailed from Gibraltar [illegible] 26th for New York.

The ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps made a hurried trip to Atlantic Beach Thursday afternoon and after arriving there found its services were not required. A young lady who had gone beyond her depth while in bathing inhaled a small amount of water, becoming somewhat frightened. Dr. C. Grant Savage was called and gave the necessary medical attention.

Milton Crandall, who has been ill at his home was reported Thursday as being more comfortable.

Ground was broken Tuesday for the 45 by 28 feet addition to the rear of the old Cottrell homestead, on Mechanic street, which the Lorraine Mfg. Co. is having altered for a recreation building for its employes. This addition will give room for bowling alleys also a large, clean floor space which can be used for an assembly hall as well as for dances. The main part of the house is to be altered to furnish on the first floor card, reading and smoking rooms, with toilets and shower baths. The second floor is to be given over to the use of the young women employes of the Lorraine company.

With the hospital fund already over the top, the question is being asked "is a large oversubscription really needed?" The leaders of the campaign themselves, it is stated, feel that an oversubscription should not be sought unless it is really needed, and they have therefore impressed upon the workers the necessity of explaining to prospective givers, from now on exactly why oversubscription is being sought. The facts in the situation it is stated, are as follows:

The board of trustees originally set the goal at $250,000 as a conservative minimum—as the smallest amount, in round figures, for which the smallest hospital that would properly serve this district can be built and equipped.

It was recognized that a nurses' home, costing in the neighborhood of $30,000, would be a necessary part of the new hospital, but that was left out with the idea that there would be a sufficient oversubscription to provide for it, or that perhaps an individual gift would make it possible at the time when the hospital should be built.

Another very important requirement is that of endowment. It has frequently been explained in the last six weeks, and has been stated in the newspapers, that a fund of about $80,000 has already been accumulated through a number of individual gifts, all of which have been made with the provision that only the interest upon this money may be used, and with the further provision that even the interest shall not be available until this endowment fund reaches $200,000. It should be understood that the endowment fund is entirely separate, and must be kept separate, from the general fund for construction and equipment.

Before the $80,000 can be used, therefore, at least $120,000 must be added to it to make a total endowment of $200,000. The purpose of an endowment, of course, is to provide a steady yearly income to meet the operating deficit which all general hospitals necessarily incur as a result of the charity service which they must give.

A summary of these facts is as follows:

Hospital cost, $295,000 cu. ft. @ 70c per cu. ft.	$206,500
Furnishing and equipment	35,000
Nurses' home cost	30,000
Furnishing and equipment	7,500
To complete endowment	120,000
Actually needed	$399,000

Memorial subscriptions announced at Wednesday's rally were as follows: $16,500, George C. Moore, $15,000 of this being for the two operating rooms and $1,500 of it for a bed in memory of Dr. John L. May.

$3,600, Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, for a private room memorial.

$3,600, Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell and family, for a private room memorial.

$1,500, J. M. Pendleton, for a ward bed memorial.

Most of the memorials, it is stated, have been either taken or reserved, but arrangements have been made so that those who wish to do so may endow ward beds in perpetuity for $10,000 or for six months in each year for $5,000.

The men's championship banner yesterday went to the Watch Hill team of Arthur L. Perry, who reported $11,540. The women's banner was awarded the team of Miss Katherine Foster, who announced $11,113. The total of all the men's teams for the day was $22,508, for the women $35,175 and for the neighborhood division $23,412.

MYSTIC

Lovers of music in Stonington and Mystic, Thursday evening at the Strand theatre, had the pleasure of listening to one of the finest concerts of the season. The program showed the three artists at their best. Clyde Burrows, the noted baritone from New York, a former Mystic boy, who spends his summers here, was the one who provided the public this great musical treat. Henry Clifton, an eminent English violinist, and who has been soloist for many of the famous symphony orchestra of Europe and America, and Emil J. Polak, noted New York pianist, interpreted the program with great skill, delighting the large number assembled from Norwich, New London, Noank, Mystic and Westerly. Mr. Polak had the first number and rendered two piano selections, his ease and technique showing mastery of the instrument, An Old Love Song, by MacDowell, and Valse, by Chopin, were rendered and he was forced to respond to encores. Golden at Thy Feet, Rubinstein; Meet Me by Moonlight, by Wade, and Don Juan's Serenade, by Tschaikowsky, all were most beautifully given by Mr. Burrows, who also sang May Night, Come Be My Valentine, Could I, The Way of June, these justified his title as a noted American baritone. Mr. Burrows and Mr. Clifton were heard in Ave Maria, by Guonod, and the audience would not allow either artist to retreat without several encores. Mr. Clifton is a rare artist, and his skill on the violin is exceptional. He played Sextette, from Lucia, also Pell Street (a Chinese sketch). He also rendered the Spanish Dance, and ballet music from Rosamunde and Gypsy Airs. It has been a long while since Mystic people have had an opportunity to hear such entrancing music.

SANTORA, BURIED AT NEW LONDON, HAD FRACTURED SKULL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 11.—The funeral of Mrs. Victoria G. Faulker, wife of Gilbert Nelson Faulker, of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home. The services were conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse of Waterford. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond, acting upon orders issued by State's Attorney Hadlia A. Hull, went to Hartford today, the detective carrying with him the contents of the stomach of Frank Santora of No. 12 Home Street, who was found dead in bed last Saturday morning from wood alcohol poisoning. The stomach was delivered at the state laboratory where it will be analyzed and a report made to the state's attorney.

Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Perkins in making rounds through Masonic street at 3.40 o'clock this morning discovered the entrance to the basement of the store of James Hislop & Co. unfastened. The officers inspected the place, finding no sighs of intruders. Patrolman Perkins was detailed to maintain a watch of the place until an employ reached there.

Byron A. Fones of New York, formerly of New London, has sold a parcel of land on Pequot avenue to Lottie B. Seamon of Groton. Mrs. Seamon recently acquired a dwelling on the same avenue from Mrs. Fones.

Mrs. Josephine Gadbois of Niantic, Miss Ellen Stahleton of Montauk avenue, Miss Mamie Ogden of Norwich, Miss Virginia Buffum of Montauk avenue, Arthur Meyers of Mystic, Bernard Goldberg of the U. S. S. Alexander Hamilton and Miss Mary Breen of New York, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Violators of the liquor law in this city are having the merriest time they have ever had, for they are dodging the officers of the law and they are confronted with trials before the police and superior courts. The lower court as the police court is known in law, has the first chance at the offenders who fall into the hands of the police though all of them are not so unfortunate in that respect, and then they go to the superior court for the final disposition of their cases. There are several of them to come before the September term which convenes here in a week. There is a prospect that the number of such cases will be increased for there are several accused men yet to come before the police court. Justice John J. Floyd, in Waterford this week established a record in fixing a bond for an accused rum runner when he set the bail in the case of Nostrano Faccini, caught with 250 gallons of alcohol, at $10,000. Faccini couldn't raise that amount of money nor could he get a property owner who could qualify in the amount needed. It is likely that he will be bailed, however, for his friends are working to that end. He is believed not to have been concerned alone in the transportation of the alcohol and if that assumption is correct he will get aid from those who were concerned with him. Faccini is known among his friends as "Shorty." He is a clever fellow and has quite a little cunning in his makeup.

Frank Parks, a man who suffered paralysis from drinking wood alcohol and who was sent to Lawrence hospital when found to be suffering, was not in a condition to leave the hospital today to appear in the police court and face the men he says sold him liquor. He is paralyzed partially on the whole of his left side. The men he accuses were on hand, as they were arrested on the statement made by Parks. The latter was employed formerly at the Ship and Engine Company's plant, but he seems to have graduated from that employment perhaps to a little business in the bootlegging game himself. The men Parks accuses are Genaro DeLuca, who has before been fined for trafficking in booze; Matthew Keenan, who is in the malt and hop business on Bank street, and Mariano Barca, the keeper of a pool room on Bank street. They were held in the police court until next week when it is expected Parks will be able to leave the hospital and tell the court what he told the officers who arrested the men he accuses.

Fire late yesterday afternoon threatened the plant of the Vernadium Metals company in Groton, but due to the prompt discovery of the blaze the damage was inconsequent. The blaze was discovered in a quantity of shavings and burned furiously. An alarm was rung in, calling out the Groton fire department. The blaze was quickly subdued by chemicals and the damage was slight. It is believed the blaze was due to spontaneous combustion.

Following the announcement that Frank Santora, poisoned by wood alcohol, had engaged in a fight prior to being taken to his home, Medical Examiner Heyer this afternoon stated that it had been determined that Santora had suffered a fractured skull. It is known that Santora was attacked in a store on Bank street and then beaten into insensibility, in which condition he was found by friends. The fight incident was given little credence by the authorities, but the fracture was revealed today prior to the autopsy being held and the body buried in St. Mary's cemetery.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Marion Washburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fred Washburn, to Louis R. Somerfeldt of Los Angeles, Cal. The date of the wedding has not been set.

She has before been taken into custody and relatives have given assurances that they would look after the interests of the woman, which they have failed to do.

Reuben Lubchansky, a local junk dealer, was taken into custody this evening, charged with the theft of goods from the submarine base. He was liberated upon furnishing a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. It is claimed that Lubchansky purchased goods in the sum of $700 that were stolen from the Base.

An automobile owned and operated by Henry Griskin and a machine owned and driven by William F. Madler of Waterford were in collision on Bank street extension this evening. Both cars were damaged.

Mose Allard was committed to jail from the police court this morning for "taking it out of his wife." Mose is addicted to drink and when intoxicated beats his wife. She is a worker at dressmaking, but she has to abandon that employment when her husband is drinking. It is a common thing, the prosecutor said, for Mose to beat his wife. He will not beat her again soon, for his fine and costs together with the sentence to serve ten days will keep him shut up six weeks.

Tony Di Marco and Jacob Forman were in the police court today, charged with a breach of the peace. They are tailormen and there is such an active competition over the business that they became involved in a quarrel of words and then got to blows. Forman does not come from a fighting race and he declined to exchange blows with Tony. Instead he rushed for the police station and secured the arrest of DiMarco. The story they told in court led to the conviction that they disturbed the peace and the people about the railroad station and that they committed a public nuisance. So they were fined $10 each.

Residents of Orient, L. I., expected to get to this city to trade in the store yesterday, but fog kept them back and they didn't reach New London till today.

SOLUTION LIES IN BRINGING PRODUCER AND CONSUMER CLOSER TOGETHER

(Written Specially for the Bulletin)

As a rule farmers want to think right and act right in politics and business, as truly as in plowing and planting.

But, like other people, they are badly puzzled at times to know what is right. With the best intentions in the world they realize that they don't know and can't seem to find out all the things which go to make up the right.

As every boy who has played with a three-sided piece of glass understands, our common daylight is made up of a mixture of at least seven colored lights. His glass prism, interposed between a ray of white sunlight and the kitchen wall, separates the colors and strings them out along the wall in blobs of blue and green and orange and violet, etc.

In just that same way the truth is made up of innumerable factors, some seemingly contradictory of others, yet all absolutely requisite for the composition of the clear truth ultimately desired. The tendency of farmers, as all other men, is to see most vividly some part-truth, neglect and others as if they were invisible, and follow the imperfect light into all sorts of slumps and quagmires.

"It takes a mighty smart man to tell the truth," once said the Old Philosopher. Meaning that, however desirous one may be of telling the truth, he simply can't unless he knows the truth, first. And it is no fool's job to make sure of that, either.

We farmers generally want to know the truth and tell the truth and act according to the truth, in our relations as producers and as citizens. But we shall never succeed if we just shut our eyes to any of the facts. It is much better to take two weeks to study and think over and investigate, and get things right, than to jump at a conclusion in two minutes, and get things wrong.

Just at present the farmers of the west seem to be on the rampage against the railroads. They are not able to sell their crops for enough given is that freight rates are so high. The railroads take all the produce is to pay for raising them. One reason worth," they charge. Consequently, they are slam-banging the railroads as if the said roads were the sole single cause of all agricultural unhappiness.

We eastern farmers will show better judgment if we hold our fire till we can see the whites of our enemies' eyes—at least till we can make sure just who our enemies really are. Red is an essential constituent of white light when properly mixed with other colors. But when an angry man sees red and red only, we are not compelled to rampage with him. It does not only his red but also blue and green and yellow and orange and violet rays to make the white light of truth which we are after—we ought to be.

When other men or bulls "see red" they are apt to make devastating nuisances of themselves. But when they are guided by complete light, they are more likely to see the right road and follow it.

"Now, consider the present depression in farming. One man says it's due to railroad overcharges. Another man says it's because Europe can't afford to buy from us. Another says it's the high wages demanded by organized "labor." Another says it's the steal involved in profiteering. Another ascribes it to over-production; another to lack of diversification, and so on and so on. It seems as if there was no limit to the number of explanations and theories put forth by cock-sure diagnosticians. Each one acts as if he could see but one color in the prismatic column. He not only ignores all the others, he denies that they exist. He "sees red" or blue, or yellow, as the case may be, and begins to paw the ground and bellow. This may, in time, lead him to dash his head against some stone wall. But it isn't the kind of light most useful in showing the way out.

Just as one contribution to the study which all ought to make before we act I have been greatly impressed by a chart, recently published, showing in graphic form what steps such a product as wheat has to go through before it is consumed. I wish I could reproduce it for you, but it takes a whole page wide of an eight-column newspaper to display it. I'll try, though, to pick out and make into a connected story the main steps of the journey.

To begin with you have the wheat, threshed and bagged on the Dakota plains. What's the first step?

A haul to the nearest elevator, which haul costs somebody money and must be paid for.

Next step?

After the elevator service has been paid for, it must be hauled again to the terminal market, which costs somebody money and must be paid for.

Third step?

It goes thence to the miller. Another haulage and another expense.

Fourth step?

The miller grinds it into flour and sends it to the storage warehouse. More haulage, etc

Fifth step?

The wholesale grocer buys it and has it transported to his store. More haulage and more expense.

Sixth step?

The baker buys it and has it hauled again, this time to his bakery, where it is made into bread.

Seventh step?

The retailer buys it and takes it to his retail store. Another haul and another bill of costs.

Eighth step?

You telephone the retailer to send you over a loaf of bread, right away, please, as you're expecting company and are all out. And the grocer has to deliver it to you. More haul and more expense.

It is said by those who have studied this complex system of distribution and service that the journey of the wheat from its Dakota field to your dining-table is much more direct and simple than that of most products. Yet it is circuitous enough, in all conscience.

Just follow it backward, so as to get a view of it from the other end.

When you buy that loaf of bread from the retail grocer, you're not only paying for the wheat in it, you're also paying for: His delivery truck and his profit, the baker's delivery truck and his profit, the wholesale grocer's delivery truck and his profit, the miller's profit and haul from his mill, the warehouseman's profit and haul to the miller, the elevator's profit and haul to the warehouse, the local buyer's profit and haul to the elevator, and last and least of all, the farmer's wages for growing the wheat and hauling it to the local market.

Do you wonder Mr. Farmer after all that journey, that you don't get much for your grain?

Do you wonder, Mrs. Consumer, that you have to pay twelve cents for a loaf of bread which contains only a fraction of a cent's worth of wheat?

A congressional committee which two years ago made an exhaustive study of the whole marketing problem reported, after considering not only wheat but a score of other necessary products in these pregnant words:

"We have now reached a point where it costs more to distribute and serve than it costs to produce."

Please read that over again. In order to make it easier for you to do so, I'm going to ask the printer to repeat it, in capital letters:

"WE HAVE NOW REACHED A POINT WHERE IT COSTS MORE TO DISTRIBUTE AND SERVE THAN IT COSTS TO PRODUCE."

Now please lay the paper down and let your mind dwell on that statement long enough to grasp what it means and all that it means. It's a rather weighty sentence, I think you'll find.

It means among other things, that we're "tipping" the waiter more than we're paying for the dinner. It means that we're paying more for trappings on the harness than the horse is worth. It means that we're being charged more for shoe strings than for shoes—and shoes cost enough, goodness knows!

It means that our whole system of marketing and distributing products has become so involved and complicated and extravagant, so outrageously and intolerably burdensome, as to be a disgrace to our alleged intelligence and a blot on our so-called civilization.

It merits the characterization of Isaiah: "The whole head is sick and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it; but wounds, and bruises, and putrifying sores." Wherefore, "Your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate,"—or at least heading that way!

You see, it isn't only the railroads that are at fault, though they are undoubtedly charging all that the traffic will bear, if not a bit more. It is the system of which they are but a part, the system which costs more to carry on that the total value of the goods it delivers.

All the long road from that Dakota wheat field to your dining room hands after hands are being thrust out in the path of the wheat, all requiring to be duly "greased" before they let it on its way.

It has to rise over dams and barricades; it has to squeeze through tollgates and creep around detours; it has to scrape over bars and muddle through blind alleys; it has to be held up at corners and detained at crossings; it has to be weighed here and measured there, and cleaned and ground somewhere else. And everywhere, all the time, on every mile of its movement, it has to be mulcted of more or less of its value to pay the costs of this inefficient, roundabout thriftless method of distribution.

The more you study it, the more you come to know about it, so much the more you see that it isn't the railroads alone, nor the speculators alone, nor the retailers alone, nor any single set of handlers alone that is to blame for the pitifully low price of wheat to the producers and the abominably high price of bread to the consumer.

Therefore, as an irresistibly logical conclusion, it is apparent that bludgeoning the railroads won't stop the troubles; that smothering the retailers won't stop it; that going on the rampage and smashing things generally won't stop it.

So far as this too talkative old farmer can see, the only road out of the muddle lies in the devising of some means by which Mr. Producer and Mr. Consumer can be brought closer together—close enough so that about three quarters of all the middlemen now standing between them shall be eliminated. Some see in co-operation the means of accomplishing this. Co-operation has, measureably, done it in Denmark. But even the Danish farmers had to be plunged into the jaws of pauperism before they could be induced to co-operate.

Perhaps we shall have to go through a similar starvation test before we will learn wisdom.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Aug. 23.—Irregular and inconclusive price movements characterized today's stock market with the general list displaying a heavy tone during most of the session. Except in a few issues which were bid up or hammered down for individual reasons, professional interests showed a disposition to await further developments bearing on the economic situation before extending their commitments. Pool operations were virtually suspended in a number of issues and so-called public buying was again at low ebb.

Unfavorable coal strike and reparations news resulted in a rather large volume of over-night selling orders, which gave the market a heavy appearance at the start. These offerings were fairly well absorbed, however, although individual points of weakness continued to crop out during the day.

Gulf States Steel was again pushed up on southern buying, closing 1 1-4 higher at 82 1-2. Bethlehem closed fractionally higher but the other independents showed little or no change on the day. U. S. Steel moved within a radius of 1 point, closing 1-4 lower. Earnings of the steel companies in the first half of the third quarter are reported to compare favorably with the corresponding period of the second quarter. A slight falling off in the last half of the quarter is expected, however, as a result of the increased expense involved in the gradual elimination of the 12 hour day. E. H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, declared however, that it will be three months before the effect of the change in working day on costs and price can be determined. Rail business for shipments next year is being booked at present prices.

One of the features of today's session was the heavy buying of General Motors in the last hour, several blocks of 5,000 shares each changing hands at 15 1-2, up 1-4. Mullins Body also was fairly active, closing 2 1-2 points higher. Mack Truck showed a net gain of 2 points but the other automotive shares showed little change.

Strength of the Erie issues was based on reports that the railroad's coal which would bring it increased income. Erie common touched 15, closing slightly below that for a gain of 1 3-8; the first preferred advance 2 3-8 and the second preferred, 1 7-8. Recent earnings reports of the railroad also have been unusually good.

Famous Players, International Harvester, Allied Chemical and National Lead were the conspicuous weak spots losing 1 to 2 points.

Call money held at 5 per cent. all day. The time money market was dull with occasional loans made at 5 1-4 per cent., the highest rate that brokers were willing to pay. Out-of-town banks are the principal takers of commercial paper, the ruling rate being 5 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were firmer. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.55 1-4 and French francs hovered around 5.59 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—A sharp break in September corn today upset the wheat market, which was on the verge of recovering from an early decline, because of disappointing cable news. Trading, however, in the late part of the session in all grains became uneventful and uninteresting. At the finish wheat was off 1-8 to 1-2c with December $1.04 4-8 and May $1.10 1-8 to $1.10 1-4. Corn registered net losses of 1-8 to 1-5c and oats 1-4 to 3-4c. Provisions were 2 1-2 to 12 1-2c higher.

Wheat displayed a sagging tendency, there being nothing in the news to lend encouragement to bulls, while the bears were furnished with ammunition in the way of a severe drop in September corn, easy undertone in stocks, weakness in Liverpool and the reported sale of a cargo of wheat by Russia to France. Trade lacked the aggressiveness shown the previous day and the market was in need of constant support to sustain values. Increased arrivals and forecast for generally fair weather and rising temperature tonight and Friday over the grain belt also operated against those inclined to the constructive attraction in the grain trade. This delivery broke 3 3-4c from the previous close as the result of heavy liquidation. Stop-loss orders to sell were numerous on the way down failed to develop save after the price reached $1 1-2c, a good rally being started from this point.

Selling of oats was encouraged by weakness in other grains. Trade was light with commission houses buying on the breaks. Buying was smaller packers gave firmness to provisions.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 23.—Strength of the Erie Railroad issues and the weakness of the French municipals were the outstanding features of today's bond market.

The rise in Erie liens synchronized with higher stock prices, buying of both classes of securities being based on the increased benefits expected to accrue to the road by reason of a new arrangement for its coal in the northeastern territory. Erie 4s, Series A, led the advance with a gain of 3 1-4 points while the prior liens 4s and 4 1-2s and the 4s, Series B and D, advanced 1 to 2 points. St. Paul convertible 4 1-2s dropped 1 but other changes in the railroad group were largely fractional.

Weakness of the French liens was somewhat of a surprise in view of the higher exchange rate. Losses of 1 to 1 1-2 points were registered by Bordeaux 6s, Marseilles 6s, Paris-Lyons Mediterranean 6s and Framerican 7 1-2s. Serbian 8s also were heavy.

U. S. government bonds were slightly reactionary.

A drop of 2 points in Cerro De Pasco 8s was the outstanding change in the industrial list. Oil company liens continued sluggish.

Public offering of the $50,000,000 Argentine loan probably will be made early next week as several minor details must be smoothed out before the contract is signed.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 23.—Confused price movements took place in today's curb market with the usual leaders showing few important changes on the day.

Oil shares were again in rather free supply but the selling was well absorbed. Prairie Oil & Gas dropped 1 point and Ohio Oil 1 1-2, while Magnolia Petroleum gained 3 and National Transit 1 1-2, but the turnover in each case was small. Standard Oil of Indiana closed unchanged after fluctuating within a range of 1 point.

Glen Alden Coal dropped 2 points as a result of the unfavorable coal strike news while Reading Coal rights yielded a small fraction. Midvale teel of Delaware and Gillette Safety Razor each advanced a point. Motors were slightly lower.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Aug. 23.—Copper steady. Electrolytic, spot and futures 14@14 1-8. Tin firm; spot and futures 40.35. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady; spot 6.50@6.75. Zinc steady; East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.50@6.55. Antimony, spot 7.62.

New York, Aug. 23.—Call money firm; high 5; low 5; ruling rate 5; closing bid 5; offered at 5 1-2; last loan 5; call loans against acceptances 4 1-2.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

Big musical program tonight by 12-piece orchestra.

Drama and William Farnum—There is a combination that becomes stronger with every picture in which the Fox star appears. His latest, "Brass Commandments" will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Saturday.

It is a story of the West, done in the breezy style of Charles Alden Seltzer, popular for his narratives of outdoor action. To make a good thing better Tom Santschi, who held such a memorable conflict with Farnum in the "Spoilers," gives the Fox star an equally historical battle in this play.

There are two girls in the story Wanda Hawley plays a capable feminine lead opposite Farnum and Clare Adams comes in for her share of honors. There is action, tons of it; the story retains interest by its dramatic tensity the romantic skein is well woven through the tale and the climax thunders with power. This is the opinion of critics who saw the film before its release to the general public. The people of Norwich will soon be able to judge for themselves.

Other pictures on the bill include Ruth Roland in the opening chapter of "Haunted Valley," the Pathenews and a Sunshine comedy. Another big musical program tonight by enlarged orchestra, composed of twelve local union musicians.

Fine Vaudeville and Picture, Feature at the Strand Theatre

Another very fine balanced program of Keith vaudeville was presented yesterday to a large appreciative audience at the Strand theatre.

Opening the bill was Morlen and Doran in "Surprise," which was a musical surprise of music featuring the accordeon and violin.

Charles Tobias followed with a comedy and singing offering.

In third spot Leon and Dawn, those romping rollicking kids in "Kids is Kids," found favor.

Nora Jane and Carl closed the bill with Dancing de Luxe.

Kenneth Harlan, whose popularity in the motion picture world is rapidly growing, is playing an important role in "The Girl Who Came Back," showing at the Strand theatre today, and Saturday, opposite Miriam Cooper. Other members of the cast are Gaston Glass, Joseph Dowling, Fred Malatests, Ethel Shannon, and Zasu Pitts. It is a picture worth seeing.

NEW LONDON COUNTY FAIR, SEPT. 3, 4, AND 5

Every day brings the New London County Fair nearer and when it opens on Labor Day, Sept. 3d all of the fairgrounds from the 69th annual the largest and best fair of all will be presented for the approval of the public.

Everything is in fine shape and indications are that all past fairs will be enlarged upon this year. Six headline acts have been secured for the free vaudeville acts on the platform in front of the grandstands, nine fast horse races events are scheduled, and the exhibits and midway attractions are big this year offering a wide choice of entertainment.

A feature this year will be the automobile show, entries which have passed all expectations, a wonderful exhibition of whaling trophies, exhibits of farm, blooded stock, and home products, and the greatest exhibit of flowers ever shown in a New London County Fair.

The flower exhibit is again to be in charge of Edwin A. Tracy who will be allowed 100 feet of bench space in the main exhibition hall, this exhibit to be three times ag great as in any year past.

Other features will be the County Race, to be taken place on Wednesday, the last day of the fair, and the annual athletic meet which as usual is in charge of Prentice W. Chase of Jewett City, who has signed many of the best athletes of this part of the state.

For those loving thrills are the triple parachute drop every afternoon at 4 o'clock and the motordrome with 4 men riders and the daring "Dot" Millscott.

The fair runs three days, Sept. 3, 4 and 5, and grandstand tickets will be on sale at Engler's Pharmacy beginning August 28th. Admission prices, adults 75c, children 25c, autos 50c.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail? and danger of an operation.

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for safe, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for You.

STATE POLICE GET FOUR ON LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION CHARGES

Four arrests on liquor law violation charges were made Thursday night in Yantic and Taftville by a squad of seven state police officers, headed by State Police Officer Fred Caron, from the Groton police barracks. In three of the cases the charge will be actual sales.

Michael Morich, Polish, 36 years of age, was arrested by the squad in Yantic on a charge of actual sale. At the place conducted by Louis Olaff, Polish, 41 years of age, the raiding squad uncovered two quarts of moonshine and three dozen bottles of beer. The moonshine and beer were seized and taken to police headquarters. In addition to possession, Olaff will be charged with making an actual sale.

Later in the evening the squad arrested Hormisdas Turcott, Canadian, 27 years of age, at his place on Hunter's avenue, Taftville. As in the two preceding cases, there will be an actual sale charge against Turcott.

At the place conducted by Peter Dishille on the Occum road in Taftville the state police uncovered two one-gallon glass jars containing liquor, evidently moonshine, and two one-quart bottles of 100 proof rye whiskey. The liquor was found concealed in a small outhouse on Dishille's premises. It was seized and taken to police headquarters and Dishille was arrested.

Bonds were fixed at $500 in the cases of the four men. Olaff and Turcotte secured bondsmen. The accused will be presented in the city court Saturday morning.

The state police squad comprised the following: Officers Fred Caron, M. R. Sterling, Dominick Tremp, John Palmer, Officer Stevens, Officer Hill and Officer Skelly.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE BY STATE POLICE

Late Thursday night the state police arrested Julian Falcone of North Main street on a charge of violation of the liquor law. He was booked at the police station and released on bonds of $900 for appearance in the city court Saturday morning.

POULTRY MEN PLAN TO JOIN STATE TOUR

A number of poultry men in New London county and throughout the eastern part of the state are planning to join the annual automobile tour of the Connecticut Poultry Association which is to be held Aug. 28, 29, 30 and 31st.

The annual automobile tour of the State Poultry Association has come to be one of the milestones in poultry events. The practice of alternating between state and out-of-state tours is also established, this being the year for the All-Connecticut trip.

The farms to be visited are many, and varied in type so as to please everyone. This trip does not include any farm visited two years ago. The trip is confined to Tolland, Hartford and New Haven counties. The mileage is short and ample time will be allowed on each farm.

All Connecticut cars can leave home Tuesday morning and return home Friday night. All eastern Connecticut cars will line up at Mr. Anthony's at Mansfield Hollow—located four miles north of Willimantic—reached either from the North Windham or Mansfield Center roads.

Cars from Central and western Connecticut will assemble on the state road east of Bolton Notch, where a car will be waiting with banners and numbers. All cars will be expected to use these markers, even though they are in line but one day. To facilitate handling cars on the road and parking at the many stops, each driver will keep his respective place in the line and be responsible for the car behind. In case of tire or other trouble, a car will drop out of line and be picked up by the trouble car—which will bring up the rear.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Aug. 23.—Fourteen ground hogs will not be on next Candlemas Day to prognosticate the weather, due to the prowess of Dr. Albert Kyte, of Montgomery, N. Y., recently a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Kimball, of Pomfret. The doctor at one time lived on a farm and the cuteness of those cute, fluffy little fellows that play about the farm did not appeal to him. He saw in them only the vandals that commit acts of destruction and thievery and the enemy of the farmer. When any chuck showed himself about the house of his host it was surer death than for a German soldier to pop his head over the top of the trenches in France. Sitting at an open window the doctor would sight his rifle, there would be a sharp report and a notch would be picked in the stock of the gun. There were fourteen such notches when the doctor left home.

The doctor will not have such good luck on his next visit as at a meeting of the 'chucks he was denounced as a dangerous man and next year every ground hog for miles around will remain under the soil until the doctor concludes his vacation.

Following the doctor's visit Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stose, Mr. Stose geologist for the government at Washington, were guests at the Kimball home, and Mr. Stose added one more to the string that Dr. Kyte had started. The fall census will find Woodchuckville depreciating in population over in the neighboring town where General Putnam shot the wolf.

SEIZE STILLS, MASH AND 28 QUARTS MOONSHINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 23.—The biggest liquor haul made in this city in many months was that about 5 o'clock this afternoon, by the local police, and resulted in the discovery of two ten-gallon stills in operation, two barrels of mash and about 28 quarts of newly made moonshine. This haul was made at the home of David Mercier, at the rear of No. 7 Lower Main street on the west bank of the Natchaug river, near Horseshoe bridge. Chief of Police Allan McArthur, Captain Thomas Grady, Traffic Officer Edward Leahy and Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombari comprised the raiding party. The still and contraband liquor were removed to the police station and Mercier was released under bonds for possession and sale of illicit liquor.

Gave Pleasing Solo.

One of the pleasing features of the Mohegan Wigwam Wednesday was the vocal solo given by Mrs. Myrtice Fielding Germaine, daughter of Chief Occum Fielding.

IN HIS EIGHTY-NINTH YEAR, W. L. GOSS KEEPING BUSY

Warren Lee Goss, of Rutherford, N. J., a former local resident and an honored member of Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., of Norwich, that lively young gentleman who started upon his 89th year last Sunday, has just returned to Rutherford from a fortnight's stay on Cape Cod. Since getting back to his desk he is busy revising the MS. of another book for boys.

His latest published work, Jack Gregory, is going strong everywhere it has been seen. In a town near Lake George, N. Y., one hundred copies have been ordered for use in the school libraries. The schoolman who ordered these at the same time ordered another hundred copies for gifts to juvenile friends. But perhaps the best endorsement of the book is that from Dr. A. F. Beard, in the Norwalk Hour. Dr. Beard is well known in Norwich, is a trustee of Yale and the secretary and editor for the American Home Missionary Society. Dr. Beard tells The Hour that Jack Gregory is "a downright good story, and what is more, it is history so well interwoven that it has a value in itself independent of the fortunes of its characters. It is fiction made very real in its wise association with verified historical facts. Mr. Goss plays a trump card in Jack Gregory. The Norwalk names and the Norwalk history belong there, and add to the realism of the story. The way in which the Revolutionary story is told makes it a good deal more than a boys' book—although it is a boys' book all right!"

Dr. Beard, a native of Norwalk, is now past his 90th year and is an author of national reputation.

STATE POLICE GET THREE IN MOOSUP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Aug. 23.—Three more arrests were made on raids by state police Tuesday night in Moosup, making some 14 cases to be tried this week. The last case before Judge Mathewson was that of the Moosup House bartender who was fined on two counts of selling to state police, disguised as sailors in uniform. Fines of $200 and costs were assessed. Maurice Foster went on the bail bond, he being the owner of the hotel, the judge giving each person a jail sentence of 30 days, but so far has suspended sentence.

Sheriff Tillinghast with Sheriff Ayer and Detective Jackson made raids lately in Brooklyn and Killingly. Five were caught with contraband goods.

Wednesday at 3 a. m. a truck, Reo speedster, with six men, bound for Dyer dam tipped over above Central Village as the steering gear went wrong. Edgar Terrington was cut on the head and had other abrasions. Sullivan, the driver, escaped with slight cuts. The two men were treated at Dr. J. L. Gardner's office and went on with a big truck, one belonging to the Max Gordon and Son Corp., Norwich. The six men all went in a heap as the Reo upset and their escape from serious injury was remarkable.

The men were all in the employ of the Max Gordon Corporation and on their way to take a large boiler from the Dyer Dam power house.

METHODIST CHURCH CLUB TO ENTER POLITICS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 23.—The Men's club of the Methodist church is to take an active part in an endeavor to secure the election of candidates to the city council next month; the club is seeking the placing of men in office who will obtain the enforcement of the prohibition law. This fact became known when the following circular was sent to many taxpayers and voters:

"It must be apparent to all who stop to think that the bi-party principles of government have been discarded in New London, neither is the coming issue a matter of pro-charter. Democrats and republicans, anti-charter and pro-charter citizens must align themselves either with good government or poor government under the existing form, until it is changed.

"There is no machine or organization to safeguard our rights against the politician with friends banind him.

"The primary election will be held Sept. 10th and the people of the churches who believe in supporting existing law and our government as we find it, good men in office and strict accounting by public servants for their trusts, are invited to meet in the Methodist Episcopal church parlors, Monday, August 27th, at 7.30 o'clock, for the purpose of considering together their interest at the coming elections.

"The effectiveness of this meeting will depend upon how many you will bring with you."

A committee, representing the Men's club, will cause letters to be sent to the nine candidates for members of council within a day or two with the request that the candidates give an expression as to their views of the prohibition question, more particularly whether they are in favor of enforcing the law regulating the sale of liquor in New London and apprehending violators of the Volstead act.

It was not generally known until today that the voters of New London will be called upon to vote on a measure other than the choice for members of the city council at the election of Sept. 10th, for at the last session of the legislature an amendment to the constitution was adopted that makes it mandatory that before the amendment shall be effective referendum vote be taken. The amendment is as follows:

"The governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill making appropriations of money embracing distinct items while at the same time approving the remainder of the bill and the part or parts of a bill so approved shall become effective and the item or items of appropriations so disapproved shall not take effect unless the same are separately reconsidered and repassed in accordance with the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of bills over the executive veto. In all cases in which the governor shall exercise the right of disapproval hereby conferred, he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it a statement of the item or items disapproved, together with his reasons for such disapproval; and transmit the bill and such appended statement to the secretary. If the general assembly be then in session he shall forthwith cause a copy of such statement to be delivered to the house in which the bill originated for reconsideration of the disapproved items in conformity with the rules prescribed for legislative action in respect to bills which have received executive disapproval."

The act further provides that said proposed amendment shall be transmitted by the secretary to the town clerk of each town in the state, at least 15 days before the date of the town meeting to be held, next after the passage of the act.

City Clerk Julian D. Moran recently made but yesterday Attorney General Healy for an opinion as to whether the election to be held on the 10th of September was to be a town election because no town officers are to be elected. The opinion has not been mad, but yesterday Attorney General Healy promised it today or Thursday. In the meantime Director of Law Frank L. McGuire has rendered an opinion that the election is a town election within the meaning of the law inasmuch as officers are to be elected who have the power to elect town officers.

GOV. PINCHOT DESIGNATED AS SPECIAL MEDIATOR IN ANTHRACITE CONTROVERSY

Action Was Taken by President Coolidge After a Luncheon and Conference With Gov. Pinchot at White House—Mr. Pinchot's First Move Probably Will be to Assertain Whether a Basis for Further Discussion Exists—His Relation to the Federal Authorities is to be "Solely Cooperative."

Washington, Aug. 24.—An avenue through which anthracite miners and operators might come together in further effort to reach a settlement of their existing differences were provided by President Coolidge today in the designation of Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, as special mediator.

Maintaining the conviction that suspension of hard coal production September 1 would be suicidal to both employe and operator, the government's action was said to be designed to furnish a medium through which conciliatory influences on both sides might operate without damage to the position, or the dignity, of either.

After a luncheon conference at the White House, Governor Pinchot returned to Harrisburg with the announced intention of getting in touch once with representatives of the miner and operator groups. It was stated that no definite proposal has been involved at the White House meeting, and that Mr. Pinchot's first move probably would be to ascertain whether a basis for further discussion exists.

Describing the relations of Governor Pinchot to the federal authorities as "solely cooperative," a spokesman for the President pointed out that his selection was a particularly happy one because the anthracite fields are located almost exclusively in Pennsylvania and because of the unusual legislative safeguards thrown around the industry by state laws. Possibility of the Pennsylvania statutes licensing mine operations being used in the effort to reach a settlement was discounted by Mr. Pinchot, however.

Chairman Hammond, of the coal commission which has been the designated agency of the federal government in dealing with the anthracite crisis, participated in the White House meeting, and, it was announced later, will cooperate heartily with Governor Pinchot. The commission will furnish data and information bearing on the subject to the Pennsylvania executive, an administration spokesman said, and will hold itself in readiness to assist to a further extent if its services are desired.

It was said at the White House the injection of Governor Pinchot into the picture should not be taken as a change in the policy of non-intervention hitherto followed. The government still holds, it was added, that a cessation of production in the anthracite industry would be a folly impossible of consummation by sensible men.

The optimistic view of the coal crisis which has marked the government's attitude since the disrupion of the bi-party discussion was more pronounced tonight. A view of the situation, made public by the coal commission, gave in detail the influences which official observers considered to be working for ultimate settlement. These included the certain loss of valuable markets and the possible extinction of anthracite as a necessary fuel, from the operators' standpoint, and the reduction of employment during the coming winter with the possibility of extended depression, from that of the miners.

A tie-up of anthracite production, the commission said, while not sufficient to warrant "panicky" forebodings, would constitute an emergency which would warrant the exercise of every federal authority to supply the consumer.

At the White House it was explained that the emergency program for distribution did not contemplate the use of government agencies beyond the point of assuring transportation to the state borders. The problem of getting the fuel to the home or factory, and of rationing the individual consumers, if that became necessary, would be left to state authorities.

PRELIMINARIES TAKEN FOR SUSPENSION OF MINING SEPT. 1.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24.—(By the A. P.)—Anthracite mine workers' representatives today took the last step necessary to shut down the mines September 1, though news came to them from Washington that Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, with President Coolidge's support, would seek a last word before the impending struggle in the anthracite region. Scale committees from the three union districts authorized by unanimous vote the issuance of "work suspension" orders, and walked out of their meeting room to take the trains which tonight are carrying most of them to their homes.

Their officials, however, said that any request which Governor Pinchot might extend for further conference probably would be accepted. In this view members of the operators' policy committee, which was still held in the city, though S. D. Warriner, its chairman, left temporarily, also joined. The employers would refuse no request for discussion, it was said, however slight might be the prospect for a settlement.

Phillip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, and Thomas Kennedy, C. J. Golden and Rinaldo Cappellini, presidents of the anthracite districts, met with the union scale committees and reported upon the fruitless negotiations. There were 15 "miners from the pit" as prescribed by union law, delegates for their fellow workers, on hand to listen. John L. Lewis, president of the union, was indisposed and confined to his bed all day with a slight cold. At the end of three hours of executive session, the miners, most of them men of mature years, trooped silently away.

"We are writing tonight a set of rules which will govern the suspension of work on the part of our members that automatically comes about September 1," Mr. Murray said. "It will be printed Sunday night or Monday morning, and will be mailed out Tuesday from some point in the anthracite region in order to reach all of our locals by August 31.

"For the first time, the rules will also call for all of our members who are employed as firemen, pumpmen, engineers and maintenance men to cease work when the miners go out. These men have hitherto been left in service in order to keep the mines from flooding and caving in. The scale committee, however, authorized the international and district officials to complete any satisfactory arrangement with the operators, if the operators desire to continue the employment of our members in such capacity, which will have that result."

The mention of the continuance in service of enough anthracite workers to prevent the incalculable damage that would result to the mines from flooding and cave-in covered a point to which observers attached great importance, and about which operators and the union appeared to be staging an entirely new controversy. TILDEN AND NORTON ELIMINATE ALONSO AND JOHNSON IN DOUBLES

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 24.—The new doubles combination of William T. Tilden, 2nd, Philadelphia, and Brian I. C. Norton, South Africa, today put another strong and brilliant new combination, that of Manuel Alonso, Spain, and Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia, out of the running for national tennis honors in a spectacular four-set match today. A crowd of more than 6,000, the largest since the tournament began, last Monday, saw the Tilden-Norton team conquer the Spanish-American pair by a score of 7-9, 8-6, 8-6, 6-2.

Tomorrow the winners of today will meet R. N. Williams, 2nd, Bryn Mawr, Pa., captain of the American Davis cup team, for 1923, and his partner, Watson Washburn, New York, for the national title. The latter team yesterday eliminated the Australian Davis cup challengers, James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes.

It was a fight to the finish today and almost every strategy known to the game was employed in turn before the lithe and spectacular Spaniard and his cool, calm Philadelphian team mate were subdued.

The attack of Tilden and Norton was directed largely against Alonso, whose game was believed to be more erratic and vulnerable than his teammate. As a result Johnson hardly was warmed up while Alonso chased ball after ball. Unlike previous games in which the Spaniard has taken part, few soft spots were directed his way. He was kept back near the base lines with long lobs, and his returns from that position were often on the verge of marvelous.

Norton proved invulnerable. While it was expected that the attack would be directed at him after the first exchanges, this step was found to be unadvisable and Tilden was permitted to bear at least his half of the brunt. The South African played with remarkable confidence and except for an early weakness in his overhead game which he corrected by lobbing often, he played unusually steady.

The closeness of the play, while attested by the set score, is more clearly demonstrated by point scores.

In the first set won by Alonso and Johnson, the winning pair scored 59 as compared to the losers' 56. In the second set Alonso and Johnson scored 43 points compared to the winners' 47. As Tilden and Norton improved in team work and in individual brilliance, the scores widened and in the third set they scored 48 points compared to their rivals' 38, and in the fourth 32 compared to the losers' 22.

Tilden's service strength was shown by his performance in losing but one service game. Norton lost five of his deliveries, Johnson lost five, and Alonso lost four.

Mixed Doubles.

Teams representing the British empire and the United States won their way into the final round of the national mixed doubles tournament at the Longwood Cricket club today and will meet tomorrow for the championship. In the upper half semi-final match Miss Kathleen McKane, British women's champion, and John B. Hawkes, of the Australian Davis cup team, defeated Vincent Richards and Miss Eleanor Goss, of New York, in straight sets, 6-4, and 10-8.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, and Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, national champions, raced through the other semi-final match, with the loss of but three games, overwhelming Mrs. E. C. Covell, of England, and Wallace Johnson, of Philadelphia 6-1, 6-2.

Junior Doubles.

Malcolm T. Hill and H. L. Johnson, of Waban, Mass., national boys' doubles champions, in 1922, retained their title today by scoring a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Howard Langlie, of Seattle, and Emmet Pare, of Chicago, in the final round of the national boys' doubles tournament here.

The superior steadiness of Johnson and Hill combined with their more aggressive attack carried them through four straight games in the first set before they lost on Pare's service. All four players had difficulty in controlling their services and double faults were numerous.

Father and Son Play.

A. H. Chapin and son, of Springfield, Mass., and J. W. Wear and son, of Philadelphia, won their way into the final round of the national father and son doubles tournament on the Longwood Cricket club courts today. The Chapins defeated A. Ingraham and son of Oakland, R. I. 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, in one semi-final, and the Wear combination eliminated Dr. L. Emerson and son, of New York, in the other semi-final match. The teams will meet tomorrow for the national championship.

Veterans' Doubles.

A. Wallis Myers, of England, and Samuel Hardy, of New York, entered the final round of the national veterans' doubles tournament here today, defeating Harry C. Johnson, of Boston, and Fred Baggs, of New York, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5, in the semi-final round.

The other semi-finalists, after playing through forty games, were obliged to discontinue the match on account of darkness. G. Wales, and W. L. Porter, of Boston, won the first set at 14-12, the longest single set to be played in the tournaments now in progress here thus far. Their opponents, Irving Wright and J. W. Foster, also of Boston, won the second set at 8-6. The tournament will be concluded tomorrow.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Washington batted five Cleveland pitchers hard and won the final game of the series, 20 to 5, here today. GIANTS TAKE HARD FOUGHT GAME FROM CARDS

New York, Aug. 24.—The New York Nationals defeated St. Louis in a hard fought fourteen inning game here today, 3 to 4. Snyder opened the fourteenth for the Giants with a single, and Shinners, who ran for him, reached third when Doak fumbled Ryan's sacrifice bunt and Bancroft walked. Frisch hit an infield single, scoring Shinners. St. Louis tied the score, with a spirited ninth inning rally, when McQuillan was knocked out. Smith hit a home run and Hornsby a triple in this inning. Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—A home run by Cy Williams, his 32nd of the season, enabled the Phillies to defeat Chicago today 6 to 5. Williams hit the first ball pitched by Kaufmann in the seventh inning, the drive clearing the wall in right. It enabled him to tie Babe Ruth for the lead in both leagues.

LUQUE SHUTS OUT DODGERS WITH FOUR HITS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Luque shut out the Dodgers with four scattered hits today and incidentally increased his record of strike-outs for the season to 128, two ahead of "Dazzy" Vance, who led the National league. Cincinnati won by 4 to 0 hitting Grimes timely in three innings. They would have scored more runs but for reckless base running, as Brooklyn's total of 24 assists indicate. Johnston and Roush nearly came to blows in the eight inning when the Brooklyn second baseman charged the Reds captain with attempting to spike him. Score:

TWO FAST DIAMOND CONFLICTS ARE SCHEDULED FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Two games of more than passing interest to Norwich fans take place today on local diamonds. At the Providence street grounds in Taftville, Taftville A. A. goes against the fast Nugget team for the second time this week and at the State Hospital, the Riverview club starts its series with the J. B. Martin team. Both these games are entirely local with the exception of the batteries of the J. B. Martin team and the Nuggets. All the teams have a large local following and attendance records at both parks are expected to be broken.

At the Taftville Grounds.

The game on these grounds today is the second game of the series, Taftville having beaten the Nuggets on Thursday afternoon 6 to 3. Both teams have been strengthened since the last meeting and a good game is expected. Manager Madden, of the Nuggets, has secured Mathewson of Willimantic, to do the twirling and Hamel, also of Willimantic, will do the backstop work. Big Ed Harris, who is extremely popular with the Taftville fans, will cover first. Eddie McKay, another Taftville favorite, will be at second with Billy Berry at short. On third will be auburn-haired flash from Thamesville, Red Lesemann. In the outfield will be Mac Connelly, who put up such a brilliant game last Thursday, Archie Spaulding and Manchester or Clark.

The Taftville team will pitch Morin or Jerry Peltier with Belair behind the bat. Peltier proved the master of the Nuggets in the last game and may be called upon today to repeat his performance. The remainder of the team will be Cardle, 1b; F. Murphy 2b; Chip Dugas 3b; Liberty ss; Gaudette or M. Dugas, lf; Jarvis, cf, and Jim Murphy rf. The game will start at 3.30 (daylight saving time).

At the State Hospital Diamond.

The Riverview club of the Norwich State Hospital will cross bats with the much touted J. B. Martin baseball club of Taftville this afternoon on the hospital field. The game is scheduled to start at 2.45 p. m., sharp. This club has defeated a few of the local teams and are to trim the Riverview clum, if such a thing be possible.

Although the Taftville A. A. are playing the Nuggets in Taftville today, many of the fans will journey to the State Hospital to see what brand of ball the J. B. Martin club puts over prior to their series with the Taftville A. A. Manager Krauss has engaged Fisher, formerly of the Hartford Federals, to do the twirling with Welch on the receiving end. These boys have worked together during the entire season and form a good combination. J. Dugas will cover the initial sack, Lemieux will play second. Shortstop and third base will be taken care of by Decelles and F. Gley respectively. In the outfield will be W. Gley, E. Murphy, Germaine and Joubert. This is the strongest team that has represented this club during the season.

Manager "Bill" Donovan will use the same lineup that has made it very uncomfortable for all teams throughout the state this season, West and Reddy will work together as usual, and the infield will be taken care of by Fay, Hart, Massey and Mills. Jack Clabby will cover left field and will have Couillard and Walsh to keep him company.

WORLD'S SERIES SLATED FOR OCTOBER 9 OR 10

New York, Aug. 24.—This year's world series between National and American league champions will start on October 9 or 10, according to present plans.

The Major league season, closing a week later than in 1922, is scheduled to end October 7. Should both New York clubs maintain their places at the top for the third successive year, the annual title struggle probably will begin Tuesday, October 9. In the event either or both is displaced, however, and the champion teams separated by a greater distance, the series likely would start October 10.

No action on details, however, will be taken by baseball officials until more certainly exists as to the outcome of the pennant races. They will be worked out some time next month by Presidents Heydler and Johnson of the National and American leagues in conference with Commissioner Landis.

BURKE GIVES DEMPSEY PLENTY TO THINK ABOUT

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 24.—(By the A. P.)—Jack Burke, the hard hitting Pittsburgh light heavyweight, uncovered a weakness in Jack Dempsey's defense today which the world's heavyweight champion must correct before he faces Louis Angel Firpo in their fifteen round contest, at the Polo grounds, September 14.

Burke, an accurate and stiff hitter, found Dempsey an easy target for right hand blows, the most effective punch in Firpo's collection. He nailed the champion with solid smashes with such speed that Dempsey was fighting mad at the finish of their two slugging rounds.

In the first Burke reached Dempsey's face and jaw four straight times, without a return. He also landed a one-two punch, following this up with lefts and rights that knocked the champion's headgear to rakish angles. Dempsey landed only one effective blow in the first round, but scored more frequently in the second, although observers agreed that Burke had the better of the title-holder. Burke left the ring bleeding from the mouth and nose as a result of stopping left hooks.

NEW YORK COMMISSION ISSUES LICENSE TO CHAMP

New York, Aug. 24.—The New York State Athletic Commission today cleared the way for the Luis Firpo-Jack Dempsey heavyweight title bout at the Polo grounds September 14 when it granted licenses for the contest to the champion and his manager, Jack Kearns.

Dempsey held state license No. 1 for some time after he won the heavyweight crown from Jess Willard but the term of that permit has expired and a renewal was necessary. Firpo already holds a state license.

Formal application by Promotor Tex Rickard for a permit to stage the bout was submitted and copies of his contracts with Firpo and Dempsey filed, in accordance with regulations, but the commission, while making no announcement, was understood to have deferred final action on them until next week's meeting.

Kearns announced today he had filled the gaps in Dempsey's training staff by signing three new sparring partners who will report at once at Saratoga Springs. They are Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight; Jack McAuliffe, II, of Detroit, one of Firpo's knockout victims; and Leo Gates, of New York, an Indian boxer.

CORNETS WILL PLAY AT FITCHVILLE SUNDAY

The Cornets, one of the fastest teams in the twilight league, will go against the Fitchville town team Sunday afternoon at Fitchville. Manager Spencer will use either Johnny Keenan, or the veteran Tommy Simcox in the box with Mulholland on the receiving end. Cummings, the 211 pound hurler, will be pitted against the Cornets. Cummings has a reputation of only allowing four or less hits per game since he has been pitching ball in Fitchville. The Cornets will leave Franklin square at two o'clock (D. S. T.) The Cornets scheduled game for this afternoon against the Atlantics has been postponed a week.

MORE TROUBLE FOR NEW HAVEN SWIMMER

New York, Aug. 24.—Herman Hunt, of New Haven, Conn., known as the "Human Tug Boat," because of his ability as a long distance swimmer, who tried to commit suicide by shooting on August 16th, because he was unable to raise funds to attempt to swim the English channel, was discharged from a hospital today only to find new troubles confronting him. He was held in $500 bonds to await trial on a charge of violating the fire arms law.

THE GOVERNORS AND COAL.

That there will be no shirking of their duty in connection with the coal situation on the part of the governors of New England was to be expected. They are thoroughly alive to the situation, have gone through one winter where coal shortage was uppermost in the thoughts of the people, known what dependence New England places upon fuel from other states and are certain to urge all necessary steps to prevent hardships.

Just what action each state will individually take is not known. No definite plans have been announced, but with each governor in attendance at the conference of governors called for New York next week, at the suggestion of the president, it can be expected that there will be developed some plan of action that will meet the situation and insure, as has been promised by the president, that those who require it will get fuel.

There is no disposition to sit quietly by and accept the demands of those conducting the holdup. The governors of the respective states can rest assured that the people are firmly back of them, that they look to them to insure whatever relief is possible and that they will get their enthusiastic support.

The governors of the eastern states realize as well as the consumers that it is time to accept that challenge of is trouncing which has been made. Holding up the public each year and subjecting them to hardships because thousands, which will not be submitted to arbitration, are made and refused cannot go on indefinitely. It is time for the strike idea to extend to the consuming public that it may protect itself against injustices, and if the coming conference goes on record for the use of substitutes to the exclusion of hard coal there will be no faltering on the part of the consumer. He is ready as usual to do his part.

AIR MAIL TESTS.

In connection with the tests of airplanes for carrying mail from coast to coast the results show much progress. All that had been hoped for was not obtained in all instances, but it was demonstrated that there are possessed flying machines today which while subject to breaks and accidents, are much more stable and safe than those of other days, that the lives of the operators and the mail matter carried are in less danger than was disclosed by other experiments in this same direction.

The tests disclose the general progress that has been made in aviation and make it evident that the time is coming, if there is a sufficient demand for it, when important mail matter will be carried through the air.

Navigating the air does not, however, overcome certain of the obstacles that are encountered in the navigation of the water. Fog is a bother to the aviator quite the same as it is to the mariner. It presents a danger that cannot be dodged. For a time night flying was considered feasible but it is evident that with the establishment of light stations, corresponding on the water to light houses, for the guidance of the flier that flying by night can be done with safety.

Better airplanes, new devices and skillful operation all combine to set out the latest tests in contrast to those where aviators were killed, machines crushed and contents destroyed by fire when previous efforts toward cross country air mail service were made.

It is the natural accompaniment of the recent flights that have been made by navy and army fliers. Greater safety is gradually being obtained. New accomplishments are following in rapid succession. The east and west coasts are respectively nearer each other than ever before, and the tests make it evident that while all which was desired was not accomplished during the tests the showing was most gratifying and there is no question of the desired accomplishment.

KEEP INADMISSIBLE AT HOME.

What Ambassador Geddes of Great Britain had to say about the immigration station at Ellis Island has come in for some timely comment. Secretary of Labor Davis, who makes the most of the opportunity to point out that it requires but about two hours for those who are able to comply with the laws of this country to go through the immigration station. Then Ellis Island is little known to the great majority of immigrants. It is chiefly known by those who are detained there, and such are those who have come to this country that are endeavoring to enter it against the laws in one way or another.

Ambassador Geddes among other things made reference to the value of passing judgment upon those desiring to enter this country in their home lands. Such is a capital idea and has been freely advocated. It is [illegible] that Secretary Davis [illegible] may that he hopes that such a recommendation as Ambassador Geddes makes will get the serious attention of the British government.

It is to be realized as the secretary points out that there is a fine opportunity for the British to overcome much of that about which the ambassador complains at Ellis Island. It is fully known what the requirements of this country are concerning immigrants. It is known what restrictions have been established, that certain tests must be met and that there is a limit to the number who can be admitted and yet the British government does nothing to stop those who it must know cannot get under or through the bars from piling up at Ellis Island. Conditions at the island may not be all that could be desired. There are shortcomings that are undergoing betterments, but if those who cannot be admitted to the United States were held at home by a refusal to issue passports there would be overcome quickly much of what is complained of concerning the British nations. The same of course applies to other countries.

IS THE ICE BROKEN?

Regardless of the emphatic demand from France that Germany pay, and the positive statement that France will remain in the Ruhr until it does pay, but will materially change such occupation as soon as Germany changes its tactics, there is a feeling displayed in Germany that the note has broken the ice of complications.

Possibly Germany has come to realize that the policy it has been pursuing has failed to accomplish what was expected. Possibly it has been brought to realize the wisdom of meeting the French demands. But whatever its state of mind if the note has paved the way for an understanding it will be heartily welcomed by those indirectly as well as those directly concerned.

It seems to be clearly the case that the firmness of France regarding its attitude over the German situation has not changed. It is convinced that it is right, that there is no other course it can pursue and that it is going to see it through. If Germany has been impressed by it, it marks a new view. If Germany has been brought to realize the mistake in following the course it has been doing many things are possible. Certainly Germany hasn't been creating conditions to its own advantage by the resistance it has been offering to the French determination to collect. It is paying heavily now, and in addition to such expense it still has the debts which remain unadjusted.

It has been manifest for some time that conditions in the Ruhr cannot go on indefinitely as they have been going, and if Germany is ready to adopt a new policy in that region it will be interesting to learn what it is and how far it is ready to go in meeting the French requirements that have just been set forth.

UNJUST COMPETITION.

Down in New Jersey the trolley system has had some trouble with its employes over wages and working conditions. The result was that a strike took place and trolley transportation was tied up. After some time there has been an acceptance by the employes of the proposition made by the company whereby they will receive two-thirds of what they asked in the way of increased wages and some changes in the way of working conditions.

That was only one feature of the trouble, however, for it is stipulated by the system that such changes will be made only with the understanding that the bus lines which have been established and permitted to do business on the same streets and routes as the trolleys are withdrawn, the company even agreeing to acquire such equipment at a fair price.

Competition with the established electric lines by auto buses has been a bone of contention in many cities and states. Invariably the position taken by the authorities, and based upon sane reasoning, is that where the established lines are able to meet requirements no such competition will be permitted. When the electric company offers to buy the bus lines it is a matter that must be passed upon by the public utilities commission. The company seeks the elimination of competition which in view of its investment must be regarded as unjust.

Just how the commission should have come to sanction bus franchises that would take away the business of electric lines is difficult to understand. It should realize that it has created conditions which make it necessary to decide whether the unjustified competition should be ended, better transportation insured and better wages paid.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Jack Frost seems to be rushing the season.

The man on the corner says: Have you started a fire in your heater yet?

Three weeks to the ending of the straw hat season if you're able to stick it out.

Now that a record cranberry crop is reported a successful Thanksgiving dinner is assured.

President Lewis of the mine workers clearly shows what consideration is being shown to the public.

With German marks worth no more than 70,000 for a cent, Germany probably has nothing to worry from counterfeiters.

The miners' president says they will look for aid from no one in case of a strike. They will deserve none from the consumers.

When Henry Ford plans to spend seven million dollars in advertising, he certainly intends to make sure of being the richest man in the country.

Isn't it about time to start a subscription for those miners who are prepared to give the consumers the greatest trouncing of their career?

President Coolidge has decided to continue the practice of shaking hands with the many callers at the White House. That is a matter which every president must decide for himself but it is nevertheless a strain that takes all of them.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Eighty-four years ago today, Bret Harte, one of the pioneers to preserve in song and story "the wild and wooly west," was born. This author occupies a unique place in American literature, and the talent he possessed was adapted for the vivid portrayal of the rough and feverish life of California in the middle of last century. Harte was not only a brilliant writer but a very versatile man. It is a far reach from the coal-dealer and typesetter during the fifth decade of the last century to the professor of recent literature in the University of California in 1870, and later United States consul at Glasgow in 1880. But Harte will be longest remembered as the writer of those inimitable stories of pioneer life in the far west. The boys of America thank him for "The Luck of Roaring Camp"; "The Outcasts of Poker Flat"; and especially "The Heathen Chinese." His place in literature is secure.

What opinions can we form about Europe from those who go there and study conditions? Some tell us that the people generally are wild over the league of nations; others that the rank and file don't care a rap about it. Germany is reported by some as on the verge of starvation; by others that she is only shamming poverty to avoid paying reparations. Both statements can't be true, and this leads us to feel that our politicians go over there to see things that will bolster up their pre-conceived opinions. It is easy to see in these conditions just what we want to see. It is hard for the American people to see how Germany can be so poverty-stricken. Of course the war was very expensive, but her territory was not devastated, nor her industries crippled. It is a sheer nonesense to say that she is in a condition comparable to either France or Belgium.

Probably you are in the midst of your annual vacation, or—which is altogether more likely—having spent all your money you are back on the job again. As a third supposition, having cut out the extras, you will make your funds spin out till Labor day. But after all just when you take a vacation and how long you are away are not important considerations. The main thing, however, is how did you spend it, and what did you get out of it? Let us devoutly thank God that there is no cruel law of uniformity hanging over us all to go to the same place and do the same things. The very thought of it makes the cold chills run down my back. To be compelled to sit on the veranda of a fashionable hotel during the swelting evenings of August, listening to the painful squawks of jazz, watching men and women going through contortions caused by the music, and hearing comments on this and that gown in those cases where they are visible—in comparison the sweatshop and the hayfield seem like heaven.

As the outing period is now rapidly coming to a close, are you trying to figure what its chief assets have been? If you cannot tabulate all the benefits, and if it seems that you have not realized what you ought, remember that it is too early to realize the final results. If the vacation has been spent in a fairly rational way you have stored up a certain amount of reserved power that will be given out, bit by bit, as the case may require months hence. If you planned the vacation wisely, and carried out your plans you will find that it will yield a fair return on what you put into it. If, on the other hand, you put little thought, time and money into it, the yield is going to be proportionate. If it has been nothing more than some Ocean beach affair where you have seen nothing more uplifting than primitive humanity before the power loom was invented or clothing was made by hand, your vacation is not going to mean very much to you.

A few days will bring the long school vacation to an end. As you, parents, look back over these past weeks of opportunity, what have you been doing with those lively boys and girls? It is most earnestly to be hoped that you have not been so unwise as to let them have the unlimited use of the streets by day and particularly by night for play when and where and with whom they pleased. If so, you have done them an untold injury and if you had your just deserts your children would be taken from you and put into the county home, where they would be reasonably protected. And when they have come in at night, nervously tired from unreasonable play and when they have shown, quite naturally, some irritability, have you told them to "shut up," and to "stop their noise?" Have you boxed their ears and sent them to bed? If so you are healthy parents; you ought to have your ears boxed and sent to a reformatory.

Instead of letting that growing boy play until physically exhausted, how much wiser to plan something for him to do each day. Why not teach the children early in life that they are an organic part of the household, and consequently have something to do in maintaining the home? Not hard work, of course, nor work that savors of drudgery, but the many little things about the home that is adapted to their strength and time of life. For instance a boy is better adapted for weeding a garden than his father is; he is more nimble, and is less liable to attacks of lumbago. By doing light work for a few hours each day his play will have all the more relish. The children should spend a part of each day in reading good books, books that you ought to select. Tell them good, entertaining stories. Teach the girls the thousand things that make good housekeeping. Take long walks with your children and tell them the many important things they ought to know before somebody else gets in ahead of you.

It has usually been an item of Christian belief that for every great crisis in human history God has raised up some man big enough to cope with the situation, and usually there has been good reasons for this belief, but the late World war has shown us at least one pathetic exception to this rule. Is not this one exception enough to teach us that our smug, old-fashioned idea is not always correct that if we make a mess of our political affairs the Almighty is going to pity us to that extent that he will create a genius to unravel our snarl for us? Is it not far more rational for us to create a political atmosphere that will make such entanglements impossible? It is absurd to think that some Moses, Washington or Lincoln stands ready to get us out of every fool jangle we get into. Take, if you please, the conference of Versailles, conspicuous, of course, not, however for the brilliancy of its deeds, but for the magnitude of its blunders. There wasn't a man there who rose more than an inch above the direst mediocrity.

A man of my acquaintance had occasion recently to remove two thriving grapevines. He knew that it was not the proper season for transplanting, but he needed the ground they occupied for other purposes and consequently tried the experiment of transplanting. Of course they at once began to droop and the fruit to shrivel. At the time of writing it is a question whether they will live or die. Is not this a good illustration of what is taking place about us all the time? Separate a person from the sources of his power and he begins to wither. Cut off the food supply and the body soon weakens. Stop reading good books and before long a drought will appear inside of his head. It is never safe to dig up a grapevine when it is working hard at its job.

AGRICULTURAL SITUATION AS VIEWED BY SECRETARY WALLACE

Speaking of the wheat situation Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said:

"The ruinously low price of wheat is not a new agricultural disease. It is just one more acute symptom of the general trouble from which agriculture is suffering. The disease itself is the distorted relationship between prices of farm products and prices of other commodities. This is not a new diagnosis. It has been pointed out from time to time for the past two and one-half years. The sooner people engage in commerce and industry frankly recognize the trouble, the better it will be for all of us. The farmer could get along fairly well with present prices of what he has to sell if prices of what he buys were down accordingly. But prices of other things remain high. That is what hurts. Wages in industry and on the railroads are almost twice as high as before the war. Taxes are about 50 to 75 per cent. higher. Metals, building materials of all kinds, are from 50 to 100 per cent. above pre-war prices. All of these are items in the farmer's cost of production. Until a fair relationship is restored between agriculture and industry and commerce, agriculture will be upset and will have reason to complain. If the present plane of prices of commodities other than agricultural is to be maintained, then to have general prosperity agricultural prices must be brought up. That probably means that agriculture must be gotten off the international market.

Wheat Farmer Hit Hard.

"With wheat selling for considerably less than the cost of production, hundreds of thousands of specialized wheat farmers are having a mighty hard time of it. In the diversified farming region east of the Missouri river wheat is but one of several crops and the trouble is not so serious. But in the spring wheat belt of the northwest and the winter wheat belt of the southwest where wheat is the main crop, wheat growers are suffering severely. Thousands of wheat farmers will go bankrupt. Other thousands will be able to hold on only by the practice of the most grinding economy.

"It is not long since the corn farmer went through just such an experience. So also the cattle grower of the range states (who is not yet out woods), the potato grower, some of the fruit growers, the rice growers. The case of the wheat grower is made worse because most of our wheat goes into the channels of trade. However, because of low prices, less of it will be sold as wheat this year, and more of it fed.

What Can Be Done?

"The pressing question is, what can be done to help the wheat growers get more nearly the cost of production for this year's crop. Some urge that the government ought to fix a fair price. That could be done only by the government preparing to buy unlimited quantities at the price fixed. Others suggest that the government go into the market and buy 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and store it, on the theory that the taking off the market of that quantity would send up the price to a fair figure. I am not hopeful of good results from either of these plans. How would the government dispose of the surplus accumulated? What effect would either action have on wheat acreage? What effect would it have on the acreage and price of other grains and of livestock? Would the same policy be adopted in case of ruinously low prices for other farm products? The wheat situation is bad enough in all conscience, and certainly the majority of our people would favor any practical method of helping, but we ought to be reasonably sure that the remedy attempted will do the farmer more good than harm and will not make our situation worse instead of better.

"Whether these acute situations might be relieved, if the government should set up an agency with large authority to handle our surplus farm products in its discretion and provide it with ample funds, I do not know. I do not believe anyone knows.

"Almost everyone who comes back from Europe tells of large crops, and assures us that Russia will this year export large quantities of wheat. I do not think many of our European travelers have an opportunity to secure reliable information on this point, but all such stories tend to have a bearish effect on our own wheat prices. A gradual decline in our exports of grains and meats is to be expected. We can not hope to keep them at the high rate of recent years. But these exports are not going to vanish overnight. Europe will continue to buy large quantities of us for some time.

Railroads Can Help.

"Our railroads could help in this trouble by making some reduction in freight rates on farm products. How far the western grain carrying roads can go in this direction under their present operating expenses I am not prepared to say, but the roads running east from western primary markets ought to be able to make some substantial reduction in freight rates on all grain, flour, livestock and meat products, especially if destined for export. If our railroad rate men would take the farm situation to heart and get down and study it as one of their own problems, I believe they could help a great deal.

Wheat Acreage Reduction.

"Economic forces are steadily grinding away to remedy some of the farm troubles. The low price of wheat this year will in itself bring some reduction in acreage. This is clearly indicated by the department report on farmers' intentions to plant, which was made public August 15. The acreage of winter wheat has been greater than usual in the states east of the Missouri, because for a number of years it was paying better than corn. Now corn is more profitable. In the spring and winter wheat belts proper a forced reduction in acreage is coming, because thousands of wheat growers who have been hanging on will be driven out by the ruinous prices of this year. It is a terribly hard situation for the individual, but those who remain will be benefited.

"High wages in the cities and low wages and prices on the farms are forcing a large movement from the farm to the city. Under conditions which now prevail this seems to be an economic necessity. Because of high wages and low prices more and more farmers are adjusting their production to what they can grow with their own labor. All this tends to bring farm production more in line with what the consumers will buy at a fair price.

General Farm Conditions Improving.

"In general, farm conditions are better than they were a year ago or two years ago. The legislation passed by congress has been hopeful. The new co-operative law gives farmers assurance that they can go ahead and organize co-operative associations without being prosecuted for combining. The agricultural credits act is now functioning and money for operating and marketing purposes can be borrowed freely and at fair rates. The packers and stockyards act and the future trading act give assurance of free, open and competitive markets for grain and livestock, and for the first time co-operative associations of farmers can operate on these markets. The federal warehouse act is an essential part of the credit machinery and the number of such warehouses is increasing rapidly.

"The department of agriculture has been able to extend its helpful activities during the past year. Our special agents in Europe have been helpful in holding foreign markets. Federal inspection at shipping and receiving points, dissemination of information on better marketing methods, extension of reliable market news by wire and mail, all help to market to better advantage.

"When all is said and done the fundamental fact remains to be dealt with. Agriculture and industry and commerce must be brought into more nearly normal relationship and until this is done these acute agricultural troubles will develop one after the to her.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

HE SHALL BE SATISFIED.

Isiah tells us that He will be satisfied with the results of the "travial of His soul." This at first leads to Calvary. We do not reach the depth of Christ's sufferings if we think of them only as associated with the cross, and fix our attention chiefly on the agonies He there endured. These were intense. We cannot measure them in our thought. More intense than bodily suffering is mental suffering, and most intense of all is heart suffering, and this is what is meant by the "travail of His soul." He came to His own, and His own received Him not." Picture what of soul agony that expression implies. Listen to Him as He said to His disciples when all men forsook Him. "Will ye also go away?" Behold Him as He came to the sleeping disciples in the garden, and, with a tone of sad disappointment said to them. "Could ye not watch with Me one hour?" For the climax of His soul agony, hear Him, in the darkest hour of all cry, "My God! My God! Why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

When Christ shall see the results of that "travail" in the devoted lives of faithful Christians, He "shall be satisfied." When wery and heavy laden, we lay our heart burdens on Mim, and implicitly trust Him, then He "shall be satisfied." When, in His strength, we overcome temptation, and win victory over sin, He "shall be satisfied." When He finds hungry souls feeding on Himself by faith, while they may fear to do more than "touch the hem of His garment," He shall be satisfied.

This is the near view that enables the trusting soul to realize Christ as present to help in every day life. There is need also of the far away look—the look that will scan the wider horizon with eagerness and hope; for Christ's purpose in undergoing such soul travail reached out into eternity. He could not escape the suffering and carry out that great purpose. He bore it all! We are inclined to think only of the far distant future, and miss the comforting thought that even now, in the midst of this life, with its varied experiences, the faithful Christian can satisfy Christ. It is most in our common-place life; but the nearer views that inspires the humblist soul to try to satisfy Him.

Will His great purpose be fulfilled? Yes, surely, for He "shall be satisfied" when He shall see the full results of all His sufferings—when He shall look upon the number of the redeemer. Steadily throughout all the ages His purposes are ripening into glorious fruitage that will satisfy Christ Himself. When the hosts of the redeemer, which no man can number, shall swell the triumph song of thanksgiving in the beautiful City of God, to the "Lamb that was slain," the Christ shall be satisfied.

What a glorious promise this statement is of the final and complete success of the Redeemer's Kingdom. His enemies may revile Him; and unbelievers may scoff at and scorn Him and His followers; but stronger and stronger shall His Kingdom grow, more widely still shall His loving sway extend until, at last, the result shall be so complete that even He "shall be satisfied."

Today's Birthdays

Prof. Guiseppi Bruni, one of the world's greatest rubber chemists, born at Parma, Italy, 50 years ago today.

Blanche Bates, a celebrated actress of the American stage, born at Portland, Ore., 50 years ago today.

Henry J. Ford, university professor and biographer of Woodrow Wilson, born in Baltimore, 72 years ago today.

Rev. Dr. John H. Jowett, former pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in New York, born at Halifax, England, 69 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Eugene G. Grace, who favors increased immigration as a means of solving some of the important problems confronting American industry, has been called "the greatest steel man America has ever produced," by no less an authority than Charles M. Schwab. The rise of Mr. Grace has been perhaps the most remarkable in American industry. Scarcely a dozen years ago he was a laborer in a steel plant. Today he is the president of the great Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the boss of 70,000 men and the recipient of an annual salary and bonus of more than $1,000,000. Mr. Grace is still in his 40s. A native of New Jersey, he earned his way through Lehigh University, where he gained fame as a baseball player on the college nine. His first job after leaving college was in the employ of the great corporation he now leads. He began by running a steam shovel at a wage of $15 a week. His capabilities soon attracted the attention of Mr. Schwab, and thereafter his rise was little less than meteoric.

Stories That Recall Others

If the Train is Punctured.

Five-year-old Ruth was returning from New Haven with her mother when the porter gave the call for lunch.

"Mother, can't we eat in the diner?" Ruth asked. "No," her mother replied, "we had our lunch before we started."

"Yes," said Ruth, "but if they have a puncture we could, couldn't we?" It would take a long time to fix it."

Good Memory.

It is little wonder that the teachers think the youth of today hopeless. One teacher after weeks of poetry drilling, tested her young hopefuls. She asked them to identify certain passages, among which was Longfellow's "Let us then be up and doing, with a heart for any fate."

One youngster wrote: "This passage is from 'The Fall of the Light Brigade,' by Edgar Allen Poe."

It has been estimated that the losses in the United States, due to the depredations of rats total over $20,000,000 a year.

All Nations Marching To Armageddon

but—"millions now living will never die"

—JUDGE RUTHERFORD

THE WORLD faces a condition never before experienced. Fear has taken hold upon all classes of people because they see in a measure the things coming upon the earth. The nations are in disgress and perplexity.

THE WAR did not make the world safe for democracy. The very foundations of civilization are now shaken by revolution, labor strikes, official lawlessness, profiteers, Bolshevism and anarchy. Both capital and labor are resorting to extreme measures. The common people have lost confidence in their leaders. The clergy has abandoned the Word of God and joned hands with big business and big politicians in an attempt to control the world, and these are opposed by radical forces.

EUROPE is completely bankrupt, with her restless host of unemployed and discontents hourly increasing. Belligerent organizations are rapidly numbering their men and taking account of their strength. All contending forces are hastening to the great battle of Armageddon. The disaster resulting is beyond the description of human words.

BUT let the people take heart. The Lord will cut short the trouble, bring order out of chaos, establish peace and righteousness; and millions of people now living will become obedient to his order of righteousness and will live on the earth forever in peace and happiness.

PHILIP ISPER FINED IN WESTERLY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 24.—Philip Isper, 23, of Norwich, driving a Hudson car on the Watch Hill road on Sunday, Aug. 19th, was charged with reckless driving. Special Traffic Officer George Madison stated that he had followed the defendant and that he had passed cars on Peleg Clark hill when he could not see over the brow and again passed cars at Thompson's corners, not sounding his horn. Having trailed him a distance of four miles at a speed in excess of 35 miles per hour he had summoned him to appear in court. Judge Flynn said that it seemed that the charges against him of speeding, reckless driving and passing a trolley car had been combined to one of reckless driving which in his state (Connecticut) was a serious one. Upon his plea of guilty he was given a fine of $35 and costs, which was paid.

SEIZE 600 CASES OF WHISKEY OFF MONTAUK

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 24.—Six hundred cases of whiskey destined for an eastern port, probably Providence or Boston, will never reach its destination, for this forenoon the revenue cutter Gresham, Lieut. Whitbeck in command picked up the rum runner Alanna off Montauk and brought the craft, liquor and crew into port.

The master of the Alanna, Daniel Grimshaw of East Hampton, L. I., Robert Hunter, Peter and Charles Johnson of New York were presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich at a hearing at the custom house this afternoon. They were liberated upon furnishing bonds, the National Surety company of New York becoming surety. Grimshaw is held for trial in the United States district court in bonds of $3,000, charged with transporting liquor in violation of the Volstead act. The Johnsons are held under bonds of $1,500 each. A boy named Hunter, also a member of the crew, but who Capt. Grimshaw declared had been aboard the craft but three or four days and had never touched any of the cargo and who is suffering from a sprained back, was allowed his liberty in order to permit the youth to enter Lawrence hospital for treatment.

The whiskey, Old King Cole Scotch, was taken from the Alanna, placed in storage at the custom house. The boat is now tied up at the wharf of the United States Coast Guard academy.

The crew would not reveal the destination of the cargo and but little information was obtained at today's hearing.

The Alanna is 62 feet, and of the gasoline screw type of craft.

This morning about daybreak, when the Gresham was en route from New York to Boston, the master of the cutter saw the rum-runner about 11 miles each of Montauk Point. The cutter was headed for the liquor-carrier, and upon arriving alongside the Alanna, Capt. Grimshaw was ordered to stop his craft. When an officer of the cutter boarded the Alanna the nature of the cargo was revealed. Capt. Grimshaw, with an officer from the cutter aboard, was ordered to head the craft for New London, the cutter and the rum-runner arriving in port about 9 o'clock.

The yacht is valued at $25,000 and the cargo is valued at $19,000.

STATE DIRECTOR OF CHILD HYGIENE SPEAKER AT COUNTY MEETING

Any community seeing the necessity of starting well baby conferences and not having any physicians able or willing to assist in holding them, should communicate with the director of the bureau of child hygiene to secure the advice and assistance, co-operation and attendance of a doctor, furnished free by the bureau. By this I mean that the state does not interfere with local physicians but seeks to aid communities where no doctors are available, said Dr. Ingraham, new state director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, speaking to director and nurses of the New London County division of the Connecticut Organization for Public Health Nursing, Friday afternoon at the rooms of the United Workers, No. 9 Washington street.

The meeting was attended by members of public health nursing associations of New London, Waterford, Jewett City, Sprague and Norwich, and guests were present from associations in Plainfield, Willimantic and Danielson.

The meeting was opened at 2.30 o'clock by the chairman, Mrs. John P. Huntington, who introduced Dr. Ingraham as the speaker. In her remarks Dr. Ingraham spoke on What Can Be Obtained Through Well Baby Conferences. She classed the life of a child in two parts; the first part the age before school when a child grows from babyhood and then passes into obscurity until school age. The second age then comes in and here the child meets the school doctor and nurse, and the mother wonders what is to become of her child. Defects that the mother has not noticed are found by the doctor who sees that the bones of the body are well and strong, the back straight, and teeth in proper condition. Ears, tonsils and adenoids are then looked over and the doctor recommends to the mother what should be done for the child, also notifies the family doctor of the needs of the child. Advice is also given for proper feeding to stimulate growth. Great stress is being laid on these points in care of the children for the future of the state rests on the shoulders of these children receiving medical attention when most needed.

How can we get results from all this? asked Dr. Ingraham. Then she answered the question by saying that cooperation of the parents with the visiting nurse, Red Cross and Parent-Teachers association, and the free education and pictures furnished by the state helped solve the problem.

Miss Tymon, assistant director of child hygiene, also spoke and told how the child hygiene study was first put into practice in France in 1837, first appearing in the United States in the schools of Boston in 1904. Her talk was very interesting, covering the history of the work since starting in America.

At 11.30 o'clock Friday morning a meeting was held in the public health nursing rooms when the members heard from various speakers and a forum was held. One of the interesting reports was that concerning the dental clinic held at Waterford during the past year, when Dr. Brenken of Meriden, traveling dentist, treated 51 children in line with this work. Waterford also provided hot cocoa for children in school at a nominal cost.

HALF HUNDRED FARMERS MAKE COUNTY TOUR

About fifty New London county farmers and their wives joined in the annual county field tour held Friday under the auspices of the New London county farm bureau. The start was made about 9.30 o'clock at Plain Hill, at the farm of H. J. Larkham. At this farm the party inspected an old apple orchard which has been made to return excellent crops by proper fertilizing and spraying. In the farmhouse the ladies found several modern conveniences.

The next stop was at Fellows' poultry farm. These brothers raised 2,500 chickens this year and plan to winter 1,200 laying stock. From this farm the party of tourists went on to F. L. Kanahan's farm, just off the Norwich-Jewett City road, where they inspected a large flock of White Leghorns and about twenty hives of bees. Basket lunch was enjoyed at noon on Mr. Kanahan's farm.

About 1 o'clock a start was made for the farm conducted in Griswold by C. T. Armstrong. There the party saw the results of using G. L. F. clover seed. An old orchard on the farm that several years ago was apparently beyond hope is now netting the owner $100 an acre.

F. E. Peckham's farm in Preston was the next place visited. This is a farm which has been reclaimed by drainage and green manure. About 3 o'clock Shed & Dawley's potato field on Preston Plains was visited, after which the field day tourists gave their attention to an inspection of the J. Kellogg Hall farm across the road from the potato field. Here a corn silage demonstration was given. The return trip was made during the late afternoon.

Among those who joined in the trip were the county agent and Prof. J. S. Owens of Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs.

PLAYGROUNDS PICNIC AT MOHEGAN PARK

Friday at 9 a. m. the city recreation commission "all playgrounds picnic for both boys and girls" started when the children assembled at each playground center proceeding to the entrance of Mohegan park, where in a body they continued to the picnic grounds on the banks of the park lake.

All of the commission's instructors as well as Supt. Bruce, and Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbur y of the commission attended the picnic. After luncheon was held at 12 o'clock a program followed out by all the play centers. At one p. m. instructors Allen Dodd and Henault put their boys through pyramid building, which was followed by mass folk dancing by the girls of each play center. The dances were the Irish reel, I See You, and a Danish Dance. Some 900 children took part in the dancing. Immediately following the dancing a mass Swedish exercise drill was held, and the program wound up with the interplayground archery championships for the girls' department which was won by Instructor Morrisson's Laurel Hill girls, with the good score of 145. The runner up was Elizabeth St., with 140. The star of the meet was Urgeline La Pre, with the low score of 20. The following are the team scores:

Laurel Hill—Urgeline La Pre, 20; Anna Panek, 65; Anita Averill, 60; total 146.

HELD ON CHARGE OF TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 24.—The authorities working out of State's Attorney Hadlia A. Hull's office in an endeavor to put an end to the trafficking in liquor and its sale in New London and vicinity, continued their efforts this evening when County Investigator William B. Jackson and State Policeman Frederick Henry arrested Joseph Farina of the Ningret house at Crescent Beach, charged with transporting liquor.

Farina was to be taken before Justice James J. Floyd in Waterford but Justice Floyd did not hear the case and Farina was taken to the New London jail and locked up. He will probably be taken before the Waterford court Saturday morning when Judge H. H. Pettis of Norwich will be asked to sit on the case.

Officers Jackson and Henry went to the Ningret house about 6.15 o'clock and as they entered the place, it is alleged Farina tried to smash a pint bottle of liquor and being unsuccessful the bottle was seized.

The officers have information that Farina stored a number of cases of liquor in the barn owned by his brother, Rosario Farina, in Waterford and it is because of this violation that the accused is to be charged with transporting and not possession.

Following the arrest of Farina the officers went to the home of his brother, Rosario Farina, and seized 22 cases of liquor which was taken to the state police barracks in Groton. This is the liquor the state will claim Joseph Farina transported, as a basis for the charge on which his arrest was made tonight.

Pellett, William Williams, Oscar Hubbard, Mrs. Charles Barstow, Mrs. William Rollinson, Mrs. Jesse A. Meade, A. T. McLeod, William Johnson, Amos Green, George Barstow, Mrs. A. Spicer B. COMPLETING REPAIRS AT TOWN SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Michael J. Kelly, superintendent of construction and repairs in the public schools of Norwich said Friday evening that the greater part of the repair work at the public school buildings has been completed in most part. Extensive repairs have been made in several of the schools, particularly at the Broad street and Prospect street schools, which were damaged by fire early in the spring and summer. Other schools besides having work done such as decorating, have had or are to have new twin heaters installed, and some have only minor changes, all of which have been completed.

The two Taftville schools have undergone extensive repairs. Both have been painted and decorated and new roofs of composition shingles have been laid.

At the West Thames street school new chimneys had to be built as the old ones were in bad condition and the class rooms and hallways were in need of redecorating.

At Hobart avenue and High street schools new twin heaters are to be installed, complete with piping. Minor repairs on the interior of the schools were made during the past month. At High street school new outside stairs have been built leading from the boy's playground.

At Broad street the repairs have been more extensive as this building was damaged considerably by fire just before school closed for the summer. The interior has been redecorated and new metal ceilings have been put up, the school now being in first class condition for the fall opening.

At Pearl street school new meal ceilings have been built and at the Falls school repairs have been made to the heating plant also inside decorations. At the Prospect street school which was also damaged by fire early in the summer new chimneys have been built.

Schools where only minor changes and repairs were necessary to put them in to shape for the fall opening include Broadway school, Yantic, Smith avenue, East Main street, Occum, both Norwich Town schools, and Mt. Pleasant street school.

The new Elizabeth street school, not yet accepted by the school board, is being put into shape for the fall opening and men are at work there fixing the chimney.

MAKING NEEDED REPAIRS AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

Postmaster John P. Murphy is having considerable repair work done at the local postoffice this week. The main doors and the woodwork in the lobby have been newly varnished and a new steel ceiling has been put up in the carriers' room to replace the old plaster ceiling, which was broken in many places. The side walls in this room are being repainted.

A total of 600 feet of concrete walk has been laid around the building and the heating system is being overhauled for the coming winter months. When the improvements are completed the postoffice property will be in first class condition.

Willimantic Camp Grounds

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 24.—Another cool morning found the Epworth leaguers and others in a sunshiny part of the large auditorium at the morning watch. W. B. Oliver's topic was Timothy—A Message in Training.

Dr. Earl Kernahan, in the Stewardship class, said the Americas best contribution to the world was a Christian democracy.

Rev. J. L. Davis in his talk on Christian Citizenship discriminated between the open and closed shop, and emphasized the necessity of Christian homes if we are to have a Christian nation.

In another portion of the auditorium Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens carried on her classes in sunday school work.

After the 15 minutes for recreation, the study of the Epistle to the Hebrews was continued by W. B. Oliver, and he spoke especially on the 11th chapter, which he styled The Faith Chapter.

"Not to be ministered unto, but to minister" was Rev. F. W. Gray's theme in the closing hour in his class upon Epworth league methods, held in Epworth chapel.

The Surest Way to a Christian World was the final topic in Dr. Bevord's lectures on The Sunday School. He had to leave camp after the lesson.

At 1 o'clock there was an excellent attendance at the New London house, where Miss LaFarge conducted the children's meeting.

The Seaford Springs camp meeting house is having nicreased attendance in its devotional meetings held daily at 1 and 6.

The leader at 1 o'clock yesterday was Mrs. Jane E. Read of Worcester.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Boston, resident bisho pof the New England area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was the speaker yesterday afternoon. A large audience gathered in the open air auditorium. Prof. Leedy conducted the usual praise service. Prayer was offered by Rev. F. W. Gray of Rockville.

An address on Foreign Missions was given Thursday evening by Rev. Harry Farmer of the Methodist board of foreign missions. Rev. S. F. Maine of Phenix, R. I., offered prayer.

For several seasons an important yearly function of the institute is what is termed the 'cold reception," a big social event in the large dining room of the association. The three groups of Look-Ups, Lift-Ups and Move-Ups had no sooner gotten in the room than each group tried to see which could outdo the other in noise. Evidently the Look-Ups succeeded. What with horns and group yells and whistles, the first part of the reception was exceedingly warm. Ice cream and crackers were served to all later.

Gladys Boardman of Norwich read an original history of certain occurrences which brought different individuals to their feet as their names were called. Marjorie Stephens was the author of another similar skit which she read. Miss Florence Brown of Norwich Town read a witty series of resolutions applying to various persons in the audience. Then followed a long distance telephone conversation represented as taking place in 1963 by two young ladies, Constance Hill of Noank and Miss Gertrude Bruce.

W. B. Oliver tried his hand on a new record in an improvised Victrola. This was followed by a song in Italian. Rev. J. L. Davis led in Blest Be the Tie That Binds. Several other hymns and several prayers were given.

Accompanist For Dancers.

Guests were present from New London, the Pequot, Eastern Point, and Norwich at a home party given by Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Learned Thursday afternoon at their residence in Pequot avenue, New London. Mrs. Learned was assisted in serving by Mrs. Edwin Dimock of the Pequot and Mrs. Ralph H. Keeler of Dunns avenue, New London.

The feature of the occasion was a series of interpretive dances given by Miss Rosalie Richards of Chicago, the accompaniments being played by Henry J. LaFontaine of this city. Mr. LaFontaine also rendered several solos.

Historical Oversight.

As a boy George Washington always told the truth. But the history books make no reference to the question of his veracity after he was married.

LODGE NOTES

MOOSE

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of Norwich Lodge, No. 860 L. O. O. M., held Friday night at the Moose home on Laurel Hill avenue. Regular routine business was transacted and F. B. Hazard, chairman of the bake committee reported that all arrangements had been made for the bake and that a general good time could be counted on for that day. He reported that all returns must be made not later than Monday night. The big event of the bake is to be the baseball game and the married men, he reported, are figuring to count their runs now against the single men. The tobacco and pipe race will be a banner event, and the trustees are counting on winning the 100 yard dash. "Pop" Lewis and "Grandpa" Wunderlick are practicing for the event. The fat men's race will be another feature.

Chowder is to be served at 12 o'clock following the ball game and a special bus is to leave the Moose Home at 9.30 o'clock for those who have no other way of reaching Happyland. Charles O. Wright was appointed official collector and A. Kaminski and John Melhols in charge of the athletic events. E. Wunderlick was appointed custodian of the soft drinks. Returns indicate that 200 Moose will attend the bake reported Chairman Hazard.

William R. Hazard, chairman of the "On to New York committee" reports progress and members are contributing liberally towards the expenses of the trip. It is planned to hire a band of 25 or more pieces for the New York trip and it is also anticipated that the Chester W. Chapin or some such boat will be chartered for the trip to New York.

Brother C. E. Cavanaugh of New London, a member of the state field day committee was a visitor and spoke of the joint meeting of the New London and Norwich lodges with the state officials present. The matter was left to the officers of the lodge to report at the next meeting.

After remarks for the good of the order by Dictator George Goepfert, the meeting closed in the usual order.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Sedgwick Women's Relief Corps met in regular session Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Buckingham Memorial, with Senior Vice President Mrs. Clara Burke in the chair. The regular reports were read by Secretary Mrs. Lillian Brewster and Treasurer Mrs. Viola Bjurstrom. One candidate was balloted upon and a report of the picnic held last week was made. The meeting closed in the usual form with the repeating of the American's Creed and the salute to the flag.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS.

Dressed in gala attire, Norfolk, Va., the city beautiful, proudly and expectantly awaits the coming of the veterans, guests of the city during the 24th National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the 58th (Blue Ridge Division) reunion. The most pretentious decorations ever seen in the southern states have been arranged by Chairman J. J. Collins and his cohorts. The court of honor, leading to the Monticello Hotel through which the veteran group will pass, and covering four blocks, is near completion and presents a picture of rare art and beauty. Neither time, energy, nor money has been spared in so arranging the street decorations that the principal thoroughfares of Norfolk will be a blaze of color. Flags, streamers, bunting and emblematic shields, especially manufactured for the occasion, will vie with the growing flowers set out in every conceivable space.

It will be the most extraordinary gathering to ever assemble in a southern city, and Norfolk, former host to thousands of service men on their way to France, appreciates the fact and intends to make this occasion a memorable one. Wherever the "gold stripe men" assemble the slogan is "On to Norfolk," and it will be a picturesque assemblage when "Fall in" is sounded on August 26th, the opening day.

An added touch has been given to the encampment by the announcement that the former members of the 38th Infantry (Rock of the Marne) would be present enmasse to join the festivities. It was just five years ago that this famous regiment in the second battle of the Marne, accomplished a feat unsurpassed in the allied history of the World war, and earned the name which it will carry through the ages.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich Grange, No. 172, P. of H., held its regular meeting Wednesday evening at Steiner's hall on Main street with Worthy Master Mrs. John O. Peckham in the chair. After the regular business meeting the home economics committee took charge. Mrs. J. R. Gallup, Mrs. Walter Brinkman and Mrs. James B. Palmer arranged a very pleasing programme consisting of piano solos by Miss Helen Phillips of Canterbury Grange, several readings by Frank Mell of Pachaug Grange, duets by Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Barnes of Preston City grange and a poem, Thou Shalt Not Kill, read by Mrs. Frances Spaulding.

Following the programme a discussion was held on the topic of Old Time Hospitality. Remarks were made by Mrs. John E. Fanning, L. P. Barnes, John E. Fanning and Edward Cook. Refreshments were then served by the appointed committee.

As the regular lecturer, Mrs. Herbert L. Richardson, was attending the New England lecturers' conference in Amherst, Mass., the chair was most ably filled by Miss Beatty Gallup. The worthy master reminded the members of the grange fair to be held in the latter part of September.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

Clara Barton Tent No. 7 held its regular meeting Tuesday night in the Buckingham Memorial with President Lillian E. Wolfe in the chair. The regular monthly business was transacted and the tent voted to accept the invitation of Commander and Mrs. Orrin M. Price to hold an all day picnic at their home at 25 Lafayette street on Tuesday, Sept. 10th. All members were notified of the picnic and there will be a large gathering on that day.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Some of the repair work recently done on the Main street crossing was nullified Friday morning when a big freight locomotive that was running over the siding at the crossing ripped one plank out completely with some low-hanging attachment and ground up a section of another one to the consistency of shredded wheat. Incidentally the pilot on the locomotive was knocked cock-eyed. The incident leaves some more repair work to be done at the crossing.

William C. Long, 64, is dead at the home of his son, Fred Long, on Griffith street. Mr. Long succumbed after a long illness. He was a native of the town of Brooklyn, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Long, and for many years was engaged as a blacksmith. His sons are Fred of Danielson and Oscar of New London.

At a session of the town court, Judge W. F. Woodward presiding, Peter F. Morse of Ballouville was fined $125 and costs, a total of $144.36, as the result of an affair in which he figured early this week. On a charge of intoxication he was fined $2, another fine of $3 was imposed for breach of the peace, a fine of $20 for resisting an officer and a fine of $100 for driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant.

Morse and his son, Raymond, who was fined earlier in the week, resisted arrest by State Officer Stephens, to whose assistance Constable George Labelle came.

The penalties imposed upon the elder Morse include the forfeiture of his motor vehicle operator's license.

A letter received here Friday by his brother, Edward McDermott, brought information that William F. McDermott was injured, though not seriously, a few days ago, when he fell from an embankment at Jersey Shore, Pa., while engaged in showing property to a client interested in the financial enterprise in which Mr. McDermott is engaged. His injuries included a sprained ankle and a severe shaking up, but he did not require hospital treatment.

There was a welcome change in this territory Friday from the chill weather of the earlier part of the week to more seasonable temperature. Conversations with motor tourists here during Friday brought out the interesting fact that numbers of them who have been camping in northern New England have been driven southward by the cold and were heading for their home town in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Ohio.

As interesting as any group of motor tourists seen in this territory this season was a large party traveling in seven cars, all the machines bearing Texas registrations. This part was conveying its camping equipment in a ton motor truck, which also was used for carrying provisions and baggage. This party had toured northern New England and ventured into Canada, camping as fancy dictated. They will be a number of weeks in getting back to their Texas homes.

James R. Walsh, for years a member of the board of registrars of Killingly and is known to voters throughout the town, announced Friday that he will be a candidate for the democratic nomination for tax collector, an office around which a hard fought battle of ballots will be waged at the town election, the first Monday in October. The tax collectorship contest will be a three cornered one, as the republicans in all probability will renominate George A. Williams, who has held the office for several years, while the Citizens' party announce the coming nomination of Former Postmaster Raymond Allen. As all of these candidates will show material strength at the polls, the contest for the office will be a keen one. Interest centers in the tax collectorship because of the salary attached, approximately $1600. While the election will decide nothing as to the salary, the citizens' party is making a drive chiefly against the rate of compensation now paid, with a view to stirring up such interest in the subject that some action to reduce the pay will be taken at the annual business meeting, to be held on the same day as the election. The citizens party announces that its candidate, if elected will be willing to perform the duties of tax collector for one-half the present compensation.

Mr. Walsh's friends are confident that he will make a very strong candidate and with the vote split as it will be that he has a good chance of election.

Harold F. Glendenning, former owner and editor of The Transcript, came here Friday from Boston en route to attend the annual reunion of the 56th Coast Artillery to be held at Danbury. Mr. Glendenning was sergeant major of this command while it was overseas, he having enlisted in the Coast Artillery corps here as the local battery was about to go into active service. Numbers of former members of the 56th Coast Artillery are resident in Danielson and vicinity an da considerable number of them will go to Danbury for the reunion.

Acting upon resolutions passed at a special town meeting some time since, the matter of removing trees from Reynolds street, now a part of a trunk line highway has been formally presented to the state highway commissioner. The desires of the town, as expressed at the town meeting, were presented to the commissioner for such action as he may deem fit to make.

Wellington Bitgood and Edwin Burns have been at New New Haven this week, trying out for places on the state rifle team that will represent Connecticut at the national shoot to be held later.

Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Kennedy.

This is Dollar Day in Danielson and likely to attract a large number of out of town shoppers from all sections of eastern Connecticut.

Gilbert Hopkins, formerly engiged in the contracting business in this territory, is visiting Broklyn relatives.

Twenty-one fresh air children from the tenement districts of New York arrived in Putnam Friday afternoon for two weeks in the country. As in past years, to some of the children the real country was unknown. Grass was something to be kept off of; flowers were something it was a crime to pick; milk comes directly from bottles; hay is grown in bales. Not only is the outing beneficial to these youngsters but it is an education to them and during their fortnight's stay their views on many things pertaining to life and habits beyond brick walls and cobblestone pavements completely change. The children were distributed during the afternoon to the homes which were thrown open to them by generous hearted residents.

AN EMBER-PICTURE.

How strange are the freaks of memory!
The lessons of life we forget,
While a trifle, a trick of color,
In the wonderful web is set—

Set by some mordant of fancy,
And, in spite of the wear and tear
Of time or distance or trouble,
Insists on its right to be there.

A chance had brought us together;
Our talk was of matters-of-course;
We were nothing, one to the other,
But a short half-hour's resource.

We spoke of French acting and actors
And their easy, natural way;
Of the weather, for it was raining
As we drove home from the play.

We debated the social nothings
We bore ourselves so to discuss;
The thunderous rumors of battle
Were silent the while for us.

Arrived at her door, we left her
With a drippingly hurried adieu,
And our wheels went crunching the gravel
Of the oak-darkened avenue.

As we drove away through the shadow,
The candle she held in the door
From rain-varnished tree-trunk to tree-trunk
Flashed fainter, and flashed no more—

Flashed fainter, then wholly faded
Before we had passed the wood;
But the light of the face behind it
Went with me and stayed for good.

The vision of scarce a moment.
And hardly marked at the time,
It comes unbidden to haunt me,
Like a scrap of ballad rhyme.

Had she beauty? Well, not what they call so;
You may find a thousand as fair;
And yet there's her face in my memory
With no special charm to be there.

As I sit sometimes in the twilight,
And call back to life in the coals
Old faces and hopes and fancies
Long buried (good rest to their souls),

Her face shines out in the embers;
I see her holding the light,
And hear the crunch of the gravel
And the sweep of the rain that night

'Tis a face that can never grow older,
That never can part with its gleam,
'Tis a gracious possession forever,
For is it not all a dream?

—James Russell Lowell.

NEW ENGLAND ROAD.

O shaded road beside the sea,
Your hilly, winding ways I know;
And why you wander wild and free
So near the eddies' rise and flow
Where white-winged crafts sail to and fro.

Your bowered vale with joy is filled,
And undisturbed your peace by strife;
On every hand your fields are tilled
With trustfull songs of simple life,
Where hearts of sacrifice are rife.

O sea-kissed road, your sacred charm
Surpasses all that man portrays;
Let here no hand destroy the calm
That streams like music through your ways,
Where dark-eyed poets chant you lays.

—Le Baron Cooke, in Brief Stories.

Packard Single-Eight Touring Car

We ask you to judge the Packard Single-Eight—successor to the Twin-Six—on the basis that it surpasses in riding and performing qualities, any other car on the European or American market.

These superiorities are the result of new principles of eight-cylinder engineering, which have been three years developing.

They embrace every phase of performance from the rush of seemingly endless power, to the finest points of acceleration and perfect balance, and exclusive provisions for braking, steering and control.

It is to the great credit of Packard engineers that these notable advances have been accomplished in the Single-Eight with all the simplicity, and all the extraordinary economy of maintenance, that distinguish its companion car—the Single-Six.

PACKARD

WESTERLY

Clerk M. Walter Flynn presided as judge Friday morning at the Friday session of the Third district court. The civil docket was read as follows:

New, writ—Antonio Iusso, Dunn, vs. George Davison, Kingsley. Continued two weeks.

Electric Paint and Varnish Co., Roche vs. Frank Diganel, Dunn. Continued one week.

Clara A. Willis, Ferguson vs. David Matos, Rathbun. Continued one week.

Michael Juliano vs. Frank Iacano & Co. Defendant's motion for a bill of particulars received. Continued one week.

Violations of motor traffic laws were next considered. F. C. Dixon, 17 1-2, was charged with allowing a motor truck to stand on a crosswalk at the junction of Broad and High streets in violation of the parking laws. Deputy Sheriff Fred Mitchell stated that on Saturday, Aug. 18th, he saw the defendant leave his oil truck so that the crosswalk to the post office was blocked and inconvenience resulted to pedestrians crossing the street. The defendant stated he went into the post office for a special delivery letter and expected to be gone only a short time. Acting Judge Flynn said that a proper regard had not been shown for pedestrian rights and upon the defendant's plea of guilty, imposed a fine of $5 and costs, which were paid.

Abraham Perry, 27, colored, of Boston, was charged on the 17th of August at 5.15 on the Watch Hill road near Thompson's corner with passing a trolley car on the side open to the receipt and discharge of passengers. Officer George Champlin said that an old lady leaving the electric car had to wait for the automobile to pass and the speed was in excess of 15 miles per hour. On the defendant's plea of guilty he was fined for a second offense $35 and costs, which he paid.

On the 22nd of August, Samuel Tamer, of Westerly, was charged with having a dog which had not been licensed or registered and was without a collar. As the law says that a dog 30 days' old should be registered and licensed when six months' old, he was found guilty. Chief of Police Brown stated that a cow had been injured by the dog chasing it which had led to the discovery that the dog was not registered. Tamer was given a fine of $10 and costs, which he paid.

John J. Gleason of Providence and Themistocles Josephson also of Providence, charged with exceeding the speed limit, were not in court and both cases were continued one week.

David Lockwood was charged with operating an automobile without the consent of the owner. He pleaded not guilty, saying he was drunk and did not know what he was doing. Also stating he wished his case tried, and as he had no lawyer, was ready to try his own case or to plead guilty and have the case cleared up. Judge Flynn told the defendant that he thought it no more than right, as he was not represented by attorney, that his case was one that is termed a bind-over case" and if found guilty in the district court the case would be carried over to the superior court. He therefore directed a plea of not guilty and the case was continued to Sept. 7th. In default of bail the defendant was committed to Kingston jail to await trial when Prosecuting Attorney Ferguson presents the case.

Wednesday afternoon when the 2.20 westbound express had left the Westerly station the engineer was forced to bring the train to a sudden stop on the Pawcatuck river bridge. A gang of small boys who got on the railroad tracks at each end of the bridge to pick up coal are placing their lives as well as those of others in jeopody.

Workmen from the Westerly Light & Power Co., were occupied Friday in placing the pole brackets on High street for the new white way lighting.

Following the dinner the party of 14 visited the Watch Hill road dahlia garden of Mr. Stillman. Later a trip was made to Watch Hill and the beaches, as well as to the granite quarries of Westerly. Connecticut members of the party were William J. Rathgeber, secretary, of New Haven; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rathgeber of New Haven; C. Louis Alling, a trustee of West Haven; Prof. G. W. Frazer of Willimantic and Judge and Mrs. William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck.

In the community hospital fund drive Friday the report for all the men's teams for the day was $21,894, while the women's teams brought in $33,563, the large difference being due, of course, to the $30,000 gift from Mr. Champion. The balance of the $115,048 was brought in by the neighborhood division, consisting of teams from outlying communities.

The women's championship banner for the day was won by the team of Mrs. George F. Barbour, who reported the single subscription of $30,000 from Mr. Champion. If it had not been for the unexpected announcement of this large gift through Mrs. Barbour's team, Mrs. Charles E. Sherman's team would have won the banner, with its report of $16,783. The next highest women's report was that of Mrs. Russell Hemphill's team, which brought in $11,648. The men's championship banner was awarded the team of Frank N. Wilcox, which brought in $6,035.

The attendance at the rallies throughout the week has been larger than expected, and the spirit of the teams has been rising day after day and is apparently destined to reach a crescendo of tremendous enthusiasm at the final victory dinner, to be held Monday evening in the armory.

The most recent group of memorial scriptions to be announced is as follows:

H. Vernon Foster, $10,000, kitchen and equipment; Louise M. Champlin, $4,500, private room; Dr. and Mrs. Edmond LeRoy Dow, $4,500, private room; Lucy E. Peabody, $4,500, private room; Wilfred Ward, $3,000, private room, Mrs. William P. Andrepont, $3,000, one ward bed in memory of William Pope Anderson and one in memory of Laura Higgins Anderson; William Segar, $2,500, laboratory.

Ward beds at $1,500 each, which have proved to be the most popular form of memorials, have been taken by the following: Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Mrs. Albert L. Chester, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Farnsworth, in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Willard; Mrs. Elizabeth Haswell, Miss Elizabeth Haswell and Francis G. Haswell, Mrs. A. H. Langworthy, in memory of Sarah Loveland; Caroline C. Lane, John O. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Stillman.

It was reported at the rally lunch that nearly all the memorials have been taken, and that the remaining few are likely to be snapped up quickly. For that reason, it was stated, it has been decided that ward beds be endowed in perpetuity for $10,000 each, or for six months in each year for $5,000.

Those who may be disappointed in taking construction memorials, therefore, will have the opportunity of creating endowment memorials.

SOMEBODY ALWAYS IS GOING AWAY.

Somebody always is going away,
Some for forever and some for a day;
Some go a mile or two, many go far—
All uncontent to be just where we are!

First call: The Baby's Train—prattle is heard—
We translate it "Goo!" but "Go!" is the word.
For ere a few summers have gone to their fate,
A "choo-choo!" departs from the family gate.

In daydreamy Teens unrest floods the soul,
The faraway West is Boy's ancient goal;
His Sister, at home, follows Fancy's command
And crowns herself queen of a tropical land.

Our Twenties—tense years when Love's at the tide
And brave Lochinvars mount motors to ride;
Hearts seek Cupid's bond, feel freedom a curse,
Announce the "At Home"—then do the reverse!

Responsible Years: At depot and dock
Old sweethearts pass by, each herding a flock;
Rush bound for some haven away from the crowd,
Where signs do not say 'No Children Allowed.'

Ere long that fast train, Old Age, rushes in;
We're tired and may wish the Long Ride to begin.
We've been going so much—have journeyed so far—
The rest will be sweet in Eternity's Car!

—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

OUR HOUSE.

It should be yours, if I could build
The quaint old dwelling I desire,
With books and pictures bravely filled
And chairs beside an open fire,
White-panelled rooms with candles lit
I'm awake to think of it!

A dial for the sunny hours,
A garden of old-fashioned flowers—
Gay marigolds and lavender
And mignonette and fever-few,
And Judas-tree and maidenhair
And candytuft and thyme and rue—
All these for you to wander in.

A Chinese carp (called mandarin)
Waving a gluttish silver fin
Deep in the moat; no tame he comes
To dip your fingers offering crumbs.
Tall chimneys like long listening ears,
White shutters, ivy green and thick,
And walls of ruddy Tudor brick
Brown mallow with the passing years.

And windows with small leaded panes,
Broad window-seats for when it rains;
A big blue bowl of pot pourri
And—yes, a Spanish chestnut tree
To coin the autumn's minted gold.
A summer house for drinking tea—
All these (just think) for you and me.

A staircase in the old black wood
Out in the days of Robin Hood,
And banisters worn smooth as glass
Down which your hand will lightly pass;

A piano with pale yellow keys
For wistful twilight melodies.
And dusty bottles in a bin—
All these for you to revel in!

But when? Ah, well, until that time
We'll habit in this house of rhyme.
—Christopher Morley.

MRS. J. G. C.: As it is printed today, and one has been forwarded, the need has probably been filed by this time, thank you.

FAR AWAY BUT STILL INTERESTED.

Dear Editor, Sisters and Friends: Although I am a long way from you I think of you often, and read the nice letters every week as I take the Norwich Courier.

The Social Corner page is far from being full, but I suppose the reason is that so many are away on their vacations. When they all get back again probably we shall have a full page.

I am in southern Pennsylvania with my daughter and family. We have had some nice automobile rides around Waynesboro. Have been to Greencastle, also to Maryland. We saw the Blue Ridge mountains in the distance. The scenery was beautiful and we all enjoyed the ride.

The weather has been beautiful since I have been here, only a few thunder showers but not hard ones.

Rhody Louise: So you are wondering who I am! I am wondering who you are, too. What part of Lebanon did you live in when you went to school to Mr. Hinckley? The term I went to him we did not go to the town hall to recite. I used to go to the school down stairs to Mr. Miette when Mr. Hinckley taught school up stairs, except that one term. I also went to school to Sarah Peckham in the little white schoolhouse near the Baptist church. I lived on East Town street. I hope I shall know more about you.

Yellow Daisy: Those verses you sent to the Corner were nice. I used to know them but have not thought of them for a long time. It is true that "Love lightens Labor."

I will close with best wishes to all.

SILVER LOCKS.

PONY NED.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I was much interested in Blue Bell's description of a picnic at Fort Ned and also a little query as to the origin of the name.

Among my early days I recall going with my aunt to a berry pasture up the long lonesome lane from my father's farm. I well remember the wonder that filled my mind as for the first time I saw the beautiful meadows on the side of a winding stream up which about one mile distant, could be seen a building which my aunt said was Fort Ned. I believe history tells

Mr. Safford being the father of the late Morgan Safford at that time a shoemaker in Norwich. With the passing of Ephraim Safford I think the plant was leased to different parties one of whom was a Mr. Crandall, brother of Miss Prudence Crandall, who earlier taught a school for colored girls in the center of the town. Leaving my paternal home in the middle fifties and the pressure of other interests I retain but a shadowy remembrance of the place during the few following years.

In the late sixties John Bachelder, who had disposed of his holdings in what is now known as Versailles mill, purchased and rebuilt the old mill (which had formerly been burned) enlarged the dam and made other improvements. He soon sold it to a party by the name of Hilbert, I think, who made further improvements by building a large house. But the venture was not a financial success and it was afterward run as an adjunct to a paper mill near Versailles. Soon after the mill was destroyed by fire and a few years later the Mansion house, so called, was burned. The last time I passed that way the outlook was most desolate and dreary. In my early days I asked an aged man whose home overlooked the place why it was called Fort Ned. He said that an early settler lived at that place whose name was (Ned) Edward Waldo and that being a fordway it became known locally as Ford Ned and later through corrupt usage as Fort Ned.

FOUR TIMES TWENTY.

AUNTY NO. ONE PLANS FOR TENTH ANNUAL PICNIC.

Dear Editor and Sisters: About time I said thank you for the yellow slip I received so long ago. Thank you!

When I looked at the paper two weeks ago I could not help but think that The Corner had taken a back seat. I know from experience that this is a busy season for the housekeepers—so many duties to attend to, vacations and company to entertain.

If not too late, I would like to say the day was an ideal one for the picnic at U. C. E.'s Aug. 1st. Although cold in the early morning, it proved warm enough during the day. About 50 gathered to make the day a success, some going by auto and some by the bus. A great attraction was the huckleberry patch, not just over the fence, where the sisters could help themselves. How delighted the sisters were when they had enough for a pie. I guess by all appearances Melba was the banner picker, as she must have picked two quarts. At the noon hour we sat down to partake of the usual good feast. Our hostess and her helpers know how to serve.

Music on the Victrola and readings by some of the sisters made up the social hour. The day came to a close all too soon, and all departed, their different ways wishing our hostess all success for the future and hoping to meet with her again some time.

I would like to claim Sept. 12th for my annual picnic. As this will make the tenth consecutive year at my home, I wish we might have the largest attendance ever. You will hear from me again, as this is so early to announce it and done only to give you time to plan for it.

Deborah: I hope it will be so you can come this time. Plan to stay all night.

Theoda: I hope you will be at home so you and Hubby can come again with Brave.

Diana: I hope I can get time to send that parcel before long. Awful busy. Still making rugs.

I wish to thank all who sent me birthday cards. Although another milestone passed, I am still

AUNTY NO. ONE.

CAMP GROUND MEDITATIONS.

Dear Social Corner: The thoughts of people from all the states in the Union turn at this time of the year to the Willimantic camp ground, for nearly if not all the states have been represented here in the last 15 years, and this year is no exception, for they have come from the north as far as Canada, from the south as far as North Carolina, the east as far as Maine, and the west from Oregon and California. There have been many changes since the place was first established as a camp ground. Instead of the tall, majestic trees all of the chestnuts have been taken down and young trees have taken their places. So with the people; many of the fathers and mothers have passed on and the younger ones have taken their places. Instead of tents and sleeping on straw on the ground, good beds in cottages are the rule. The drift of the preaching has also changed. Songs and prayers that used to be heard in every society tent at 6 a. m., 1 p. m. and 8 p. m., we hear no longer, except in one society house. But there are some things that do not change. The sun rises in the east and sets in the west; the moon still keeps on its course, and the stars shine overhead as bright as ever, perhaps because these are controlled by Him who said I am the Lord, I change not.

For the past few days many have arrived and most of them are young, enthusiastic men and women, boys and girls. This year the meetings began with Missionary Sunday, following the early Christian church, whose first commission was "Go ye all into the world and preach My gospel to every creature." Interesting speakers during the week included two bishops and other noted men. As anticipated, it was a profitable time. Nearly all the cottages and society houses were filled. The cool mornings remind some of the old time campers whose greetings used to be: "Cool this morning; regular camp meeting weather."

LITTLE SISTER.

WANTS TO KNOW HOW TO DO UP GRAPES.

To the Social Corner Sisters: Hearing of this recipe for salad dressing while on a visit in Massachusetts lately, and having tried it, I know it is very good and will give is to you:

Salad Dressing: Beat two eggs well and add one-half cup melted butter and one-half teaspoon salt. Beat into this one can Challenge condensed milk (no other brand), two teaspoons mustard mixed with vinegar, add one cup vinegar. Beat and beat.

Will the sisters tell me of all the ways to do up grapes, ripe or not ripe that they know of?

How are you, Lucy Acorn?

A. P.

PICNIC IN BOZRAH AUG. 29.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: You are invited to a picnic at the Bozrah Center church next Wednesday, Aug. 29th. Bring something for the dinner also knife, fork and spoon. There are plenty of dishes in the hall.

All those who wish can come to Fitchville on the bus. Then it is a short walk from there.

CRISPA AND OTHERS.

WATCHING THE COUNTRY GROW.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Many things have happened since I wrote to son to gaddem up—one is the loss which came to Rose of Sharon. It is very hard to wake from the stupor of severe illness and find that the husband of sixty happy years has passed away and been taken to his last resting place while you were unconscious. They thought for a time that she would follow but she is much better, and is with her son at Farmington avenue, Bristol, Conn., Box 163, R. D. 1. No doubt she would like to hear from the sisters. Samantha has been ill, but is better now.

Calla Lily: No, my father did not keep a store, and I did not know a girl named Irma. I think it probable that I lived there at an earlier time than you did. How many of the sisters lived there when the Wauregan house was built? I lived on Franklin square the year before, and it was very pleasant, with the two story dwelling houses around it, and the big grass place in the center, where the women dried their clothes, and the children played.

Then the Wauregan company bought these houses and began to tear them down. The house where I lived belonged to Mr. Truman, and was next the brick house where his married daughter and her husband, Mr. Tubbs, lived. The house where I lived has since been taken away and an annex to the Wauregan is there. The other side of the street looks just as it did when I lived there.

The old New England towns change very slowly compared to those of the west. Twenty-five years ago there was not even a town where our county seat now is. Even St. Paul, with its almost three hundred thousand inhabitants, had less than eight thousand when I first saw it, and was just an adjunct of Fort Smelling. Minneapolis, which is a continuation of St. Paul, with no perceptible division, has three hundred thousand inhabitants, making six hundred thousand for the two cities, and was not even in existence except as farming land when I first saw it.

I was much pleased with the last Social Corner page—there was so much of interest in the letters. I think, from what the sisters say in their letters to me, that few of them care for the recipes, but all express pleasure in the letters telling of pleasant trips, and of old time happenings and people.

I have been thinking of some vacations which my family spent at New London, with Capt. Comstock's family, and wondering if any of the sisters had been there and remembered them. I should like to hear about them.

I often see items about families I used to know in the chatty letters.

We have had an unusual amount of rain this summer and the grass is very good and the prairies are all green. It is only in a small section that rain has been plentiful—a part of even this county has no hay for winter. And there have been many destructive hail storms, one passing about a mile away from us.

One of the sisters told, some time ago, of her little boy having a bad breaking out on his hands, which she could not cure. I hope she took him to a good doctor all once—such things are often the beginning of incurable disease, which will be a misery to the child and make him a menace to all his associates.

And mothers should be warned against using many of the old time remedies for cuts or scratches, such as poultices, salt pork, or turpentine. The up-to-date housekeeper has a bottle of iodine in her closet, which she uses at once on every break of the skin, even the prick of a pin. Any doctor will give an inquirer the names and uses of a few staple first aid remedies which there is no risk in using. The science of healing has progressed greatly of late, and every mother should know how to give the proper care to a sick or injured child until the doctor comes.

Several of the sisters have sent me papers and cards, and I think I have answered all, but I have been ill, and perhaps have missed some. If I have, will she please let me know of it.

Primrose: I thank you for the kind remembrance and good wishes.

Nearly all my early friends are sleeping the last sleep—if I had not made new ones, I should be terribly alone. But I have met kind friends by the way and hope I may count some of the Social Corner members as my permanent friends—for the little time I may look forward to.

I fancy our editor is saying, "Will she never stop?" and so I will leave a little room for others.

NORTH DAKOTA.

RURAL AUNTY SUGGESTS WRITING OFTENER.

Dear Sisters: I thought I would write just a line to say I was glad to see a few more letters but let's make the page good and full. Just see if we can't do a little better. Yet why wouldn't it be a good plan to say we will write a few lines every four or five weeks? We surely could find time for that and see how nice the page would look.

What beautiful days we have been having of late? We had ought to get out as much as we can and enjoy them for, remember that when winter comes, with snow and ice, we will think of the lovely days we had.

I had the pleasure of spending another very pleasant day at Rocky Point and taking our lunch and eating it down beside the water. It was just lovely to sit there and watch the waves. I thought as I saw the autos lined up there, how many of the mothers were at home, washing the dishes and doing other work. I used to think when I had 14 in the family and eleven of them children of different ages that if anyone deserved a pension it was the mothers of such a large family.

Will send a recipe for

Plain or Layer Cake: One cup sugar, two eggs, beaten separately, one-half cup hot milk, a small piece of butter, three rounding teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon vanilla and a little salt with flour enough to make of the right consistency.

Hope someone will try this. It always comes out good.

Cheer up, sisters, work with a will and greet everyone you meet with a smile.

Good luck to all,

RURAL AUNTY.

SOCIAL CORNER PICNICS.

Dear Social Corner Folks: When I attended the picnic at Wildwood Park I thought "how such gatherings should limber up our pens!" But evidently others have been held up by other duties and pleasures just as mine has been. I haven't forgotten the good time and good dinner, especially the baked beans and the pie! Was delighted to find Neighbor Everready an old friend and to meet Rural Delivery. Was sorry to miss the afternoon programme but business called us on to Central Village. Social Corner picnics are just the best I ever attended.

Was much interested in the ride of Last Rose of Summer and Primrose. Pomfret and Roseland are very lovely. We drive through quite often but usually with a long trip ahead so that we make few stops. We used to attend Sunday afternoon services at the Lawson bungalow at the top of Bald Hill and found them our Connecticut Round Top of inspiration. Have been very sorry lately to find them discontinued. I believe because of Mrs. Lawsen's health, as we often think we should like to take friends and that going with no meeting at the time would be intruding.

Autumn is coming and with it the fairs. What are your favorite ones? Stafford Springs is just about as good an all around fair as we find within traveling distance. Some of our neighbors recommend East Kingston, R. I., but we have never found the way there.

I am canning and pickling and getting ready the winter wardrobe. It is better weather for working than it was, or I feel more like it than a month ago.

With all best wishes to you all.

THIRTY-TWO.

WHEN THE PRESIDENT SPOKE

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Vacation time is going fast, but some of us may have our vacation at any time of the year, or take it as we go along each day. However, school will soon begin and then those who have young folks will be kept busy for another season. The letters of those who have been on trips are interesting, for no matter if one of the same place each one gives a different description as each one adds her personal touch. No two see or do alike.

I know we are all sorry in the sad and trying time of our country in the loss of the late president. Each one of us sympathize with the wife in her bereavement. I was interested to read of President Coolidge's wife being so practical and plain in her dress and living. Nothing on her face only as nature dressed it; being economical in living expenses and so on.

When President Coolidge gave an address last winter, just before he spoke several noted men gave excellent speeches, but many jokes which caused much laughter. Then as the hush came when it was announced that Vice President Coolidge was the next speaker, you could hear a pin drop after the applause died down. Then as he unfolded the great principles of government, the need of making and keeping good laws men working like brothers, etc., there were no rough jokes or needless words. How much the nation needs true men and women who will not do things just for popularity but are their own natural selves under all circumstances.

I think the late President Harding was a true gentleman and trust our new president has the same noble principles. They try to benefit others and do things for the good of humanity.

The greatest men and women are plain and simple as Christ was, who gave us an example of true greatness.

SPRY BIRD.

WARM AND DRY IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: After a long rest I will try and do some more writing. It has been very busy with me for the past two months. Have had company from Connecticut. Then my brother, who I had not seen for 15 years came and you may be sure we did some chatting.

To be sure he has changed very much and we should never have known who was who had we met by accident.

Our summer has been warmer than for many years. Crops are slow about developing, owing to very dry weather.

If we get a shower occasionally the wind will blow and dry up all the moisture.

Today is clouding up and looks as thought it is getting ready for something. When I see so few letters I knew how it was. Everybody busy. But soon the short days will be with us for already the evenings are quite long.

Want boasting my moonlight the other evening and if it hadn't been so breezy I could have stayed out all night. I wish you could just enjoy an evening or two on the lake when the moon is at its best. I knew how you would enjoy it.

Crimson Rambler: Enjoyed your message, if short and sweet.

Potlatch: Are you too busy to send us a line. Trust both Wildwood and yourself are well.

Joan: Will answer you letter soon, as I get rested. Enjoyed its contents.

Hope: Of course you got my card. Now who owes the letter, you or I? Ha, ha.

Nearly tea time and I must make a call at one of the new cottages, so I will close soon.

Dana: I will do all I can to help you. Yes, am reading about the 300th anniversary in Portsmouth.

Enid: Trust you are well.

Best wishes to you all and trust none is ill for I love to think of everybody enjoying the good old summer time.

BALSAM FIR.

KEEPING OUT OF THE QUITTER CLASS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I had some hunt to find the letters from Social Corner sisters Saturday, the 18th, and found the few among the sporting news, so felt that unless I was a quitter I must get busy and do my bit. To-day I have read several from the older members and think they must have thought about the same as I do.

I cannot write about how I do my canning now for I don't do any, just buy for the table.

The sisters asked that each one write up their trips and how vacations were spent. It will not take long to write about mine.

Katy Did invited me to go to Ocean beach for a week. I went, expecting to have a wonderful time as I had never been to the beach but for the day. I was sent for day after I arrived and so ended my vacation.

Wandering Jew: I received card—a good picture of shore dinner house. I went there last year. The service is great but I didn't have enough to eat. Hope you fared better.

Huldy: Was glad to read your letter. Do you ever come to Willimantic? Come and see me.

Maine Lover: So sorry for the great loss to the Mr. and hope he will gain as fast as possible and will soon be at home.

With best wishes to all the sisters.

AUGUST.

APPROVES SUGGESTIONS OF JILL AND RED ROSE

Dear Social Corner: It has been some time since you have heard from me. But I have read the letters and would think every week that I would write. This has been a lovely day. I attended the bi-centennial at the Congregational church at Hampton. The speaking and music were fine.

I agree with Jill that if all the sisters would wear the badge we could get acquainted with more when we happened to meet.

As the Corner likes to hear of birthdays I will mention mine. I had company, some presents and cards and a lively cake presented by my little grandson.

Red Rose suggests vacation letters. I think they would be interesting. I am not having any vacation this summer. The president's death certainly did cast a gloom in this little room. I hope to be able to attend the Grange meetings soon.

DOUBLE FUSCHIA.

A DAY AT THE BEACH.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is some time ago since I wrote for the Corner, so I thought it was time I added my bit.

As one of the sisters says she doesn't get time to write, it is the same here. As I have moved I have plenty to do to keep me busy.

I know some of the sisters must know what moving is. I do as I have moved many times.

I want to tell you about my trip to Ocean beach last Sunday. My husband, two children and some friends and I went down in our car. We had a fine time.

How times have changed since I went to that beach about ten years ago. There were no one-piece bathing suits allowed then. Why so now?

How ridiculous to see girls and women almost nude, with no pride or shame for themselves.

It shows that the world is growing worse all the time, or rather the people in it, for there is no need of any one exposing themselves in that fashion even if they are at the beach.

And then the remarks that some men made about them that were near me. One girl in particular sat in front of men and I saw a middle aged gent standing near her, look from the top of her head, down to her feet a dozen times. He certainly took a good look, and I was almost tempted to ask him what he thought about it.

If it isn't too late I want to thank the sisters that sent me cards on my birthday.

Stranger in the City: You wanted to know where I lived, in Norwich at that time, but I have moved since back to my old home town, above Cossaduc Hill.

I wanted to send you a card on your birthday, but forgot the date and did not find it until too late to send you one. See by the Corner you are at Pleasant View. Hope you are having a good time. I think I must be well acquainted with you. Where do you live now?

Mrs. E. W. of Yantic: I wonder if you are one of the Social Corner sisters?

Country Girl: What has become of you? I didn't know there was a member by that name until the editor would not let me use your pen name. So where are you? Please write or are you busy like the rest of us?

Well I must stop as I fear my letter will take up too much of the Corner. With best wishes to the editor and Corner sisters.

COUNTRY SISTER.

REGRETS THAT MORE DO NOT WRITE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Where are you all I know some are away on a vacation but could you not find time to send a few lines to the Corner page and tell us what a good time you are having and where you are? I thought last Saturday when looking for the Social Corner page there was none. And my heart stopped for a second, but then my eye caught sight of a few faithful writers. I was sorry there were so few of the sisters at Ocean beach the eighth. Dom Pedro was the first I saw and she had been walking and watching for the Willimantic truck load for two hours. Finally they hove in sight, merry and happy as ever and we had a very pleasant time. The day was fine for an outing.

I was sorry not to be able to go to some of the picnics, but I am looking forward to Aunty No. 1's, which will be the second week in September.

Calla Lily: Have you moved into your new home and how do you like it? Write a few lines and let us know.

Practical Polly: I found my hat all right when I got home from the beach in the closet where it was when I went away.

Hope you will all write this week.

SCOTTIE (Sept. 25).

"SILENTLY THE SHADES OF EVENING."

Dear Editor of Social Corner: Herewith are the words of the beautiful old hymn "Silently the Shades of Evening," requested by Joan. It was one of my mother's favorites. The tune is Stockwell:

Silently the shades of evening gather round my lowly door;
Silently they bring before me faces I shall see no more.

O the lost, the unforgotten, tho' the world be off forgot!
O the shrouded and the lonely! In our hearts they perish not.

Living in the silent hours, where our spirits only blend,
They, unlinked with earthly trouble;
we, still hoping for its end.

How much holy memories cluster, like the stars when storms are past;
Pointing up to that far heaven we may hope to gain at last.

PUT BEST OF TALK ON PAPER.

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I for one was not only surprised but ashamed of The Corner page two weeks ago. True Blue tried to start us up some time ago and I meant to have written but kept putting it off, as I suppose the others have done. But before it is too late I wish to thank Red Rose, Red Clover, Marigold, Wild Flower, True Blue, U. C. E. and others for the pretty birthday remembrances.

I haven't much time this morning but will take the time to tell you it in time we all sent in a few lines of suggestions or greetings if nothing more. You all talk fast enough when you meet; why not put the best of it in print? I am glad you are not all like me, a procrastinator.

Delilah Deal: Don't worry, there are plenty more where those balloons came from. (A ground mole ate yours up.)

Lucy Acorn: When I see you again will try and help you out on starting my favorites.

Will write more next time.

CANTERBURY BELL.

WRITES FROM THE BEACH.

Dear Corner Friends: I am writing this at Ocean beach, twenty miles from home, mid friends, and drinking salt air. When one goes so seldom, one enjoys it more.

Sisters, do you all add a tablespoon of fat to your griddle cakes from the spider and stir quickly? They are much more tender.

I have seen an odd dress here and a pretty one. It is a blue dimnity one piece dress and slight fullness at the hips, but the real interest was threads pulled clear round through rows. Finger apart bottom of skirt and white candle wicking drawn through under four threads, over four. The sleeve was full length and flowing at bottom with threads pulled and wicking used and again at the elbows. The belt was of wicking with blue threads darned up and drawn and a long piece of same going from belt to dress. The bottom was hitched on left side with three large blue and white made buttons drawn front, it looked nice to me and so different from others.

Yours as ever, Social Corner sister

J. E. T.

HOW THE PRIZE MONEY WENT

Dear Social Corner Members: First I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip which came as a big surprise. One of the sisters wrote what she did with her prize check and I think this is a good thing to do as the rest of the members are interested, so will tell how I spent my dollar.

Eloise told me of a place where she bought her writing paper, getting 200 sheets of paper and 100 envelopes with name and address printed on each. So I sent my dollar and am more than pleased with the paper.

I enjoy reading of the picnics and vacation trips.

Through the kindness of H. M. L. had the pleasure of attending the picnic at Versailles and enjoyed it very much.

This has been a busy summer with some company, some canning and several weeks of haying. Help is scarce around here so I did the horse raking. In a way I always enjoy it, being out of doors. I almost envy the sisters who are spending their vacation at the beaches but perhaps those of us who only have a day to go appreciate it the more. I have spent one day at Mattinuck beach and it was fine there.

Must close with best wishes to the sisters.

DORINDA.

GREETINGS TO THOSE WITH AUGUST BIRTHDAYS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As there seems to be a call for more letters, I am taking time this August birthday to write as Spry Bird suggested. I send cordial greetings to all whose birthdays come this month, and may they live another year better and more happily than in the past.

I usually think of a person's childhood as being the most pleasant time of life. Perhaps I am not always right, for I had a very pleasant time yesterday with a lady 93 years old. She hopes to keep up an interest in people and things and to be of some use in the world as long as she lives, and yet wants to be willing to die soon or late as God wills.

"He shows what boon long life may be,
Simple and sweet with gayety,
Busy with perennial zest,
Loving and loyal, brave and blest."

Having just read The Corner letters, I find the name of Rural Aunty, whom I used to see on Elonk Hill. She is bravely trying to do her part and I hope she will tell us of her recent trip to Pennsylvania. It seems a long time since Beatrice went to school in her "wedding garments."

I have planned to attend some of the social gatherings, but something happens to prevent. When I find my "yellow bow" will try to meet with you.

When the members return from vacations may all the Corner be filled with good things is the wish of

ROSARY.

NEW LONDON WOMAN'S DAUGHTER HAD MEN CALLERS, SAY NEIGHBORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 24.—Mrs. May Oddo Gammons, of Shaw street will have to answer in the superior court for the alleged cruel treatment of her daughter, Mrs. Gammons was today held in a bond of $1,000 for appearance, her mother becoming surety, but the case may develop something else when it comes to trial before a jury. Mrs. Gammons was formerly the wife of Rufus Gaynor, son of the mayor of New York, but that union did not prove of long duration. Mrs. Oddo Gaynor then came back to New London to reside. She is rather flighty and of nervous temperament, but she was more composed today than when she originally appeared in the court for then she was hysterical. Women neighbors of the Gammons family heard the rumpus they were afraid and they heard the noise that was created in the Gammons household too, and then they brought the matter to the attention of the probate court, alleging that Constance, the 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Gammons, was not mentally all right and that her treatment at home was not what it should be. Today when the case came up in the police court there were half a dozen women present to drag the skeleton out of the Gammons closet. But it did not get into full view because the defendant's counsel did not produce the testimony he intimated he had. He declared in substance that the case would not be such when it reached the superior court as it was when it came into the lower court.

The women witnesses had resided in the Gammons house or in adjacent houses and all declared that Constance Gammons had been beaten by her mother and without apparent cause.

Mrs. Sinclair, 154 Lincoln avenue, was the occupant of the upper tenement in the Gammons house at one time a year ago and it was she who went right to the fountain head to have the Gammon child placed where she would receive the treatment such a child should receive.

Then Mrs. Alice Hunt, the policewoman who was appointed six months ago, is said to have investigated and to have had the testimony produced that was ready today. Mrs. Nelson Briggs, 985 Bank street, Mrs. Carl Noren, 991, Mrs. Arthur Armstead, of 983, Mrs. James Craig, of 979, and Mrs. George Mills of Center street, each declared that Mrs. Gammon was in the habit of beating her daughter. It was testified that last winter when Constance was sweeping snow from the walk in the yard of the Gammons house the mother snatched a broom from her daughter and struck her over the shoulders with it. Another witness declared that when the girl would not talk to her mother the latter struck her a blow in the chin or neck that knocked her down. Still another witness declared that the Gammons woman struck her daughter under the chin and drove her head back. That testimony led Judge Prince to find probable cause for the trial of Mrs. Gammons next month in the superior court.

Mrs. Sinclair declared that she heard the voices of men in the Gammons house and heard Mrs. Gammons tell her daughter she was "a little fool, who must treat gentleman callers nicely." Then she added, "They don't want to marry you." Mrs. Sinclair said she saw men at the house several times. She was interested wholly in the child, she declared, and for that reason went to the probate court.

Attorney Morgan and Policewoman Mrs. Hunt had a tiff in court when the lawyer said. The court insisted that the attorney confine his remarks to the witnesses and to the testimony that gave.

Another candidate for city manager has appeared. George F. Merrill, for 15 years superintendent of water works at Greenfield, Mass. It is understood he has tendered his resignation in his home city and that he will file a formal application for the vacancy here within a few days. A majority of the members of the city council favor the place being tendered a New London resident.

Twenty industrials averaged 91.93, net loss .12. High 1923, 105.38; low, 84.91.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Aug. 24.—Heavy selling of the oil shares based on the cut in the Ohio Oil dividend and the uncertainty regarding the dividends of other companies, imparted a reactionary trend to today's stock market after an earlier period of moderate strength. Trading was largely a professional affair, the threatened suspension of work by the anthracite miners on September 1, and the unfavorable reparations developments having a restraining effect of business, particularly on the part of small investors.

Bidding up of individual issues and a feature of the early trading. General Motors was heavily bought on reports of an early increase in the dividend and this automatically imparted marked strength to DuPont, the largest individual holder of General Motors stock. Erie issues were again bid up on buying reported to be for the account of First National Bank interests, the common and first and second preferred touching new highs for the year.

Davison Chemical which didn't appear in the trading at all yesterday was quite active, moving up 3 5-8. Mack Truck also exhibited considerable strength and the sugar shares were bid up rather freely. With the exception, however, of Erie common and Davison Chemical, most of the early leaders closed fractionally below their top prices of the day.

Selling of oil shares was limited to a few stocks. Producers & Refiners, whose directors met in Chicago after the close of the market to take dividend action, touched a new low and Cosden preferred, after six weeks of inactivity, slumped 10 1-2 points on a small turnover. Mariand closed 1 5-8 lower.

Call money held steady throughout the day at 5 per cent. Time money also ruled firm at 5 1-2 per cent. But with no bids at that figure. Commercial paper exhibited some activity with prime names commanding 5 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange markets held relatively firm. Demand sterling moved up fractionally to $4.55 3-8 and French francs improved 4 points to 5.63 cents. German marks declined slightly to 21 1-2 cents a million.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Prediction of frost in parts of the northwest and reports of lower temperatures in Canada brought out some extensive general buying of wheat today and the market finished at net gains of 1 1-2 to 2 1-4c, with December $1.06 5-8@ 3-4 to $1.08 3-4 and May $1.11 3-4 to $1.11 7-8; corn was 3-8c down to 1 5-8c up, oats 1-4c lower to 3-4c higher and provisions advanced ten to 20c.

The wheat market continued narrow the early part of the day, but the undertone was steadier with the general run of news more encouraging than for several days. Strength in the Liverpool market, which was attributed to the influence of an improved flour trade in the United Kingdom was reflected on this side of the Atlantic. There was some hedging, which had a depressing influence, but this was of little effect when news was received telling of low temperatures over the northwest spring wheat belt and of some frost in various parts of Minnesota and Manitoba. Toward the end of the session the market displayed considerable firmness. Evening up of outstanding contracts made September corn erratic, and this delivery fluctuated rapidly within a range of more than a cent. The more deferred futures, however, showed strength and responded readily to buying for new investment.

Oats were largely influenced by other grains.

Provisions were firm on renewed buying of January lard by houses believed to be acting for foreign interests.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 24.—After opening slightly lower, French government and municipal issues were bid up quite actively and closing prices found them up from large fractions to more than a point. Mexican 5s advanced a point while the 4s declined fractionally.

Railway mortgages were in fair demand with chief interest again centering in the Erie issues. The Erie prior lien 4s advanced 1 and the General 4s, 1 5-8. St. Paul convertible 4 1-2s also moved up, gaining 1 1-8, and Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s closed 1 5-8 higher.

Industrial liens were more active and moved at slightly better prices. Punta Alegre Sugar 7s, up 1, however, was the only outstanding strong point.

Active United States government bonds moved within narrow limits, fluctuations being confined to 2-32 of a point.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 24.—Stock prices moved lower in today's curb market, much of the selling occurring in the last hour after news of the cut in the Ohio Oil dividend had been received. Some strength, however, was displayed by individual industrials.

Initial prices in the oil group were firm and continued in this way in dull trading throughout the early hours. Closing prices, however, recorded losses of from one to four points, some of the bid declines including Ohio Oil, off 4, Prairie Oil & Gas, off 3, Standard Oil of Kentucky, off 2 1-2, and Prairie Pipe, off 2.

Gillette Safety Razor closed 3 1-2 points higher. Generally, however, industrials were either unchanged or lower. Durant Motors sold 1 point lower. There were no sales of Reading Coal rights and Glen Alden was unchanged on a small turnover.

Mining shares were dull and generally unchanged.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE CHURCH WITH THE OVERSHOT WHEEL

A deeply impressive moving picture story will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A., on Sunday, August 26th, at 4 P. M. The picture is entitled, "The Church with the Overshot Wheel." Father Abram is a saintly old minister, who was formerly Abram Strong, the miller who sang all day long and his mill turned by an overshot water-wheel, ground the grist of the farmers from the country around. The light of his heart was his infant daughter. She was stolen from him by a band of gypsies and, crushed in spirit and broken in health and finances, he left the country for a number of years.

Coming back later, he was inspired to convert his mill into a church, at which he was a regular worshipper. A beautiful girl, who was a summer boarder at a nearby farm house, was greatly interested in the story of Father Abram, and the mysterious attraction between them soon made them fast friends. Her own childhood had been wretched and poverty-stricken and she had fled from the cruel people whom she had supposed were her parents. Father Abram was induced to repeat one of the songs that he sang to the music of the mill and this awakened reminiscences in the mind of the girl, who realized that she was indeed the lost daughter of the old miller. This is a very impressive picture story. Walter N Block will give a brief talk, and Earle Sparks will accompany the singing and also play for the pictures. Both men and women are cordially invited.

REDUCTION IN PRICES BY WILLYS-OVERLAND

Toledo, Ohio, August, 18.—John N. Willys, President of the Willy-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio, today caused a furore in automobile circles by his announcement of immediate price reductions and great improvements in the 1923 Willys-Overland lines.

The action embracing a drop in the Willys-Knight touring car and roadster models from $1235 to 1175, F. O. B. factory, and on the Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan from $1595 to $1550, came as a distinct surprise to the automobile industry and motoring public in view of the advance in price made by not a few manufacturers in announcing their 1924 models.

The new values in Willys-Knight and Overland cars are the direct result of the wonderful sales and production records made by the Willys-Overland Company this year, eclipsing any previous period in its history, which determined the officials of the company to share with the public the appreciable saving in costs made possible by an enormous increase in business.

Mr. Willys added that in every detail all the advantages of the Willys-Knight car have been retained, while improvements have been added, making this car, powered with the famous Willys-Knight sleeve-valve-motor, a bigger value than ever before.

This announcement has great significance because it marks a new valuation record for automotive products in the face of a generally rising market in raw materials.

Breed Theatre

"The Ragged Edge," second of Distinctive Picture's great features of 1923, distributed by Goldwyn, is coming to the Breed theatre Monday and Tuesday. This picture is one of the most spectacular stories of the South Seas, released this year, and promises to be at the top in beautiful and artistic photography of Southern Pacific and Chinese scenes.

"The Ragged Edge" is by Harold MacGrath, an author of international fame. The story is of "two young fools," one running away from justice. They meet in the city of Canton, china. The boy collapses in the hotel lobby and is nursed back from the ragged edge of death and destruction by the girl. These two waifs of fate marry. They are befriended by a South Sea trader, who takes them in his faraway island. The husband, however, is kept from his wife by a sinister shadow that lies across the remorseless conscience—he is a fugitive and believes it unfair to mar her life. But in a series of breathless episodes they are finally brought together.

The hero' role is ably played by Alfred Lunt, known as one of the handsomest actors on the stage today. He is best known through his great success in the title role of Booth Tarkington's famous comedy, "Clarence," and his wonderful acting in Distinctive's first 1923 feature, "Backbone." Co-starred with Lunt is Mimi Palmeri, whose rise to fame has been one of the romances of the industry, and whose Cinderella-like story has bee nthe talk of fans for months. She is a natural actress and one who, given her chance, rose sublimely to the occasion.

Supporting this sterling pair is one of the cast for which Distinctive is noted—George MacQuarrie, Christian Frank, Charles Slattery and Charles Lee, called the greatest Chinese actor in America. More than two hundred and fifty Chinese and scores of Southern natives were used. Singsing girls were imported from China that the real oriental atmosphere might be preserved.

Harmon Weight directed "The Ragged Edge" from an adaption made by Forrest Halsey.

The Pathe news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of William Farnum in "Brass Commandments," Ruth Roland in "Haunted Valley," the Pathe news and an Educational comedy. Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.15.

At the Breed Sunday

The stars of three Broadway stage successes appear for the first time in one motion picture in "The Last Moment," a J. Parker Read, Jr., production to be presented by Goldwyn at the Breed theatre Sunday evening only.

Doris Kenyon, leading woman in "Up the Ladder" by Owen Davis, and who has appeared in "The Lady in the Limousine," "The White Villa" and other plays, as well as a number of photoplays, is the leading woman.

Louis Wolheim, that primitive looking gentleman who made "The Hairy Ape," Eugene O'Neill's drama, such a pronounced hit on Broadway, and who since has appeared in several pictures, including Goldwyn's "Sherlock Holmes," with John Barrymore, is to be seen as the brutal captain.

Henry Hull, the handsome young leading man of "The Cat and the Canary," is the hero.

"The Last Moment" is declared in advance notices to be one of the most thrilling pictures ever screened. Certainly, there is plenty of genuine thrill in the theme—that of the cultured and wealthy youth who suddenly is snatched from his surroundings and wakes up to find himself at sea on a schooner with a murderous captain.

Besides "The Finn," as portrayed by Wolheim, the young hero and heroine have an even more formidable foe. It is best to describe him as "The Thing," and he certainly is enough to inspire terror in the stoutest heart. "The Last Moment," according to press reports, is a thriller with an excellent cast.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Interesting Problem Treated in Wm. de Mille's Picture "Only 38" at the Strand Monday.

One of life's deepest problems—shall a widow of thirty-eight or forty years renounce all hope of new love romance in order to allow the wishes of her children, almost grown? forms the basis of William de Mille's Paramount production of "Only 38," Lois Wilson, one of the four featured players, enacts the role of such a mother. May McAvoy is the grown-up daughter and is also featured, as are Elliott Dexter and George Fawcett.

"A woman's right to love and to be loved never ends," declares Miss Wilson. "When her first husband passes away, that ought not mean that his widow live the rest of her life alone and unhappy. She could be able to again seek romance and there. In "Only 38" I play the role of a woman less than two-score years old, a widow who finds love again but whose second romance is opposed by her children. I feel certain that I would not spurn happiness were I faced with the same issue in real life."

"Although as the daughter in 'Only 38,' I oppose my mother's romance following the death of my father, I would never think of such a thing actually," says Miss McAvoy. "A mother has the same right to romance as her children. If she thinks it wrong to marry, believing it a disrespect to her dead husband, then she should act as she thinks best. At most, it should not be the business of her children to judge for her. On the other hand, the children would soon marry themselves, automatically leaving the mother alone. Unselfish children naturally think of this beforehand."

Another worth-while attraction is Buster Keaton's latest comedy screen called "The Love West." Another News weekly will complete the program.

FOURTEEN YEAR OLD BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT IN LEG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Aug. 24.—Howard Pollar, 14, of Wequetequock, is suffering from a wound caused by a .22 long rifle bullet Friday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, while playing with a companion, Stanley Golleski, in a barn on his father's farm. A discussion took place as to how the gun was fired. Neibeing familiar with firearms, the trigger was pulled while the gun was cocked, which resulted in the bullet entering the left leg of the Pollar boy just above the knee. A painful wound was caused which bled freely Dr. Michael H. Scanlon dressed the wound. Saturday the Pollar boy is to be taken to the hospital in New London, that the bullet may be located.

LOOK FOR EARLY SETTLEMENT OF $40,000 SUIT AGAINST MUSICIANS

The attachment served on the property of Alfred G. Bliven, one of the twenty-six local musicians named as defendants in the $40,000 damage suit brought against Musicians' Protective union, No. 235, of the American Federation of Musicians, by Abe Davidson, proprietor and manager of the Broadway and Strand theatres, was released Friday when it became known that Mr. Bliven was not a member of the musicians' local. V. P. A. Quinn, attorney for Mr. Davidson, was informed Friday morning by E. LaRue Bliven that his brother, Alfred G. Bliven, had withdrawn his membership in the musicians' local some time ago.

Upon learning that Mr. Bliven was no longer a member of the local, Mr. Quinn had the attachment released. The releasing of the attachment means that Mr. Bliven's name will be stricken from the list of defendants.

Opinion was expressed in several quarters Friday that a possible early settlement of the $40,000 damage suit is in sight. It became known Friday that a special meeting of the Musicians' union has been called for Sunday morning, at which time it is expected there will be developments that may possibly lead to an early settlement of the damage action brought by Mr. Davidson.

HOLD SAILOR FOR THEFTS FROM BASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 24.—Reuben Lubchansky, a junk dealer at 426 Bank street, was arrested last night by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with receiving stolen goods. This morning Lubchansky was presented in the police court and the case was continued until Sept. 7th. Lubchansky furnished a surety on his bond in $1,200 through his brother, Louis Lubchansky. A sailor named Scott, stationed at the submarine base, is under arrest at the military reservation charged with the theft of the goods found in Lubchansky's possession. The plunder comprised 1,000 pounds of block tin, the property of the United States government.

Yesterday afternoon Lieutenant Hickey of the submarine base lodged information with Acting Prosecuting Attorney Frank Q. Cronin that the block tin had been stolen by Scott and that the metal had been sold to Lubchansky. Officer Babcock had little difficulty in locating the tin and recovering it.

TRUMBULL CHAPTER, D. A. R., HOLDS SPECIAL MEETING

Governor Jonathan Trumbull chapter, N. S., D. A. R., held a special meeting this week at Mount View farm, Goshen Hill, the home of the regent Mrs. B. H. McCall.

The meeting was opened with the Lord's prayer, salute to the flag and singing of America. The secretary gave her report. In the absence of the treasurer, Miss Dorothy McCall gave a few items from that report.

After the transaction of business, and a song by Miss Smith, Mrs. Perry read a very interesting paper on "An Old Fashioned Flower Garden," which she used to visit when a small girl. Others mentioned gardens they have seen. Mrs. Mason read, by request, a paper on Elder Brewster which she read at the March meeting. Mrs. Lewis brought greetings from the Cockle rd, Cal., chapter, and there were letters from chapters in Middletown, Ohio, and Oakland, Cal.

Miss Mercott, assisted by Miss Dorman and Mrs. Ethel McCall, served cake and cream.

EXAMINATION FOR COAST GUARD SERVICE

Governor Templeton wishes to disseminate as widely as possible information he has received from the United States Coast Guard Service on a competitive examination for appointment of cadet engineers in the service, to be held in New London, commencing September 10.

This is an exceptional opportunity for young men between the ages of 18 and 23 to obtain a three-year course in the Coast Guard Academy at New London, and upon its completion to receive commissions in one of the military services of the United States, in which is offered service both afloat and ashore.

Cadet engineers receive the same pay and allowances as midshipmen in the navy, $780 a year and rations. Upon graduation, after three years at the academy, a cadet is commissioned an ensign and ranks with officers in the army, navy and marine corps, receiving the same pay and allowances, grade for grade.

The mental examination for cadet engineers, which will follow the physical examination, will consume two or three days. Applicants who present satisfactory certificates that they have completed the equivalent of a four-year high school course and received fourteen credits in subjects prescribed by headquarters will be required to take a written examination in the following subjects only: Mathematics (algebra and geometry), history, English, physics or chemistry, or general science, Latin or German or French or Spanish, and general information. Those who have not attended high school should, if possible, present certificates showing what courses of study they have pursued and their extent. A person who has passed his twenty-third birthday on the day of the examination is ineligible for appointment.

The opportunity this year is particularly favorable, as there are an unusually large number of vacancies. It is probable that all candidates who pass the examination will be tendered appointments. Successful candidates will report at the academy about three weeks after the close of the examinations. The commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C., will furnish full particulars of the service.

HELD SURPRISE SHOWER FOR TOLL OPERATOR

Another shower was added to a series of showers given by the operators of the local exchange when Wednesday night the toll operators pleasantly surprised Miss Minnie Donovan at the home of Miss Margaret Dingivan on Spalding street, in honor of her approaching marriage to Dr. Paul Gadle of this city. Miss Donovan was the recipient of many gifts.

Both piano and vocal solos were rendered, also music on the Victrola for dancing. Crossed wires were sketched during the evening, after which refreshments were served.

Both local and toll operators were represented and included the Misses Margaret Dingivan, Josephine Murphy, Mary Coleman, Anna Murphy, Helena and Catherine Leahy, Rose Malady, Catherine Malady, Mary Hussey, Gladys Williamson, Agnes Armstrong, Irene Keiss, Margaret Sherry, Jennie Toomey, Elizabeth Vandyke, Helen Geer, Alice Hoar, Mae Mitchell, Viola Nolan, Yolande Cote, Anna Caffery, Barbara Odgers, Edna Shaffer, Adeline White, Helen Flynn, Freida Blinderman, Margaret McVeigh, Mary Caffery, Sophia Blaum, Elizabeth Coleman, Mary Shea, Teresa McManus, Blanche Hedge, Maude Mitchell, Charlotte Church, Margaret McManus, Eva Plante, Mary Tracy, Mary Dunn, Elizabeth McManus, Marguerite Ensling, Marguerite Shea, Teresa Saunders and Miss Harriet Williamson, chief operator.

WESTERLY HOSPITAL FUND GETS $90,000 FOR NURSES' HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Aug. 24.—The largest day's report so far made in the community hospital campaign was announced Friday noon, in the state armory at the fifth rally lunch of the workers. The total subscriptions obtained since the previous day's lunch was $114,043. This brought the grand total to date up to $393,193.

Another unusual feature of the meeting was the announcement of the largest gift so far made in the campaign—a subscription of $30,000 from Charles R. Champion to provide for the erection of the nurses' home. A previous subscription of $12,000 for the reception hall of the main hospital building has already been announced from Mr. Champion, making his total contribution to the fund $42,000.

One of the largest sales of pulp timber ever made, involving about 2,340,000 cords, was announced by the forest service which has awarded conditionally the pulp timber in the Cascade Creek unit, Tongrass national forest Alaska, to Hutton, McNear and Dougherty, of San Francisco.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Current news interested the people of Norwich a half century ago and some of them taken from The Bulletin of 1873 are in part as follows:

Monday, August 18, 1873—On Saturday afternoon a man was observed at the depot of the New London Northern railroad company. Nothing extraordinary about this for men are often seen about the station—but this one laughed. There was no indication that he laughed by the king's or anyone's else command, he just laughed, laughed as if his diaphragm was a reservoir of nitrous oxide gas, laughed at anything or nothing.

One of the passengers thinking the man was in trouble, approached the man and asked him if he was often that way, or if there was anything that could be done to help him.

The sufferer arose and fixing the stranger with his skinny eye, replied, "No sir, I never was taken this way before though I've often thought I'd like to be. I'm going to my mother-in-law's funeral."

The Atlantics and Neversweats met yesterday on the Academy grounds the game being won by the following score; Atlantics 38, Neversweats 19.

The 18th and 26th regiments C. V. have held their annual reunions, the 18th meeting yesterday at Quinebaug Pond, the 26th to day at the same place.

Rev. Dr. Bond, now over 80 years old preached a fine sermon Sunday at the Second church.

Tuesday, August 19, 1873—Sharpley and Sheridan and Mack appeared at the Breed last evening and were fully up to everything that was expected of them. The hall was filled to capacity, and the performers were given a rousing greeting by their friends in Norwich.

There was nothing to record yesterday at the police court. The wheels of justice have been quiet so long at the city hall, that one is inclined to believe the populace have suddenly become altogether righteous.

To finish an interior with chestnut and black walnut, and to put in painted sashes at the windows, hardly seems to be in good taste; that is what has been done in the city hall.

Mr. Williams the proprietor of the carriage and blacksmith shop burned down Friday night is building a new structure slightly to the south of where the old buildings stood.

Wednesday, August 20, 1873—The Portland, Bangor and Machias Steamboat company is to purchase the steamer Mystic, of 500 tons burthen, belonging to W. W. Colt of this city and run it from Rockport to Mt. Desert, to accomodate the large summer travel. In the winter the steamer will take the place of the City of Richmond.

New London families who build nice new houses order their furniture in Norwich. At least some of them do. Some very beautiful mirror frames of large sizes are being made at the cabinet shop of N. S. Gilbert & Sons, to go down the river.

"In medio tutissimis ibis" has been the subject of a Franklin street female's meditation of late. Yesterday she reduced theory to practice by strolling toward the city hall with a policeman on either side.

The first of the iron pillars for the new Roman Catholic church on Broadway is to be cast tomorrow.

Many Norwich members are attending the reunion of the Connecticut Cavalry association being held here today at the Sea View House in West Haven.

Thursday, August 21, 1873—Norwich people are more than ever leaving the city this summer for vacation trips. Over a hundred residents are now staying at summer resorts in various sections of the state and news from across the sea tells us that Norwich visitors in foreign lands are C. A. Converse wife and daughter, D. A. Wells, T. Adams, C. Johnson and Treadwell Walden in Switzerland; L. Hubbard wife and son and Joseph Plaut in Vienna; W. H. W. Campbell and E. H. Miller in Paris.

A bottle was picked up off Block Island a few days ago containing a message written in German and for a time excitement prevailed as it was believed that some ship had been wrecked. A German resident of Norwich translated it and it proved to be a message telling the finder that he would have good luck The bottle was dropped into the water on Aug 2nd and the sender lives in Baden Baden, Germany.

The Nashua train that connects with the steamboat train was delayed last evening and the steamboat train was held up not arriving here until 11.30 o'clock. Engineer Bean with the Sagamore had made the run of fifty-nine miles in 1 hour and 56 minutes.

The wealthy young English heiress who raised havoc among the young men of this city and later among the men at Newport has sailed for home. The men will now have time to land on their feet once more.

H. H. Potter is doing well at the Camp Meeting if no one else is, for he disposed of $100 worth of soda at the grounds yesterday.

Friday August 22, 1873—A letter written to the public by C. F. Setchel of the Norwich Suspender Company is causing no little excitement in this city, the letter reading somewhat as follows: "An article in the Hartford Courant, copied yesterday into the Advertiser, by implication reflects somewhat upon our company in connection with the recent fire. We are very much surprised to the animus in the letter. We are now endeavoring to find out the authority for the printing of the articles, and in the meantime we will welcome a thorough investigation as to the causes of the fire by the city authorities and the insurance companies concerned.

KLANSMAN KILLED WHILE ATTEMPTING TO PARADE

Many Were Wounded, Including Klansmen and Rioters—Disturbance in Suburb of Village of Carnegie, Pa.—Klansmen Had Staged a Spectacular Demonstration on a Hill Overlooking the Village.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 26.—One white-robed klansman was killed, another man seriously wounded and an undetermined number of other persons hurt during hours of rioting precipitated by an attempt of Ku Klux Klansmen to parade through the village of Carnegie, a suburb, after a spectacular demonstration on a nearby hill. Carnegie was quiet tonight.

Thomas A. Abbott, of Atlasburg, Pa., was shot through the head and died in a doctor's office a few minutes later, and Stephen Jarsombek, a bystander, was seriously wounded. Others of the wounded included klansmen and rioters. A few were taken to hospitals but the greater number were hurried away by their friends and no record left with the authorities.

Ten klansmen, arrested while directing automobiles to the klan meeting, were each fined $10 in the Carnegie police court today for illegally carrying concealed weapons. Sixteen men who were taken from automobiles bearing the klan insignia by Pittsburgh police after the rioting, were given their liberty today. County officers arrested Patrick McDermott, a Carnegie undertaker, in connection with the shooting of Abbott. They also sent to the Allegheny county jail, W. K. Flaherty and Joseph Voyce, of Carnegie, upon a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Dr. W. H. Evans, of Atlanta, imperial wizard of the klan, who was the principal speaker at a demonstration attended by klansmen of the Western Pennsylvania district, which preceded the march tonight issued a statement in which he declared the order would press for the punishment of Abbott's murderers," and offered a reward of $2,500 for their arrest and conviction.

The most seriously hurt of the many persons injured in the fighting was Stephen Jarzombe, of Carnegie, who was shot in the stomach. Physicians said he had a good chance for recovery, although he was badly wounded. A boy was sent to a hospital with a bullet in his foot, and many other persons were attended by surgeons near the battleground. One Carnegie doctor said today that he had dressed no less than a dozen wounded persons in Heidelberg, a village near Carnegie, while many Pittsburgh doctors reported similar cases but said none of the injuries was serious.

The rioting came after the most spectacular meeting of klansmen ever held in this section. Hundreds of automobiles began to arrive early Saturday evening, and by nine o'clock it was estimated that fully 25,000 persons had given the password and passed within the enclosure, scores of them women. The place was brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, and after a large class had been initiated, Dr. Evans delivered an address. Several thousands of the klansmen were then formed into line, and marched down toward the village.

The greatest excitement had marked the entire evening in Carnegie. The commanding position of the hill on which the klan had gathered had aroused the entire countryside, and thousands had poured in. They lined the principal street, and waited for hours for the parade to start. The greatest assemblage was at where the line of march passed over Chartier's Creek, and just before the head of the parade reached that point an automobile was drawn up across the bridge.

As the klansmen would down the hill, preceded by an automobile carrying three men and a women, Carnegie policemen on the bridge ordered them to halt, saying the parade could not go any further as no permit had been given.

The klansmen appeared at a loss just how to proceed when suddenly the fighting began. Someone tossed a bottle then a few stones gathered from the railroad right of way nearby and in spite of the efforts of the police to restore order the crowds surged into the street. An American flag was torn from the leading automobile and the klansmen's ranks broke is they rushed forward. They fought their way on each side of the machine, and down the street. There was a desultory shot or two, the combatants confining themselves to bottles, bricks and stones.

A county detective in the crowd made his way to the front and recovered the flag and the fight swept by him. Half a block further on, Abbott, a mine machinist and Kuansbett, a mine machinist was shot and klansmen quickly carried him into a

Meantime a party of klansmen swept physician's office nearby. He died on the operating table.

Meantime a party of klansmen had swept around the block through side streets and engaged the crowd further in toward the business center. Four of their number were carried into a butcher shop where their wounds were attended by a doctor and they were hurried away then by their friends. Many similar instances were reported to the authorities.

The greater number of klansmen had remained in the rear near the bridge, watching the fight in the street beyond county officers pleaded with them to go back to the hill and in the course of half an hour the order was given and they marched away. Soon they were in their automobiles homeward bound and before daybreak the hill was deserted, while the crowds in the streets gradually melted away.

County officers patrolled Carnegie all of Sunday, but the streets were almost deserted until late in the afternoon, when it was seen that men were again gathering on the hill. Then little knots of citizens appeared, but there was no disorder.

100 MEMBERS GUARDING BODY OF KLANSMAN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 26.—One hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan tonight stood guard over the body of Thomas R. Abbott, klansman killed in Saturday night's rioting in Carnegie, at the home of E. F. McMillan, in Atlasburg, where the body was removed from the Pittsburgh morgue. The plans of the klansmen include a guard of honor until after the funeral.

The reward offered by klansmen for the apprehension of Abbott's slayer was increased to $5,000 tonight when the Ku Klux Klan of Pennsylvania authorized a reward of $2,500. Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans had previously made an initial offer of $2,500.

Pennsylvania klansmen at a meeting here today made provision for Abbott's widow and two children.

Dr. Evans characterized his statement, issued tonight, as "an official statement to the people of the United States concerning the murder of Klansman Abbott during a riot when parading klansmen were attacked by residents of Carnegie, Pa., Saturday night. The statement follows:

"The action of the mob of Carnegie residents senses of anarchy. The klansmen of western Pennsylvania gathered on a hillside overlooking Carnegie early in the evening, and following the initiation of one thousand men into the order, paraded in orderly manner in the direction of the town. They were halted at a bridge separating Glendale from Carnegie by trucks and other vehicles barring the road. Missiles of every description were thrown at the klansmen. Fence palings, bricks, stones, coal, in fact every object that could possibly maim the law-abiding klansmen were hurled at them.

"In an effort to prevent their constitutional right of peaceable assembly being abridged by an element of citizenry absolutely dangerous to the safety and cause of freedom, the klansmen moved forward a square, where the attacking forces made ready for their coming with a bulwark of paving stones and bricks. A shower of these missiles fell on the klansmen, the civilians began firing from a dark side street and Klansman Abbott fell mortally wounded. The klansmen in compliance with a request of assembled deputy sheriffs went back to the meeting place on the hillside, then returned to their homes. Klansman Abbott was killed because he exercised his constitutionally guaranteed right of peaceable assembly, free speech and free movement over the highways of our country. • • • • We are determined that this and all other parts of our great land shall be made safe for native born Americans and that every right given us in the constitution made by our forefathers shall be preserved to us and to our posterity."

Dr. Evans also stated that the klans would pay a reward of $2,500 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Klansman Abbott.

PLACED PLACQUE ON TOMB OF FRANCE'S UNKNOWN SOLDIER

Paris, Aug. 26 (By the A. P.).—A bronze placque, wift of the American Legion, was placed on the tomb of France's unknown soldier today by Colonel Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion. The placque is the work of Captain Francis Jaques, who served with the American army in France and is now a member of Paris post No. 1.

The ceremony ended with the cry "Vive La France; Vive La Amerique," which was taken up lustily by the crowds gathered about the Arc De Triomphe.

Colonel Owsley with an American Legion arrived in Paris from London this afternoon and was greeted with a rousing, enthusiastic reception

A platoon of soldiers of American Legion post No. 1, commanded by Major Connor, all of them with khaki uniforms and steel helmets, and bearing rifles and banners, and two companies of blue-clad polius, led by Colonel Benoit, stood outside the station building.

The building itself was decorated with American and French flags, causing Parisians unaware of the visit of the Legionaires to believe that some high American official was due to arrive and the crowds grew to such proportions as to make necessary the calling of special police reserves to clear the streets leading to the station.

The survey, the commission's announcement today explained, will be separate and distinct from the inquiry being conducted into the cost of producing sugar in Cuba, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Louisiana and of the sugar mills of the west, and will be for "purposes of the so-called 'flexible provisions' of the tariff act of 1922."

GERMANY'S INTERNAL LOAN IS VIRTUALLY COMPULSORY

Berlin, Aug. 26 (By the A. P.).—The government's forced draft of foreign currencies announced a few days ago as part of the program of emergency measures, virtually resolves itself into what is termed here a thinly disguised compulsory loan, whose terms afford subscribers one of three choices in return for the obligatory surrender of gold currencies.

These currencies may be exchanged for paper marks at current rates of exchange, for an equivalent participation in the new internal gold loan, or the amounts assessed may be designated as applying on future payments of taxes. By way of encouraging the latter procedure, the government's emergency ordinance provides for a credit rebate of 25 marks on every hundred marks surrendered before Sept. 5.

No provision has yet been made for securing compulsory subscription to the internal gold loan by citizens who do not possess foreign currencies, although it is announced that a special ruling affecting such persons will be forthcoming shortly as the government is determined to make its internal gold loan a nation-wide patriotic issue, in addition to its plan of accumulating a gigantic reserve of gold currencies which will be devoted to an effort to salvage the internal financial situation and also to provide a gold capital fund out of which emergency food purchases abroad are to be paid for.

An imperial decree just issued orders public companies to surrender the equivalent in foreign securities of two gold marks, and other public bodies and private persons the equivalent of one gold mark for each ten thousand marks for which they are assessed under the tax to provide foodstuffs. Payment must be made before Sept. 15 if the foreign securities were in their possession between Aug. 10 and 13, but the measure does not apply to those possessing only ten gold marks. The funds thus derived are intended to finance the buying of necessary food and coal abroad.

If foreign securities are surrendered before Sept. 5, for every hundred marks thus surrendered 125 marks will be credited.

Failure to make statutory declarations of holdings of foreign currencies entails a fine not to exceed the equivalent of two gold marks for each ten thousand marks and imprisonment not exceeding six months. In every grave case penal servitude up to five years with an equivalent fine may be inflicted.

TWO AVIATORS DROWNED NEAR ATLANTIC CITY SUNDAY

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 26.—Captain Frank Fitzsimmons, veteran of the French Foreign Legion escadrille, only one-legged pilot in active service in America, and Gunner Lindhl were drowned here this afternoon when their seaplane took a nose dive in Lake's bay, three miles from this city.

Fitzsimmons had recently purchased the plane, an MF "pusher," from the navy, for passenger carrying service here. He had been warned before taking it from storage at the Curtis station at the inlet that the propeller pit was weak and a flight would be hazardous.

He decided to chance a trip to his own station before making repairs and started on the eight mile run back over inside waters. Reaching a point directly over the meadow boulevard, the pilot shut off his motor while the machine started on its volplane and bank into the northeast wind. As it ended the turn the fatal dive came without warning and the craft dropped straight into the bay, burying its nose in the soft mud bottom.

Passing motorists hurried to the water's edge. Many plunged in and swam toward the wreck, about a hundred feet out, and boats put out from the flying station. The swimmers dove repeatedly but the muddy water handicapped their efforts to release the lifebelts that held the aviators. Finally the water cleared and Lindhl was found with his head just at the top of the water, pushed up by the strength of his arms in a dying effort to reach the air. Two more inches and his nose would have been clear and his life saved.

Captain Fitzsimmons had died without a struggle. The impact apparently had stunned him. Physicians among the motorists tried without avail to revive the victims when they were brought ashore.

NEW LONDON MAN HURT IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

New London, Aug. 26.—Claude Treat of 29 Union street, this city, is in a critical condition at the Lawrence Memorial hospital here with a broken back and internal injuries. Treat while operating a motorcycle today in Marlboro was struck by an automobile whose owner went away without making his identity known. A passing autoist, A. D. Listhrop of Hartford took the injured man to the hospital. The state police are investigating the accident.

PINCHOT TO CONFER WITH MINERS AND OPERATORS TODAY

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, with such official and other assistance as has been summoned or volunteered, prepared himself today to deal with the threatened shutdown of anthracite mining. Miners' union officials and coal operators' representatives who will confer with him Monday were all on their way to the state capital.

Only the barest outlines of the governor's plans for the meeting became evident in his afternoon talk with newspapermen. He will present the four leaders of the miners' union and the four members of the general policy committee of anthracite operators when they arrive at his capitol offices; make a brief address. Detailing the circumstances under which they will have been brought together, after three or four previous fruitless attempts at an agreement—and then proceed to discussion behind closed doors. What he will say to his visitors, the governor will not disclose until the meeting actually begins.

Governor Pinchot now has at hand practically unlimited quantities of statistical data bearing on anthracite, put in his hands by the federal coal commission, Pennsylvania official records, and the anthracite bureau of information maintained by coal operators.

Miners' union officials who will attend the session are thought to be coming with the strictest limitation placed upon their power to act. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, will not be present, and Philip Murray, its vice president, and Rinaldo Cappellini, C. J. Golden and Thomas Kennedy, the three anthracite district presidents, will only arrive in Harrisburg in time to enter the session. Observers of the union's proceedings consider that the call for a work suspension now out will not be withdrawn until Mr. Lewis personally has passed upon any settlement proposals.

MANY FIREMEN OVERCOME AT FIRE IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 6.—Between 50 and 60 firemen, including Deputy Chief James W. effernan, were overcome while fighting a stubborn all-day blaze of the Towers warehouse on West and Canal streets today. All firemen were ordered out of the building tonight because of its weakened condition.

The blaze started early in the day and defied the firemen repeatedly.

The flood of water which had been poured into the srtucture during the day weakened the floors nad walls necessitating the urgent order to vacate the building. Streams of water then were directed upon the building from the street and adjacent buildings.

Two dozen search-lights were brought in use to enable the firemen to watch the visibly shaky and sagging walls.

The damage was estimated at $100,000.

"What we did fifty-three years ago," said M. Poincare, "they can try to do now. If they do not try to do it they will compel us to enforce against them the menaces they made then, 'pay us or we remain.'"

TODAY IS ELECTION DAY IN IRISH FREE STATE

Dublin, Aug. 26.—(By the A. P.)—On the eve of tomorrow's polling, uncertainty as to the result of the Irish election continues, but it is agreed in governmental circles that within the past week the prospects of the government party have grown brighter. This belief is due to the intensive campaign made by the ministers, who personally have addressed numerous meetings, and partly to the effect of the celebrations of the anniversary of the deaths of Arthur Griffiths and Michael Collins.

President Cosgrave has covered more ground and addressed more meetings during the past week than any previous leader ever did. While he is confident of retaining office, his repeated appeals for a majority outnumbering that of all the other parties, tends to show his unwillingness to govern by a coalition if he can help it.

The farmers are expected to return the next strongest party, while the split in the labor party probably will prevent much if any increase in the existing labor representation. The independents and business candidates hope to return at least twenty representatives.

The seats of the individual ministers are all considered safe. There have been numerous appeals to the electors to give them first preference in the voting, that their armies may head the first polls and give them the quota for securing election before the remaining votes are proportionately distributed.

The republicans, who started their campaign merely to make a demonstration, now say they can return more than half of the house of 153 members.

DECLARES PROHIBITION IS OUTGROWTH OF PURITANISM

New York, Aug. 26.—Prohibition is an outgrowth of Puritanism and Puritanism is but half way Christianity, according to Canon William Carnegie of Westminster Abbey and rector of St. Margaret's church, London. Canon Carnegie arrived in New York today on the Adriatic, accompanied by Mrs. Carnegie, who is daughter of the late Judge William C. Endicott, secretary of war under President Cleveland, and the widow of Joseph Chamberlain, British statesman and diplomat.

"Any autocrat can make laws forcing people to be good," said Canon Carnegie, "but laws that work mechanically and externally are not laws that work spiritually and internally. There is no credit in being moral when people cannot be immoral. The English rather incline to the belief that men and women must work out their own destiny, protected, it is true, so far as public safety is menaced, but not to the extent where the older law of the privacy of the home and search and seizure is violated.

"Of course, it took England a long while to reach the point where she insists upon her subjects having personal liberty. We shook off England the same despotic and autocratic measures, like prohibition represents, when we got rid of the Tudors. The Tudors thought they could make people good or bad by edicts."

Canon Carnegie declared that movements like prohibition were in the jurisdiction of the church and not the state.

The Carnegies will go to Bar Harbor, Maine, to be the guests of Mrs. William C. Endicott, Mrs. Carnegie's mother.

LIQUOR RUNNER CHARGED WITH OFFERING BRIBE

Bridgeport, Aug. 26.—Ignoring an offer of a roll of bills, believed to have contained several hundred dollars, as a bribe to allow them to continue with their load of liquor to New Haven, State Policeman Samuel T. Metcalf, of the Bridgeport barracks, last night arrested James Pedoto, 20, of 247 East 113th street, New York city, and Tony Tagliaferro, 29, of 256 East 113th street New York city, a short distance north of Turney's switch on the Boston post road, charging them with illicit transportation of liquor.

LATE PRESIDENT HARDING HAD AIMED TO PREVENT WAR

Had Written Letter June 15, Entreating Newspaper Editors to Use Their Power to End War—Letter Made Public by Walter Wellman, Journalist and Author—Mr. Harding Would have Sacrificed His Political Career to Attain His Object.

New York, Aug. 26.—(By The A. P.)—A letter from Warren G. Harding written June 15, exhorting American newspaper editors to use their power to end the war and described as "The Legacy of a Newspaper-President to the Press of His Country," was made public tonight by Walter Wellman, journalist and author.

In his letter, sent through Mr. Wellman to the editors of American newspapers, Mr. Harding sounded the same note he struck when, gazing with misty eyes on the caskets of American dead borne back from the battlefields of Europe, he exclaimed: "It must not be again."

"I am informed," wrote Mr. Harding to his fellow editors, "that some of you are considering a plan to use the power of the great American newspaper press to ascertain the opinions of the people upon the problem of America's duty in world reorganization for the abolition of war, the reign of international law with tribunals instead of battlefields as courts of last resort, and the creation of a system of international co-operation, without super-government or encroachment upon the independence of any nation, designed permanently to preserve peace, neighborly relationships, economic stability and prosperity among all the peoples of the world.

"That this plan to elicit American opinion is to be participated in by newspapers of all sections of the country, without regard to political affiliations, and that no partisan purpose of any sort is to be sought by it; that the various vital phases of the problem are to be carefully and impartially presented to readers as aid in forming their judgment appeals to me strongly. I have long since become convinced that the United States should not and will not enter the much discussed League of Nations, but that conviction has not destroyed the hope that there may be found a way to world association and attending world understanding.

"With this plan to set the American people thinking more strongly, and clearly and expressing their conclusions concerning the international duty of our republic, I am in full sympathy. It is an admirable, useful work, and I hope you carry it to all the readers in the land. In my opinion this is a problem which the United States must soon meet with earnestness and courage, and that it will be of great help to the government when it proceeds towards a practical solution of the problem to have a definite formation of public opinion to build and rely upon. I further believe that in this great task of helping to make the world safe for humanity no political party should seek selfish advantage, that here should apply our old and most wholesome tradition that party rivalries stop at the edge of the high seas. Hence I shall be glad if the American press, ignoring partisanship, uses its great power to draw forth the best thought, heart and soul of our people in such a crystallization it will be read the decision of the republic."

In making public the foregoing letter, which he described as an "urgent appeal to the newspapers of all parties to conduct a nation-wide non-partisan popular referendum as to America's international duty, the details of which he had discussed with the late president, Mr. Wellman asserted that had Mr. Harding lived, "his plans and purposes he would himself have revealed when ready."

"But now," continued Mr. Wellman, "it is plainly my duty to him, to the people who loved him as a man regardless of their view of his policies, to make known what he told me of his determination to do all in his power to bring about a higher type of civilization, to banish war, to lift from all peoples the burden and menace of the old but now worn-out and useless militaristic regime. It is only just to Mr. Harding's fame, to his place in history, that the truth be made public."

Mr. Wellman then told of the conversation he had had with Mr. Harding in the White House a few weeks before his death:

"The late president spoke to me frankly as one newspaperman to another. Had he lived, all that would have been a confidence. Now it is a heritage that must not be lost.

"He told with feeling of his many days and nights of earnest, prayerful thought on the problem of America's duty, of how he had at last reached a definite conclusion, that his conscience would not permit him longer to remain inactive, of his belief that the conscience of our people once their minds were stirred upon this problem, would not countenance persistent isolation and indifference as our national policy.

"'Our people have never really thought on this matter, he said, 'and when they do really think on it, they will land with all their earts and souls in the right place.'

"Then he quoted Theodore Roosevelt's words: 'When you once get the American people to think, and think hard—well, you'd better stand from under.'

"Mr. Harding rose to a great height in discussing his plans. He was splendid, noble, in voicing his determination. I wish all the people could have seen his face, heard his voice, when he said: 'Lots of people like me, but don't like my administration. They think me too timid to do really big things. Well, I'm going ahead in an effort to make the world safe for humanity, even if it costs me another term in the White House.'"

Picturing what Mr. Harding planned "to make the world safe for humanity," Mr. Wellman said he wished to have the world court proposal settled as the first small step, and then contemplated next year inviting all the nations to a world congress at which he meant to submit a definite programme.

Mr. Wellman said that the late president had discussed features of this programme, in which he saw the league of nations as a praise-worthy effort that had failed and which should be merged into a greater and more efficient community council embracing all nations equipped not with some but with all the powers needed to achieve its ideal. Particularly, said Mr. Wellman, did Mr. Harding deem it necessary to end war by forbidding it in international law; not compromising with it, but leaving it outlawed legal status.

"It is a most tragic coincidence in our national life," declared Mr. Wellman, "that McKinley, long the champion of high tariffs, had his new vision of American intimacy with the world and voiced his reciprocity proposal just before his death in Buffalo, and now Harding, generally considered an American isolationist, reached the determination to make his country the leader to a new and better era for all mankind just before the end came at San Francisco."

GLOUCESTER TO CELEBRATE 300TH ANNIVERSARY THIS WEEK

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 26.—Ancient Gloucester, settling out on a week's celebration of its 300th birthday, is talking and thing nothing but schooners tonight. Overshadowing all other events on the program of the tercentennial observance, tomorrow's ocean fishermen's race for the Lipton and Prentiss trophies fills the minds of resident and home-coming Gloucestermen. The betting in her home port is that the Henry Ford, the only Gloucester fisherman so far definitely entered in the contest will win taking wraps.

The picked speed craft of the American fisheries are entered. Each skipper is to take his boat over the starting line in the trim he likes best and the first boat home over the 21-mile course wins the race. The winner takes the trophy offered by Sir Thomas Lipton, who will arrive here tomorrow morning to see it won, and $1,000 in cash; the second the Colonel J. W. Prentiss trophy and $500. Third, fourth and fifth places carry cash prizes.

Two Boston schooners have entered, the Mayflower and the new Shamrock, the fourth entry is the Elizabeth Howard, owned by W. W. Howard of New York.

The starting signal for the race has been set for 9 o'clock. The coast guard cutter Modoc will serve as judges' boat. The course as arranged is a triangle, seven miles to a leg.

In addition to the schooner race, the tercentenary program includes a historical pageant depicting the progress of Gloucester since its founding by a party of colonists from Dorchester, England in 1623. The fifties anniversary of Gloucester's incorporation as a city also is being observed.

KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL WITH POLICEMAN IN BOSTON

Boston, Aug. 26.—Walter Dulka, whose home is at Keene or Warren, N. H., and Frank H. Milliken, attached to the naval torpedo station at Newport, R. I., were killed early today during a pistol duel between Dulka and Patrolman Anthony J. Rock. The latter was shot in the leg and shoulder, but is expected to recover.

According to the police, Dulka was intoxicated and had been importuning a taxi driver for a ride, although several times refused. Ordered to move on, the police said, he returned by another street, opening fire on the patrolman from behind. The sailor, who was visiting his home here, and who was a friend of the taxi driver, started to move away and was seen to fall. The officer, wounded twice, took shelter behind an automobile and returned the fire, killing his assailant instantly. The sailor, who had been shot through the abdomen, died half an hour later.

Identification of the dead civilian was made by letters found in his clothing and at the hotel where he had been registered.

DUG UP $110,000 IN BILLS AND $10,000 IN GOLD COIN

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 26.—With the assertion today of Lee Houser, a 28 year old farmer living near here, that the box he dug up last week on the Brownsville-Weaverton road contained between $100,000 and $110,000 in bills, besides approximately $10,000 in gold coin, speculation grew today as to whether the money is that buried by Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, before his flight to Germany.

Complicating the situation was the assertion of C. S. Wheeler, a farmer, that he would lay claim to the fortune. Wheeler said his 10 year old son is entitled to the money, since he was the first to find it. Wheeler said his son was seated on a bank beside the road when Houser's pick exposed the box containing the money. Wheeler says Houser tore the box from the boy's hands and made off with it.

Booked for a hearing in the local police court this (Monday) morning are Arabie Lessard, arrested early Sunday morning by Officer William Hurley, Charles Leroy arrested Saturday evening by Officer Arthur Hurley on the charges of intoxication, and Cornelius Walker, of New London, arrested at 12.15 Sunday morning by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria, charged with reckless driving. The two local men and Walker were let out under bonds.

Adjutor Bernard of Temple street and Alphide LaBelle were drivers of two automobiles which collided at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the corner of Walnut and Main streets. Bernard took the responsibility and agreed to pay the slight damage to LaBelle's machine.

The state motor vehicle department has suspended the driver's licenses of four men whose names are now on file in the patrolmen's room at Willimantic police station, for violation of the automobile laws. The license of John Lesiniak of North Windham dates from August 21. Lesiniak being convicted August 9 on the charge of operating a motor vehicle on the highway while under the influence of liquor. That of Eddy John of No. 41 Milk street has been suspended since August 22. The man was convicted of reckless driving in Danielson a few weeks ag. That of Alfred Meikle of No. 69 Turner street dates from August 24. Meikle's license being suspended for damage to the state highway fence on the Flanders road, Columbia, two weeks ago. The license of John Maheu has been suspended from August 24. Maheu was the driver of a Ford touring car which figured in an accident on the state road at Franklin, Saturday evening, August 18, and in which Charles Manning of this city was killed.

Mrs. Birdie Ostrich and Joseph Kandel whose homes were raided by federal and local police officers Friday were presented in the city court Saturday morning. Over seven gallons of alcohol were seized at each home. Kandel pleaded not guilty, saying that he had alcohol but that it was for his own use. Through her attorney, Mrs. Ostrich entered a demurrer which was overruled by Judge Frank H. Foss. Each accused person was charged with keeping an establishment reputed to be a place where spiritous and intoxication liquors are kept for sale contrary to law. Considering that there was no evidence of a sale being made in either case and the charge was only reputation, Judge Foss imposed a fine of $50 and costs in each case amounting to $57.25 which was paid.

Carlton Jones was charged with reckless driving on West Main street and his case was continued to Wednesday morning.

A petition requesting the state department of health to "prohibit the South Coventry Water Supply company from furnishing, contrary to law, to the public for domestic use, water from the lake" has been circulated in Willimantic and Among the cottagers at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, Major John Buckley, representing the Cottagers' Mutual Protective association, drew up the petition and it was brought here and to South Coventry by his assistant, William M. Hartley, attorney-at-law. It is claimed that the distribution of water from the lake for domestic use is illegal because of the fact that the lake is situated within one-half mile of the Nathan Hale cemetery. Among those who signed the petition were: Representative Frank P. Fenton, minority leader of the house of representatives, Dr. W. P. S. Keating, president of the Mutual Protective association; Henry J. Mathieu, who is awaiting a trial in bonds of $500 on a charge of having bathed in the lake contrary to orders of the health department; Cyril A. Lamoureux, Dr. William B. Hendry, Alvin W. Nelson and William A. Dawson.

Should the petition be granted, it would mean that the Water Supply company would be forced to look for another source of water supply, r else go out of business, thus eliminating its service to about 100 customers in the village of South Coventry. Dr. Millard Knowlton, acting commissioner, has stated that the arrest of Henry J. Mathieu of Willimantic on a charge of bathing in the lake last Thursday, will not be considered as a test case, as the state department of health will continue to seek the prosecution of anyone else found bathing in the waters in question. The department will continue its policy of protecting the public health and will enforce the sanitary laws of the state in that locality until such time as the law concerning bathing in reservoirs and public water supplies is revoked, according to the acting commissioner.

Ninety years old next December and alert and active, William W. McLean, of Philadelphia, one of the leading sportsmen of the country half a century ago, is visiting his son, Lieutenant Frank McLean of West Main street. He was born in Scotland, in 1833, and will be ninety years old December 3. At seventeen he became a boxer and held a prominent place in the ring for thirty years. In the old days he entered the ring at 154 pounds and in 1856 he challenged the world at the middle weight distance, with no takers. McLean was in the ring with practically every boxer and fighter in those days. He gave up boxing as a business, in 1869, but featured in exhibitions for several years after. He boxed with Peter Jackson twice, Jim Corbett once and at fifty-three he went eight rounds with Bob Fitzsimmons on two occasions. About twelve years ago Mr. McLean was in this city visiting and he appeared in an exhibition bout at one of the old Windham Athletic club shows.

After retiring from the ring, Mr. McLean conducted a sporting goods house in Philadelphia for several years. He is a lover of horses and at one time had the ribbons over the fastest pair of trotters in this country.

Rev. J. L. Davis of New Britain, gave an interesting talk on Americanization in his Christian Citizenship.

After Frank Gray's 45 minute recreation recess, W. H. Oliver gave an interesting exposition of the last two chapters of Hebrews. Mr. Oliver first replied to question, and gave his reasons for believing in the Virgin Birth of Jesus.

Rev. F. W. Gray of Rockville, in his closing talk on Epworth League Methods, had for his subject Christian Stewardship.

Captain H. M. Randall led the one o'clock meeting in the Stafford Springs Camp Meeting Association house.

At the same hour Miss Ruth La Farge led the usual children's meeting in the New London house.

Rev. Frank Kingdon of Boston, was the preacher of Saturday afternoon. Two years ago he had come to the first time and was gladly welcomed again. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. Garfield Sallis, of Mystic. The text was Revleation 1:13. Back of the capitalist mask, the labor mask, the black mask of the negro, the red mask of the Indian, the race mask anywhere, is "the face of a man."

Just after the service there was the baptism of a small child, Charlton James, son of Rev. and Mrs. John M. Wood, of Dudley, Mass. The rite was performed by Rev. W. D. Woodward of Gales Ferry. A number of friends gathered in the cottage on Wesley Circle to witness the ceremony.

The annual Epworth League business meeting of the Norwich District league was held in the tabernacle. Rev. N. B. Burton, of Putnam, district president, occupied the chair. He offered prayer. Gray, Rockville; secretary, Channing Morrill, Willimantic; treasurer, Miss Marjorie Stephens, Vernon; junior eague superintendent, Miss Ruth La Farge, Hockanum. A rising vote of thanks was unanimously given Mrs W. J. Stephens, of Vernon, for nine years faithful service as fourth vice president of the Norwich District Epworth league.

The annual business meeting of Willimantic Camp Meeting association was held in the Niantic house at 6 p. m., Saturday. District Superintendent Bath offered prayer. Miss Helen Dyson of East Orange, N. J., secretary of the Cottage Holders meeting, read the names of cottage holders elected to the association meeting, and their recommendations. These were received and referred to the executive committee. A nominating committee, Rev. M. S. Stocking, of Westerly, L. B. Hutr Manchester, and Robert Roberts of Jewett City brought in the following list of officers:

President, Rev. W. H. Bath, Norwich; vice president, Rev. Joseph Cooper, Manchester; secretary, Rev. F. C. Baker, of Bridgeton, R. I.; treasurer, Van R. Wheler; executive committee for three years, Van R. Wheeler, and E. A. Cleaveland, Providence and W. W. Gordon, Hazardville; chosen to fill vacancy caused by removal of R. L. It was moved that the secretary spread on the records appreciative resolutions in the cases of Jason L. Randall, and Rev. E. M. Anthony.

A very large audience assembled Friday evening in the tabernacle to hear a sermon by Bishop E. G. C. Hughes of Boston; Rev. F. C. Baker, secretary of the Camp Meeting Association, offered prayer. The bishop announced as his text, Job 42.10, "The Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends." This old Book of Job is a plain lesson to all mankind that suffering is not always caused by sin. The effect of Job's prayer is not spoken of as affecting his friends so much as himself. What does prayer do for the man who prays? Prayer might harm rather than help. Suggest evil propaganda that prohibition doesn't prohibit, and this auto suggestion will make you believe that lie. One of the greatest needs of our church is to pray. "Our captivity will turn as we take up intercessory prayer. Dr. Kernahan asked for testimonies at the close of the sermon and many were given, and the congregation arose almost en masse that they would practice intercessory prayer. At the close a consecration service was held for young women in the tabernacle, conducted by Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens; and one for young men in the dining room, led by W. B. Oliver.

At the recent Epworth League session, Rev. N. B. Burton, president of Norwich District Epworth League, called for any to speak who had been called to the institute of this year, because of inspiration received in previous institutes. Franklin Fry, of East Hartford, and James Greer, of Thompsonville, responded. The closing words were by Rev. W. H. Bath, district superintendent.

A beautiful auratum lily which decorated the platform Thursday was brought by Courtland E. Colver, of the submarine base.

A tennis match was played on the recreation ground Friday afternoon between James Greer of Thompsonville and T. H. Woodward of Wapping. The latter won, 6 to 4.

"The best programme ever" was the expression of a number who attended the camp meeting and institute since they became joined, a few years ago.

Rev. W. H. Bath, the efficient district superintendent, was complimented for having secured such able instructors and preachers. The cabinet of the Norwich District Epworth League ably seconded his efforts. Three of the institute instructors have made their first visit to the grounds. W. B. Oliver of Vineyard Haven, a layman in evangelical service, enlightened his audiences greatly on the Epistle to the Hebrews, and has conducted daily the morning watch.

Dr. A. J. Beard of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Sunday Schools, was another who has been paying his first visit.

The chorister, Prof. Herman U. Leedy, of Youngstown, O., was here also for the first time. His agreeable personality, contagious laugh, and excellent leading in the singing of the old Hymns added greatly to the services.

Rev. John L. Davis of New Britain has been the wide-awake instructor in Christian Citizenship from morning to morning. His wit, common sense and brotherliness make all hope he may come again.

Among the familiar faces was that of Rev. A. Earl Kernahan, D.D., this degree having been conferred on him in June by Iowa Wesleyan, his alma mater.

The presence through the week of Mrs. Cora Downes Stevens has been much enjoyed by all who have heard her in both Sunday school and missionary instruction. Another welcome "come-back" was Rev. F. W. Gray of Rockville, whose return to the district after a number of years on the Providence district is heartily welcomed. He is a live wire in Epworth League work. Rev. N. B. Banton of Putnam, dean of the institute, won a place in the Epworth Leaguers' hearts by his quiet, faithfull pushing of all league interests.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Milk Toast.

I was thinking of muffins and strawberry jam;
I admit I was hungry—I admit always am!
I had even imagined the taste of a roast,
When a little girl shouted, "Come on, Sir! Milk Toast!"

Now toast has a flavor I'm fond of, and so
I looked all about me, intending to go
As fast as I could in response to a call
That certainly sounded like servings for all.

I rounded a turn where the voice seemed to be,
Just to find a gray kitten out-distancing me;
"Ahe!" I exclaimed, "so a cat is to dine
At your call on this favorite old dish of mine!"

"Why no," said the miss as she caught Mr. Cat
Close up in her arms with a fond little pat,
"I was just calling kitty to join in a game,
And I shouted 'Milk Toast!' because that is his name!"

Please don't think I'm joking. This story is true—
And no what I've told it, I want to ask you
If in all of your findings you ever could boast
Of a cat with a funnier name than Milk Toast?

—Maud Moro Doolittle, in Dumb Animals.

Good Night and Good Morning.

A fair little girl sat under a tree,
Sewing as long as her eyes could see;
Then smoothed her work and folded it right,
And said, "Dear work, good-night, good-night!"

Such a number of rooks came over her head,
Crying "Caw! Caw!" on their way to bed,
She said as she watched their curious flight,
"Little black things, good-night, good-night!"

The horses neighed and the oxen lowed,
The sheep's "Bleat! Bleat!" came over the road;
All seeming to say, with a quiet delight,
"Good little girl, good-night, good-night!"

She did not say to the sun, "Good-night!"
Though she saw him there like a ball of light;
For she knew he had God's time to keep
All over the world and never could sleep.

The tall pink foxglove bowed his head;
The violet curtsied and went to bed;
And good little Lack tied up her hair,
And said on her knees her favorite prayer.

And while on her pillow she softly lay,
She knew nothing more till again it was day,
And all things said to the beautiful sun,
"Good-morning, good-morning! our work is begun!"

—Lord Houghton.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

From time to time reference is made to the fact that new coins or new stamps are to be issued. It was not so long ago that new dies were employed in the making of several of our present day coins and it was only this year that the government began the issue of new stamps. Within a short time there will be a two-cent mourning stamp issued for President Harding.

The government has made many experiments in coining money and printing stamps. It tries to coin according to the needs of the country and the stamps are issued with the same thing in mind. The designs of course MAKE little difference to the users, but with the stamps the denomination have been greatly increased in order to accommodate those who employ them for so many purposes and in so many ways.

Money was devised to make trading easier since it is much more convenient to buy a bushel of potatoes with money than it is to lug around the necessary amount of corn or other produce to pay for them.

Well, that's how money-making started and since then there have been some very different kinds of coins put out by the countries of the world. Our own country has varied its coinage considerable from time to time, in spite of its short existence. Two-cent pieces were once common enough. We once had half cents and three cent pieces. In 1851 the latter were made of silver and were so small and thin that they were known as "fish scales."

Stamps have changed more than the coins, but it is easy to understand what fun the boys and girls find in collecting them and finding out how many different kinds the United States has issued.

Our Sunday School Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm telling you about our Sunday school trip to New London.

Three cars awaited for us and we all were jammed in like sardines in a can.

We started out for New London and on the way the girls were telling stories, riddles, jokes, and singing. At last we had a blow out and the other two cars went ahead to New London. We all were worrying and fearing that we would be late.

When the car was fixed we hurried as fast as we could.

When we got to New London one of the men asked us if we wanted to go in swimming and we all said yes.

So we went into the bathhouse and changed our clothes, but the other two cars which went ahead were waiting for us by the beach. Some of us went on the shoot the chute and we had a grand time in the water.

After we got tired of swimming we had a little lunch of bread and butter, peanut butter and ham.

When we were through eating we walked around the city where we saw many beautiful things.

One of the girls said "Let's go home," because it was getting dark.

So we walked a short way to the car and as we started off for home, the girls entertained each other and we came home happy.

The Girls' Excelsior Club.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am telling you about the Girls' Excelsior club that meets at Eastford every two weeks. In that club we sing, tell riddles and jokes, and also swim. And we also do sewing and cooking. We just have to walk a little way up to Phoenixville store and from there we ride up to Eastford and back. And every time we have a good feast with ice cream, lemonade and cookies. And we have our own sitting room where we do all of those things that I have mentioned already. We go to fairs with the car that nearly everybody's had some of before they could get hold of it.

We first had our club right at Phoenixville but our teacher went to visit in Michigan, and our club was changed to Eastford. All of us like our club very much and are trying to make it as interesting as we can. And if you want to join it you have to come all through the winter, too. It isn't any fun just to join it in the summer. The boys teased us when they found out that some of the girls couldn't swim. They teased us so long that we got mad at them.

This is all that I can think about our club, so I guess I'll close.

My Camping Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought you would like to know about my camping trip. The Girl Scout camp is situated at Gales Ferry, on the Thames river, about seven miles from New London. When I arrived at the camp July 28 I was shown my tent and bed. After that we went over to the council rocks (rocks under some trees) for the Scout sing, which was the teaching of new songs and the reviewing of old ones. As I had never been to Camp Merritt (the name of the camp) before, it was a bit strange, but I soon became acquainted with the girls. I was then asked which classes I would take. I took second class tent work and bird-hunter in the morning and basketry and swimming in the afternoon. At 11.30 we had canteen and mail, and then all the girls crowded upon the office porch for mail. Next morning reveille blew at 6.30 and all the girls got up. Some went down for a dip and others got washed. We then had setting up exercises and flag raising. Then we had breakfast. After breakfast classes begin. At night we have campfire and after campfire taps. Thus ends a happy day.

Had Lots of Fun

Dear Uncle Jed: One day last summer I went in swimming. There were many boys in swimming. The water was warm. All at once one of the boys said, "Let's have a race!" I had just begun to learn to swim. But I think I did pretty good. There were eleven boys who raced. We said the three last ones would be ducked. We had to swim about fifteen yards and in the race I was fourth one. We gave a ducking to the three last ones. We had a race swimming under water and we had a ducking battle. We practiced diving and jumping. We saw who could go the farthest in a dead man's float. Then we took a good swim, got dressed and went home. We all said we had lots of fun.

Jack's Adventure.

Dear Uncle Jed: Jack was a very nice little dog given to Mary and Frank for a present. He was done up in a basket with blue ribbon on it. Mary was the first up on the Christmas morning, so she got Jack and opened the basket, wondering what it could be; she could not believe her eyes. She called her brother Frank. He couldn't believe his eyes, either. So they made up their minds that they would call him Jack. One day Jack was having his dinner in the back yard when something bit him. He turned to see what it was and a strayed cat had stolen poor Jack's dinner.

He started running after the cat and fell into a pail of water. Mary saw what happened to Jack and ran out after him, brought him in the house and gave him a bath and gave him a nice dinner.

Clearing Out the Yellow Jacket.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the yellow jackets by our well. Yesterday I and two of my friends thought we would have some fun. So I went into the house to get the fly killers. Then we stirred up the nest and began killing them. One of my friends got five stings but my other friend and I didn't get any. We drove them out of there.

Manners.

Dear Uncle Jed: In the family and in good society we are expected to be kind, gentle, well bred and obliging. Good society does not mean fashionable society. In many cases the poor and hard working person is the most polite. If early training is careful and children learn to practice good manners in the home, the habit is apt to stick.

The people who are most heedful of little things are the most agreeable folk with whom to live. If we wait for the great opportunities we may have long to wait. Each day offers us occasions for expressing the spirit of courtesy. We may send flowers to a neighbor who has no harvest, so we may send a letter to a lonely friend away from home. There are also other ways, but we must take advantage of them as they come to us. If someone does a kindness to us, we must never forget to thank him. In a household where old people and children reside the children should practice courtesy to the elders."

Good manners are learned by observing people who know how to conduct themselves with grace and ease under all circumstances. As Addison said, "Good manners shows itself most where to an ordinary eye it appears the least."

MARY STORRS.

The Blacksmith.

Dear Uncle Jed: In this city not many people ever go into a blacksmith shop, but in the country every one, young and old goes there. The children to watch the smith at his work, the old folks to talk.

I like to watch a blacksmith at work. He strikes the iron that he wants to shape into the fire and keeps it there till it is red hot. When red hot, iron is soft. Then the smith puts it on his anvil and with a heavy hammer beats it into whatever shape he pleases.

In times gone by, the smith made horseshoes, but now he buys them ready made, as he does many other things, and has only to fit them to the horses' feet.

There have been blacksmiths who became known for something else than making horseshoes. When not at work they studied. One of them learned so many languages that he was known in this country and in England as "the Learned Blacksmith."

Another studied till he knew almost every star in the heavens and could tell when the sun rose and set in many parts of the world.

So we see that no matter how humble, our place in life may be, we can make it better, if we try hard enough in the right way.

A Little Country Girl.

Dear Uncle Jed: There was a little girl whose name was Mary, and she lived in the country with her uncle. She had two little dogs. Their names were Fluffy and Blacky. They were always playing with her.

Her uncle made a little log house for her to play in. Fluffy and Blacky slept in it all the time.

One day Mary and her uncle went fishing and Mary and afraid. She had never gone fishing before. She caught five little fishes and she was happy. Then they went home and had the five little fishes for supper.

When she went to bed she dreamed she saw a little fairy, and the fairy told her that she could have one wish. She wished that her mother could come and live with her in the country, and when she woke up she saw her mother leaning over her bed. Then her mother stayed in the country with her, and they had many happy times together gathering flowers and watching the beautiful butterflies.

A Night on The Train.

Dear Uncle Jed: My first long journey was from my former home in Chicago with my father, who was going on a business trip further west and decided to take me with him to visit my aunt. The whole trip was interesting to me, but I was especially impressed by the porter who made up our berths for the night. We left home at 7 o'clock in the evening; so of course, we didn't get there until breakfast time the next morning. So we spent the night on the train. The porter made up all the berths, and I walked up and down the aisle until my father made me go to bed. I was watching him put up the partitions, moving back and forth quickly, and he never wasted a moment in doing his work. I don't see how he could do it so quickly with the train rushing along at a high rate of speed over the tracks, which made us all rock back and forth and made us feel dizzy to stand in the aisle, but the porter didn't seem to mind it at all.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you.

"How impatient you look," said a boy to his companion as they were going up hill.

"Yes, and with good reason," replied the other. "I was thinking that I hate to draw my sled up hill, for though it goes down over so nice, we always have to pull it all the way back."

"Dear me! How strange it is to climb up hill," said the second boy. "Now I enjoy the thought that whenever it is hard to climb up hill, it is very nice to slide down."

My Kitten.

Dear Uncle Jed: In June I was given a little kitten as a pet. She was the cutest little thing I ever saw. One day I took a pretty little red bow and a chain and tied them around her neck and took her for a walk.

While walking with her in the street, I accidentally let the chain loose, and she quickly ran away. Turning in the direction she ran I could see nothing of her. I went home with a sorrowful heart because I lost my dear kitten.

The next morning I opened the door to get the milk for breakfast, when whom should I spy but — little kitten sleeping on the door mat? I took her into the house and gave her her breakfast.

According to my idea, she came home late at night, and I not hearing her meows she fell asleep where I found her.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

By David Cory.

Dear me! how fast that dearly little bunny rabbit boy has been hopping toward Old Brambly Patch since last Monday. And so would you and so would I if a big wolf had been chasing us.

"Faster, faster, hop along."

Wicked Wolf's four legs are strong. Don't look back a glimpse to snatch But hurry for the Bramble Patch."

shouted Bobby Redvest as he skimmed along close to the meadow grass to encourage the little frightened bunny boy rabbit to do his best.

"Oh, I will, I will," panted the little bunny.

"Hurry hurry!" shouted the dear brave red vested bird.

"Gr-r-r! Gr-r-r!" howled and prowled the wicked Wolf drawing closer and closer to the fleeing bunny boy rabbit.

In the distance just outside the dear home in the Bramble Patch stood Lady Love, the little bunny's pretty rabbit mother. Shading her eyes with her little white paw, she looked across the Sunny Meadow. Oh dear! Oh, dearest dear! When she saw Mr. Wicked Wolf close at the heels of her little bunny boy, she screamed. Oh, yes she did. And then, she screamed again, and then again.

"Help, oh help my bunny boy.

Some one please come quick!

Where is our Kind Policeman Dog

With his trusty hickory stick!"

"Here I am!" replied that noble dog, dashing out of the wood, the sun shining on his silver badge as he leaped over the top of the Old Rail Fence.

Down the Old Cow Path he ran, four jumps in one, until just in time, not a minute too soon but almost a second too late he swung his club on the Wicked Wolf's head.

"Ouch! Oh me, Oh my!" growled that dreadful beast, stumbling down, first with three legs then two, and finally rolling over on his side. "Who hit me when I wasn't looking? I'll hit you while you are looking and he tapped Mr. Wicked Wolf on his fur cap till that bad old animal's eyes rolled around like two glass marbles in a bowl.

Then, taking out a pair of handcuffs, the Policeman Dog clamped them on Mr. Wicked Wolf's forefeet and whistled for the Patrol Wagon. The next minute, up came

VELVETMEN BEAT RIVERVIEW AND WHITE ROCK TEAMS OVER WEEK END

The J. B. Martin baseball team won both of its week end games defeating the Riverview club Saturday afternoon at the State Hospital 6 to 1 and shutting out the White Rock team 7 to 0 at the J. B. Martin diamond on Sunday afternoon.

Saturday's victory came as more or less of a surprise to local fans as the State hospital has been playing exceptionally good ball having suffered only two defeats until Saturday. Tony West who has been twirling a fan brand of baseball during the season was hit so hard in the second inning that Manager Donovan yanked him from the box and sent Mills in to finish the game. The Velvet men collected six hits off West's southpaw delivery for a total of four runs. West was decidedly off form but on Sunday won his game at Crompton, R. I., allowing only five hits which was a decided reversal of the form showed against the J. B. Martin team on Saturday.

The second inning which was the waterloo for West started off well when Lemieux the first man up fanned. Billy Gley singled and Eddie Joubert doubled into center and Gley pulled up at third. Welch laid down a neat bunt along the third base line which Mills fielded and threw to Reddy in an attempt to get Gley at the plate but the ball got away from Reddy and both Gley and Joubert scored. Welch went to second on the play and scored a minute later when Johnny Joubert singled into deep center. DeCelles and Frank Gley singled in succession and Joubert scored the fourth run of the inning. The Velvet men scored again in the sixth on two hits and Massey's error and they annexed another on a base on balls and two hits.

The State Hospital scored their lone tally in the last of the second inning when Fay hit a slow roller to F. Gley who made a wild peg over Joubert's head. Fay going to second. Clabby popped to Joubert and Hart flied out to W. Gley. Reddy hit a sharp single to lef field, scoring Fay with Riverview's only run. For the remaining seven innings Fisher had the Riverview batters eating out of his hand. Fisher also received sensational support especially from DeCelles at short and E. Joubert in the outfield. Sunday's Game

Pitching airtight ball against White Rock, Lemieux the pitching mainstay of he Velvet men, shut out the visitors with four hits Sunday afernoon at the J. B. Martin diamond. Wilcox who pitched for White Rock allowed only one more hit than Lemieux but his support was ragged, with men on bases accounting for a large percentage of the local's runs. The game was an interesting one from start to finish with both teams making several brilliant plays at opportune times. The Velvet men scored their first two runs in the last of the third inning on this by Joubert and a pass to DeCelles, both scoring on Frankie Gley's two bagger to left field. The next run came in the sixth inning when two hits and a brace of errors gave the Martin boys another couplet of runs. In the last half of the eighth three runs were scored on errors, a walk and a hit.

The White Rock team threatened only in one inning, the seventh, when Lemieux passed a man and a hit put two men on. Kenyon hit to left field and Gley made a beautiful throw to Eccleston to catch Barker at the plate. Ad Barkes came in Eccleston had the ball waiting for him when Barker hauled off and hit Eccleston in the mouth with his fist. Eccleston, however, touched Barker out. This bit of dirty work on the part of Barker was a poor piece of sportsmanship as has ever taken place on a local field and it will be a long time before another White Rock team will be asked to play in Norwich. BRASSCOS NOSE OUT PONIES IN ELEVENTH

Waterbury, Aug. 26.—Three successive singles starting in the 11th, the third a scorcher to center field by Torphy caused the 6 to 5 downfall of Springfield here this afternoon, in a weird game of baseball. The Brasscos batted themselves into a five run lead in the early innings, but the Ponies rallied in the ninth and, tied the count, only to lose out in the final. The score by innings.

TWO HOMERS IN NINTH WIN VICTORY FOR GIANTS

New York, Aug. 26.—A ninth inning home run attack snatched victory from the jaws of defeat here today when the New York Nationals defeated Chicago in the first game of the series by a score of 4 to 3.

Chicago went into the ninth inning, leading by a score of 3 to 1.

O'Connell hit a home run with one out and Kelly, fouled to Grimes for the second out. Jackson grounded to Friberg for what looked an easy out at first, but Friberg made a three base wild throw. Bentley, batting for Snyder, hit another home run into the stands, winning the game. The fans then swarmed on the field, and fought for the priviledge of slapping Bentley on the back. The congestion on the field was so great that special police were obliged to open a lane for Bentley between third base and the plate. Score:

HEAVYWEIGHTS HAVE STRENUOUS WORKOUT; FIRPO IS IMPROVING

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 26.—Unleashing some of the power in his massive shoulders during his daily workout this afternoon, Luis Angel Firpo administered sound thrashings to three sparring partners and showed some improvement in his battle technique.

All three of the punch catchers with whom he worked, Joe McCann, the Newark heavyweight; Jeff Clarke, the "Black Ghost" of Joplin and Natty Natolia Pera, the Argentine Adonis, were badly shaken by Firpo's blows. He appeared to have solved the fighting styles of all three in earlier workouts and prevented any of them from laying a glove on him today.

Firpo has shown such remarkable ability against the slow heavy men of the sparring outfit that Horatio Lavalle, chief trainer, announced today that he would try to employ lighter and faster men for Firpo to work upon. Lavalle realizes that Dempsey is not a slow man and that if Firpo is to be properly trained he must have fast men at which to punch.

Each of the punch absorbers worked two rounds with Luis Angel twice this afternoon, McCann was sent from the ring with a bloody nose and big red marks on his arms and body. Clarke failed to land one good punch today and was sent tottering across the ring near the close of the session from a right, sent low and inside to the chin. Clarke though 34 years old, still is a wily boxer, but he declared after his workout today that the South American was he strongest man he ever saw in the ring.

Among the visitors to the camp today were Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion, and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, a noted pugilist of other years. Both were impressed with Firpo's appearance, but agreed with Lavalle that he should have special light and fast men in the sparring corps.

Firpo passed up all work this morning, contenting himself with a light setting up exercise inside his cottage.

SOCIETY WATCHES DEMPSEY IN HIS WORKOUTS

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Working out before a crowd of more than two thousand spectators, one of the largest that ever witnessed a training session of a heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey went through an equivalent to ten rounds at his Saratoga Lake camp today, with the critical eyes of society matrons and debutantes watching every move he made.

When the champion, his broad shoulders with a flashy bathrobe, entered the canvas-walled arena, the throng was so dense with fashionably gowned women and their escorts, that he had to shoulder his way to the ring. The list of society folk jammed under the roof of his punching bag platform read like a page ripped from a social register.

Harry F. Sinclair, oil operators, Mrs. Sinclair, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, Mrs. J. S. Cosden, wife of the turfman and oil magnate, Mrs. Blaine Elkins, Mrs. William Hitt, and Mrs. Fall, wife of the former secretary of the interior, were among the intently interested spectators, who watched the perspiring Dempsey shoot over right crosses and left hooks at his retreating sparring partners. Eyes accustomed to society tea dansants did not escape a single move the champion made and there was a chorus of "ohs" and a shudder, whenever Dempsey, his body gleaming, sunk his gloved fists into his sparring partners.

George Godfrey, the 22-pound negro continually stuck a snaky left hand into Dempsey's face during their two rounds to keep the champion off balance, so he could not whip over a crushing right or left hook. Dempsey however managed to connect solidly a half dozen times on the negro's chin, rocking him to his heels.

Jack Burke who received a severe pummeling yesterday did not risk the danger of getting in close to Dempsey today. He tried to keep Jack at a safe distance with left jabs, but the champion managed to catch him a couple of times by driving him into the corners. Dempsey shook him up with rights to the head, but tried more frequently to land left hooks to the jaw and body.

Jack Bernstein, world's junior lightweight champion, boxed the final two rounds with Dempsey to develop the champion's speed.

Jack McAuliffe, farmer Lodge and Jack Renault are expected to join Dempsey's staff of sparring partners tomorrow. Godfrey will be absent for a few days to engage Bill Tate, another negro heavyweight, in a contest in the west.

WEST ENDS NOSE OUT SODOM ALL STARS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 26.—In a hectic struggle at Recreation Park Sunday afternoon the West Ends defeated the Sodom All-Stars 7 to 6 in the second series of games between the two teams for the amateur championship of the city. The first game was also captured by the West Ends some time ago. Yesterday's contest was a comedy of errors with the lead changing hands a number of times before the final decision was reached. The All-Stars should have won the game hands down but some dumb work on the bases lost the game for them. They out-hit the West Ends 12 to 8 but eleven men stranded on bases and a number caught off the sacks tell the story of their defeat. The West Ends on the other hand took advantage of every opportunity and breezed under the wire by the scant margin of one run.

Each pitcher fanned four men. Kegler was a trifle steadier than Lathrop as he issued one base on balls to Lathrop's two and the latter also hit one batsman. The few good fielding plays of the game were made by Scribner and Haggerty for the winners and Cote, A. Greene, Normandin and Lathrop for the All Stars. Brundage and Kegler led at bat for the winners while Normandin with three safe blows and Brown, Donahue and Lathrop with two apiece did the best clouting of the losing side. The score:

NUGGETS LOSE SECOND GAME TO TAFTVILLE

The Taftville A. A. took the second and final game of the series from the Nuggets Saturday afternoon, 6 to 1, at the Providence street grounds with the exception of the first inning the game was close and interesting. In the first stanza five hits netted Taftville three runs but after this Mathewson pitched exceptionally good ball and his support been more solid he would have won.

Errors by the Nuggets infield were responsible for about half of the Taftville runs. Big Ed Harris and Mathewson were the brighest spots in the Nuggets defense and attack. Jim Murphy was the star of the Taftville team getting two doubles and fielding his position in good style. The score:

TRYING FOR ADJUSTMENT.

Just what the effort to have Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania find some basis of agreement between the coal miners and operators will amount to is clouded with uncertainty.

Thus far it appears that both sides are willing to confer with him but from the statements which are given out by President Lewis of the miners he holds out nothing but discouragement. With him it is a case of getting everything that is asked for or the alternative of forcing the operators and the consumers to yield because of the distress into which they will be plunged. Whether Governor Pinchot can overcome this attitude remains to be seen. The president has confidence in him and believes that he may be able to bring the miners, who are all residents of his state, to their senses, and thereby through an agreement prevent the strike which is now scheduled for next Saturday morning.

It is an effort to prevent trouble and avoid the shortage of anthracite that will come if there is a strike. It doesnt mean that the government is at a loss as to what to do, but that it is desirous of exhausting all methods of settlement before taking other steps. The president doesn't intend to have it said later on that he was too hasty in the adoption of drastic action. Threats are being made by the head of the mine workers but the efforts of the head of the nation are directed toward the maintenance of the fuel supply and the serving of those who are threatened with a shortage of coal.

The conference is one that will precede the gathering of governors in New York. It is evident that there is certain to be close cooperation between government and states in case a coal strike actually takes place. Certainly there is no disposition among the coal users to hold up their hands and have their pockets rifled, whoever is responsible for such a plan. Year after year this effort is made and with half of the coal supply available for the winter and the assurance that there will be sufficient fuel, though it may be substitutes, this might be just as good a time as any to let it be known that the public cannot be ignored and trampled on with impunity.

SUPPORTING GENERAL WOOD.

Somehow it seems a bit unnecessary for the statement to be made that the United States government will give its full support to Governor General Wood in connection with the situation that has developed in the Philippines. No other action could be expected and yet the announcement to that effect may serve the good purpose of dissipating any suspicion that may lurk in the minds of the Filipinos that their attitude is going to be upheld and Governor General Wood is to be recalled.

General Wood was selected for the important post with every confidence in his ability of this country. By his conduct since taking that job he has clearly set forth the fact that no mistake was made. He is not being influenced by political ambitions or appeals from Filipinos that are ill founded. His efforts have not been directed to misguiding the Filipinos or setting before them false hopes. He has been frank and open in his declarations as to the needs of the islands and the people, and in his insistence that the affairs of the islands be so conducted that they will lead to a successful outcome and ultimate independence instead of pampering them with empty promises that make them uneasy and suspicious.

Much of the difficulty at the present time can be attributed to methods of the previous governor general. The free and easy, happy-go-lucky methods were responsible for the deplorable banking situation, and that fully illustrates the danger of giving the Filipinos so much rope that they get all tangled up.

If this country had ceased to be interested in the welfare of the islands it might quickly drop the responsibility that it has assumed. A sincere desire to avoid doing its work all over again holds this government to its clearly charted course. Governor General Wood is not only acting for the welfare of the islands but he is admirably representing this government. Hence the support.

PREMIER KATO.

Not for long was Kato premier of Japan, but during that period since 1922 he gave his nation a new standing among nations and demonstrated most clearly his sentiment against militarism and his friendship for the United States. Well did Secretary Hughes in his letter of sympathy dwell upon the fact that this country had lost a good friend in Japan through his death.

Short was his premiership but satisfactory its accomplishments. Kato figured prominently in whatever public service he was engaged. Even though his efforts as premier have been conspicuous in behalf of a reduction of the expenditures for army and navy he was at one time and by profession an officer in the navy and one of such recognized ability that he was Admiral Togo's chief of staff. When it came to sending a delegation to this country to participate in the Washington conference Kato was placed at the head of it and he left a most favorable impression as the result of his negotiations and work.

He was not unmindful of the fact that he was looking after the interests of Japan, but he nevertheless found it possible to break down much of the suspicion that had been aroused against Japan. As an advocate of disarmament he followed it up by insisting upon radical cuts in expenditures for army and navy and in that attitude he had strong support from his people.

Japan and China may not be entirely reconciled but their relations have been greatly improved as the result of Kato's efforts. His work has seemed to be to create greater confidence in his country, to build up its trade and to overcome wasteful conditions withiin.

The success that he obtained was conspicuous. Japan must have seen the benefit of it, even though his liberal policies were quite in contrast to those of other days. When such a man is removed the nation suffers a severe loss.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

No sympathy whatever can be extended to that community song leader in New York who refused to place the Star Spangled Banner at the beginning of each programme to be rendered in Central park. He took exception to the fact that it is not actually the national anthem, because congress has not established a national anthem, and he felt that such thoughts as are stirred by certain phrases in the song created thoughts of war and its devastation rather than of peace and therefore ought not to be used. He was so much opposed to it that he was unwilling to comply with the requirement.

He was entitled to his opinion, strange as it was for an American, but that was not sufficient to cause him to disregard requirements. Just the right action was taken in promptly dismissing him, and with such views it ought to be no easy job for him to get similar employment.

But with one good thing done it seems surprising that those supporting the park project should not carry out their desired wishes of having The Star Spangled Banner sung under the leadership of another each day, instead of ending the concerts entirely, as was done. Such a course leaves too much satisfaction to be derived by the deposed leader and too little for those who believe that there is nothing to be ashamed of in The Star Spangled Banner, even though more might really sing it if it was better suited to the average voice.

PERSISTENT SIR THOMAS.

No better exponent of keeping persistently as it is to be found than Sir Thomas Lipton. No doubt it is that same spirit displayed in business that he throws off yachting that has made him so remarkably successful.

Enough defeats in his attempts to lift Amercia's cup have been suffered to discourage most men, but Lipton bobs up serenely with a new challenge quite as regularly as he loses. He is a sportsman of the first water. One who makes the contest all the more interesting.

When he makes the statement that "I will challenge in 1924 for the 1925 races, and expect to build a boat that will lift the cup this time," he displays that same confidence and determination that have marked all his other efforts. It is more than 70 years ago that the cup was brought here and since that time there have been made efforts to take it back across the water without success. Way back in 1890 Sir Thomas began his efforts. He has built three Shamrocks in an endeavor to turn the trick without success. Not daunted by his failures he believes in keeping everlastingly at it. It is impossible not to admire his pluck. It isn't quite possible to feel that his efforts ought to be rewarded inasmuch as the better boat should win and no one can be unpatriotic enough to see the cup go back to Europe but admiration for a good sportsman cannot be concealed and Sir Thomas Lipton certainly has a large number of admirers on this side of the water. There cannot fail to be the feeling that America's cup is unliftable but Sir Thomas is always welcomed in his desire to try.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gasoline isn't the only thing that has its ups and downs in this world.

Have those who want a coal strike won the weatherman with his cold weather to their side?

The loss of those communists in Germany can be easily made up from the limitless supply in Russia.

Georgia's opposition to the floggings that have taken place there is gratifying if it is really more than a flourish.

The difference between France and Germany is that the former has denied that it will repudiate its debts while the latter would like to dare to refuse to pay.

The man on the corner says: For the consumer there doesn't appear to be much in the way of good news in the coal situation.

It is to be hoped something can be done about a deeper channel in the Thames before it becomes limited to launches and rowboats.

The man who stole the chickens of a fellow who had been sent to jail probably couldn't bear to think of the poultry going without care.

Some people give up their money readily at expensive road houses but they put up an awful howl when it is pried away from them with a gun.

Dancers are not permitted to gaze into each other's eyes in a midwestern city because there is a menace from the germs in the breath. That's hard on the germs.

The president's belief that there is no need of an anthracite coal strike fits exactly with public opinion and the public is certain to be more than a passive spectator if it does develop.

If reports from Russia are true there ought to be a chance for the government and others to save some of the funds to prevent starvation that have been poured into that country.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

If you wish knives to keep sharp never put them into hot fat.

Add a pinch of salt and a few drops of vanilla to the peanut brittle and note the improvement.

Lay a lump of soda in the kitchen sink every day or two and then flush with hot water. You will save many a plumber's bill.

Mend any breaks or tears in lace before washing it, if you want to preserve it.

Remove paint spots with turpentine or benzine. If the spot is old, soften it first with cotton seed oil or lard.

When stamps have stuck together lay a thin piece of paper over them and go over them with a hot iron and then you can easily separate them.

Before you paint or kalsomine your walls, fill every crevice with plaster or cement.

Every woman should arrange her kitchen so that she does not have to cross and recross it many times in order to perform simple tasks.

Foods being cooked over a gas flame should not be allowed to boil over and stop the holes of the burners. If this does happen the burners should be taken off and cleaned by boiling in a washing soda solution.

To remove wall paper from the wall use a heaping tablespoon of saltpeter to each gallon of hot water and apply this mixture with a brush.

When putting raisins, figs, dates, etc., through the food grinder, first squeeze some lemon juice into the hopper and then put the fruit through. It will prevent the fruit from sticking to the grinder.

So often the light shining through cretonne draperies will mar the beauty of the design. A lining of soft cloth of a harmonizing color will bring out the pattern both day and night.

PORCH SHELF

A shelf on the inside of your porch rail, about a foot and a half wide and a foot from the floor, is an excellent foot rest as well as a place for books or workbaskets.

TALL VASES

In your tall vases that are apt to overturn put a handful of pebbles. To wash the vase you need not remove the pebbles; just pour a little soapsuds over them and shake gently.

COVER FOR TABLE

An extremely good looking cover for the card table when playing Mah Jong is made of surf satin, with deep pieces at each side divided into pockets to contain the counters. Each pocket is embroidered in cross stitch with the significant marks of the counters.

GREASE STAIN

If grease or oil has been spilled on the matting, make a thin paste with fuller's earth and cold water and spread thickly on the spot. When it dries lay a paper over it and let it stand two or three days. Then brush off the earth and the stain will have disappeared.

REMOVE THE PINS

No clothing should be put away, even for the night, without first removing all steel pins, as dampness may cause rust spots.

CARE OF A BURN

For burns and scalds apply glycerine and flour, the latter heaped on the affected part to keep off the air. On this put a pad of cotton wool and bandage.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Linen will look much better if, after being ironed, it is placed in the sun until absolutely dry. It will prove much stiffer than when left to dry slowly.

One cannot be too careful about the condition of the dish cloth and dish towels. They should be washed, rinsed and hung to dry after each using.

When washing your tan stockings put a little brown dye in the rinsing water and they will look like new.

PLISSE DECORATIONS

One of the most ornamental ribbons for decorating living room or boudoir is the ribbon with the shirred center and straight edge. It is called plisse and comes in any shade desirable. It gives an excellent finish to silken or velvet draperies, to satin coverlets, lamp shades and runners. The very nature of the ribbon is so decorative that even if applied merely in straight lines it is exceedingly effective, and easily adapted in patterns, such as flowers, baskets, love knots and conventional designs.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A stunning jacquette is of black velvet cut out in eyelet work and embroidered.

As new as they are smart are frocks of brown georgette embroidered in gold, silver and gunmetal thread.

The new sleeveless sweaters are particularly lovely in yellow or in white striped in green.

A square shawl of glove silk has mitts to match. These come in different colors.

Yellow is one of the leading colors at the moment, with green a close second in popularity.

Most attractive sweaters of medium weight yarn, silver glow, wonder glow or shetland floss, are trimmed at the bottom of the coat and sleeves with peasant embroidery in gay wools.

Braid trimming is extensively used on the three-piece cape costumes now so much in favor. The capes, often accordion pleated, have a bit of braid about the neck. This is smartly repeated on the girdle, pockets and the hem of the dress.

Close veils are being worn again, those with the square mesh are particularly popular. They are worn with the most severe clothes and turbans.

One of the smartest color combinations for daytime is black and brown. It has much more pep than you would believe.

UNIQUE IN DESIGN

This is, of course, a time when you can wear any sort of earring you care to, only remembering that the wilder the smarter. One woman has resurrected her grandmother's wedding gift, which was a pair of Venetian earrings consisting of wide-carved gold loops each containing a tiny gold gondola.

LONG BEADS

The newest beads come in extremely long strings some of them reaching to the knees. Sometimes a choker of larger beads is also worn.

SCARLET LEATHER

Bags of scarlet leather were much in evidence at the Paris races. Those of rich gold brocade or colorful embroidery were also popular.

FOR COLONIAL HOUSES

For houses and cottages of the ever popular colonial or farmhouse type the daintily ruffled curtains, looped back primly after the best traditions of our great grandmothers, are, of course, always suitable. But just as even the oldest colonial homes are today fitted with the most modern plumbing and electrical equipment and many other innovations, so the windows of a modern colonial home may have more modern curtains fabrics than the stiff, white fabrics from which curtains formerly were made. Casement lace, any good net or a handsome filet grandee may be used in a colonial house with no sacrifice of harmony or taste.

PERFORATED LEATHER

Perforated leather is used effectively on suits, dresses and coats for fall. In some cases it gives the effect of elaborate embroidery.

UNUSUAL GLASS BOWLS

Lovely low bowls are of amber or blue glass and have tiny dancing figures etched in black. Also of glass, in different colors, are flat dishes with a conventional design cut on the under side. The effect is unusually attractive.

CLAM PIE

Chop forty clams, two small onions and half a green pepper. Boil four medium potatoes, cut them fine and add to the above. Thicken with two tablespoonfuls of butter and cook all together. Make a biscuit crust, line a deep dish and fill. Spread over a top crust. When brown, the pie is baked enough.

BEFORE SERVING OLIVES

You can make ordinary olives much more delicious if you open the bottle about an hour before you want to use them, pour off the brine and add a tablespoon of olive oil. Shake the bottle well. The briny taste will disappear and they will have a much richer taste.

COVER HANGING GOWNS

Use your worn-out sheets to cover your gowns in your clothes closet. If you keep the dust from them they will not need to go to the cleaner so often.

CLEAN OIL MOP

Clean your oil mop frequently with hot water, ammonia and a little washing powder.

CRACKER BOXES

The cardboard boxes in which you buy your crackers make excellent polishers for your flat irons since they are coated with wax.

OF GREEN CREPE

A gown of Lanvin green crepe is trimmed with velvet bands in a darker shade. The skirt is bouffant and the tight basque is sleeveless.

FRYING EGGS

Mix about a tablespoon of fleur in the grease in which eggs are to be fried and the eggs will not pop while cooking.

RECIPES

Fresh Corn Fritters—Mix together two cupfuls of green corn scraped from the cob, the yolks of two eggs, well beaten; pepper and salt to season, half a teaspoonful of baking powder, sifted with a half cupful of flour, and the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Add enough milk to make a soft batter. Mix thoroughly and fry by spoonfuls in deep fat.

Stewed Green Tomatoes—Trim and slice enough green tomatoes to make a quart. Cook until soft, without liquid, and thicken with a beaten egg and half a cupful of crumbs. Season with butter, pepper and salt. Two tablespoonfuls of rice may be cooked with the tomatoes.

Omelet With Shrimps—Carefully crack eight fresh eggs in a bowl add half a gill of cream, half a teaspoonful of salt and three saltspoonfuls of pepper. Beat for two minutes. Cut twelve cooked shrimps into quarter-inch pieces, place in a frying pan with one tablespoonful of melted butter, and fry for three minutes. Drop in the eggs, mix with a fork for two minutes, let rest for half a minute, fold up in omelet shape, let rest for a minute, then turn onto a hot dish, pour a cream sauce around and serve.

Cantaloupe Bavarian Cream—Cover 1-2 box of gelatin with 1-2 cup of cold water and let stand for 1-2 hour; dissolve over hot water. Whip 1 pint of cream to a stiff froth, turn into basin, add 1-2 cup of pulvreised sugar, a pinch of salt, a teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon sherry and the gelatin. Stir from the bottom toward the top until it begins to foam a little, add 1-4 cup candied fruit and continue stirring until the cream forms. Turn into a mold previously wet with cold water and stand away to harden. Serve with lady fingers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pleased at Work of Officials.

Dear Editor: In your paper of Aug. 21, a Danielson news item entitled, Raids hereabouts and in the town of Plainfield, is not entered as a "Special to the Bulletin," we wonder why the Danielson correspondent should take the liberty to voice the views of the voters of the town of Plainfield, or predict, the outcome of fall election.

The 18th Amendment is a part of the Constitution of the United States, why should Connecticut with the help of "Little Rhody" try to modify it.

Rum running is a crime. This state has laws to punish criminals. I am glad that law is being enforced.

All right minded residents of Plainfield are glad also, and thank the state and other officers that they are finally bringing to justice these criminals.

Yours respectfully,
Mrs. Minnie E. Ladd.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. John H. Finley, who is mentioned as a possible successor to Col. George Harvey as United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, has had an interesting career since he graduated at Knox College, in 1887, and since he got his doctor's degree at John Hopkins University. After completing his studies he was called to New York city, and for three years served as secretary of the State Charities Aid Association. Then he went to Knox College for a seven-years' term as president. Princeton then called him to a chair of politics, and he accepted and taught for three years, incidentally becoming an intimate friend of Grover Cleveland, whose formal, definite biography he wrote. From 1903 to 1913, Dr. Finley was the administrative head of the College of the City of New York. Then he was called to Albany to take charge of the State Department of Education. He is a poet, a devotee of walking as "a fine art," and a clever afterdinner speaker.

Stories That Recall Others

An Apt Pupil.

Frances, a newcomer to the neighborhood, found enjoyment in watching the games of the other youngsters. She was particularly interested in Mary Ann, one of its youngest members, who was more eloquent than refined. The game of tag progressed, and Mary Ann yelled lustily to David "Beat it kid, beat it."

An hour later, Frances was called in to get ready for bed, she smiled naively at her mother and said, "Say kid, beat it upstairs and get me a wash rag."

As Others Saw Her.

After explaining the importance being able to describe accurately, a sixth grade teacher asked each pupil to bring to class next day a description of some member of the class. One pupil decided that she would describe her teacher, and submitted the following: "She is about 20 years old and she is tall and fat. She has red hair which is always put up neat. She has chestnut color eyes, which are always seeing what is going on. She has long feet and large hands. She is about five and one half feet tall. She has a decided mouth. She has pretty cheeks which have roses on each side of them.

"She is a very lady-like girl. She is always nice to you if you will be nice to her. She has a very graceful disposition. She always wears a different dress to school. She goes to visit her mother every holiday. She has an awful look on her face when she gets mad."

CHILD TRAINING

Do You Appreciate Your Children?

By Helen Gregg Green.

I happened to be chatting at my neighbor's across the way, when her little daughter Hilda, and her niece, a year older, came home from school.

"Look at my report, Aunt Maybelle," said Marie, thrusting her report at her aunt.

"And where is yours, daughter?" Hilda's mother demanded.

"Oh darling, don't call me 'daughter,'" evaded Hilda.

Then coaxing the child's report card from her, the mother began to scrutinize it.

"I suppose you've disappointed me again," she exclaimed, while Hilda stood pulling nervously at her little handkerchief.

"Why is it," the mother asked, "that one member of the family has all the brains? Oh Hilda, this is too disheartening!" she added.

"But look, Mrs. Field," begged Hilda, handing me the report, "Don't you think my art grade is good?"

It was excellent; and so was her music grade, both of which the mother seemed to have ignored.

A few day's later I met Hilda's teacher.

"How is my little neighbor, Hilda, getting along at school?" I inquired.

"Well" the teacher hesitated, "I don't know. There's something wrong. Some one is killing that child's spirit. I can't fathom it. She has a beautiful voice, quite the loveliest in the room, but the other day I noticed she was not leading the children in singing as usual. That afternoon I called her to me, as she was washing the board. I asked, "Why is it, dear, that my little girl hasn't been singing lately?" And to my surprise she began crying, "I can't sing. All I do is to wish I could get grades like Marie's."

I said, "Oh, I thought so!"

And Miss Reid seeing I was interested, continued.

"Poor little child! She has tried so hard, and she does good work in school. As for her cousin Marie, she is a brilliant child, but she is not a lovable one. I had several unfortunate experiences with her, while Hilda," her brown eyes danced, "is the pride of my heart. She has, oh, so much personality."

And then I told her the little incident of the report.

"Ah, at last we have the answer. Well, I don't need to go down town, anyway. I'm going to see Hilda's mother," she declared.

The next day my neighbor across the way came to see me,

"Oh, what a foolish mother I've been," she said, "breaking the spirit of my little girl. I am so grateful to her teacher for opening my eyes. I have learned there are other assets besides high grades. I guess—I—didn't appreciate my little girl."

And I thought, I wonder how many of us do appreciate our children."

STARK FAMILY HOLDS 28TH ANNUAL REUNION

The Stark family, represented by 24 members, met for their 28th annual reunion recently at the Shaw mansion, New London.

Things of interest presented for attention were the newly bound copies of the Stark year books, in two volumes, and containing the reports of the association since its beginning in 1895; a paper of the New London County Historical society containing a sketch of the schools of New London by the late Benjamin Stark, being an exchange for the Stark year book; a portrait of Sanford Billings Smith, a well known and well beloved teacher in New London for 30 years, beginning in 1838 as pioneer of the first public school in the city. He was seventh in line from Aron Stark, the Mystic settler of 1668. Also a letter from the Stark Brothers, nurserymen of Louisiana, Mo., and a printed speech delivered at the dedication of a monument at that place to a variety of apple acquired by C. M. Stark A. D. 1894, and by him renamed, introduced and disseminated throughout the apple world as "The Delicious Apple." This letter and speech were accompanied by a large size photograph of the monument.

Hours might have been spent tracing genealogies in the books containing a record of the birth and lineage of the descendants of Aron Stark, the Mystic settler. This was an elaborate piece of work by Historian Charles R. Stark and is highly appreciated. He also showed a large scrap book of historical and family interest.

The business meeting was called at 12 m. by the president, M. J. Stark. The meeting was opened with prayer by Charles R. Stark, followed by a salute to the flag and singing of the first two verses of America. The secretary's report followed. The treasurer's report showed a good balance in the treasury. The historian's report was of unusual interest.

The officers for the year were re-elected as follows: President, M. J. Stark, Hadlyme; first vice president, William G. Stark, Hartford; second vice president, S. E. Ackley, Chester; third vice president, Carleton F. Jewett, Lyme; secretary and treasurer, Mary F. Clark, New London; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. E. Ackley, Chester; hostess, Mrs. J. W. Dean, New London; historian, Charles R. Stark, until recently of Rhode Island, now of Newton Highlands, Mass.

At the close of the business meeting the friends gathered at 1 p. m. for dinner at the Old Huguenot house, 75 Coit street. Every arrangement was most happily provided.

A delightful feature of the occasion followed, a well prepared talk on Korea by Miss Marion Ely Stark, of Lyme, who has recently returned from a three years' service as teacher in Korea. She told of the language, dress, customs and progress of the Korean people, with many a humorous incident related.

NEW YORK PASTOR PREACHES AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. E. S. Holloway of New York, well known in this city, and a brother of J. P. Holloway of Otis street, preached at the Sunday services at the Central Baptist church in the absence of Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., the pastor. His topic at the morning service was Launch Out Into the Deep, and at the evening service he preached on The Five Jewels of Our Inheritance.

His sermon of Sunday night, in substance, was as follows: What is a will? You know, as well as I do, that a will is simply a document that expresses in writing the will or desire of a person living, that is to be probated after death, the goods to be distributed to the will among the selected group.

It is the same with Christ, although many men fail to grasp the fact and sometimes wonder why Christians follow him. Christ, while living, expressed His will and in the Bible are two wills, the Old Testament, the failure, men failing to grasp the truth; the New Testament, the new will of Christ. We know that before the provisions of a will can be carried out the maker must die. In death Christ gave His will to His people and when He arose again He became the administrator of the will He had made.

This will contains five choice jewels for us. They have for most part escaped notice, and these five are as follows: First, rest, for Christ has said, Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Second, peace, for again Christ has said, My peace I leave with you, peace I give unto you. Third, joy, for did not Christ say in His sermon that His desire was that His joy remain in His followers. Fourth, the overcoming life, taught by Christ when He said, in all these things, I will make you more than conquerors, through Him that loves us. Fifth, victory, promised by Christ.

These are the words in the will of Christ, rest, peace, joy, the overcoming life, victory.

How are we to receive these jewels in the will of Christ? A son benefits from the will of his father only when he makes himself known as the son, and we as children of God must be able to go before Him and say, I am Thy son and Thou hast promised these things, therefore I am here to claim them unto myself. There is but one way to pass from death into life and this is through the grace and faith of God, by partaking of the nature of God, to grow into His likeness.

That was the teaching of Christ in His sermon on the mount, that we pray for those who hate us or who do us harm, for by so doing we become like unto God, and it becomes a proof of our divine nature. Therefore there are two things to remember—prove your sonship, then present your claim.

ATTENDED FOURTH REUNION OF THE "26TH"

Twenty-five Norwich members of the 26th Regiment, C. A. C., A. E. F., attended the fourth annual reunion of the regiment held at Lake Kenosia, Danbury, Sunday, making the trip by automobile.

The day was ideal for the outing and for nearly 12 hours the boys of the old 26th lived again the days of '17 and '18 and old acquaintances were renewed. The committee in charge of the programme for the day had everything mapped out from athletics to eats and singing and the favorite among the 500 boys was "Yes, We Have No Corn—Willie." At the business meeting Sergt. George Knox of Bridgeport as unanimously elected president and a vote was passed to hold the 1924 reunion in Stamford, men from that city having extended the veterans an invitation to meet there for the fifth annual reunion.

Several fine speakers were heard, among them General Morris B. Payne, Colonel Morgensor and Major Metcalf and their remarks were listened to with great interest by the members. When the call for mess sounded a different picture was presented than in the days in the trenches and although the menu bore names familiar to the boys who had served on many battlefields of France, the meal was attacked with the same zest that spelled defeat for the Germans, the "line-up" being as follows:

Consomme a la Brest
Combination Salad a la Clermont Ferrand and Courson
Prime Ribs of Beef a la LaFerte
Mashed Potatoes a la Bar-le-Duc
Sweet Potatoes a la Charpentry
Corn on Cob a la Montfaucon
Relish a la Green Light District
Pickles a la Epernay
Olives a la Bois Hesse.
Bread—Boston, Rye. Wheat a la Geenee
Beverage a la Clery Sur Blaise
Ice Cream a la Romance
Coffee a la Louppy

SERVING TWO MASTERS IMPOSSIBLE, SAYS PRIEST

"No compromise, no half way, no neutral; God or Devil—take your choice," was the peroration of the brief but pointed sermon delivered by Rev. Myles P. Galvin at the 10.30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. It was the fourteenth Sunday after Pentecost, the gospel read in all the masses of the Catholic world being Matt. 6: 24-33, beginning "No man can serve two masters." The Almighty is a jealous God, satisfied with no divided service, abominating the lukewarm. It is impossible to serve Him and at the same time to serve Satan, said the preacher.

The devil, always the prince of liars, sets before men the ideal of selfish happiness, to be gained through wealth, ambition, lust, secured no matter how, his admonition "Have a good time in this world, for you do not know what will happen in the next." God, on the contrary, has taught man "Deny yourself; take up your cross daily and follow Me; be humble, patient, pure, charitable, honest." Satan's reward is promised wholly for this world. God has held out a two-fold reward, that of a contented conscience here and an eternity of bliss in His presence hereafter. He has given man free will to choose between service to Him and allegiance to Satan. Man himself must decide which is to be his master; he cannot serve both.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON MEETING AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

The regular Sunday afternoon meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. with a good number in attendance. The musical part of the programme was in charge of George Turner, assisted by Earl Sparks at the piano.

Walter N. Block spoke on the subject, The Church Needs the Support of the People Today as Much As It Did in Paul's Time. Following Mr. Block's talk two reels of motion pictures were shown, depicting The Church With the Overshot Wheel.

COMMERCIAL MEN HOLD OUTING AND BAKE

Norwich and New London commercial travelers enjoyed an outing and clambake Sunday at the drawbridge, King George being in charge of the bake, which was an usual an appetizing one. The members left during the morning and enjoyed a chowder at noon. Athletic events and a baseball game comprised the entertainment of the afternoon, the bake being served about 5 o'clock.

CHIMNEY FIRE ON WEST THAMES STREET

Engine Co. No. 4 and Squad A were called out at 11.17 o'clock Saturday morning for a chimney fire at the house owned by August Hilderbrand at 44 West Thames street, and occupied by Miss Nora Casey and George E. Klingman and family. The firemen made short work of the fire and no damage resulted.

Return from California.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Connor of 330 Washington street have returned to Norwich after a trip of nearly eight months which took them to the Pacific coast a good proportion of the time being spent at Hollywood. While in California they met a number of former Norwich people, all showing the deepest interest in their old home town and its changes and improvements, and all speaking most lovingly of its attractions, sending messages to their eastern friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Connor especially enjoyed their tour of the Canadian Rockies.

MANY NEW OPERATORS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Eight per cent. of 33,664 "new" operators licensed this year have been involved in 1923 motor vehicle accidents, it is disclosed by an examination of the records of the state motor vehicle department. Operators not holding a Connecticut license figured in 11 per cent. of the 9,000 accidents reported to date. In at least 50 per cent. of the accidents thoroughly experienced operators were involved.

Operators who have not held a Connecticut license for the previous year are required to pass a practical examination before they may be licensed in this state. Most of the applicants examined have never held a license, but there are many who have been licensed by other states

Eighty-five per cent. of the operators in Connecticut accidents this year were men and 15 per cent. women. The lower percentage of female drivers involved does not necessarily indicate a better average for that sex, as the percentage of women licensed is considerably less than that of men licensed. The exact ratio has not been definitely determined.

Examiners for the department have instructions not to pass any applicant for a license who fails to demonstrate complete control of his or her car under all circumstances. Failure to pass the examination are more numerous this year than ever before in the history of the department. Mental slenderness is carefully noted. Dope users, for instance are not permitted to hold licenses. By a co-operative system thrown into force the police authorities and other officials in possession of information of this character furnish the department with lists of drug addicts. The department has been able to eliminate most applicants having this weakness. In some instances, doctors' certificates are required by the department before a license is issued.

AT STATE CONVENTION OF LADIES AUXILIARY

Twenty-eight members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the A. O. H., headed by the New London county president, Mrs. Julia Brock of this city, attended the 38th annual convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians held at New Haven on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, over 700 delegates of state divisions being present.

The following officers were elected for the Ladies' Auxiliary: President, Mrs. Jennie C. Carroll, New Haven; vice president, Miss Eileen Mulligan, New Haven; secretary, Miss May Finnegan, Hartford; treasurer, Mrs. Minnie Crean, New Britain; chairman of Irish history, Mrs. Charles A. Jackson, Waterbury; state chaplain, Rev. Matthew J. Traynor.

The convention was one of the most successful ever held by the order in the state of Connecticut and many important business matters were discussed and action taken upon them. It was voted to hold the 1924 convention in Bridgeport and to revive the annual street parade which has always been a feature of the state gatherings. The local delegates will report on the convention at the next meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

GROTON FIRE CAUSES CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Groton, Aug. 26.—A fire occurred on Sunday evening when the home of Henry W. Baker of No. 14 Cottage street was threatened. The fire was confined to the upper part of the house, where it originated and it is believed started from defective wiring. Shortly before 9 o'clock neighbors sitting on the verands of their home observed the flames in the attic of the Baker house and knowing that the family was not at home, caused an alarm to be rung in from Box 16. Pioneer Hose company responded, finding the interior of the attic ablaze and it required nearly an hour to extinguish the flames. The damage will be considerable because of the water reaching the rooms in the two stories occupied by the family.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT PLAY CENTERS

The attendance at the recreation commission's play centers for the last week, as announced by Supt. Harold Anson Bruce, was 5,389. This was an increase of 1,635, a tremendous increase no doubt due to the crowds of children attracted to the play grounds through the daily programmes and wind up of inter-playground competitions. The past week was the banner week of the season, and is extremely gratifying to the members of the recreation commission, who have watched the gradual development of the new system instituted this season, with keen interest. PLAN PLAYGROUND EXHIBITION THIS WEEK

Supt. Harold Anson Bruce of the city recreation commission, has announced the inter-playground competitions for the week of Aug. 27th. This final week carries a programme involving the annual playground exhibition, which is scheduled to take place, weather permitting, at 6.30 p. m. on the Greeneville play grounds Thursday evening, Aug. 30th. In case of rain, the exhibition will be held at the same time the following day.

The programme for the playground demonstration has not been rehearsed as Supt. Bruce is not in favor of long rehearsed exhibitions, which are of no practical value. It is the daily work on the play centers which produces the results, and it is from the daily programme that the acts which will be demonstrated Thursday night will be taken.

Speaking of exhibitions the superintendent's attitude is that the final exhibition is naturally looked forward to with keen anticipation on the part of the children, on account of the championships, the applause and excitement and the general spectacular nature of the occasion. The public is apt to judge the success or failure of a playground's season, by a final day's exhibition, which is a mistake, as only a small part of the playground activities can be shown in any sort of an exhibition. The following programme should not cover more than one hour and thirty minutes, Thursday evening:

Event 1— (Boys), boxing and wrestling; 2, (boys), pyramid building and group games; 3, (girls), dodge and straddle ball championships finals; 4, (girls), archery; 5, (girls), folk dancing; 6, (boys and girls), field hockey; 7, (boys and girls), mass physical drill; 8 band concert.

The above programme will take place in all the play centers in the city recreation commission's department, and opportunity will be offered to spectators to get some idea of the playground children in action.

On Monday afternoon, starting at 2 p. m. the inter-playground final championships of the girls' department from every center, track and field athletics will be held at the Greeneville play center. Events will be as follows:

50-yard run, junior, 100-yard run, senior, 25 yard-run, midgets, 300-yard run, seniors and juniors, standing broad jump, seniors and juniors, running high jump, seniors and juniors, 8-pound shot put, seniors, midget 100-yard relay each runner to cover 25 yards, junior 400-yard relay, each runner to cover 100 yards; senior 880-yard relay each runner to cover 220 yards.

The boys' track and field championships will start in the evening of the 27th on the Greeneville center, when the junior events and preliminaries will be staged. On Tuesday afternoon, the 28th, the senior preliminaries will be held, followed at the evening session by the finals in all events. A busy week confronts the playground authorities and the playgrounds will close Aug. 31.

The programme for the boys' events will be as follows: 50-yard dash, juniors, 100-yard dash, seniors, running broad jump, running high jump, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, 8 pound shot and discus throw, midget relay, junior relay, senior relay, cross country (1 mile).

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK"?

COCK-FIGHTING was born with the cocks.

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now it has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world—all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way. A person half sick with bad stomach, dull and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the Pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has a good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear brain, bright eye, keen appetite, and full of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began correcting disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity — and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated as inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Out of the flivver factories in Detroit there are, without doubt, records that show accurately how many parts go into the making of a Ford, but the statisticians who compiled the records might have learned something Saturday night, had they been over at South Killingly to note how many pieces can be taken out of a flivver than put into them originally by the builders. This has to do with an automobile accident in which a nearly new coupe driven by Ira Peterson of Pawtucket, formerly of Dayville was about as badly wrecked as any car ever figuring in an accident hereabouts.

This machine with Peterson at the wheel was scooting down the steep grade at the top of the hill near South Killingly church when it clicked hiccoughs or somehow came in contact with another machine, then swerved and crashed into a Dodge touring car owned by Alpha E. Hedhead, of 17 Colfax street, Providence.

Considering the condition of the two machines after the accident, it appears almost miraculous that Peterson escaped with as little injury as he did and that the members of the party in Mr. Redhead's car came through with only a few scratches and bruises, a shaking up and a fright. Peterson was cut on the left temple by flying glass and sustained other minor cuts and bruises. He bled considerable before being given attention at the office of F. P. Todd here. Three stitches were taken to close the wound near his temple. Two other men who were riding with him in the coupe escaped with minor injuries. Following the accident Peterson was placed under arrest by State Officer A. W. Williams, who investigated the accident, and when presented in court he will be charged with driving recklessly.

Peterson's car was so badly wrecked that it looks ready for the junk heap. It rolled over in the smash and the body is absolutely runied. The front axles and wheels were torn off, radiator punctured, running boards and fenders torn off and curled up and the top crushed. The Dodge car was raked along the left side and generally battered and smashed. Both machines were towed out of the highway to a grass plot near the store and left there all night. Peterson is said to have been driving at a fast clip when the accident occurred.

Relatives and friends were at Pitchburg last Thursday to witness the religious ceremony at which Miss Katherine Moran was received into the order of Presentation Sisters and at which ceremony she took the white veil. In religion, Miss Moran will have the name of Sister Mary Regis. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Moran, of Brooklyn and a graduate of Killingly High school, class of 1915. Before entering the convent a few months ago Sister Mary Regis was employed at the office of the Putnam Light and Power company and prior to that in the office of the People's Light and Power company of Danielson. She is very well known here and in Putnam and many friends wish her every happiness in the religious life.

Throngs in the business section Saturday afternoon, when there were many out of town shoppers here for Dollar Day, were startled when a cry sent Chief John McFarland hustling toward Buster's Shoe shining establishment in the basement of the Attawaugan hotel to render aid to Joseph St. John, 73, who collapsed while having his shoes cleaned and died before aid could be summoned for him. Mr. St. John is a native of Canada. He had come up town, it is understood, with the intention of taking a bus ride over to Providence and appeared to suffer a heart attack, which was forecasted only by brief and not very startling symptoms. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy, and later was conveyed to the home of Mr. St. John's daughter on Dyer street.

Saturday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy on Furnace street funeral services for William C. Long were conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the Pentecostal church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers.

At all the masses at St. James' church Sunday Rev. John Roux, M. S., made his usual announcements relative to the reopening of St. James' parochial school, which will resume sessions Tuesday of next week. Father Roux called the attention of the parishoners who have children of school age to their obligation as Catholics to send their children to parochial school, unless exempted from so doing for good and sufficient reasons, of which reasons the bishops of the diocese is sole judge.

George Alvord, democratic member resentative of the second voting district of the board of selectmenand a resident in the town, his home being in Dayville, has summoned his candidacy for renomination at the democratic caucusto be held soon. Mr. Alvord made a remarkable showing when elected for his second term at the annual town meeting last year. This support accorded at the polls and the fact that he is being urged to remain in office, leads to his decision to allow the presentation of his name again this year. Mr. Alvord is the only democratic member of the board of selectmen in Killingly and the only one of his party to date to announce his candidacy for a place on the board during the coming year.

Before Justice Frank M. Bedard at a session of court held in the town of Brooklyn Saturday afternoon August Perquilla, who lives on one of the Scarborough farms, so-called, in the town of Brooklyn, was fined $35 and costs, a total of $89.52, on a charge of keeping with intent to sell. A second chargeof reputation was not pressed. Prosecution of Perquilla followed a raid in which 218 bottles of home brewed beer were seized, at his place, about ten days ago. Perquilla was represented in court by Judge W. Penner Woodward.

An incident of the Saturday night activities in Danielson of special interest was one in which some unidentified woman was struck by a motor car and knocked down while she was attempting to cross the street opposite the Windham County National bank. The woman was assisted to her feet by Harry W. Clarke, and declaring she was not hurt and went her way. So, too, went the driver of the car, and Sunday the police were without the name of the woman and the name of the driver of the car that struck her.

Six Rhode Island men riding in a touring car were pinned beneath it, Sunday afternoon, when it overturned on the state highway just east of South Killingly when the driver to avoid striking anothr car turned out sharply, sent the machine up the bank and then experienced the sensation of having it overturn. The men escaped without any serious injury, although it would appear to those who saw the car after the wreck that all might have been killed in the affair. Scores of machines operating in the heavy Sunday traffic halted near the wreck.

At Brooklyn in the interest of the public library, an affair is to be held to raise funds. Articles such as are offered in rummage bazaars is to be collected at the library.

Charles Rapp and Percy Brown are among the members of the 56th Coast Artillery from this section who have been in Danbury for the annual reunion of the organization.

Miss Ida Portelance of Providence is the guest this week of Miss Margaret Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head and children of Winsted were guests over Sunday of Michael Head and family.

The community hospital campaign in Westerly comes to a close tonight (Monday) with a big dinner in the state armory, to be attended by all the workers and committee members. The warden and deputy sheriff were called upon to settle one dispute. Manager Babe Ruth Shea received a gorgeous bouquet of sunflowers and a few other colors. The parade preceding the game started from Finn block, and was led by Ralph Wilbur with a snare drum and Earl Hiscox beating the big bass drag, carried by James Dolan. Four single men carried on their shoulders a box draped in black, labeled as the last resting place of the married men. The rest of the procession ambled along carrying toy balloons. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewart and was born in Dunse, Scotland, May 24, 1846. He has lived in this country fifty years and has been employed in Aspinook bleachery for twenty years. Mr. Stewart was a member of the Grand Lodge fo Scotland, No. 268, joining in 1868. He treasured very highly the Masonic apron and certificate given him in Scotland, and never transferred his membership to this country.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have been married fifty-seven years, and during that time have never been separated. Mr. Stewart belonged to the Church of England. He is the last member of his family. He is survived by his wife, and a son, John T. Stewart, and by two grandchildren, Mrs. Carl Benjamin and Miss Irene Stewart, of Jewett City.

Bernard McKenna, 6, son of John and Regina Bedard McKenna, died in Backus hospital Saturday. He had been taken there after six weeks' illness and operated upon three weeks ago, with little hope of his recovery. He is survived by his parents and two brothers, John and James. The father was in a serious condition Saturday night as a result of the child's death, but Sunday was better. The family has the sympathy of the community in their great sorrow.

At St. Mary's parish carnival, the fish pond was in charge of John Topax.

Miss Agnes Shea has returned, after a wek spent in Hempstead, L. I., and Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Whiting and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Olson were guests recently at Ernest Brang's home in Wellesley Hills, Mass.

Miss Mary Bicknell spent Sunday in Hallville.

Supt. and Mrs. F. H. P. Clement and daughter are in Manchester, N. H., for a visit.

The movies at Finn Opera House are to be conducted under a new management. Finn and Barnett will take charge and Gilbert Miner is to be the operator. The booth is to be enlarged and another machine installed, making two in use, with no wait between reels. There will be other improvements to the curtain. The prices remain the same.

PLAINFIELD

W. H. Wells of South Norwalk has returned home after spending several weeks with his niece, Mrs. S. B. Vallette, of Plainfield.

AUCTION

SALE AT PUBLIC AUCTION AT LAUREL GLEN, CONN.

Several tracts of land together with a wood lot and with a dwelling house, reservoir, dam, water wheels, and other mill improvements thereon, lying in the towns of North Stonington and Voluntown, Connecticut, and being all of the property of the Laurel Glen Line Company, Incorporated, of North Stonington, Connecticut, the land estimated to total seventy (70) acres. For many years there stood a factory building on the premises which was successfully operated, until forced to suspend by the burning down of the building a short time ago. The site is an ideal one for almost any kind of operations involving plentiful water supply and other advantages, the natural resources being nearly inexhaustible and the improvements very numerous. Among other things there is the Laurel Glen Dam built of stone with cement top, about one hundred (100) feet wide and thirteen and one half (13 1-2) feet high. Reinforced cement Penn Stock, Three Hundred and Sixty (360) feet long running to the mill site, three (3) feet in diameter inside measurement. Twenty-three and one half (23 1-2) feet fall from top of dam to water wheels. Double water wheels set in wheel pit that can be made ready to run at a very small expense and produce about seventy-five (75) h. p. If new water wheels were installed the horse power would be greater. There is a forty-two (42) horse power boiler all set at the mill site believed by the Boiler Inspector to be in good condition. This company owns the controlling flowing rights of the Laurel Glen property located in North Stonington and the controlling flowing rights of the Green Falls Reservoir located in Voluntown. This dam is one hundred (100) feet wide, thirty-nine (39) feet deep and is built of solid masonary with gate valve in bottom to control supply. There is one cottage house located at Laurel Glen recently remodeled and all in good condition. There is a wood lot of about sixty (60) acres included in this property. The ponds are ideal for bathing and fishing; and all the premises are much suited to hunting, there being plenty of game. The premises are located eight and three-quarters (8 3-4) miles from Westerly and three and three-quarters (3 3-4) miles from Ashaway, R. I., and may be reached by improved highways. Parties wishing to see the site call Mr. C. P. Eccleston at his office on Oak Street, Westerly, and be taken to the property.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"It Pays To Advertise"

There are skeptics who claim that newspaper advertising does not pay. Overwhelming proof that it does was shown by the unprecedent success of the National Knitting contest recently held by the Fleisher Yarns.

A large room at the Fleisher factory, over 100 feet square was piled high with the entries. It took a staff of office workers weeks to open the packages, sort and classify them for judges. The winners are announced in today's advs and by the stores selling Fleisher yarns. They will also be broadcasted by radio and by special gravure featuring the pictures of the winning garments and winners.

Advertisements for the contest was placed by Street and Finney, Fleisher advertising agents, in over 600 newspapers in every state in the union and in five magazines. During the nine weeks of the contest which closed June 9, there was nation-wide interest in the knitting contest. Newspapers cooperated with the local stores which in many held knitting contests of their own. This cooperation between advertisers and newspapers proved of mutual benefit.

Almost as soon as the advertisements appeared, entries began to come into the Fleisher office, the number increasing daily. For two weeks before the date of closing, and for days after four huge trucks laden with knitted garments arrived each morning as the first delivery, and smaller lots came through the day. The entries disclose garments of rare beauty both in color and design, as well as others which are amusing and grotesque.

That the National Knitting Contest has been one of democratic appeal is proved by the fact that rich and poor, men and women, from all walks of life have sent in entries, hoping to win one of the $11,000 cash prizes. The judges were Miss Helen Koues, fashion editor, Good Housekeeping, Miss Martha M. Dodson, associate editor, Ladies' Home Journal, Miss Christine A. Ferry, needlework editor, Modern Priscilla, Miss Carmel White, fashion editor, Vogue and Miss Charlotte Boldtmann, fashion and crochet editor, Woman's Home Companion.

For St. Patrick's parish lawn fete Father Guerriero, chairman, Wm. J. Fitzgerald and Mrs. J. J. Casey, in charge of the canvassers, are preparing some big surprises.

Paramount Special at the Strand Theatre.

William de Mille's latest Paramount production "Only 38," is sure to have a highly successful premier at the Strand Theatre today.

Mrs. Stanley (Lois Wilson), a widow of thirty-eight, whose youth was extinguished by her hide-bound husband, on the latter's death decides to get as much joy out of life as possible and so encourages the attentions of Prof. Giddings, played by Elliott Dexter. Her daughter, Lucy (May McAvoy) is in love with Sidney Johnson, a young college student. Instead of the emphasis being laid on the youthful love story, it is laid upon that of the mother. Her struggle for happiness is played against a background of opposition from her children. At length yielding to the children's ideas, she renounces her youth and love. But the daughter's own love affair opens her eyes and paves the way to a happy conclusion for both.

The feature players in "Only 38" include May McAvoy, Lois Wilson, Elliott Dexter and George Fawcett. In the support are Robert Agnew, Jane Keckley, Lillian Leighton, and others. The story is full of heart interest, and there is a clever mingling of pathos an dcomedy throughout. The love story of a woman who feels that she is old, played in contrast to the love story of her daughter, is most appealing. "Only 38" is a picture every man can see with profit and complete enjoyment.

The comedy is another special with Buster Keaton in his latest comedy creation called "The Love Nest" which is one continuous laugh. A news weekly will close the bill.

Grand Theatre.

Alfred Lunt and Mimi Palmeri, the two new discoveries of the screen are coming to the Grand theatre today and Tuesday in Distinctive Pictures Corporation picture of Harold MacGrath's wonderful story of China and the South Seas. "The Ragged Edge." Alfred Lunt, known as one of the handsomest actors in America, is heralded as a new idol of the silver sheet. With him is the beautiful Mimi Palmeri, whose transition from fashion model to movie stardom is one of the most-talked of events of the year.

Harmon Weigh directed the picture from an adaption by Forest Halsey. The story is that of "two young fools." Their adventures in the old city of Canton, China, and subsequently in the South Sea islands are as swiftly moving as any you have ever seen. The two people are runaways who are cast together; one saves the other from "The Ragged Edge," and brings to herself the joys of an everlasting love and devotion.

"The Ragged Edge" is the second feature to be distributed by Goldwyn under the new contract between Distinctive and that company.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

FINED $200 AND COSTS FOR VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAW

In the city court Saturday morning the case of state vs. Hormisdas Turcotte came up for violation of the prohibition law. Turcotte entered a plea of guilty. Attorney Kelly pleaded for leniency and referred to the statement from the bench last week that first offenders would be given a jail sentence. His client, he said, is the father of five children and has a wife to support; also he intended to leave the business and go back to his work as a painter, his old trade.

In briefly reviewing the facts in the case, Judge Libby said that in the case of first offenders general situations would call for jail sentences, but on the other hand there might be existing conditions that would make jail sentences unnecessary and a hardship, such as the case in hand. The court then imposed a fine of $200 and costs, the sum of $209.68 being paid by the accused.

The case of James Kalo charged with selling liquor was continued until next week under bonds. Four continued liquor cases were also continued until next week.

Benjamin Spak aged 21 years, a native of Russia, charged with theft of $135 in money and a watch, pleaded not guilty. Charles L. Stewart, public defender, represented Kela and said that Spak and the owner of the money and watch had been good friends and were such until the money was missed. Then a complaint was made to the police. The case went over to the higher court bonds being fixed at $200.

Spak could not get bonds and went to jail.

It is said that he has a wife and six children to provide for and that they will become dependent upon the town while Spak is in jail awaiting trial.

NORWICH MUSICIANS DISCUSS THEATRICAL SITUATION

A special meeting of Local No. 285, American Federation of Musicians, was held Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in their rooms to discuss the theatrical situation and the $40,000 suit which has been brought against them by Abe Davison, owner and manager of the Broadway and Strand theatres.

The meeting was in charge of President Walter W. Lang and was a lengthy one, matters pertaining to the situation in Norwich being discussed. Whatever action was taken at the meeting was not divulged by the officers of the union Sunday but it is believed that plans are being made to bring about a change in the situation that now exists between the musicians and the theatres. Questions asked union members, brought no replies as it was stated that no change in the situation had resulted from the meeting of Sunday.

Mr. Robinson purchased the Star car Saturday and, as the police discovered, was using the numbers from his old Ford machine on the new car, although the transfer of registration had not been completed. He was ordered to appear in court to answer to a charge of violation of the motor vehicle law.

CHARGED WITH ACTUAL SALE OF LIQUOR

Charles Lavonto was arrested at his place on Water street Saturday night by the local police on a charge of violation of the liquor law. The police are in possession of a whiskey flask containing about an ounce of liquor which Lavonto is charged with selling. Lavonto was released on bonds of $500 for appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

Peters, who had been a marine in the service of the government and who, Ward claims, attempted to blackmail him. BOY KILLED IN WATERFORD BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 26.—John W. Glorig, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aram H. Glorig of Station 14, Waterford was fatally injured late Saturday afternoon when struck by an automobile, owned and operated by George Damon, a carpenter, of Poquonoc Bridge, near the home of the boy. Damon was arrested by state police officers pending a finding of Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, and was held in bonds of $1,000 for hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton next Wednesday night. The father of the boy became surety on Damon's bond.

The boy was playing in front of his home, accompanied by the family dog and when the animal went to the highway the boy tried to call the dog to the yard. The boy ran into the road to get the animal. As he did so the automobile, a Ford, with Damon driving from his work in New Haven on his way home, came along. Before Damon could reduce the speed of the machine, the car struck the child, the boy sustaining a fractured skull. Damon picked the child up and placing him in the machine started for Lawrence hospital, but the boy died on the way. The dog was killed also. State police officers were sent to the location of the accident and pictures of the site of the fatality were taken and witnesses interrogated. That Damon is not responsible for the death of the boy is apparent, the father of the child becoming surety on Damon's bond for appearance in court. The fatality occurred close to the location where a machine, owned and driven by Charles H. Humphrey, proprietor of the Standard garage, overturned two years ago, killing John Cairns, at that time local representative of the National Cash Register company.

WHEN BABY CARRIAGE IS MOTOR VEHICLE

Children's vehicles propelled or drawn by any power other than muscular must be registered and carry regular automobile number plates when used on Connecticut highways, according to an interpretation of the law by the state motor vehicle department.

The interpretation was made necessary by the fact that several such vehicles equipped with small gasoline motors have been acquired by Connecticut parents for their children within the last few months. The department holds that they can come within the definition of a motor vehicle notwithstanding the fact that such of them as have been brought to the attention of Commissioner Stoekel are built more along lines of a toy than a vehicle for real utility.

Their use by children in this state, except on private grounds, has been practically precluded by a further interpretation of the law to the effect that only duly licensed operators may be permitted to drive them. The state law restricts the issuance of operators' licenses to persons over 18 years old and prohibits the operation of motor vehicles by persons between 16 and 18 years old except when accompanied by a licensed operator, while it entirely witholds the right to operate from persons under 16 years old.

Bishop Bristol's text was Acts 17:18. "And he preached unto them Jesus." Paul was a one-idea man. He did not have a lot of quail shot ideas, but was a big cannon ball idea—Jesus Christ. He is the whole gospel. All power resides in His personality, not in philosophy, nor dogma. Paul's divine Jesus is no myth.

Among others on the platform, were Revs. F. Gray, of Rockville; Jerome Greer, Thompsonville; Mr. Perry, Tolland; A. Stanley Muirhead, Willimantic; J. M. Von Deck, Oneco; J. G. Sallis, Mystic; F. E. Rev. Frank Kingdon, of Boston, delivered a strong sermon on giving everybody a square deal, not forgetting God. His text was Revelation 21.16. The city lieth four square. He urged his hearers to give a square deal to themselves, their neighbors and to God.

At six o'clock an Epworth League service was held in the tabernacle, conducted by the Norwich district president, N. B. Burton, of Putnam.

Bishop Bristol preached the closing sermon of the camp meeting at 7 p. m., in the tabernacle, before a large congregation.

Of interest to member and friends of the Mohegan Trail Circuit league, will be the proceedings of the executive council meeting of the Circuit society Saturday afternoon. Plans were laid for a second annual outdoor outing at Uncasville, Saturday afternoon, September 8. Just a real good time for everymember of every league. The regular meeting of November the first Saturday afternoon and evening in November, will be a departure from customary meetings in that the afternoon will be a convention at which the circuit contest for the coming year will be inaugurated, and everything possible done to bring out new ideas and methods for league work and develop helpful plans that can be used by all the leagues. Following this will be a social hour before the banquet. After the banquet and good fellowship hour, an evening program will be presented. It is hoped that the longer meeting of both afternoon and evening will be one of the finest things yet held by the Mohegan Trail Circuit League, in that it will allow a longer time to develop stronger working plans, and go a step farther in cementing friendships.

The meeting is to be held with the Epworth league of the Methodist church in Mystic.

SAILORS ARRESTED AT NEW LONDON HAD SUIT CASE CONTAINING WINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 26.—Joseph Farina, employed at the Ninigret house, Crescent beach, taken into custody on Friday night by County Investigator William E. Jackson and State Policeman Thomas Henry, charged with transporting liquor, was before Justice of the Peace Warren B. Burrows in Waterford Saturday afternoon. The case was continued to Sept. 8 as neither the prosecution nor the defense was prepared to go on with the trial. A bond of $10,000 for Farina's appearance in court was ordered and was furnished by Rosario and Gaspari, brothers of the accused. Attorney Thomas E. Troland, counsel for the accused, informed the court that he anticipated the demanding of a $20,000 bond, which he declared was an injustice but that it made no difference what amount of bail was required, it would be furnished. Considerable difficulty was experienced by the state in selecting a justice before whom Farina would be presented and it was not until noon that it was decided to have Attorney Burrows, who assists States Attorney Hull in trial cases in the superior court, fix the bond of the accused.

As the date for the trial of Farina is set for the second day following the convening of the criminal term of the superior court, it is understood that State's Attorney Hull intends to bring all alleged liquor violators into court and have them tried by that tribunal. The penalty for transporting is not more than $200 or thirty days in jail, or both. The justice courts have the power to impose this penalty and in has been done in some cases to the extent of the fine being imposed, but not the sentence.

Nostrano Facchini, 72 Goshen street arrested several days ago in Waterford by Prohibition Enforcement Agent H. W. Avery and Sergeant Samuel Hick, when Facchini was detected with a truck of 50 five-gallon containers of alcohol, furnished sureties on his bond of $10,000 Saturday night and was liberated from the county jail. The bondsmen are four friends of Facchini.

County Investigator William E. Jackson and Prohibition Enforcement Agents H. W. Avery and William Congdon continued their search for violators of the liquor law Saturday night. The officers endeavored to obtain evidence against Arthur Messer and his wife, both, the officers claim, reputed to be rum-runners and sellers of liquor. The officers went to a room at the Crocker House occupied by Messer and made a thorough search of the place, but were not rewarded with any evidence being obtained. The officers then went to the Messer home on Summer street and searched the house. Mrs. Messer would not admit the agents, who forced a door. They found only two bottles of rye essence. This was seized and, the agents declare, will be sufficient probably, to cause Mrs. Messer's apprehension. When the officers left the Messer home, Mrs. Messer followed them to the street and shouted uncomplimentary remarks at them.

Saturday evening, John Shea and Leslie King, soldiers from Fort Wright, appeared at the Salvation Army lodging house, much the worse for overindulgence in liquor. One of the soldiers carried a suit case so heavy that it was carried with difficulty. The clerk at the place informed the police that he suspected that the cases contained liquor and Shea and King were arrested charged with intoxication. When their case was opened at the police station it revealed twelve quarts of home made wine, of the variety manufactured in the Italian section of the city. The wine, which showed an alcohol percentage of 7, was taken in charge and the two soldiers were locked up. Sunday morning they were released when George H. Beck become their surety on a bonds of $25 each, for their appearance in the police court on Monday morning.

$250,000 ABSCONDER HELD IN DEFAULT OF $100,000 BOND

Joseph Marsino Was Arrested at the International Bridge at Laredo, Texas—Wanted in Warren, Mass., for Robbery of $213,000 in Securities From the First National Bank Last February—Wrecked the Niagara Insurance Company of Buffalo—Had Meteoric Career in Chicago.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 27—Joseph Biata, alias Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Chicago and in Warren, Mass., on charges of embezzling $213,000 from the First National bank of Warren last February, was arrested in Laredo, Tex., today by department of justice agents.

Biata disappeared about Feb. 1, and department of justice agents believe he has been in Mexico since that time. He is charged with being the "arch conspirator" in the theft of nearly $250,000 in cash and bonds.

The prisoner was taken as he crossed the International bridge. He was arraigned before the United States commissioner on charges of theft and his bond was fixed at $100,000.

He had grown a beard and has adopted other alleged measures of disguise, but he admitted the identity as Joseph Biata of Warren and Joseph B. Marcino of Chicago, according to officers. He is being held in the Webb county jail pending removal orders. Officers from Chicago are expected to come for him.

Wanted in Warren, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 27.—Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Warren for the robbery of $213,000 in securities from the First National bank last February, was arrested early last week in Mexico City, according to information received here from Assistant United States Attorney John V. Sullivan.

Held on some local charge there, he was released and later rearrested on charges preferred by the foreign relations committee. He was then ordered surrendered at the border, where he was taken under armed guard, and turned over to American authorities at Laredo, Tex., by the Mexican officials.

Marcino obtained control of the Warren bank last February. It is alleged, with Abraham Goldman of Chicago, his father-in-law, and Frank L. Taylor, who was appointed president of the bank. After the robbery of $213,000 in securities from the Warren bank, Taylor was arrested, confessed to a share in it, and is now serving a three years' sentence.

Wrecked Insurance Company.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The arrest at Laredo, Tex., today of Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Chicago and Warren, Mass., on charges of absconding with bonds valued at $250,000 from national banks opens the final chapter in the story of the wrecking of the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo. Control of the company was transferred to the state insurance department last February after its financial structure had crashed as a sequel to Marcino's disappearance.

Marcino was not a director of the Niagara Life, but was alleged to have manipulated it through dummy directors, one of them being Frank L. Taylor, $50 a week president of the Warren bank, who was alleged to have been the chief tool by means of which Marcino controlled the Niagara Life Insurance company. Taylor was a director of the company and was said to have charge of the Bison Holding company, which controlled the Niagara stock, and which Marcino purchased.

Career in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Joseph B. Marcino, arrested today at Laredo, Tex., in connection with the disappearance of $213,000 worth of bonds from the First National bank of Warren, Mass., had a meteoric rise here from barber to banker and financial heights.

Nine years ago he was a barber. Then he got a job with an insurance company, and a short time afterwards organized the Public Life Insurance company, which went out of business. Later he organized the Roma Investment company and Commonwealth Insurance company, then with others secured control of numerous small banks in Iowa and Illinois. He was indicted in connection with the failure of some of these institutions, but jumped his bail.

He married a daughter of Abraham Goldman, wealthy Chicagoan, and then with the aid of capital said to have been furnished by his father-in-law, transferred his operations to the east, where he secured an interest in the Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Philadelphia, which failed, and then in the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo, which went into receivership.

Going to Warren, Mass., he succeeded, with Goldman's aid, in gaining control of the First National bank of Warren, and Frank L. Taylor, a Chicago clerk and former railroad brakeman, was installed as head of the institution. Marcino disappeared last February, along with bonds held by the bank valued at $213,000. At about the same time Taylor vanished from Warren.

Taylor was arrested in Chicago, where he claimed he came to notify Goldman that his son-in-law had left with the bank's resources. Goldman and Taylor claimed they knew nothing of Marcino's flight with the bonds, but Taylor is serving a three year prison sentence.

ANOTHER NEW YORK NIGHT LIFE MURDER MYSTERY

New York, Aug. 27.—Yesterday morning John H. Sutphen, a private secretary, was found dead on a lounge in his apartment on Central Park West. He was in his shirtsleeves. The ashes in his pipe were still warm.

"Alcoholism" muttered the medical examiner, but nevertheless ordered an autopsy performed today. It revealed poison in the stomach and tonight the police decided they were confronted with another murder mystery involving night life in New York.

Search was begun immediately for two flashily dressed young women who were in Sutphen's apartment when the medical examiner arrived. The police also started checking up at all drugstores in the vicinity on sales of the drug from which death resulted.

The police learned of Sutphen's death through a telephone call. The two women and a man who gave his name as Robert C. Spoan were in the apartment when the medical examiner arrived.

Sutphen's body lay at ease on the couch. In the hand was clutched the pipe.

A cabinet holding a varied supply of liquor was found in the suite but there were no signs of a drinking bout having been held there. No glasses, phial or tablets were found in the apartment, and for this reason the police this afternoon dismissed the theory of suicide.

Assistant Medical Examiner Gonzales, who at first believed death was due to excessive drinking, said he had been told by Spohn that Sutphen had been treated recently by a doctor for alcoholism. Dr. Gonzales also said he had been informed Sutphen had been on a Saturday night party which included at least two other men.

According to the medical examiner, the two women he found in the apartment were sisters. He said he had not taken their names, because he had thought there was nothing suspicious about the death, nor had he inquired about details of the party.

Sutphen was 36 and married.

Dr. Morris Kahn, who, according to information given the medical examiner, was the doctor who had treated Sutphen for alcoholism, declined to discuss the case over the telephone tonight.

FRENCH FORCES MINING COAL AT DORTMUND

Dortmund, Aug. 27.—The occupation authorities today began to mine coal themselves for the first time since the occupation began, last January.

French forces took over the five shafts of the Victor mine, near this city, yesterday and delivered the ultimatum to the miners that, either they continue to work for the occupiers or the mine would be completely taken over by the French for exploitation.

The ultimatum expired at noon today when the bulk of the German personnel decided not to continue and 200 French miners took over all emergency work. The German pumping crew and foremen, however, declared their willingness to work for the French and several miners asked permission to remain. Negotiations for their retention are continuing.

The Victor mine belongs to a private company headed by Peter Klockner, and has a productive capacity of from one million to one million five hundred thousand tons of coal annually. The cokery of 350 ovens which was also occupied for exploitatin has an annual capacity of about seven hundred thousand tons.

The personnel of the plant numbers five thousand, including both officials and workmen.

$500 AWAITS INVENTOR OF NEW DANCE RHYTHM

New York, Aug. 27.—A satisfactory device to be worn by dancers to keep their heads in the proper positions and their bodies the correct distance apart is sought by the American society of teachers of dancing, and to this end prizes of $100, $50 an $25, were announced today at the opening of the society's 46th annual convention in the hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

With the fox trot and its variations holding forth almost exclusively on the dance floor nowadays, the society is also out for a new dance rhythm and is willing to pay $500 to its inventor, according to president R. W. Vizay, of Milwaukee. The one-step, half-step and what-no steps are officially to be discard, and Mr. Vizay says somebody should be able to devise a satisfactory five-step, seven-step or some other step to relieve the monotony.

The tendency as far as dancing teachers is concerned is toward simpler steps, interspersed with glides and "rests," in which the dancers come to a complete top for an instant, according to expressions at the meeting. There is to be no wiggling or movement of the body during the "rests" if the teachers have their way.

"Less noise and more melody," was the keynote of the convention sounded by Louis H. Chalif, of New York, first vice-president, who said the society would make a valiant effort this winter to restore the waltz to its popularity as "queen of the dances." Mr. Chalif made a plea for better music, saying that composers and dance orchestras could do more to purify the dance than could be accomplished by legislation.

AIRPLANES TO CARRY LIQUOR INTO THE YUKON

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 27.—A plan to get liquor into Yukon Territory, facing a dry winter because laws of the United States prohibit carrying intoxicant beverages across the 20-mile strip of the Alaska panhandle—by using airplanes is under consideration.

ACCIDENT TO A FRENCH PASSENGER AIRPLANE

London, Aug. 27.—A French passenger airplane crashed tonight near Maidstone. One passenger was killed and the pilot and nine passengers were seriously injured.

A. L. Delegates are To Visit the Ruhr

Had Been Received by President and Mme. Millerand —Now Bound for Brussels.

Rambouillet, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.).—With a taste of French hospitality in their palates and the fragrance of French democracy in their memories, the American Legion delegation headed by Colonel Alvin M. Owsley, the national commander, left here today after being received by President and Mme. Millerand and resumed their pilgrimage to Brussels, where they will attend the conference of the Interallied Veterans' federation.

In the grounds of the old feudal castle, flanked by its high forbidding towers, built by Francis the First, the French president and the first lady of France did their utmost to afford their American guests a comfortable afternoon, to chat with them as guest to host and to retain the simple dignity of an occasion such as is rarely offered to unofficial visitors.

Once inside the grounds, the Americans, came to "At you were!" and were ushered into the grand salon, where each was introduced by Sheldon Whitehouse, the American charge d' affaires. The French executive chatted amiably with each of the guests, Mr. Whitehouse acting as interpreter.

The conversation between President Millerand and Colonel Owsley naturally turned to the visit the Legionnaires are to pay to the Ruhr under the auspices of the French government. "You will be able," said the president, "to tell your people exactly what conditions are. France asks nothing except the unadulterated truth be reported. Friendly visitors are not required to let their feelings influence their judgment." This was the only near-political subject discussed.

Madame Millerand then joined the party, and after she had served tea she explained to Commander Owsley the interesting points of the castle, and the party strolled around the spacious grounds.

CONVENTION OF WOMEN LAWYERS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 27.—Nationally known women barristers were arriving here today for the first annual convention of the national association of women lawyers here tomorrow and Wednesday, preceding the convention of the American bar association, which opens Wednesday.

The early arrivals today include William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States. Mr. Taft, as chairman of the committee of judicial ethics, will submit that committee's report Wednesday.

The women's association heretofore has held annual banquets in New York.

John W. Davis, president of the American bar association, and former ambassador to England, declared today that he would not reply to the letter of Henry Brockenridge, former assistant secretary of war, protesting the appearance of the Earl of Brockenridge before the association because of his speech at Williamston, Mass., commenting upon the policies of Woodrow Wilson.

TWO WOMEN SHOT TO DEATH; REVOLVER BETWEEN THEM

Denver, Colo., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Roy McGlone, 28, wife of a Denver athletic director, and Miss Emma Vascovie, 19, an employe of a Denver hotel, were found shot to death in the bedroom of an apartment here today. A .32 calibre revolver lay between them, leading police to believe it a case of murder and suicide.

The later discovery of a pencilled note on the dressing table in the bedroom caused police to discount the murder-suicide theory. It was written apparently in a masculine hand and was blood besmeared. It read

"I kill him because I thought he too much of him. I want him to going me where I go. Goodby T am happing now.

'She not to.

Contracts covering one year's employment at the present scale have been prepared and will be offered to the new operators, Mr. O'Reilly said. He declared that results obtained in the recruiting thus far showed that the supply of operators was much larger than anticipated.

DISTURBANCE AT K. K. K. MEETING IN BINGHAMTON

A crowd that packed the square and overflowed into the streets was on hand when the first speaker attempted to make himself heard. He was hooted down. Klansmen sprinkled throughout the crowd were set upon when they applauded the few words that could be heard above the din, much of which was created by boys. There was a goodly showing of klansmen and they fought back when attacked.

GOVERNOR PINCHOT WARNS MINERS AND OPERATORS

Tells Parties to the Anthracite Industry's Quarrel That the Public is Losing Patience With Repeated Strikes and Suspensions—Addressed the Industrial Leaders Yesterday—Has Scheduled a Session With the Mine Operators' Representatives Today.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27 (By the A. P.)—Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania served notice on mine operators and miners' union officials today that the threatened suspension of anthracite mining September 1 could not be allowed, and then proceeded to enter upon what may be a lengthy effort at mediation of the controversy.

In executive session with the union spokesmen, Phillip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, and C. J. Golden, Rinaldo Capellini and Thomas Kennedy, its three district presidents in the anthracite region, the governor went over the demands which the union has made for increased wages, "check off" system of union dues collection and other things. He made no compromise propositions in his own behalf today, but scheduled a session with the coal mine operators representatives for tomorrow morning, and a second meeting with the union officers for tomorrow afternoon.

The governor made his preliminary address to the industrial leaders at a semi-public meeting in his capitol offices.

The anthracite industry's quarrel, the governor said, could not be a private one; a public, vitally interested, that wanted to see justice done to both employer and employe was nevertheless losing patience with repeated strike and suspensions.

"The public interest demands that this controversy shall be settled and that a suspension of mining shall be avoided," he continued "The thing is possible—and it must be done. Settlement means that neither side can get all it would like to have. But settlement of this dispute is absolutely necessary for the public safety and welfare. The public needs and must have coal, and I am entirely confident that the public is going to have it."

To the list of his unofficial advisers and helpers in the mediation attempt, Governor Pinchot tonight added the name of Bishop Michael J. Hoban, head of the Catholic diocese at Scranton, in the heart of the anthracite territory.

In dealing with the situation, the governor's speech emphasized the fact that he considered himself a "representative of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania." There was scarcely a mention of the conference held by him previously with President Coolidge, except in the statement that he had been informed he was not "running counter to federal wishes."

Along with the officials of the miners' union, directly invited to Harrisburg, there assembled in the city almost the full membership of the union's scale committee in the anthracite region. The union's full wage demand is for $2 a day increase in the pay of men employed by the day, and a 30 per cent increase in the piece rates per ton for mining coal.

COAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN NEW YORK TODAY

New York, Aug. 27.—Representatives of eleven Atlantic and New England states and of the District of Columbia arrived in New York tonight to discuss emergency measures for distribution of coal substitutes which would avert widespread suffering in the event of a suspension of anthracite mining on September 1.

These men, appointed as representativesby the governors of their respective states, go into conference tomorrow with federal fuel administrator Wadleigh of Washington and James C. Brydon, president of the bituminous operators' association.

Their first consideration will be the development of a program for dihtribution of soft coal throughout districks which were formerl entirely dependent on anthracite. A distribution plant was drawn up by Mr. Brydon, and approved by the bituminous operators at Atlantic City last July. It was understood, however, that Mr. Wadleigh, though approving the plan in general, had revised certain sections of it.

The states represented at the conference will be Maine, New Hampshire Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Among the governors who will attend the conference personally are Governor Templeton of Connecticut, Governor Cox, of Massachusetts; Governor Flynn, of Rhode Island; and Governor Proctor of Vermont. James W. Storrs, of Concord, will represent New Hampshire, and Andrew P. Lane will be the representative from Maine. The other six representatives had not registered at the offices of the port authority, where the conference will be held.

ELECTION IN IRELAND QUIET; TO COUNT VOTES TODAY

Dublin, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.)—The main feature of the day's polling in Dublin was the absolute quiet that prevailed over the city. The day differed from the ordinary bank holiday in the absence of entertainment and the empty streets, the scene recalling Dublin's workless days of the general strike. Tram cars were running but postal deliveries and collections were not made.

Reports from the country indicate a similar absence of excitement. In a few stations armed sentries were on duty but this was not general.

The counting of votes will begin in Dublin tomorrow morning as it will in most constituencies. Many of the results will be known Wednesday but the returns from Tipperary and other places are not expected until Friday.

It is believed that the government candidates were aided by a revelation recently made by President Cosgrave disclosing that the government just missed capturing a republican dispatch showing that the irregulars, whom he called the "little buccaneers," had formed a plot to kidnap him. The announcement attracted much attention.

PLANNING FOR REDUCTION OF THE FEDERAL TAX

The plan, Mr. Madden said today, is "concrete, simple and understandable," and if adopted will reflect an immediate reduction in taxation. Although he would not disclose details of his proposal it is understood, will suggest a system whereby savings in expenditures, will be immediately returned to the tax-payers.

All revenue measures are passed on by the ways and means committee, and Mr. Madden's plan will be submitted to that committee when congress meets.

5,000 BOY SCOUTS ARE IN SEARCH OF BABY M'KENZIE

New York, Aug. 27.—The host of detectives and investigators searching for Lillian McKenzie, three months old when she was kidnapped nine days ago, was added to today by 5,000 Boy Scouts and the membership of the Salvation Army in the Metropolitan district. Two clues that for a time seemed to lead on hot trails were abandoned after investigation.

James H. Board, head of the executive committee of the Manhattan council of Boy Scouts, ordered the 5,000 scouts in his district to use every effort to find the missing infant. Colonel Stephen Marshall, head of the Salvation Army field activities in the Metropolitan district, ordered all of his officers to assist in the search.

The report of a baby answering Lillian's description on a baby farm on Long Island and one of an infant in a nursery in Brooklyn were investigated during the day and in each case it was reported that the infant was not the missing child.

Mrs. McKenzie, mother of Lillian, said tonight that she would visit the Long Island baby farm and look at the child there herself.

Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has sent a letter to the five thousand women's clubs of the organization, it was learned today, calling their attention to the $100,000 American peace award created by Edward W. Bok, and reminding them that the award relates to the subject most dear "to the women."

London, Aug. 2.—The death is announced at Lancing, Sussex, of Hertha Ayrton, the only woman member of the institution of electrical engineers.

Mrs. Ayrton was nominated for a fellowship of the Royal Society in 1902, but the society's counsel gave an opinion that the organization had no power to elect a woman. She has written extensively on electricity. She invented in 1915 and presented to the war office for the duration of the war an anti-gas fan, of which more than 100,000 were used at the front.

$250,000 ABSCONDER HELD IN DEFAULT OF $100,000 BOND

Joseph Marsino Was Arrested at the International Bridge at Laredo, Texas—Wanted in Warren, Mass., for Robbery of $213,000 in Securities From the First National Bank Last February—Wrecked the Niagara Insurance Company of Buffalo—Had Meteoric Career in Chicago.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 27—Joseph Biata, alias Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Chicago and in Warren, Mass., on charges of embezzling $213,000 from the First National bank of Warren last February, was arrested in Laredo, Tex., today by department of justice agents.

Biata disappeared about Feb. 1, and department of justice agents believe that he has been in Mexico since that time. He is charged with being the "arch conspirator" in the theft of nearly $250,000 in cash and bonds.

The prisoner was taken as he crossed the International bridge. He was arraigned before the United States commissioner on charges of theft and his bond was fixed at $100,000.

He had grown a beard and has adopted other alleged measures of disguise, but he admitted his identity as Joseph Biata of Warren and Joseph B. Marcino of Chicago, according to officers. He is being held in the Webb county jail pending removal orders. Officers from Chicago are expected to come for him.

Wanted in Warren, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 27.—Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Warren for the robbery of $213,000 in securities from the First National bank last February, was arrested early last week in Mexico City, according to information received here from Assistant United States Attorney John V. Sullivan.

Held on some local charge there, he was released and later rearrested on charges preferred by the foreign relations committee. He was then ordered surrendered at the border, where he was taken under armed guard, and turned over to American authorities at Laredo, Tex., by the Mexican officials.

Marcino obtained control of the Warren bank last February, it is alleged, with Abraham Goldman of Chicago, his father-in-law, and Frank L. Taylor, who was appointed president of the bank. After the robbery of $213,000 in securities from the Warren bank, Taylor was arrested, confessed to a share in it, and is now serving a three years' sentence.

Wrecked Insurance Company.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The arrest at Laredo, Tex., today of Joseph B. Marcino, wanted in Chicago and Warren, Mass., on charges of absconding with bonds valued at $250,000 from national banks opens the final chapter in the story of the wrecking of the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo. Control of the company was transferred to the state insurance department last February after its financial structure had crashed as a sequel to Marcino's disappearance.

Marcino was not a director of the Niagara Life, but was alleged to have manipulated it through dummy directors, one of them being Frank L. Taylor, $50 a week president of the Warren bank, who was alleged to have been the chief tool by means of which Marcino controlled the Niagara Life Insurance company. Taylor was a director of the company and was said to have charge of the Bison Holding company, which controlled the Niagara stock, and which Marcino purchased.

Career in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Joseph B. Marcino, arrested today at Laredo, Tex., in connection with the disappearance of $213,000 worth of bonds from the First National bank of Warren, Mass., had a meteoric rise here from barber to banker and financial heights.

Nine years ago he was a barber. Then he got a job with an insurance company, and a short time afterwards organized the Public Life Insurance company, which went out of business. Later he organized the Roma Investment company and Commonwealth Insurance company, then with others secured control of numerous small banks in Iowa and Illinois. He was indicted in connection with the failure of some of these institutions, but jumped his bail.

He married a daughter of Abraham Goldman, wealthy Chicagoan, and then with the aid of capital said to have been furnished by his father-in-law, transferred his operations to the east, where he secured an interest in the Farmers' and Merchants' bank of Philadelphia, which failed, and then in the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo, which went into receivership.

Going to Warren, Mass., he succeeded, with Goldman's aid, in gaining control of the First National bank of Warren, and Frank L. Taylor, a Chicago clerk and former railroad brakeman, was installed as head of the institution. Marcino disappeared last February, along with bonds held by the bank valued at $213,000. At about the same time Taylor vanished from Warren.

Taylor was arrested in Chicago, where he claimed he came to notify Goldman that his son-in-law had left with the bank's resources. Goldman and Taylor claimed they knew nothing of Marcino's flight with the bonds, but Taylor is serving a three year prison sentence.

ANOTHER NEW YORK NIGHT LIFE MURDER MYSTERY

New York, Aug. 27.—Yesterday morning John H. Sutphen, a private secretary, was found dead on a lounge in his apartment on Central Park West. He was in his shirtsleeves. The ashes in his pipe were still warm.

"Alcoholism" muttered the medical examiner, but nevertheless ordered an autopsy performed today. It revealed poison in the stomach and tonight the police decided they were confronted with another murder mystery involving night life in New York.

Search was begun immediately for two flashily dressed young women who were in Sutphen's apartment when the medical examiner arrived. The police also started checking up at all drugstores in the vicinity on sales of the drug from which death resulted.

The police learned of Sutphen's death through a telephone call. The two women and a man who gave his name as Robert C. Spohn were in the apartment when the medical examiner arrived.

Sutphen's body lay at ease on the couch. In the hand was clutched the pipe.

A cabinet holding a varied supply of liquor was found in the suite but there were no signs of a drinking bout having been held there. No glasses, phial or tablets were found in the apartment, and for this reason the police this afternoon dismissed the theory of suicide.

Assistant Medical Examiner Gonzales, who at first believed death was due to excessive drinking, said he had been told by Spohn that Sutphen had been treated recently by a doctor for alcoholism. Dr. Gonzales also said he had been informed Sutphen had been on a Saturday night party which included at least two other men.

According to the medical examiner, the two women he found in the apartment were sisters. He said he had not taken their names, because he had thought there was nothing suspicious about the death, nor had he inquired about details of the party.

Sutphen was 36 and married.

Dr. Norris Kahn, who, according to information given the medical examiner, was the doctor who had treated Sutphen for alcoholism, declined to discuss the case over the telephone tonight.

FRENCH FORCES MINING COAL AT DORTMUND

Dortmund, Aug. 27.—The occupation authorities today began to mine coal themselves for the first time since the occupation began, last January.

French forces took over the five shafts of the Victor mine, near this city, yesterday and delivered the ultimatum to the miners that, either they continue to work for the occupiers or the mine would be completely taken over by the French for exploitation.

The ultimatum expired at noon today when the bulk of the German personnel decided not to continue and 200 French miners took over all emergency work. The German pumping crew and foremen, however, declared their willingness to work for the French and several miners asked permission to remain. Negotiations for their retention are continuing.

The Victor mine belongs to a private company headed by Peter Klockner, and has a productive capacity of from one million to one million five hundred thousand tons of coal annually. The cokery of 350 ovens which was also occupied for exploitatin has an annual capacity of about seven hundred thousand tons.

The personnel of the plant numbers five thousand, including both officials and workmen.

$500 AWAITS INVENTOR OF NEW DANCE RHYTHM

New York, Aug. 27.—A satisfactory device to be worn by dancers to keep their heads in the proper positions and their bodies the correct distance apart is sought by the American society of teachers of dancing, and to this end prizes of $100, $50 an $25, were announced today at the opening of the society's 45th annual convention in the hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

With the fox trot and its variations holding forth almost exclusively on the dance floor nowadays, the society is also out for a new dance rhythm and is willing to pay $500 to its inventor, according to president R. W. Vizay, of Milwaukee. The one-step, half-step and what-no steps are officially in he discard, and Mr. Vizay says somebody should be able to devise a satisfactory five-step, seven-step or some other step to relieve the monotony.

The tendency as far as dancing teachers is concerned is toward simpler steps, interspersed with glides and "rests," in which the dancers come to a complete top for an instant, according to expressions at the meeting. There is to be no wiggling or movement of the body during the "rests" if the teachers have their way.

"Less noise and more melody," was the keynote of the convention sounded by Louis H. Chalif, of New York, first vice-president, who said the society would make a valiant effort this winter to restore the waltz to its popularity as "queen of the dances." Mr. Chalif made a plea for better music, saying that composers and dance orchestras could do more to purify the dance than could be accomplished by legislation.

AIRPLANES TO CARRY LIQUOR INTO THE YUKON

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 27.—A plan to get liquor into Yukon Territory, facing a dry winter because laws of the United States prohibit carrying intoxicant beverages across the 20-mile strip of the Alaska panhandle—by using airplanes is under consideration.

New York, Aug. 27.—The Panama canal is earning approximately $500,000 a month, or a fraction more than 3 per cent on the investment in its construction, said Colonel Jay J. Governor Morrow expects to report to official Washington within the next few days.

A. L. Delegates are To Visit the Ruhr

Had Been Received by President and Mme. Millerand —Now Bound for Brussels.

Rambouillet, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.).—With a taste of French hospitality in their palates and the fragrance of French democracy in their memories, the American Legion delegation headed by Colonel Alvin M. Owsley, the national commander, left here today after being received by President and Mme. Millerand and resumed their pilgrimage to Brussels, where they will attend the conference of the Interallied Veterans' federation.

In the grounds of the old feudal castle, flanked by its high forbidding towers, built by Francis the First, the French president and the first lady of France did their utmost to afford their American guests a comfortable afternoon, to chat with them as guest to host and to retain the simple dignity of an occasion such as is rarely offered to unofficial visitors.

Once inside the grounds, the Americans came to "As you were!", and were ushered into the grand salon, where each was introduced by Sheldon Whitehouse, the American charge d'affaires. The French executive chatted amiably with each of the guests, Mr. Whitehouse acting as interpreter.

The conversation between President Millerand and Colonel Owsley naturally turned to the visit the Legionnaires are to pay to the Ruhr under the auspices of the French government. "You will be able," said the president, "to tell your people exactly what conditions are. France asks nothing except the unadulterated truth be reported. Friendly visitors are not required to let their feelings influence their judgment." This was the only near-political subject discussed.

Madame Millerand then joined the party, and after she had served tea she explained to Commander Owsley the interesting points of the castle, and the party strolled around the spacious grounds.

CONVENTION OF WOMEN LAWYERS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 27.—Nationally known women barristers were arriving here today for the first annual convention of the national association of women lawyers here tomorrow and Wednesday, preceding the convention of the American bar association, which opens Wednesday.

The early arrivals today include William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States. Mr. Taft, as chairman of the committee of judicial ethics, will submit that committee's report Wednesday.

The women's association heretofore has held annual banquets in New York. John W. Davis, president of the American bar association, and former ambassador to England, declared today that he would not reply to the letter of Henry Breckenridge, former assistant secretary of war, protesting the appearance of the Earl of Breckenridge before the association because of his speech at Williamston, Mass., commenting upon the policies of Woodrow Wilson.

TWO WOMEN SHOT TO DEATH; REVOLVER BETWEEN THEM

Denver, Colo., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Roy McGlone, 28, wife of a Denver athletic director, and Miss Emma Vascovie, 19, an employe of a Denver hotel, were found shot to death in the bedroom of an apartment here today. A .32 calibre revolver lay between them, leading police to believe it a case of murder and suicide.

The later discovery of a penciled note on the dressing table in the bedroom caused police to discount the murder-suicide theory. It was written apparently in a masculine hand and was blood besmeared. It read

"I kill him because I thought he too much of him. I want him to going me where I go. Goodby T am happing now.

"She not to.

GOVERNOR PINCHOT WARNS MINERS AND OPERATORS

Tells Parties to the Anthracite Industry's Quarrel That the Public is Losing Patience With Repeated Strikes and Suspensions—Addressed the Industrial Leaders Yesterday—Has Scheduled a Session With the Mine Operators' Representatives Today.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27 (By the A. P.)—Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania served notice on mine operators and miners' union officials today that the threatened suspension of anthracite mining September 1 could not be allowed, and then proceeded to enter upon what may be a lengthy effort at mediation of the controversy.

In executive session with the union spokesmen, Phillip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, and C. J. Golden, Rinaldo Capellini and Thomas Kennedy, its three district presidents in the anthracite region, the governor went over the demands which the union has made for increased wages, "check off" system of union dues collection and other things. He made no compromise proposition in his own behalf today, but scheduled a session with the coal mine operators representatives for tomorrow morning, and a second meeting with the union officers for tomorrow afternoon.

The governor made his preliminary address to the industrial leaders at a semi-public meeting in his capitol offices.

The anthracite industry's quarrel, the governor said, could not be a private one; a public, vitally interested, that wanted to see justice done to both employer and employe was nevertheless losing patience with repeated strike and suspensions.

"The public interest demands that this controversy shall be settled and that a suspension of mining shall be avoided," he continued "The thing is possible—and it must be done. Settlement means that neither side can get all it would like to have. But settlement of this dispute is absolutely necessary for the public safety and welfare. The public needs and must have coal, and I am entirely confident that the public is going to have it."

To the list of his unofficial advisers and helpers in the mediation attempt, Governor Pinchot tonight added the name of Bishop Michael J. Hoban, head of the Catholic diocese at Scranton, in the heart of the anthracite territory.

In dealing with the situation, the governor's speech emphasized the fact that he considered himself a "representative of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania." There was scarcely a mention of the conference held by him previously with President Coolidge, except in the statement that he had been informed he was not "running counter to federal wishes."

Along with the officials of the miners' union, directly invited to Harrisburg, there assembled in the city almost the full membership of the union's scale committee in the anthracite region. The union's full wage demand is for $2 a day increase in the pay of men employed by the day, and a 20 per cent increase in the piece rates per ton for mining coal.

COAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN NEW YORK TODAY

New York, Aug. 27.—Representatives of eleven Atlantic and New England states and of the District of Columbia arrived in New York tonight to discuss emergency measures for distribution of coal substitutes which would avert widespread suffering in the event of a suspension of anthracite mining on September 1.

These men, appointed as representativesby the governors of their respective states, go into conference tomorrow with federal fuel administrator Wadleigh of Washington and James C. Brydon, president of the bituminous operators' association.

Their first consideration will be the development of a program for distribution of soft coal throughout districts which were formerl entirely dependent on anthracite. A distribution plant was drawn up by Mr. Brydon, and approved by the bituminous operators at Atlantic City last July. It was understood, however, that Mr. Wadleigh, though approving the plan in general, had revised certain sections of it.

The states represented at the conference will be Maine, New Hampshire Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Among the governors who will attend the conference personally are Governor Templeton of Connecticut, Governor Cox, of Massachusetts; Governor Flynn, of Rhode Island; and Governor Proctor of Vermont. James W. Storrs, of Concord, will represent New Hampshire, and Andrew P. Lane will be the representative from Maine. The other six representatives had not registered at the offices of the port authority, where the conference will be held.

ELECTION IN IRELAND QUIET; TO COUNT VOTES TODAY

Dublin, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.)—The main feature of the day's polling in Dublin was the absolute quiet that prevailed over the city. The day differed from the ordinary bank holiday in the absence of entertainment and the empty streets, the scene recalling Dublin's workless days of the general strike. Tram cars were running but postal deliveries and collections were not made.

Reports from the country indicate a similar absence of excitement. In a few stations armed sentries were on duty but this was not general.

The counting of votes will begin in Dublin tomorrow morning as it will in most constituencies. Many of the results will be known Wednesday but the returns from Tipperary and other places are not expected until Friday.

It is believed that the government candidates were aided by a revelation recently made by President Cosgrave disclosing that the government just missed capturing a republican dispatch showing that the irregulars, whom he called the "little buccaneers," had formed a plot to kidnap him. The announcement attracted much attention.

The plan, Mr. Madden said today, is "concrete, simple and understandable," and if adopted will reflect an immediate reduction in taxation. Although he would not disclose details of his proposal it is understood, will suggest a system whereby savings in expenditures, will be immediately returned to the tax-payers.

All revenue measures are passed on by the ways and means committee, and Mr. Madden's plan will be submitted to that committee when congress meets.

Shott, attorneys general of Kansas and Oklahoma, respectively, to start a nation-wide investigation of the oil industry to determine "if the Standard Oil company is manipulating the gasoline market to put 40,000 mid-country producers out of business."

In asking for an investigation of the oil industry, Attorney General Griffith said that "forty thousand independent producers in Kansas and Oklahoma will go out of business if the manipulation of the gasoline market continues."

5,000 BOY SCOUTS ARE IN SEARCH OF BABY M'KENZIE

New York, Aug. 27—The host of detectives and investigators searching for Lillian McKenzie, three months old when she was kidnapped nine days ago, was added to today by 5,000 Boy Scouts and the membership of the Salvation Army in the Metropolitan district. Two clues that for a time seemed to lead on hot trails were abandoned after investigation.

James H. Beard, head of the executive committee of the Manhattan council of Boy Scouts, ordered the 5,000 scouts in his district to use every effort to find the missing infant. Colonel Stephen Marshall, head of the Salvation Army field activities in the Metropolitan district, ordered all of his officers to assist in the search.

The report of a baby answering Lillian's description on a baby farm on Long Island and one of an infant in a nursery in Brooklyn were investigated during the day and in each case it was reported that the infant was not the missing child.

Mrs. McKenzie, mother of Lillian, said tonight that she would visit the Long Island baby farm and look at the child there herself.

Acting Prosecuting Attorneys were temporarily appointed by Judge Frank H. Foss of the city court, due to the lack of regular officials who are away on their vacations. Attorney Samuel B Harvey is out of town on his vacation and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton left Friday night to be gone until after Labor Day, so that for the past two business days the Willimantic police court has been without a prosecutor. Following a number of queries on the matter, Judge Foss explained that in an emergency he had the right to select any suitable person to fill the office of prosecutor. Saturday morning he named Chief Allan MacArthur as the prosecutor and at the session of court Monday First Selectman Russell A. Andrews was called upon to act. Four cases were heard.

A Ford machine, owned by the Yale-Towne Company, 548 Pacific street, Stamford, and a Moon sedan owned by John Smith, 94 Watson avenue, West Grange, N. J., figured in a collision recently on the state highway in Andover. The Ford was traveling at a fast rate and sideswiped the heavier machine. Apparently the driver lost control as the car shot across the road and into the bank, demolishing three wheels and generally wrecking the car. The New Jersey machine received but slight damage. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink investigated the matter.

In order to accommodate the large increase in the number and assortment of exhibits seen every years at the country fair of the Willimantic Elks, at Elks' park, a new exhibition shed, fifty feet long and eighteen feet wide, has been erected, in addition to the exhibition building proper. The new structure will be used for flowers and vegetables, exclusively, thus relieving the congestion in the other sheds. The local Elks call their annual fair a country fair and they mean to make it so in every sense of the word. The exhibits committee includes C. W. Hill, chairman, Thomas P. Foley, Edgar W. Jacobs and Chas. B. Lamb. With the exception of Classes K, L and M, which are being handled by Mrs. J. B. Faulhaus at the Pleasant street armory, Mr. Hill is receiving all other entries. State police at the Stafford Springs barracks and the local police department were notified Sunday to be on the lookout for a Gardner automobile bearing Massachusetts registry numbers, as a result of an accident in the town of Merrow, Sunday morning, in which Mrs. Greene of Stafford Springs sustained a severe cut on the head. Mrs. Greene with a party of Stafford people was motoring to Lake Wangumbaug in a Ford automobile when, at 9.30 o'clock, their machine was sideswiped by the Bay state machine and forced over a stone wall and down a four-foot embankment. The Gardner car, which was proceeding at a fast rate of speed, did not stop to render assistance and due to its speed, it was impossible to distinguish the registry numbers. The machine was headed for this city but was not seen to go through here by the police. It is thought that the driver left the state road and did not come here for fear of apprehension. The front of the Ford was wrecked.

Nineteen deaths were recorded at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton during July. The list follows:

POETRY

THE LITTLE PINES.

Dear, once in a clearing, high in the snowy wood,
The bearded lumberman, filing with axe and cart,
Wherever the saplings shot up straight and good,
Hacked at the boles and crashed them down and apart;
And long, O lover of little pines, you stood
Mute on the hillock, watching, and sick at heart.

And when on pitiful hurdles, death's poor dower,
The innocent felons lay under cords unbleet,
And oxen, welding in one their deep-breathed power,
Upheaved the burdan grandly, with no arrest,—
For the ended beauty of little pines that hour
Tears in your eyes and anger in your breast.

But now a wondrous sight in the Bay below,
A grove of masts, all winged aerially!
'Twixt wave and cloud so thrillingly fair they go,
So busy, so spirit-bright, who would not be Glad for your little pines? That overthrow
Is life, is laughter, along the illumined sea.

—Louise Imogen Guiney.

THE HERMIT THRUSH.

Sweet singer, in the high and holy place
Of this dim-lit cathedral of the hills;
With reverent brow and uplifted face
I quaff the cup thy melody distills!

What sparkling well of limpid music springs
Within thy breast, to quench my thirst like this?
What nameless chords are hid beneath thy wings?
That all my soul is lifted by thy bliss?

Perchance the same mysterious desire
Hath brought us both to this deep shrine as one;
For now—it burns a single flame of fire,
Dropped through the branches from the setting sun!

And as thou singest, lo, the voice is mine,
Each note a thought; each thought a silent prayer,
Of joy, of peace, of ecstasy divine,
Poured forth upon the fragrant wood-land air!

And I, who stand apart, am not alone,
Here in these great cathedral aisles untrod;
O Hermit, thou hast opened Heaven unknown,
And through thy song have I communed with God.

—Augustus Wight Bomberger.

PLAY FOR NEW LONDON COUNTY TENNIS TITLE STARTS NEXT SUNDAY MORNING

Play in the New London County men's open tennis singles will start next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on the courts at the Norwich Golf club. Entries will close Friday night and the drawings will be made Saturday morning.

This is the first time in a number of years that the men's singles title has been at stake. New London county has many good tennis players who are members of the various country clubs in the south eastern section of the state, and keen competition is expected during the tournament which will continue through next week.

The revival of tennis competition in this part of the state is welcomed by the tennis enthusiasts and bids fair to become an annual event. As this is the first venture along this line, only the men's singles will be played but it is anticipated that another year the tournament will include not only the men's singles but doubles, mixed doubles and women's singles and doubles for the county title.

All ready there have been about twenty-five entries for the event including players from Norwich, Gales Ferry and New London and it is expected that when the entries close on Friday night there will be close to 100 contestants for the county title. On Saturday the courts at the golf club will be open to entrants for practice and the first round will be started on Sunday morning.

Silver loving cups will be given for the winners of the title and also to the runner-up. The courts at the golf club have been put in fine shape and fast play is expected.

Russell A. Clapp is chairman of the tournament committee and will give out information regarding the tournament if seen at 93 Water street or called at telephone 219.

The entrance fee to the tournament is $1.

MAY GET THE WHOLE DARNED BAND FROM DEMPSEY

Atlantic City, Aug. 27.—Using the same sixteen ounce mitts that failed to soften the punches he landed on Joe Downey in Indianapolis several weeks ago, Luis Angel Firpo, challenger for the heavyweight boxing title, played pugilist music on three sparring mates today in his daily workout.

Low, dull notes he sounded on stomach, arms and body; he struck a higher pitch with half open gloves on jaw and head and rendered perfect crescendo on chins. Leffs were accompanied by fights and the critics said his technique was first rate. He played two syncopated numbers and one funeral march.

Jeff Clarke, the "Black Ghost" of Joplin, tuned like a banjo, and young Frank Koebele, the Brooklyn Zither, were instruments used in the fast numbers, while Joe McCann, the New ark base drum, was thumped in the other, many notes that Luis Angel struck they threw back at him, but Luis Angel has become attuned to such music.

Firpo failed to strike correctly on several occasions with the Joplin banjo, for the ghost was unusually elusive, but there were only a few blue notes. The ghost hummed for half a minute after Firpo banged his chin with the right, brought clearly from the shoulder in a graceful arc.

On the Zither Firpo used his left all through, never missing the jaw strings once. Koebele, under instructions from Horatio Lavalle, the trainer, worked quickly and well, and took his lacing like a real punch catcher. McCann was easy to strike but hard to hurt and though he was shaking near the end he was still going strong.

Lavalle announced that the services of Billy Miske, the St. Paul heavyweight were being sought for sparring work. The trainer also is seeking several light men, but would not name them.

Firpo had a good workout this morning and spent a quarter of an hour whaling away at the heavy sand bag. He rested until lunch, then preceded his sparring with two rounds of punching, one of rope skipping and another of shadow boxing.

The South American champion received his first good-luck charm today a sterling silver four-leaved clover, from Mrs. H. S. Ogden, of Philadelphia.

EAST ENDS TO PLAY HALLVILLE CLOVERS TONIGHT

Tonight the East Ends will meet the fast Hallville Clovers in the second game of the series. The first game was called in the fourth inning on account of darkness with the East Ends leading 3 to 1. Manager Cramer boasts the merits of his team considerably and if the East Ends fail to win he will go over Niagara Falls in a canoe. At 6.15 sharp Manager Pat Cramer will lead his cohorts on the field to do battle as of old. The following life savers will attempt to save their manager from destruction:

"Duke" Raker c, "Spike" Harris p, "Waco" Riley 1b, "Peewee" Bourne 3b, "Chatterbox" Boyens 2b, "Trick-feet" Risley ss, "Spark Plug" Walz, "Doc" Spalding, and "Skipper" Pedace in the outfield. Utility men, D. Pedace, B. Pedace, Woodmansee, Williamson, Barber, Danny Welton and "Monk" Perry. Jim Holland will officiate in the press box as score keeper.

PETER MANNING TO TRY TO BREAK READVILLE MARK

Readville, Aug. 27.—Noted harness horses will participate in the four days' grand circuit meeting which will open on the Readville track tomorrow. The first day will bring one of the leading features when the champion trotter, Peter Manning, 1:56 2-4, will race against time in an effort to better the track record of 1:59 1-4 which he set up last year.

The largest purse is the $10,000 Massachusetts 2:06 rot on Wednesday, with Clyde the Great the favorite and Favonian and Taurida looked upon as strong contenders. In the Blue Hill free-for-all trot on Thursday a sharp contest is anticipated, with Lee Worthy and the Great Volo among the entries. Friday's leading feature will be the free-for-all pace in which Margaret Dillon, Single G., and Sir Roche will show their speed.

FISHERMAN'S RACE PUT OVER BECAUSE OF FOG

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 27.—Thick fog that blanketed the coast throughout the forenoon today forced the committee in charge of the open fishermen's race for the Lipton and Prentiss cups to postpone the event, the feature of Gloucester's 300th anniversary programme, until Thursday. Thousands of spectators gathered along the shore and thousands more on excursion boats, fishing craft and launches in the harbor had waited weary hours for the bank of fog to clear away only to be disappointed in the end.

The Howard, equipped with a big mainsail belonging to the New Columbia, one of Gloucester's hopes for this year's international race series, is favored by many to win in light breezes.

The wise ones of the water front believe, however, that she carried too much canvas for a big blow, which is the favorite weather of the Henry Ford, runner up to the Canadian Bluenose in last year's international event, and general favorite in the present meet. The third entry, the Shamrock, is an unknown quantity, but Captain Marty Welch, her skipper, has faith in her powers.

Sir Thomas Lipton, donor of the trophy, was among those disappointed today. When he arrived in Gloucester during the forenoon he was met at the station by a band and military guard of honor, and escorted to the home of Colonel J. W. Prentiss in East Gloucester. After the racing boats returned to port Sir Thomas, the three skippers and the trophy were photographed.

Rumors in Gloucester that American vessels might refuse to participate in future international fishermen's series as a result of incidents during last year's series here were stilled today when it became known that Captain Clayton Morrissey would take the Henry Ford to Halifax to race the Bluenose if no other American schooner is selected as challenger. It also became known that of the ..... aspires to race for international honors she will first have to beat the Henry Ford in a elimination series.

Their totals were 146. The remaining 36 holes of play will be over the Charles River Country club course tomorrow. The leaders follow:

WAGNER OUTPOINTS DUNDEE DECISIVELY AT PHILLY

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—Eddie "Kid" Wagner of Philadelphia decisively outpointed Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion, in an eight-round bout here tonight, in the opinion of the majority of newspapermen at the ringside.

Dundee, throughout the fight, was within easy reach of Wagner's left. Hook after hook landed on the champion's face, practically closing his left eye in the third round. In only one round of the eight did Dundee show up at all well. Five of the others were awarded to Wagner, while two were counted as draws.

Only in the sixth did Dundee manage to dodge the local boy's left long enough to get in any blows of his own. By use of his famous jumping tactics he kept clear and kept busy.

In the preliminaries, Harry "Kid" Brown of Philadelphia won the newspaper decision over Jack Darcy of New York, while Joe Rydee of New York won from Battling Mack of Camden, N. J., despite the fact that the bout was called at the end of the CROSSING RAILROAD TRACKS.

In connection with the wholesale killing at a railroad crossing in Binghamton, where six lives were lost and another cannot live, the belief prevails that "the driver of the car failed to heed the warning signals at the crossing."

How often that is the case and the underlying trouble in connection with roads crossing fatalities! Aside from the blind crossing, which deserves to have more conspicuous warnings than others, there is little excuse for the failure to give heed to and respect the danger at railroad crossings. It means slowing up, but that is a small matter. It means glancing up and down the railroad line as the crossing is approached, and bringing the car to a stop if necessary, but even that is preferable to being picked off the front of an engine or gathered up from under the wheels, or even being responsible for the snuffing out of the lives of others.

Laws are established and regulations adopted for the purpose of protecting the rights of citizens and increasing the safety of the highways. Penalties are attached which are supposed to bring about obedience to the laws. They get attention in some instances but none in too many.

When it comes to the railroad crossing it cannot be because the penalty is not severe enough. There can be no doubt but what the auto and its occupants are going to suffer more than the locomotive. Under most circumstances the penalty of death can be expected to produce some respect and restraint, and probably it does up to the point where some persons think that they are immune and are willing to take chances out of all proportion to the needs of the occasion.

Those who pay such a penalty as that auto driver and party did at Binghamton cannot repeat. It is invariably those who have not figured in crossing accidents or had close calls who display the greatest amount of disrespect for the danger at such points. There's a lesson in every case, where death results or not, that should make a lasting impression upon each and every one who has to cross a railroad track at grade.

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

Renewed efforts are being made in behalf of legislation in the next session of congress that will provide for new government buildings. It is an old effort that is bobbing up. There is much support to be gained when there is no great demand for curtailed expenditures, but there is a reluctance to skip it even when expenses must be kept down. It is always possible to advance good arguments in its behalf.

The demand for better facilities, and therefore new buildings for housing different departments of the government has been strong for the past few years. It is nothing new that there is a need for a structure that will protect government records against fire. Certain departments are now occupying leased quarters and are not advantageously situated. But whenever the call for new buildings at Washington is put forth there is always the reply that whatever is done for Washington must be done for the rest of the country. That is one of the problems that must be overcome if public building appropriations are to be considered.

The fact of the matter is that there is an insistent demand for the keeping down of expenditures. That is needed that the high cost of government operation can be reduced, the budget respected and the way paved for the cutting of federal taxation. The demand for economy is just as insistent as ever. It cannot be ignored. Whenever there is talk about huge appropriations for public buildings it is one of the propositions that always stimulates talk about delay until the finances are in a better state. And that talk is not so far out of the way.

The minute there is a departure from the fixed purpose of keeping the expenditures within the revenue it immediately sets in motion a long series of demands for government funds for all kinds of purposes. Starting a raid upon the treasury is not a hard task. Checking it, with many seeking just such an opening, is decidedly different. Wisdom therefore guides the hand that urges delay until such a time as conditions warrant.

REGAINING LOST TREASURES.

With the bottom of the ocean studded with gems, rich gold deposits and other valuable, those who are inclined that way will be more enthusiastic than ever for the salvaging of the vast amount of such hidden wealth now that one company is having such excellent success in recovering $35,000,000 in gold and silver from the liner Laurentic sunk off the Irish coast during the war.

The advantage of being in comparatively shallow water in comparison with some other ships with valuable cargoes that have gone to the bottom exists in the case of the Laurentic. The deeper the water the greater the task of salvage and the greater the danger to those who are involved.

Because of the treasure that is involved salvaging operations are greatly stimulated in the waters about the British isles. There are many ships to be worked on but how difficult the task of even locating them is is indicated by the report to the effect that the steamship Egypt, which was sunk last year, has recently been located on the ocean bed five miles from where it was supposed to have gone down.

Many are those who have been interested in the plan to get the valuables from the Lusitania, and even though the Egypt lies in 384 feet of water the report is to the effect that efforts are to be made to get its large cargo of gold and possibly to raise the ship.t

New and improved methods of protecting those who must work about submerged wrecks have been devised. Only through such is it possible to reach great depths and if these can be made to come up to expectations and are proved to be a practical rather than a theoretical success the future of those engaged in such work is most promising.

There has been wonderful progress is keeping up with Jule Verne's advanced ideas about navigation of the air and there seems to be no reason why similar success should not be attached to the explorations of the ocean bottoms.

DESSERVE NO MERCY.

Most laudable is the work of the agents of the department of agriculture in seizing and million and a half of eggs in Chicago which had long since passed the age of fitness for consumption. The worst of the disclosure in connection with such eggs is that they were intended for human consumption and that there were those who were willing to deal in they buy and sell them at low prices, regardless of the effect which such were bound to have upon the health of those who ate them.

In many ways is it disclosed that there is no consideration for the individual or the public in general beyond the point where enforcement of regulations make it necessary. Let there be shown a laxity in the insistence by the authorities upon respect for regulations and there are plenty who are ready to take advantage of it. They are more eager to use rotten eggs than they are to use good ones because it means so many more dollars in their pockets. They have no concern over what the effects of eating food containing such eggs may be. They are as ready to contribute to the illness of others as the sellers of dope are to the demoralization of humanity so long as they can rake in the profits.

There can be no sympathy for those who are caught with such a quantity of bad eggs. They are no more guilty than are those who sold them, knowing as they must what the condition was. All those who have anything to do with such impure and improper food deserve the full penalty of the law and publicity, and it is to the credit of the agricultural department officials that they have been able to bring to light such deplorable conditions.

BELGIUM'S SUGGESTION.

Belgium isn't one of the big powers of Europe. It has nevertheless had a big part to play in the European struggle and from the reply that it has made to the British note it would seem that it was still playing it.

Belgium takes the view that it is time to end the note writing, to gather around the table and reach a settlement concerning the question of reparations. Presumably Belgium's idea is to reach an understanding the terms of which will actually be carried out.

There has been no end of talk. The notes that have been exchanged are a matter of record. The European situation is a handicap to those countries and it is time, for the good of all, that some other method be employed from which there are reasone to hope will result in more satisfactory results.

Germany has repeated its pleas of inability to pay and threats of bankruptcy. They have not frightened France which is emphatic in its declaration that it will stick in the Ruhr until it is paid. British efforts have been directed to overcoming the deadlock. Notes haven't succeeded in reconciling the differences and Belgium doesn't see where they are ever going to.

And yet the desire of all concerned is that there should be an agreement reached, with the respective sides considering of course that it should be favorable to each. Whether the Belgian idea would produce any better results is an uncertainty but it nevertheless has the merits of making the effort from a new angle and disclosing what the possibilities are. A short cut to a settlement ought to be welcomed by all.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Interest in the election in Ireland isn't restricted to the Emerald Isle.

The man on the corner says: Man has to step some these days to keep up with the behavior of the weather.

Today the governors meet to take some action relative to the coal situation. It is a meeting of no small importance.

Germany's chancellor is on the right track. He talks in a conciliatory manner and sees a way out if Germany will toe the mark.

It is figured it will cost $550,000,000 to run Russia next year. How much of that do the soviet leaders figure on getting from other countries?

Not so much is heard of Lenine and Trotzky these days. Possibly they are trying to impress the American congressmen with their docility.

Possibly the Olympic was not racing the Leviathan, but there's no reason to suppose it was running under slow speed because the Leviathan was in the neighborhood.

The great surprise about Hiram Johnson is not that he admitted wanting to be president but that he put on paper the admission that he couldn't carry his own state.

The Irish are recovering $20,000,000 in gold from a ship sunk in the war and plan to try for $45,000,000 in a steamer that was lost last year. That is the most successful way of getting gold from salt water.

Probably that Michigan scrubwoman who was discharged to give a more needy person employment, when it was found she owned an auto, probably needes the job more than ever now that she owns a machine.

DIFFICULT TRAVEL

"There's one thing I can't understand," said the perplexed lady, who wanted to go into town and did not know what time to start. "It's about these railroad timetables—why don't they have their trains all run on even numbers or something easy to remember, instead of writing it 9.04 when it might just as easily be 9.05? And if it is 9.05 why couldn't they make the next one 9.44 instead of 9.33? It is like that all through the day and I am sure that whoever made out the timetable must formerly have made up the puzzle page for some children's magazine. It is a marvel of intricacy.

"Now, what I want you to do, Adelbert, is to take this yellow accordion you claim is our suburban timetable and figure out what train I take to the city and what train I catch coming back!"

"How do I know what train you catch coming back?" growled her husband, who was not any too sure about the train times himself, being just as new to the locality as she was. "Women never start when they plan to start. Some friend of their mother's stops them or they see some chiffon or burlap just the shade of that party dress that they wanted to match, so they have to stop and get a sample and when they get to the depot they find that it is an entirely different train waiting for them than they had expected, so everything is all confused immediately.

"Only yesterday when I came home after lunch I witnessed a scene of this sort. I was seated in the bus which runs to the depot when a harried lady looking ready to drop clambered in.

"'When do I get the next XYZ suburban train?' she asked the gentlemanly driver.

"'Two-ten,' said the driver, genially.

"'But it is 2.10 now,' expostulated the lady.

"'Well, well,' said the driver, much surprised, as he consulted his watch. 'So it is! Well, then, you get the 3.10!'

"'My goodness!' squealed the harried lady. 'That's awful! Let me look at my timetable—oh, see! Here's a train right in between at 2.30!'

"'That only runs on Saturdays,' yarned the driver, sadly. Whereupon the harried lady told us what she thought. She said that whenever her cousin was coming out to Artichoke Vale for luncheon she would pick out a nice fast train and write her to be sure and take that train and no other—and invariably it turned out to be either a train marked at the top 'X' which meant that it made no stops between Chicago and Aurora or else it was marked 'F', which meant it stopped on signal, and one was as bad as the other, because if her cousin got the first one she couldn't do a thing but sit there till she reached Aurora, where she knew no one and could find no lunch whatever, and if she got the one marked 'F' she didn't know about the signaling and didn't speak to the conductor and landed in Aurora or Minneapolis, anyway, and it was no joke getting up a nice luncheon with things as high as they are and having one's guest carted off to goodness knows where!

"Or else it turned out to be a golf train, Saturdays only, and if it did happen to be a Saturday on which she consulted the timetable she always picked out a train to catch she afterward found was marked 'except Saturday.' No matter what she picked it invariably was a lemon and here it would be so late when she did get to Artichoke Vale that she couldn't possibly get the custard pie made for dinner and the family expected custard pie.

"So you can judge from this the intricacies and perplexities of this time-table. I think the best thing for you to do would be to take along a nice novel and go over and sit in the suburban depot till a train to the city comes along and take it. Then while you are traveling in you will have plenty of time to study the timecard and decide what train you can catch coming back. Be careful and not take a train marked with a star, because those are milk trains, and shun the ones marked 'B', 'D', or 'E' because 'E' carries baggage daily and 'D' only on Saturdays, except the last Saturday of the month and be sure——"

"Oh, fudge!" said the perplexed lady shortly, beginning to unhitch the percolator. "You've missed two trains already—go along! Anyhow, I don't think I want to go in town today after all. I'm going to wait till I feel stronger!"—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Worth Trying

Vanity may be the chief quality of the peacock, as it served the purpose of helping him advertise the beauty of his plumage. It is also a human quality, expressed kindredly, sometimes, through pride. Alice, aged eight, is an example.

"Mamma," she asked, one day recently, "isn't eating fruit good for the complexion?"

"I suppose it is, but why?" the mother responded curiously.

"Someone told me it was."

In another moment the mother saw her standing before the mirror eating a peach.

Not Quite

One day recently Harry's aunt came out to visit the country. As Harry showed her about the place he explained how manifold were his duties.

"Why, I have a lot more to do this summer than last, a lot more," he asserted.

"Well," comforted Aunt Ethel, "you're a whole year older now than you were last summer, aren't you?"

"Oh, no, I'm not," the youngster earnestly contradicted. "I won't be till September."

A Little Talk on Thrift

Happiness Through Thrift Was The Advice of Harding

Of the many cherished words which a grieving nation is today recounting as a valued heritage from our late president, none perhaps are more typical of the man himself than his utterance urging the practice of thrift by his fellow countrymen.

President Harding was himself a man of thrift. He understood its values and practiced its virtues. His application of it was outlined in the following words:

"No habit is so easy to form, none so hard to break, as that of reckless spending. And on the other side, none is more certain to contribute to security and happiness than the habit of thrift, of savings, of careful management in all business concerns, of balancing budgets, and living within incomes.

"If I could urge upon the American people a single rule applicable to every one of them as an individual, and to every political or corporate unit among men, it would be to learn to spend somewhat less than your income all the time."

Leaders of thought in our present day and in past generations have given expression in various terms to the value of thrift to the individual, but no one has left us a more lucid, common-sense appeal than these words from our late President.

It is one of the splendid truths of existence that good words and good deeds do not perish with those who were responsible for them. In the broadest sense, therefore, President Harding still lives, and he will so continue to come. He will live in the imperishable truths he has uttered; in the many expressions of wholesome counsel he has given to those of us who have the honor to be his compatriots.

In these days when economic stabilization is so much needed everywhere, and when a general appreciation of the necessity of settling down to a long era of working and saving is so urgent throughout the world, it is well that we have preserved for us the splendid words of him who so short a time ago went his way among us a living man.—American Society for Thrift.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Samson Occom.

Mr. Editor: The article in Wednesday's Bulletin concerning Dartmouth college and Samson Occom was very interesting. You have spelled Occom's name correctly; for Occum is the name of a place. He was indeed a remarkable Indian, a good and learned man, of great eloquence and of very wide influence. His Hebrew Bible in two volumes is in the Benedict library in Plainfield. It is covered in deerskin and contains his autograph, Samson Occom. His Hebrew grammar is in the library of Dartmouth college. From those books come much of Occom's inspiration and eloquence.

Yours truly,
HENRY T. ARNOLD.

Pastor Resigns.

Mr. Editor: Permit me, as pastor of the Grace Memorial Baptist church, to make mention of my going through your paper? I was called four years ago as pastor; took charge the first Sunday in September, 1919. I have not been able to accomplish all I desire, but I have done what I could under circumstances. Since I am still a student, in my weak judgment, I deem it essential for the welfare of the church, for me to resign, so that the church may have a pastor permanent on the field. I therefore offered by resignation two months ago to become effective Sunday, Sept. 2, 1923, so that I may leave for school and complete my religious education.

Might I say that the writer wishes to thank in advance the readers and friends of Christianity, who are in sympathy with a trained leadership. Any who desire to contribute to such a cause, may respond with any amount, large or small, this week to

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Theodore G. Bilbo, one of the two candidates who are contesting for the governorship of Mississippi in the run-off primary in that State today, has already had experience in the executive chair, having filled the offices several years ago. His has been a stormy career in politics. Like many others who have risen to prominence in American public life he started as a farm lad and then taught school for a spell before entering on a career as a lawyer. In 1907, without money, influence or friends he succeeded in winning a seat in the Mississippi senate. During his early experience as a lawmaker he became involved in bitter factional strife which has caused him to be known ever since as the "stormy petrel" of Mississippi politics. In 1911 in a bitter campaign that followed on the heels of a legislative bribery scandal, Mr. Bilbo was elected lieutenant governor. Four years later he won the governorship, being at the time the youngest man who ever filled that office in Mississippi.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Luebeck

Luebeck, just seized by communists, had vaudeville clubs similar to our Rotary, Kiwanis and Civitan groups, labor unions and giant trusts in the fourteenth century, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Once the most aristocratic of the German free cities, Luebeck swung over, in its 1920 constitution to a government wholly responsible to the people.

"Voters elected a house of burgesses of 80 members, and the burgesses elected a senate of 12 members in whom was vested sole executive authority. Hence the first act of the communist revolutionaries was to oust the senate.

"Once Luebeck signed herself 'Head of the 72 cities. That was when she was the virtual capital of the Hanseatic league. The title was no empty boast. Scotland offended her in 1412, and Luebeck ordered all trade with Scotland stopped. Bruges besought a remission of this order because she sorely needed Scotch wool. It took four years to raise the embargo. A little later mighty Spain fell under a similar ban.

"This league, through a tyrant trust accomplished one good which affects every person who buys at a reputable store today. It set a high standard of trade honesty, especially conspicuous in contrast to the dissolute nobility of Luebeck.

"It pioneered the way for fair prices, accurate labeling of goods, standard measures, and other principles which are accepted as fundamental today throughout the western world.

"In a Luebeck churchyard lies Till Eulenspiegel, or Tyl Owiglass, who were he alive today would be a topliner, billed as 'the season's sensational sleight-of-hand artist, acrobat, and comedian just imported from continental music halls.' He was the fourteenth century Chevalier, perfect frequently in Luebeck, and died there in a poorhouse.

"The candy eater will associate Luebeck with 'Marzipan,' a confection almost individual to that city. It is made of sugar, almonds and rose oil, with some flour in flat cakes, ornamented with bouquets of candied fruits.

"The dainty confection is characteristic of the quaint little Luebeck of 1923, with its many flower beds, extending from the station to the squat double tower, the old City Gate.

"Little today, in comparison with its sister German cities, but a consul of 1688 reported that Hamburg had 1,250 dwellings; Leipzig, 8,240; Berlin, 5,200 and Luebeck, 6,500.

"Among many renowned buildings the City Hall probably was the most popular with travelers, because of the excellent food and cool drinks served in its wine cellar. There a chimney piece bears this admonition: 'Many a man sings loudly when they bring him his bride; if he knew what they brought him, he might well weep!'

"A large boulevard, lined with the beautifully dignified, well preserved, clean houses of old Luebeck families, stretches to the sea. At Travemunde, a large watering place, horse races were patronized by the old patrician lovers of horse breeding. Now the old families, so far as they were not killed by the war, are silently fighting hunger, and sisly doing rare work which may offer.

"Formerly Luebeck traded principally with Sweden, Finland, Northern Russia, and Lithuania. During the war even when the fighting was fiercest on the western front, it smuggled in some little food stuff from the northern countries. It is now, as in olden times, carrying on some import from the North, mainly fish.

"Before Prussia put its hands on all the old Hansa harbors and Free Cities, Luebeck paid no import taxes, which made living cheap. Of course these privileges long since expired.

"Representatives of the old merchant families, as well as the many artists, musicians and painters, have the quaint manner of the slow northern German. They are innately honest, thorough and secretive. In the surrounding country places are numerous settlements of painters. In the flat landscape they stand out pleasantly in the moist atmosphere, with their low-thatched or red tile roofs. All are surrounded by neat flower gardens.

"Like all the northern harbor cities, Luebeck is the home of many sailors, and they, the most daring of the population, formed the greater part of the German marine. They started the revolution in November, 1918 and they, more even than the industrial laborer, are inclined quickly to make an uprising when renewed depreciation of the mark deprives them of another constituent of their now meagre fare. They suffered much because of the war. They always were more international than Prussian. Now there are few ships, and they cannot go to foreign countries, as they did before the war, to find work. These elements are the leaven in the revolutionary populace."

MRS. BUTLER'S TERRIBLE PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

W. Philadelphia, Pa. — "When I cleaned house last April I must have overlifted, for after that I had pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from the store nor walk even four or five squares without getting terrible pains in my back and abdomen and lower limbs. I went to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My husband said that if it did her so much good for the same trouble, I should try it. So I have taken it and it is doing me good. Whenever I feel heavy or bad, it puts me right on my feet again. I am able to do my work with pleasure and am getting strong and stout."—Mrs. CHARLES BUTLER, 1233 S. Hanson St., W. Philadelphia, Pa.

HOLDING FIFTY-THIRD ANNUAL CONVENTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 27.—The fifty-third annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, opened in New London this morning when the delegates attended a special mass at 9.45 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Rev. John F. Ryan, permanent rector of St. Peter's church, Danbury, who is president of the state association, was celebrant of the mass. Following mass the delegates assembled in Temperance hall, corner of Huntington and Jay streets, where the convention was formally opened.

President Ryan called the convention to order after which Rev. Timothy M. Crowley conducted prayer, after which Mayor F. Murray delivered an address of welcome and Father Crowley delivered an address in which he referred to the present prohibition situation as a "condition which is not an unmixed blessing." During the course of his remarks Father Crowley stated that prohibition has done more harm than good, but declared that prohibition was a national law and that the law should be obeyed.

PAY HEAVY FINES FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

In the city court Monday morning Michael Morgen and Max Gershon were fined $200 and costs for violation of the liquor laws and given jail sentences of 30 days, the sentences being suspended, and the fines paid. Both were continued cases.

The liquor case of the state vs Olaff went over until Thursday for more evidence.

Arthur Parent of Willimantic, who was arrested Saturday night at Baltic was fined $100 and costs for fornication and went to jail as he could not pay the bill. He was arrested by Sheriff McGuire.

The liquor case of Charles Lavanto went over until August 30th. Several intoxication cases were brought up and fines given, several being paid and two men went to jail for lack of funds.

W. Hirst paid a fine of $25 and costs for running by a standing trolley car while passengers were alighting.

BRINGS FORECLOSURE ACTION TO RECOVER NOTE

George H. Meschandorf, of Stonington, has brought foreclosure action in the superior court against James McGugan of New London, Richard Dubkowski, of Griswold, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of James McGugan, and several others, the papers in the case being filed Monday in the superior court office in this city. The plaintiff alleges that January 21, 1908, the defendant owned him $2,475 as evidenced by his note of that date. To secure the note the defendant mortgaged land in New London.

The plaintiff alleges that the note is due and unpaid and he seeks to recover through foreclosure.

SHORTAGE OF SHOE AND METAL WORKERS IN NORWICH

That a shortage of workers in the shoe, metal and textile industries exists in Norwich is shown by the July bulletin of the United States employment bureau just issued. The report shows that there has been a noticeable curtailment in the cotton industry in Norwich and vicinity. Two plants are closed temporarily and there is no indication as to just when they will reopen. However, there is sufficient employment to care for those out of work.

In Willimantic the thread industry is operating on four days a week schedule in certain departments affecting about 2,300 workers. Building construction gives work to about 350 men. Housing conditions in Willimantic, are still inadequate, according to the report.

There is a shortage of common labor, machinists and certain metal tradesman in New London. Industrial conditions in New London are excellent although the silk industry is having a temporary relapse. The New London Ship and Engine company with plant at Groton is employing about 1000 machinists, operating on a three shift basis.

With regard to conditions in this state the July survey says:

In spite of decreased employment in certain lines of industry in Connecticut, no surplus of labor exists, and many plants are still running overtime, with more workers needed. Activity in all branches is phenomenally high for midsummer, the usual time of vacations and slowing down of industry.

Industrial employment conditions in general throughout the country are also very encouraging, according to the July survey of the U. S. employment service. The survey for July showed a healthy undertone, and a splendid spirit of optimism is said to exist in the entire industrial field. July showed a very slight increase in unemployment over June in the 1,428 establishments covered by the survey, this increase amounted to only 577 altogether, and each of the plants normally employs above 500 workers.

In the 14 basic industries, nine showed increases in employment, these being beverages, 7.3 per cent.; paper and printing, 4.4 per cent; railroad repair shops, 2.4 per cent.; food and kindred products, 2.16 per cent.; chemicals and allied products, 0.79 per cent.; lumber and its manufactures, 0.47 per cent.; iron and steel and their products, 0.44 per cent.; miscellaneous industries, 0.36 per cent.; and stone, clay and glass products, 0.13 per cent.. Decreases were shown in leather and its finished products, 4.16 per cent.; vehicles for land transportation, 1.76 per cent.; textiles and their products, 1.44 per cent.; tobacco manufacturing, 1.3 per cent.; and metal and metal products other than iron and steel, 0.08 per cent.

As compared with July, 1922, industry in general shows a vast increase in employment, ranging as high as 60 per cent.

In the opinion of the department of labor, the present era of industrial activity is not an inflated period of boom prosperity, but rather based on a sound and firm foundation that is wholesome and basically healthy.

The trio retired about midnight and when Griswold arose one of the men was missing and so were two $20 bills that Griswold declared were in his trousers' pockets when he retired. Going to the police station Griswold lodged complaint against the men and when he and an officer, who was assigned to the case, reached the lodging house the second lodger was also missing. GREENEVILLE WINS TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Monday afternoon, the recreation commission's inter-playground girls' track and field championships were held at the Greeneville play center, and the home team triumphed by the score of 40 points. Elizabeth street was the runner up with 36 points, and the Falls scored 7 points. Lake street, Laurel Hill and Hobart avenue, trailed with 5 and 3 1-2 points each.

The better balance of the Greeneville team was responsible for their winning score, as they scored points in 7 of the events which made up the programme. Elizabeth street scored in 5 out of 7 of the events.

The star of the meet was Nettie Santos of the Elizabeth street playground, who scored first in the 50-yards, first in the standing broad, and second in the 5 pound shot, for a total of 13 points. She breezed through the first heat of the 50 yards an easy winner and came back in the final heat defeating the field by a good margin. C. Codderre of Greeneville gave her a good race for the first half of the distance but Nettie drew away with a fine burst of speed in the last 15 yards. C. Codderre, of Greeneville, Ruth Bundy of Hobart avenue, and C. Quilbeault, of the Falls, finished in the order named.

The Elizabeth street star outdistanced her rivals in the standing broad jump, when she leaped 5 feet 9 inches, which was one inch better than the runner up. Her third score of the day came when she put the 5 pound shot, winning second place and winding up her afternoon's work by leading the Elizabeth street 600 yards relay team to victory.

Second runners up for individual honors were St. Lawrence and Brennan, both of the Greeneville playground team. These two girls scored 5 points each, when the former won the high jump, with a leap of 4 feet 7 inches and the latter placed first in the shot put with a throw of 18 feet.

The feature events of the afternoon, as usual, were the relay races. The first relay was for midgets, a win for the Greeneville team, when little Miss Crowe opened a lead on the first lap, which was never relinquished by her team mates, Ciang, Demiligski, Demiliszki. The Lake street tots were second.

The junior relay was the best contested event of the relay races, and required two preliminary heats to eliminate Hobart avenue, Lake street and Laurel Hill. The event was won in the final heat, by the Greeneville junior girls, but this race was in doubt up to the last leg, when St. Lawrence, of Greeneville, gained a slight advantage over Elizabeth street and held it to the finish. The Elizabeth street girls ran a good race. The Falls was a poor third.

The senior 600 yard relay found the Elizabeth playground strong, for they won the event after a spirited contest with Greeneville with Hobart avenue in third place. Nettie Santos opened up a lead on her leg of the race, which the Greeneville or Hobart avenue teams were unable to overcome. The Elizabeth street seniors put up the best relay race of the afternoon.

Several hundred juniors, intermediates, midgets and seniors took part in the games, which goes on record as the first inter-playground girls' track and field championships ever held in the city of Norwich.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Several cases were disposed of in the town court at Monday's session, these the accumulation of official activities at the week-end. Of the men presented two were sent to jail because they could not pay fines of $5 and costs each imposed upon them for having been intoxicated. These men were George Rockford of the town of Killingly and Charles Girarde of Wauregan.

Coleman Rosenfield of Providence was fined $25 and costs on a reckless driving charge, speeding that he indulged in Sunday, bringing the heavy hand of the law down upon him. In another case in which reckless driving was charged, Arthur LaPage of this town was fined $25 and costs, but of the fine $20 was remitted.

Charles Franklin of Dayville was fined with costs a total of $16.84 on a charge that he had taken short pickerel at East Killingly on Sunday while on a little outing with his family. Deputy Wardens F. E. Kies of this town and Elwood Byles of the town of Plainfield were the officers figuring in this case.

Incident to fishing at East Killingly, it may stir the imagination of some of the fishermen who have become rather jaded with the sport during the hot weather of the past few weeks, to know that Dana Shippee took a string of surprisingly large and fine bass from Old Killingly pond at the week-end. One of these bass weighed just under five pounds—about an ounce less—while another of the fish just fell short an ounce of weighing four pounds. Other fish in the string weighed about a pound and a half each and everyone taken was of good size.

These are days of announcements of candidacies for nominations for town offices. Days also of rumors as to who the persons are that are likely to receive nominations. Among those being mentioned on Monday for places were Charles E. Hutchins, who may be given a place as candidate for selectman on the citizens' party ticket and James Warren of Dayville, who may be nominated for selectman on the democratic ticket.

The first of the caucuses will come on Friday of this week. This will be the citizens' party caucus and it will give the republicans and democrats a line on what to expect in the way of opposition when the real campaigning period starts during September.

Judge and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill, returned from attendance at the 300th anniversary observance of the founding of Dover, N. H., were delighted with the splendid program events that extended through the greater part of a week. Not a rainy day came to mar any given program. There were historical pageants, a mardi gras festival, parades, band concerts, community outings and evenings, an opportunity for those who wished to dance in city streets especially reserved for that feature of the observance. Judge Bill said that every day of the celebration period brought some remarkably fine feature and there never was a dull hour for those who wished to keep in touch with all the activities. Many thousands of visitors were in Dover during the week, many former residents of Dover and its vicinity being among those who came back for the observance.

Announcements of a shoot scheduled for Labor day have been sent out to members by the Danielson Rod and Gun club. This shoot is to begin at 8.30 next Monday morning and will continue throughout the day. To accommodate the ever increasing number of members who have become interested in trap shooting an additional trap has been installed. In addition to this event the club has planned a registered shoot for October 6.

During the coming week members of the Catholic Welfare council are to hold a meeting at which plans will be discussed for leasing rooms that can be used for club members and for undertaking the various activities to which the councils throughout the state devote time during the fall and winter periods. Educational classes likely will be organized, also groups to take up needle work, domestic science and so on. The club has a large membership and expects to be very busy with its affairs during the next six months.

If arrangements can be perfected, and that now seems probable, Danielson will get vaudeville entertainment once each week. This announcement was made by the management of the S-A corporation, now having control of the Orpheum theater, as it also has of houses in Putnam and Rockville.

In a number of instances, growers of sweet corn have found that one of their plans has gone awry this summer. This is an arrangement under which corn was planted at different intervals in the spring so that one lot would succeed another in ripening and keep a supply constantlyd on hand through this period. A late season, however, has brought the various plantings to maturity at the same time.

Friends here received Monday cards from Thomas Caffery, who has been visiting in Montreal.

Mrs. Kate L. Reimer of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a guest of her nephew, W. W. Reimer, and Mrs. Nellie Brown's, Furnace street.

This is the last week of the long vacation season for hundreds of children of school age in the town of Killingly.

Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford was among Monday's visitors in Danielson.

Practically all of the lakeside cottages at Alexander's lake and the bodies of water near East Killingly are occupied during these closing days of August.

Treasurer J. J. Whitehead of the fund for the Nurses' Home of the Day Kimball hospital is now interesting townships hereabouts in plans for the street fair to be given in Putnam in September in what is expected to be the final effort for the completion of the fund.

Howard A. Elliott, special deputy commissioner of domestic animals, was in Danielson Monday on a business trip.

Mrs. Leonard P. Morrisson is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where she recently gave birth to a son.

Forthcoming annual reports of the town will be of more than passing interest. Final statements as they will appear in the reports are now in the course of preparation.

In Pellett's mill Monday evening, the members of Killingly grange held a meeting, the first since the early part of the summer season.

Dollar day was generally reported by merchants here as successful. A large number of out of town buyers were attracted here and made liberal purchases.

Realizing the possibilities of getting business in this territory, agents of oil burning apparatus for installation in heaters are seeking customers in Danielson and vicinity.

PUTNAM

George Butts and family of Woodstock left Monday morning for a vacation which they will spend in New Bedford, on Nantucket Island and at Cape Cod.

Miss Ellen M. Wheelock has returned to her home on Church street after two months' trip abroad. Her brother, Henry A. Wheelock, met her in Worcester, and after going to Uxbridge to leave Mrs. Emma Taft, Miss Wheelock's aunt, who accompanied her on the trip, they motored back to Putnam.

One of the sights among the truck gardens hereabouts is at the farm of Fred Sheldon, South Woodstock, where among a large variety of produce are 15,000 tomato plants hanging full of ripening tomatoes and 8,000 pepper plants carrying a big yield.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Holmes and grandson have returned from a week's stay at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Not a case in the Putnam city court Monday morning! The round-ups of week end celebrators of the past few weeks has apparently had its effect. For a month past, up to last Monday, there have been from six to ten cases for the court to handle, mostly for intoxication. Week end drunks that have to be paid for in fines of $20 and costs of $11.09 are not popular, and that is what the officials have been aiming at.

Stanley F. Bacon and family returned Monday after an outing of several days at Pleasant View R. I.

George E. Brousseau and family have returned from a vacation spent at Hyannisport, Cape Cod.

The announced sale of the remainder of the property owned by the Nightingale-Morse Mills, Incorporated, including the Powhattan and Morse mills and a village of 47 tenements, came as no surprise to citizens of Putnam, who [illegible] from the manufacturing field of this corporation. Mrs. Kate L. Reimer of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a guest of her nephew, W. W. Reimer, and Mrs. Nellie Brown's, Furnace street. in Putnam had been rumored and on good authority it was announced some time ago in this column that such a deal was under consideration. The interest in the sale centered in the effect it would have on the business interests in Putnam, and it was hoped that the rumor that the sale was in the nature of a speculation rather than to interests that would rejuvenate the business and add to the payrolls of Putnam mills was untrue. Such is not the fact, however, as in the announcement of the transfer made public in Providence it is stated that the property taken over by two Providence men, Edward Rodding and B. Dexter Aldrich, is bought for the purpose of resale and if not sold as a whole in thirty days will be sold out in parcels.

The breaking up of the corporation as a manufacturing concern was first brought to the public attention about a year ago, when the corporation's two mills on Main street were sold to the Adams Manufacturing company of North Scituate, R. I. It was announced that the purchasers would occupy their purchase and move their equipment to Putnam. This was a most satisfactory condition. Not only is the company removing the machinery of its Rhode Island plant to Putnam but preceding the transfer they have built a large addition to the mill and an office building. This will be a welcome addition to the manufacturing interests of the city. Forty mill tenements were included in this sale.

The two mills included in this more recent sale are equipped with about 3,400 spindles and 1,200 looms. The product has been twills, sateens, plain goods, fancies, novelties and raw yarn.

The Morse mills were built by George Morse in 1855 and after his death were operated by his son, George Morse, who died some years ago. The Nightingale mills was built by George Nightingale and in 1872 the combined interests erected the Powhattan mills at the head of Main street on Providence street. In 1913 the Nightingale-Morse mills were incorporated, the capitalization being $600,000. At the death of Mr. Morse his son, Augustus Morse, now dead, became resident agent of the corporation. In normal times the corporation employed from 350 to 400 hands and for years was one of the most successful mill companies in Putnam.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

TWO STORY ADDITION FOR TALKING MACHINE SHOP

A two story brick building extension is now being constructed as an addition to the building now occupied by the Talking Machine Shop, at Bath and Franklin streets. The large increase in the volume of business and the extension of the scope of the service to the public by the Talking Machine Shop has made this building necessary.

It is interesting to note the progress made by this concern in a comparatively short period of existence. Commencing with a small store at 74 Main street in 1917, A. Curland the treasurer and manager of the store who has been in the musical merchandise business for more than twelve years started the Talking Machine Shop on its career of serving the public in a limited extent in the musical merchandise business. Today with an entire building devoted to all and every description of musical merchandise, the company finds in necessary to increase its serving space by adding an aditional building. The shop is the only exclusive music house in Norwich.

Abraham Curland, treasurer and manager of The Talking Machine Shop commenced his career in Norwich selling newspapers at the age of nine years. For more than twelve years he was connected with the musical merchandise concerns and in this manner acquired the expert knowledge and experience which fitted him for the executive position he now holds and which enables him to direct the affairs of The Talking Machine Shop to the very high standing it now holds.

Max Hanover, the president of The Talking Machine Shop, is one of the best known men of Norwich. Several years ago Mr. Hanover retired from the well known concern of Hanover and Simon of 565 Broadway, New York city, wholesale merchants. Mr. Hanover became well known in New York city as the acting vice president of the Wholesale Merchants' Association of New York, and was for more than twenty-seven years a wholesale merchant in New York city.

On Thursday evening at the cottage of Mr. Curland, at Ocean beach, a banquet was tendered to the officers of the Talking Machine Shop by the stockholders of the company as an indication of gratitude for the loyal service given by Mr. Hanover and Mr. Curland to the company. The officers of the company during the banquet renewed their pledges to the stockholders of the company that the affairs of the company would be continued in such manner that the service given to the public by the company would continue to be of the highest.

Breed Theatre.

"The Ragged Edge" was shown at the Breed theatre last night, and proved to be an absorbing love and mystery story with beautiful scenic effects. It was made into a photoplay by the Distinctive Pictures Corporation from Harold MacGrath's romance of the South Seas, and brought to the fore Alfred Lunt and Mimi Palmeri, who gave splendid performances of "two young fools" who find happiness in a far-off land.

Miss Palmeri is the new screen Cinderella whose portrait in a fashion magazine last year led to her engagement by the Distinctive Company. The beauty which attracted attention to her is revealed in countless scenes. Lunt is the famous star of the legitimate stage who made his film debut in "Backbone."

Harmon Weight directed this picture. It is the story of a young American who flees from home because of a misdeed which preys on his conscience. He meets the girl in Canton. She, too, has fled from her home because her father, a missionary, had denied her love and sympathy. The two marry. It is through the devotion of the young wife that the fugitive American is made to stand on his own feet. What his guilt was and how he is cleared form the mystery of the story and make of it absorbing screen entertainment.

"The Ragged Edge" will be shown for the last times today and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy.

"Only 38" Scores Big Hit at the Strand.

Scoring a decided hit, "Only 38,55 William de Mille's new Paramount picture production, featuring May McAvoy, Lois Wilson, Elliott Dexter and George Fawcett, was shown at the Strand theatre last night. There is a laugh, sigh or tear in every scene of this splendid comedy-romance.

The story is that of a widowed mother, thirty-eight years old, who longs for romance. Her twin son and daughter are shocked when she accepts the attentions of Prof Charles Giddings (Elliott Dexter) and they do not hesitate to tell their mother so. To Mrs. Stanley it is a case of making a choice between her love of her children and the professor, who opens up an entirely new life to her. She chooses the former, but in the end the mother's eyes are opened by her daughter's love affair and thus the way is paved to happiness for both.

This production is an honest-to-goodness comedy and it is packed with heart appeal. Admirably supporting the principal players is an unusually well balanced cast, including Robert Agnew, Jane Keckley, Lillian Leighton, Tayler Graves and Ann Cornwall.

The Buster Keaton comedy "The Love Nest" was just one continuous laugh from start to finish. A new Kinogram closed this splendid bill.

Hartford Minstrels For Lawn Fete.

There were present, Thomas Morrison, who acted as president, George B. Utter, Louis Rossi, Charles S. Fowler, Farquhar Smith and Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple. This special session was called for the purpose of canvassing the voting list to be used at the Financial Town meeting to be held in the Town hall next Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

A vote was passed by the council to permit the Town Treasurer of Westerly to hire $25,000 for the sewage installation account.

Meeting as a board of canvassers the Town council voted the list of qualified voters for use at the next town meeting "examined, corrected and approved."

After a short discussion it was voted that $1500 be recommended as a special appropriation for Westerly Town Hall. A $215 smaller amount received for the use of the town hall, with the added costs of sewer installation and the payment of last year's bills caused the amount for the maintenance of the town hall to exceed previous estimates. The amount recommended, if voted at the Thursday meeting, will care for the town hall expenses for the balance of the year.

Following the town hall appropriation recommendation, the council voted to adjourn. The next regular meeting of the Town council will be held in the council chambers of the Westerly Town hall Tuesday, Sep. 4, at 2.30 p. m. as the regular meeting date of the first Monday in the month falls on Labor day, a holiday.

While driving along the road, the front door of the Ford touring car became open and as the driver leaned over to close it he lost control of the automobile, and it ran off the road, which caused the little girl to slide from the seat. Upon being brought to Westerly the child was given medical attention at the office of Dr. M. H. Scanlon who with the assistance of Dr. S. C. HOPKINTON

Lawrence Kenyon and his mother, Mrs. Walter D. Kenyon, attended the New England grange lecturers' conference in Amherst, Mass., last week.

A community picnic is planned at Quonochontaug Beach for Tuesday, Aug. 28th.

All the usual church services have been resumed as no cases of measles are now in the community.

The public school at Hopkinton City will be closed this fall and pupils will attend elsewhere.

A roof is being constructed over the dance platform at Ashaway grange fair grounds.

Three airplanes passed over Ashaway last Monday afternoon and at least six Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Kenyon and Thomas Kenyon of Fall River, Mass., have been visiting friends in this vicinity.

Several Hopkinton people attended the surprise birthday party given Mrs. George S. Champlin Saturday at her home.

Rev. B. U. Hatfield preached for the First Hopkinton S. D. B. church Saturday morning in the absence of Rev. A. L. Davis, pastor of the church.

The canvassers for the Westerly hospital fund met with good success in this town.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

JACK WINS HIS LIBERTY.

One morning as Little Jack Rabbit was hopping through a strange Kingdom, he heard a great hue and cry and presently up rode the king and his retainers. On seeing the little bunny the king grew very angry for he was a wicked man and loved to torment animals.

"Catch this little rabbit," he commanded. "He is trespassing on my domains!"

At once the retainers bound Little

Jack Rabbit hand and foot and throwing him across a saddle, they brought him to the castle and threw him in a dungeon.

Now the keeper of the dungeon was a kind man and feeling sorry for the poor little bunny, took him to his cottage nearby. In the morning when the king sent word to have Little Jack Rabbit brought before him, the kind keeper whispered: "If the king is still angry, say to him:

"Ichiemas, micklemas!" but do not let on that I told you."

Sorrowfully the bunny boy hopped over to the throne room, fearing for his life, as the king was very cruel to animals, as I told you before.

"Ha, ha," laughed his wicked royal highness, "A bunny with boots. I've a great mind to cut off your head!"

"Ichiemas, micklemas!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit, and no sooner were the words out of his mouth than the king's teeth began to chatter like hail on the roof.

"Throw the rabbit into the sea!" he roared to his retainers. "That will be a pleasant death for a bunny loves water," and he laughed again, for he didn't mean what he said, for everyone knows that a bunny isn't like a fish.

When poor Little Jack Rabbit found he was about to be thrown into the sea, he said to his captors: "Throw a ring into the water and I will get it again if you will promise to set me free.

This only made them laugh, but at last one of them said, "Let us give him his way," and slipping off a ring, threw it out into the great blue ocean.

"Now leave me here alone," begged the little bunny, "for if I fall I would die with your cruel eyes upon me."

The men agreed to this knowing that he could not escape as there was a great high stone wall all around the kingdom.

"Oh, fishes of the deep blue sea,
Come and bring the ring to me," begged the poor little rabbit, hopping close to the water's edge.
"Is there none within the sea
Who will bring this ring to me?"
again cries the poor little rabbit.

All of a sudden, a fish swam up to the shore and laid the ring on the sand. Splashing himself all over with water, the happy bunny boy picked the ring up and hastened back to the castle. When the king heard what he had done, he said:

"Let this bunny lad go free,
He deserves his liberty."

MAHEU BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Probable cause being found, John Maheu of Willimantic, was bound over to the superior court on a charge of manslaughter by Judge C. M. Davis in the Franklin town court this Monday afternoon. Bonds of $5,000 were provided by Octave Maheu of Willimantic, Maheu's father.

Maheu was the driver of the Ford touring car which crashed into a bank by the roadside at Franklin Hill on the Norwich-Willimantic highway on the evening of August 18th throwing a passenger in the car, to his death on the macadam road. Manning was almost instantly killed, striking on his head, his skull being crushed.

It was said at the time that the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed when the fatality occurred, and it was also said that a bottle, which evidently contained liquor, was found in the wrecked car.

Monday, August 20th, Coroner J. J. Desmond of this city, conducted an investigation into the accident and as a result of the coroner's hearing, Maheu was ordered presented before Judge Davis at the Franklin town court the same day. He was presented at that time on the manslaughter charge, but his attorney, William King, of Willimantic, was granted a continuance of the case until yesterday (Monday) afternoon.

SAILOR ATTACKS NEW LONDON GIRL OF NINE, IN PARENTS' HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.

New London, Aug. 27.—The average motorist seems possessed of the idea that he or she must hurry and that time is so precious that one cannot wait for anything. This was the case with Anthony Balesno, of Hartford, who was in New London Saturday and then smashed his automobile into the car of Waldo E. Clark, on Main street. The result of the crash was that Mr. Clark's automobile was driven up on the sidewalk at Douglass and Main streets and the Balesno car ran upon the sidewalk also and lost a tire—lost it because it was torn off and the inner tube burst. Balesno was arrested and in the police court this morning was fined $25. The witnesses of the accident told the court what happened and all gave evidence that put the blame solidly upon Balesno. He could not give any reason for the acts of which he was guilty except to say that he thought he could get between the Clark car and another that was being operated through the street. Mr. Clark said the Balesno car was going at 20 to 25 miles an hour; Balesno admitted that he was speeding along at 15 miles, which was too fast on a street where there was a great deal of congestion in the highway.

Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey of Vauxhall street, Mrs. John O'Connell and infant daughter, Home street, Mrs. Charles Crawford and infant son, Groton, Mrs. Vivian Goode and infant son, Groton, Joseph Carter, Jay street, John Breck, East Lyme, Thomas Sharkey, Westerly, Conrad Braisted, Jamaica, L. I., Mrs. Hary M. Morse and infant daughter, Montauk avenue, Mrs. Edward Travers and infant daughter, Lewis street, Robert Clymer, Philadelphia, and Mrs. George Moshier and infant son of Blinman street, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

The funeral of Thomas R. Hullivan of 49 Colman street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were Michael Murphy, Joseph P. McGarry, Joseph Gomes, Henry Warner, David Lynch and Charles Hullivan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Jennie Warren, 57, wife of Alexander Warren, of Gilead road, Waterford, died this morning at Lawrence hospital, following a surgical operation which Mrs. Warren underwent a few days ago. Besides her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Albert Chapel and Mrs. Dennis Johnston of Waterford and Mrs. Paul Dauser of Armsworth, Pa., and by a brother, Albert Strong of Noank and a son, Henry Warren of New London.

Harry Elmer French, a sailor attached to the S-50, is a prisoner at the submarine base, held for the New London authorities on the charge of rape. French was locked up early this morning and a recommendation has been made to the military authorities at Washington that the prisoner be turned over to the civil authorities without delay.

French and another sailor went to the residence of Patrolman Howard Sloan, No. 381 Broad street, representing that their visit there was an endeavor to obtain a room for French's companion. Mr. and Mrs. Sloan were entertaining guests at the time and while the sailor who sought lodging engaged in conversation with occupants of the house, French, it is alleged, went to the upper part of the house and finding Catherine Shea, aged 9, step-daughter of Patrolman Sloan in bed, induced the girl to rise. He then attacked her. A short time after the sailors left Mrs. Sloan discovered the child crying and it was then that the crime was revealed. Patrolman Sloan secured an automobile and went to the submarine base where he reported the facts to the executive officer there and caused French to be made a prisoner. This morning Acting Prosecuting Attorney Frank Q. Cronin issued a warrant, charging French with a crime that carries with it a state's prison term, if he is convicted.

An automobile owned and driven by John H. Smith, 284 Eastern Point road, Groton, struck Hall N. Weyant, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weyant of 63 Truman street, on Lower Bank street, this forenoon. Smith had the child taken to the Lawrence hospital, where an examination revealed only minor injuries. The child was taken home, after his wounds had been dressed.

As liquor has been seized by federal officials afloat and on land in this harbor and in this city, the illegally transported and handled stuff has been placed in storage in the United States custom house on Bank street, a formidable looking stone building. So far as known there it has remained. There must be a considerable quantity of the liquor in the building, according to all reports. There is also a watchman in the building day and night and he is prepared for any intruders who may have an idea they could get into the place. Any visitor who attempts to go about that building or who seeks to enter after hours will be treated to a reception that will be of the warmest kind. What amount of money the liquor represents at the prices obtainable for it is not known, but it is possible that the value is more than $50,000. It is doubtful whether that value of property was ever in the building before and it is not likely it ever will be again, when the liquor is removed. The custodians of the liquor are reluctant to talk about its value or its bulk, but there are ways of learning of facts that will enabble a pretty good estimate.

William A. Cowie, a resident of Golden street for several years, but employed the past few weeks at Oneonia, N. Y., died at Fox Memorial hospital in that city, Saturday night as a result of injuries sustained earlier in the day. The body will be brought to New London. Mr. Cowie was a member of Union lodge, F. & A. M. His only surviving relative in this country is Alexander Aiken of Mystic, a cousin. Mr. Cowie was a mason and sustained fatal injuries while at work on the construction of a reservoir for the city of Oneonta. In walking about the masonry, he lost his balance, falling to the ground and sustaining internal injuries.

Nina E. Goode, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Goode, 26 New street, died this morning at the home of her parents, following an operation performed recently for appendicitis.

Sylvia M. Wilkinson, of 115 Main street, died this morning at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital from tubercular meningitis. The child was but a few weeks old.

Mary M., 57, widow of Albert N. Tiffany, died at her home, 230 Thames street, Groton, Saturday night. Mrs. Tiffany had been out of health a long time and recently was under hospital treatment. Besides her husband, she is survived by three children.

Mrs. Lucy E. Francis, 89, wife of George W. Francis of Morgan court, Groton, died Saturday night from infirmities attending advanced age.

Charles H. Cone, 71, of Niantic, died suddenly Saturday night from heart trouble. He formerly resided in New London, moving to Niantic about 25 years ago. Mr. Cone, who was town treasurer, was at the residence of Fred A. Beckwith nearly all of Saturday afternoon going over books of the town's accounts. Mr. Beckwith being the first selectman of the town. Mr. Cone returned to his home about 5.30 o'clock and was reading a paper on his veranda when he suffered a heart attack and fell from the chair. The noise attracted his housekeeper, Mrs. Burke, who found her employer lifeless. Mr. Cone in earlier life, was a bookkeeper at Fulton market, New York, and afterwards was in business there. His first wife was Miss Lillian Chappell of New London. They separated and she went to Flatbush, to reside. Mr. Cone's second wife, Mrs. Addie Cone, was a Brooklyn girl. Mr. and Mrs. Cone have one daughter who was at the home of George Keeney at the Golden Spur when her father was stricken.

The secretary of state will not sign the ballots that are to be used as "official ballots." This was made known following a controversy today between an employe of the secretary of state's office and Director of Law Frank L. McGuire; it also became known that it was the opinion of the attorney general George Healy of Hartford, that the ballots to be used would not be in conformity with the legislation enacted a year ago. The act provides that all ballots shall carry the list of candidates nominated for election under the customary "republican" and "democratic" column, but as the present form of government pretends to be free of politics no party column is carried on the ballots. When this was brought to the attention of Attorney Healy and the office of the secretary of state a controversy resulted. This afternoon the office of the secretary of state informed City Clerk Julian D. Moran that a letter of explanation was being forwarded him today, the substance of the letter being that the ballots would not be officially signed because of not being in accordance with the provisions of the act relating to and governing elections of city officers. Whether the candidates to be elected to the city council at the coming election will be questioned as to legality, it is not known, but apparently they will not be legally elected if legal ballots are not used.

This morning County Investigator William E. Jackson started to obtain the police court records of Joseph Farina and his brother, Gaspero. The trial of Joseph Farina is assigned for the justice court the week of the convening of the superior court. Gaspero Farina is one of the surities on his brother's bond of $10,000.

Claude Treat, 23, employed in the freight service of the New Haven railroad, and residing at 32 Union street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital as a result of serious injuries sustained Sunday afternoon by being struck by an automobile, owned and operated by Nelis H. Nelison of 478 North Main street, Manchester, near East Glastonbury. Treat is suffering from an injury to his spine and as a result he is partially paralyzed.

STATES TO COOPERATE WITH FEDERAL GOV'T TO MEET ANY FUEL EMERGENCY; PINCHOT'S PLAN TO SAFEGUARD PUBLIC

Eleven Atlantic Commonwealths Are to Aid Federal Fuel Administrator Wadleigh to Minimize the Suffering That Might Follow Suspension of Anthracite Mining—To Maintain Rapid Distribution of What Hard Coal is Available, and Secure Sufficient Bituminous, Oil and Other Substitutes to Keep People From Suffering—Gov. Pinchot is Drafting Plan of Settlement of Anthracite Controversy That Calls for Continuation of Mining

New York, Aug. 28 (By the A. P.).—Eleven Atlantic seaboard states today pledged themselves to do all in their power to aid Federal Fuel Administrator Wadleigh and coal-carrying railroads to minimize the suffering that might follow in the wake of a protracted suspension of anthracite mining after Sept. 1.

Four governors and representatives of seven other states voted, with delegates from the District of Columbia, to co-operate in whatever emergency measures Mr. Wadleigh might undertake. Parties to the agreement included representatives of the interstate commerce commission, the American Railway association, the United States bureau of mines and the American Federation of Engineering Societies.

After expressing explicit confidence in a plan outlined by the federal administrator for coping with any fuel trials that might arise, the conference adjourned sine die to await the outcome of Governor Pinchot's conference at Harrisburg, Pa., with union leaders and operators.

"The next thing on the program is to wait and see if there is to be a strike," said Mr. Wadleigh at the end of the conference. "If the need arises we will start at once to put into operation our plan for maintaining rapid distribution of what anthracite is available and of sufficient bituminous, oil and other substitutes to keep people from suffering."

Mr. Wadleigh's plan, as tacitly approved by the conferees, proposed the establishment by each state of an emergency fuel distributing organization. The government would maintain a similar organization, with staff men to work with the states "in distributing fuel, in securing the needed supplies from the producing fields, in obtaining the co-operation of railroads toward rapid and equable transportation."

The federal administrator's organization "would act as a point of coordination between the state authorities, the bituminous operators, the selling agencies and the transportation interests."

From the states' emergency committees would be chosen delegates for "a permanent committee of the whole to act as a central clearing house, in direct contact with the federal government—a regular organization with an established headquarters."

The American Railway association has promised, with individual boards in upper Atlantic states, to see that the coal is properly distributed, said Mr. Wadleigh. The bureau of mines will seek to educate the public as to fuels that may be substituted for anthracite. The Federated American Engineering Societies will designate members in the various states to travel about, instructing dealers and domestic consumers in the safe and economic use of soft coal, oil or wood substitutes for anthracite.

Mr. Wadleigh, his staff, and the official observers from other departments of the government left for Washington immediately after the conference to apprise President Coolidge of the results and to take steps toward perfecting the federal organization Mr. Wadleigh proposed. The states' representatives also returned to their respective capitals to report and make ready for action if the threatened suspension of mines is ordered.

In approving the government's plan the conferees practically discarded that submitted to the United States coal commission in July by John C. Brydon, president of the National Coal association, and resubmitted at today's conference.

Speaking particularly as chairman of the bituminous operators' special committee, which he said represented 80 per cent. of the nation's union and non-union commercial soft coal tonnage, Mr. Brydon offered to turn over to the service of the government an emergency organization of operators which, he previously had asserted, would flood New England with bituminous if the anthracite miners strike," at prices to be fixed by the government.

The emergency organization would set up representatives in each anthracite-consuming state, and in the bituminous mining fields, said Mr. Brydon. It would work with the American Railway association in obtaining proper distribution of soft coal; with coal dealers in educating consumers about the use of substitutes, and with the government in curbing profiteering.

Before adjournment, the conference adopted the following resolution, introduced by Governor Cox of Massachusetts:

"It is the sentiment of the representatives of the anthracite-consuming states that their local organizations will co-operate to the fullest extent in any plan approved by the federal fuel distributor which will secure to consumers a maximum of fuel."

GOV. PINCHOT DRAFTING PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Sufficiently informed as to the issues on which a suspension of anthracite mining has been ordered for September 1, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania today broke off the series of conferences which he has been conducting with operators' representatives and officials of the miners' union and went to work drafting a settlement suggestion of his own. Both groups of men, who have been separately closeted with him for prolonged intervals during the two days since he intervened to prevent a break, agreed to await the proposal Mr. Pinchot will make, but professed entire ignorance as to its terms.

"I have conferred with both sides and told them I hoped they would remain in Harrisburg tomorrow," the governor said in a brief announcement of his purpose. "Within reach for consultation, and that I desire at the earliest possible moment before tomorrow night, if I can manage it—to have ready a suggestion for settlement of the strike. Both sides have courteously acceded to my request."

Meantime, with barely 72 hours to elapse before the men abandon their working places, the operators and miners took a step in anticipation of the struggle, to provide for the employment of engineers, pump operators and maintenance men underground while the miners are idle. Unless this work goes on, the mines will flood and cave in, suffering perhaps irreparable damage, and in past anthracite strikes and suspensions the union and the mine operators have agreed to a truce insofar as employment of the kind has been concerned. In the present controversy the union order for a suspension requires these men to stop work when the coal miners go out.

Phillip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, and C. J. Golden, Rinaldo Cappellini and Thomas Kennedy, the three anthracite district presidents, called in James A. Gorman, secretary of the joint anthracite conciliation board, and the usual intermediary between the union and the mining companies after leaving the governor's office today. A communication to Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' policy committee, proposing negotiation on maintenance work was drafted. Governor Pinchot, asking adjustment of the entire suspension, did not concern himself with the detail, important as it has been considered by the parties to the controversy. Mr. Warriner's response to the union suggestion was not given out but it was considered likely that opportunity would be taken during the night to settle the point. About four thousand men will be needed in the mines to do the work.

Governor Pinchot, fully conversant with the complexity of the situation he had to handle, was expected to consume several hours in preparing the details of his proposal. His peace proposal, it was said by some advisers, would have four things to suggest, as follows:

1.—A 30-day truce, with withdrawal of the union suspension orders.

2.—Consent by operators to abolition of all but eight-hour day employment.

3.—Consent by operators to allow unions to install agents in company offices on pay days for the purpose of collecting union dues.

4.—An agreement by both sides to continue joint negotiations for the purpose of fixing wage scales, with the decision to be retroactive until September 1.

There were several variations, however, in the advance accounts of what general course Governor Pinchot intended to pursue. He would be likely to ask, in addition, full recognition for the union, some advisers said. Others agreed, however, that he would avoid raising the proposal of arbitration, though this has been continually advanced by the employers' group and as often turned down flatly by the union officials.

WAYWARD 14-YEAR-OLD ANNA POST RETURNS HOME

Sparkill, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Anna May Post, fourteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Richard D. Post, who disappeared from her home last Thursday at the same time that George McDonald, one-armed World war veteran, deserted his taxi-stand at the Erie station, returned to her home early today. She was in her room all day today, refusing to talk to anyone, even her anguish-torn mother.

With her, on the return trip, made quietly and unknown to townspeople until late in the evening, was Mrs. James McDonald, mother of the boy who was believed to have run off with the girl.

Where the taxi-chauffeur is now, remains a mystery. Mrs. Post declares that while she is sorry for his mother, who has brought up five other children, she will prosecute McDonald for abduction.

Mrs. McDonald declared the girl was not with her son. Tonight she said Anna had been in a farmhouse in Rockland county with friends of hers. Anna liked the treatment there so well that she just forgot about coming home, the woman said.

RETURNS WILL NOT BE COMPLETE FOR SEVERAL DAYS

Dublin, Aug. 28 (By the A. P.).—With the exception of the National univeristy contest, no election results or figures have yet been officially declared in the general polling for members of the Dail Eireann throughout the Irish Free State. It is therefore still impossible to make any estimate of the eventual strength of the respective parties in the Dail.

Nevertheless there are indications of the possibility of the opposing parties being returned in more equally balanced strength than had been expected, and it may be said that the republicans are tonight showing greater confidence in the results than the government party.

For the National university the government candidates secured all three seats. They were Prof. John MacNeill minister of education; Prof. Michael Hayes, speaker of the last Dail, and Prof. McGennis.

According to the first preference votes, which became known today, President William T. Cosgrave in Kilkenny and Carlow headed the poll and secured election. Under the proportional representation system no actual polling figures are announced for several days, but in certain cases the votes on first preference sufficient to insure election are known and are announced in that way.

According to Smith they battled a heavy high fog all last night and when they saw the same conditions appearing for tonight they signalled a landing was about to be made. During the flight, 15 contacts for gasoline and lubricating oil were made. A total of 572 gallons of gasoline and 36 gallons of oil was transferred from the supply plane to the big De Haviland.

Captain Smith said that considerable trouble was experienced during the night by the gasoline strainer becoming clogged and he smashed his flashlight tapping the strainer to continue the flow of fuel to the motor.

Ship Owners Confer With Shipping Board

Studying Problem of Disposing of Government's Merchant Fleet.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Solution of the problem of disposing of the government's merchant fleet, confronting the administration as a result of the defeat of its shipping bill in the last congress, was sought today at a conference between the shipping board and American steamship owners and managing operators.

While the conference was in progress it was learned at the White House that President Coolidge had asked for further information concerning the so-called Lasker-Farley operation plan.

The president, it was said, plans to go deeply into the question before asking the attorney general for an opinion as to the proposal's legality.

Chairman Farley of the shipping board, at the close of an all-day session with the owners and operators, announced the board's alternative plan for government operation through subsidiary corporations under its control in the event no plan for private operation and ownership is found acceptable.

Earlier the steamship owners had condemned government operation and re-submitted their recently rejected plan, while the managing operators also put forward a proposal. The chief difference between the two private ownership plans is in the expressed willingness of the operators to share with the government losses in the same proportion that they would share profits.

On the other hand, the steamship owners proposed to impound net profits for the ultimate purchase of ships, but contended the government should assume all the losses.

POLICE PUZZLED BY TRAGIC DEATH OF JOHN H. SUTPHEN

New York, Aug. 28. — Suicide or murder?

Back and forth rocked the police today as they studied the gilded past of John H. Sutphen, who, although he was only a private secretary, scattered $75,000 a year in his mad round, of the gay white lights in quest of pleasure.

The authorities tonight had not established to their complete satisfaction either the murder or suicide theory, but through their quizzing of witnesses they learned that the victim whose life was ended Sunday morning by poison after a Saturday night party that lasted until dawn had been known to throw as much as $500 a week in favors to headwaiters and orchestra leaders in his favorite cabarets. They learned, also that even for Broadway, he was a heavy drinker, consuming from one to three quarts of liquor a day.

Continued search of Sutphen's expensively decorated apartment on Central Park West [illegible] body was found on a couch, revealed in an ash tray near the lounge pieces of paper such as headache powders might have come in. These were sent to a chemist's for analysis to see if they contained the deadly poison that cut short a gay life in the midst of its revels.

Detectives studied the source of Sutphen's money supply. In addition to his salary as the secretary of George A. Helme, a tobacco and snuff manufacturer, he was said also to have been interested in an auto accessory concern and to have inherited a sum of money from the wife of a business man in Englishtown, N. J., where his mother, wife and five year old child are living.

To add to this income, however, the police found he was paying $12,000 a year for his apartment, was maintaining his wife and child, and found thousands to cast away for pleasure.

HOMER S. CUMMINGS' VIEWS OF CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

New York, Aug. 28.—The German republic is slipping and the country is on the verge of a revolution, Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the democratic national committee, declared today when he arrived on the Majestic after an extended tour of Europe, during which he spent much time in the Ruhr area.

"Industry in the Ruhr is practically at a standstill," he said. "The railroads are running, but on a very irregular schedule. Service is bad. The industrial life of Germany will be completely strangled unless the Ruhr situation is cleared up in the very near future. The industrialists of Germany regard the present situation as an evidence of actual war between France and Germany, and there can be no change in this attitude until an adjustment is reached through allied suggestion that will lead to the evacuation of the Ruhr by France."

He stated that agricultural conditions in Germany were good but that everywhere there was hoarding on the part of producers. Czecho-Slovakia, he continued, is the only bright spot in Europe; the only place where trading and living conditions are anywhere near normal.

"Conditions as they are now," he continued, "would never have occurred if the United States had entered into the league of nations and assisted in the placing of a stricken Europe on its feet."

GANGSTER KILLED WHILE IN CUSTODY OF A DETECTIVE

Jack Kaplan, Alias "Kid Dropper", Leader of New York East Side "Dropper Gang," Was Shot Dead Through the Back Window of a Cab—Louis Cohen, 21 Years Old, His Assailant, Maintains That the "Kid" Had Been Hounding Him for $500 and Had Threatened His Life.

New York, Aug. 28.—A stripling with a gun took the law out of the hands of the New York police today and wrote a dramatic finis to the career of Jack Kaplan, alias "Kid Dropper," notorious gunman and leader of the East Side "Dropper gang."

The wily gangster chief, on whom the police had been trying to fasten something for months, swaggered at noon from Essex Market court, where he had just defeated the latest effort to connect him with the shooting of two members of a rival gang. Some of the detectives who had crowded the court to guard against a rumored attempt at his rescue nailed him with a warrant charging violation of the Sullivan anti-pistol law.

The Dropper smiled ironically and stepped cheerfully to the taxicab in which his captors planned to take him to another court. His young wife, who had been awaiting him on the sidewalk, broke through to his side, threw her arms around his neck and kissed him.

"Good luck—you'll get out of this, too," she cried hopefully. The Dropper laughed, patted her arm reassuringly, and hopped into the taxicab.

A slim figure which had been lurking behind the cab straightened, drew a pistol and blazed away through the back window of the cab.

The Dropper slumped down in his seat with two bullets in his head. The taxicab driver was laid out with a scalp wound. Detective Captain Willemse's hat was pierced by another shot. Two other shots went wild.

Pandemonium reigned in the court and in the crowded street. Pedestrians fled wildly, seeking doorways and other places of safety. Passing automobilists stepped on the gas and sped away. The Dropper's wife fainted on the sidewalk.

The Dropper's Nemesis turned, with empty gun, to flee. Detectives pounced on him and overpowered him. He and his victim were taken into the court building.

"Gimme water," were the dying gunman's only words as he awaited an ambulance to take him to Bellevue hospital, where he died a few minutes later.

His assailant, who said he was Louis Cohen, a wet wash laundryman, 21 years old, was more voluble.

Burning a cigarette from Assistant District Attorney Wilson, he said:

"'An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.' If I hadn't got him, he would have got me. He told me so. He's been hounding me for a long time. A couple of weeks ago he told me my life wasn't worth salt if I didn't hand over $500.

"I met the Kid about eight months ago," the prisoner went on between puffs at his cigarette. "He was friendly and I thought I was friendly with all his gang until a few weeks ago when I got a note from his bunch saying the Kid would have to get $500. How could I give it to him? I'm a poor man, working for $30 a week.

"When I saw the Kid a couple weeks ago I was afraid he was going to knock me off then and I ran away. That's how scared I was. When I heard they had got my best pal, Schwartzman—poor old Louie, he was the best friend I ever had—I made up my mind I'd take no chances.

"Last week I read in the papers of the raid on the Kid's gang, and how the case was to come up today. I knew the police were taking big precautions to prevent any trouble by the Kid's gang, and I figured I had an outside chance to get him without being got by the gang.

"So I got a gun and hid in an alley beside the court. When I saw them coming I crouched up behind the cab, and when the Dropper got in I up and gave it to him. No, I'm not sorry. He had it coming to him."

Cohen's attack on the Dropper may have saved the lives of several policemen and possibly innocent bystanders, for in the roundup made by detectives in the crowd that gathered after the slaying a half dozen armed members of the Dropper's gang were taken. The court room had been heavily guarded because of reports that the Dropper's men were coming to free him. But it had been impossible to take any elaborate measures outside, and it was believed the gangster's men had planned to effect his release as he was taken away by detectives. They quickly scattered, however, after their chief had been felled.

Officially the police had nothing to say about the slaying of "Kid Dropper," but it was evident that they were not among the mourners at his passing. He long had been a thorn in the side of officials who tried to "get" him.

"The Kid made it a point to avoid carrying a gun as a general rule and was one of the foxiest men we ever had to contend with," one police official said.

The Dropper was arrested last week with fourteen of his followers, in a raid on quarters the Droppers maintained in a Broadway office building near Times square. Arraigned under heavy guard, they were charged with acting in concert in the shooting of William Weiss and Gussie Schwartzman, alleged members of the rival "Italian gang."

The cases were continued then until today. This morning the fifteen were arraigned again. The Dropper, Rubin Manchel, Frank La Magna, David Grossman, George Katz, Joseph Gielzelman and Abe Friedman were discharged for lack of evidence to connect them with the shooting.

Eight others—John Kaplan, Sam Kaplan, Abe Rothman, Anthony Furano, Jacob Holmes, Samuel Wellson, Joseph Zwird and Louis Tolman—were held in ball of $50,000 each, which they were unable to furnish.

DISPLAY OF PLUCK BY MRS. DOUGLAS SMITH OF HARTFORD

Maidstone, England, Aug. 28 (By the A. P.).—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Hartford, Conn., and Albert M Austin, a New York city lawyer, narrowly escaped death last night when a French airplane in which they were passengers on the trip from France to England crashed near Maidstone. None of the Americans was seriously injured.

Leslie Gunther of London, a student of Oxford university was killed. A French passenger and the pilot of the machine escaped unscathed.

According to the pilot, the accident was due to the passengers moving too far back in the plane, thus upsetting the balance of the machine, which side-slipped and then turned over and plunged head downward and crashed into a group of trees.

Mrs. Smith suffered an injury to her nose, her face was lacerated and her right leg cut. Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Austin were badly shaken and bruised and also suffered lacerations. The condition of neither of the Americans, however, was serious enough to require the aid of London surgeons who were rushed to Maidstone on receipt of news of the accident. All of them are in the little inn at the village of Westmalling, where they were carried by rescuers.

The pluck shown by Mrs. Smith in aiding in the removal of the injured from the plane and giving them first aid, although herself hardly able to walk, was lauded today by her fellow travelers. She, the French pilot and another passenger had to clear away the limbs of the trees and the debris to open a space through which to remove the injured and the body of the young Englishman. She became exhausted, however, and collapsed as rescuers from the countryside appeared.

Coming for his second trip to America, De Pachmann said it was not until he was 70 years old that he had learned the real method fo playing. He is now 75. The method he discovered, he declared, had placed him as the foremost genius of the planoforte in the world.

COL. OWSLEY PLEDGES THAT LEGION STANDS WITH FRANCE

Paris, Aug. 28.—The official reception for the entire American Legion delegation by Marcel Peraud, wounded veteran of Verdun, who is vice president of the city council, supplied an occasion for the most outspoken remarks made by Colonel Alvin Owsley since he, the national commander of the American Legion, came to France with a delegation of Legionnaires to attend the conference of the interallied veterans at Brussels next month.

A short time before Colonel Owsley made his brief response to M. Peraud he was notified that he had been appointed a commander of the Legion of Honor and that the decoration officially will be conferred upon him by General DeGoute, the French commander of occupied Germany, at Duesseldorf, on Thursday in military fashion.

"The American Legion, whose national commander I have the honor to be, and for whom it is my distinction to speak representing four million or more soldiers," said the legion chief in reply to the welcome from M. Peraud, "is the one great standing American organization that has declared before the world that it stands with and approves the action of France and Belgium.

"We believe France is right in occupying the Ruhr that it may obtain payment of its debt long since overdue. I have come to France at this particular time to get first hand information concerning your situation, particularly about that vexing problem—the occupation of the Ruhr.

"We have faith in the expression uttered so lately by your distinguished premier, M. Poincare," continued Colonel Owsley, "that France does not desire to occupy any territory belonging to other people except to obtain reparation from our recent enemies. We feel France will make good her pledge and that as the Germans actually fulfill their undertakings on reparations that the armies of France will be removed from Germany."

Mr. Sargent apparently had made careful plans for the suicide, as he had placed officioth on the rug where his body fell and had bandaged his face and mouth, evidently with the purpose of stopping the flow of blood. The bullet entered his right temple and death was instantaneous.

People may talk about the cool summer also of "hard times" and business depression, but the person standing or riding on the state highway in any part of this vicinity could never believe the above circumstances true, as every other automobile which passes his view bears a happy camping party. Hundreds of cars which have passed through this city during the past summer carried ample camping equipment and most of them were filled with passengers out to enjoy the beauties of nature and the pleasures of camp life. Many observers have remarked that they have seen more out-of-state cars passing throug this city this season than during any past year.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SCRAPE, WASH DOWN, AND DISINFECT SILO

Now is the time to clean the silo out. There are two very important reasons why the silo should have a thorough cleaning. First, to prevent spoiling of the silage, and second, to prevent the rotting of the staves in the silo. In every silo some of the silage sticks to the staves. This mold which grows all summer will soon spoil new silage put in. To prevent it, one should take a hoe or some other implement and scrape the inside of the silo thoroughly, then take a hose and wash down the inside. When this is completed and dried, one should take a barrel pump and drench the inside wall with a strong disinfectant to kill the mold germs which may still be living. At this time also all the hoops should be tightened up to prevent the loosening of the joints.

In filling a silo with maiting crops there are several things to keep in mind. One, two or three days previous to filling, the silo should be opened up and aired out as much as possible, so that there will be no danger to the health of the man who is to pack the silage. Next, the corn should be cut while in the glazing stage and with the dew on it if possible, then it should be cut up very fine and water run on the silage, as the silo is being filled. The silage should be thoroughly packed down and should be kept packed tight all the time, especially at the greater circumferance of the silo.

If one will remember that he must first prevent mold infection by keeping it out at the start, that he must have plants that are not too fibrous, that he must keep the air out by thorough packing and drenching with water to drive out the air, he will have no trouble with silage spoiling.

CARBON BISULPHIDE KILLS WOODCHUCKS

Woodchucks are a big menace at this time of year, as they are helping to harvest crops that are not ready to be harvested. In some places they are causing much havoc in potato fields, beans, and in other field crops. The trouble with woodchucks, especially in the potato field, is that they do about ten times as much damage as they need to. That is, they will dig into a hill of potatoes and eat a little of one or two and then dig another hill and repeat the performance, so that the growth of the plant is stopped and almost a total loss is the result, because of this method of devastation.

Woodchucks can be caught in traps if the man is a good trapper, or they can be shot, and again they may be caught by using dogs, but probably for the average man, the very best method is to first locate the entrance and exit of the tunnel made by the woodchuck. Sometimes they have three or four outlets to the same hole, but generally there are only two. If these two holes are found, then carbon bisulphide (which is a liquid) can be used to saturate sponges of cloths to be thrown into the holes. Then these holes should be covered up thoroughly with boards and dirt. The carbon bisulphide as soon as released from the tin can sends out a gas. This gas is suffocating and will permeate tunnels and if the woodchucks are in the tunnels they will be killed immediately. It may be necessary to watch pretty closely that the woodchucks are in the hole before this carbon bisulphide is used, so as to insure the death of the animal. Probably about 10 o'clock in the forenoon is the best time to try this, as woodchucks are not foraging very often at that time of day.

WHAT CAN BE MADE FROM MILK

Some interesting figures have been compiled by the United States department of agriculture to show what can be made from a definite quantity of milk. Using 100 pounds of milk which tests 4 per cent., it has been found that this quantity will make about 4.6 pounds of butter, 11 pounds of Cheddar cheese, 45 fifteen-ounce cans of condensed milk, 12.5 pounds of whole-milk powder, 8.5 pounds of Swiss cheese, or 23 pounds of Camembert cheese. The exact amounts of these products that can be made from 100 pounds of milk varies with the richness of the milk in fat and other solids. A number of by-products are also found by the different processes.

TIME OF FROST DRAWS NEAR.

Everyone wants fresh vegetables, especially the salad vegetables, as late in the fall as possible. The cold mornings of last week have reminded home gardeners and others that the season for the first killing frosts is drawing near, and that provisions must be made if possible for protecting tender crops and extending the growing and ripening season.

Many garden vegetables such as cabbage, brussels sprouts, celery, turnips, radish, and spinach, will stand considerable frost, but squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, beans and corn are all killed by light frosts, and lettuce is usually damaged to some extent. The gardener at this season should watch the government weather reports and in addition should acquire a reliable thermometer. The thermometer should be placed near the ground, or in a corresponding position where it can be easily read.

It is often possible to predict a frost several hours in advance by noting the air and general weather conditions and the behavior of the thermometer. Given a very clear night with little wind and the thermometer standing at 48 degrees or less and dropping rapidly, a frost may be expected. Preparations should be made immediately to protect valuable plants and crops.

In case a gardener is so fortunate as to have an overhead sprinkler system the water should be turned on at once and allowed to run all night. In case the garden is quite small it is well to get out the sprinkling can or hose and thoroughly wet everything in sight as late in the evening as possible. The latent heat in the water which is given up gradually will prevent light frosts.

Burlap or newspaper used to cover plants will afford much protection. Tomato vines should be taken off the stakes and laid on the ground so that they may be covered more easily. Tomatoes which show any color, even the slightest shade of pink may be picked, wrapped in paper and placed in a cool place, where they will ripen slowly over a long period of time.

There is little occasion for alarm, for frosts are not usually here until the middle of September.

NEW ENGLAND CROPS.

Conditions the past two weeks have been reasonably favorable to growth of nearly all crops, as reported to the New England Crop Reporting Service. Recent rains have done much to push crops forward and temperatures have been mostly favorable. Rain is again needed in many places and corn needs warmer nights. The season so far and for the most part has been mostly unusually free from plant diseases and insect pests, except the corn borer, have not been especially troublesome. Maine reports considrable scab generally on apples, but as yet no great complaint has come from other sections. Little, if any, potato blight has been reported.

Haying is still in progress and late reports indicate yields better than seemed possible during the dry weather. The total production of hay in New England will be about up to the standard with excellent quality. Aroostook county, Maine, has the lightest and lowest quality hay of any section. The light rainfall will enable farmers to harvest a full acreage of wild or meadow hay, so that there should be no shortage. Pastures, too, are improving, although they became very short and dry, and they again need rain rather generally. Corn is growing well now, but needs much warm weather to make a full crop.

Maine sweet corn acreage has increased considerably over last year, and the crop outlook is good, if frost stays off long enough. Market gardeners report that most of their crops have done well, and the celery crop is especially fine. Set onions from the Connecticut valley are moving to market and yields are good, but the seed crop is poor to fair.

Conditions have nearly all been favorable to tobacco, and it is one of the best crops in several years. Potatoes are reported as very promising in nearly all sections of New England except in Connecticut, where drought greatly reduced the crops.

Early apples are small size, due to lack of rain, but reports indicate that fall and winter apples are likely to be good size and quality. The total New England crop of commercial apples will somewhat exceed last year's crop. Peaches are a good crop and high quality. Early varieties now being marketed. Good prospects for cranberries.

DODGE BROTHERS ANNOUNCE IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS

Dodge Brothers have not simply brought out a complete new line of motor cars. They have done something infinitely wiser and better than that.

They have brought new beauty, new riding ease and new mechanical perfection to the product on which their reputation as builders has been founded.

They have built a better and a more desirable line of motor cars—yet basically and fundamentally the identity of their product remains the same.

The same sturdy engine is under the hood; the same dependable chassis, improved in numberless details, underlies the body.

But the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially lengthened. The wheelbase, too, is longer, and the combined result is a notable improvement in riding qualities.

Bodies of all types have been designed to give improved appearance, and greater comfort. Lower, longer, with deeper seats and more leg room, the lines of these new cars are low-swung and graceful—the interiors are comfortable and roomy.

New head lamps and fenders, especially designed by Dodge Brothers to conform with the general lines of the car—a long straight hood and cowl effect—longer and wider running boards—unusually wide doors—combination stop signal and tail lamp—and instruments attractively grouped on raised panel—are a few of the numerous body innovations common to all types.

Combining these features with important mechanical improvements too numerous and technical to enumerate here, it is not extravagant to predict a reception for these cars unprecedented in automotive annals.

GREENEVILLE WINS PLAYGROUNDS TITLE AT FINAL MEET YESTERDAY

Thursday afternoon and evening the grand final inter-playground track and field championships for the boys' department of the recreation commissions playground centers was held at the Greeneville playgrounds with the department's instructors officiating.

The meet was the last of the playground season's competitive championships and several hundred seniors and juniors and Midgets participated in what was probably the biggest playground games ever held in the city.

The great Greeneville track and field squad showing a marvelous balance won the meet, with the very excellent score of 87 points. In winning the championship Greeneville secured in each of the 110 track and field events and was the team winners in both the junior and senior cross country runs as well as the relay races.

Lake street secured the runner-up honors as a poor second, with 14 points and Laurel Hill did well in finishing third with six points. Elizabeth Street scored 3 points with Hobart and Falls playgrounds failing to score.

The fact that all the events were graded from midgets to seniors only goes further to demonstrate the great interest evidenced by the Greeneville aggregation as there was no uneven contest regarding age and although this Greeneville center is by far the biggest playground center in Norwich they nevertheless deserve great credit for such an overwhelming victory.

It would be hard to differentiate the excellent performances shown at the games but A. Williams of Laurel Hill who captured the senior sprint in fast time together with Higgins, Prodell, Prodell, Portelance and Hoffman all of Greeneville stood out prominently as high point scorers in the senior events.

In the junior events W. Bartnicki and Fox of Greeneville, Mingo and Courbois of Lake street all distinguished themselves as first place winners and high point scorers.

The most interesting of the relay races was the junior 400-yard relay which was won by Greeneville with Laurel Hill making a game fight, finishing second.

JONES PROVES TO BE A PROBLEM TO CORNETS

Inability to hit Jones, the heavyweight pitcher of the Fitchville team, caused the downfall of Spencer's Cornets Sunday afternoon in the pastures among the hills at Fitchville. The score was 4 to 1. Jones, although lacking experience, pitched good ball and fanned fourteen of the Cornets hitters and allowed only four hits. This is Jones' sixth straight victory and in no game has allowed more than four hits. The Cornets scored in the first inning and after that were unable to get a man past first base. The feature of the game was the home run by Paddy Lynch in the fifth inning and the two-base hit by Tim Coughlin in the first which accounted for two of Fitchville's runs. The score by innings:

CHAMP OF 25 YEARS AGO TO STAGE COMEBACK

Chicago, Aug. 28.—While youth has been refuting for a long time the old saying that "golf is an old man's game," Findlay S. Douglas, of New York, will try to uphold the affirmative of the debate at the national amateur championship at Flossmoor club, September 15, by competing for the title he won 25 years ago at Morris Country club, defeating W. B. Smith in the finals.

Douglas was not a flash in the pan at that time, as he finished runner-up the next two years, losing to H. M. Harriman at Onwentsia club in 1899 and to Walter Travis at Garden City in 1900. That was the last time he ever reached the finals, and he has not contested a national championship for many years.

DEMPSEY REMAINS CLOSE INDOORS AT HIS CAMP

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Rather than risk the danger of further aggravating his cold, Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, postponed his contemplated fishing trip today and remained in his cottage on the shores of Saratoga Lake, to keep out of a cold, drizzling rain that was still falling when he crawled under the blankets for the night.

The champion's cold, while not serious, bothered him more today than any time and is showing no signs of improving. Jerry Luvadis, his faithful little trainer, smeared his chest with linament, and told the titleholder that he would be better in the morning.

While the rain beat down on his little frame cottage, Dempsey, chafing under his enforced confinement, spent the day playing pinochle, reading, and grinding jazz tunes on a phonograph. He was forced to give up his usual run because of the rain soaked roads.

Dempsey may go on a fishing trip tomorrow, the last day of his three days' layoff. He plans to resume training on Thursday, when some new pugilism catchers will be in camp to bolster up his sparring staff.

COX AND MURPHY PILOT WINNERS AT READVILLE

Readville, Mass., Aug. 28.—Ethelinda, bay filly, piloted by Cox, won the Fair Oaks farm trot for three-year-olds, the feature of the first day's program of the Grand Circuit meeting here today. Tommy Murphy, veteran reinsman, drove two winners in the three races in which he started. With Pearl Benboe, he won the 2.12 class trot and he won the 2.06 trot in straight heats with Rose Scott.

Commodore Wilson, with Rodney up was the winner of the Lincoln Jackpot for three-year-old trotters.

The attempt of Peter Manning to lower the track record of 2.59 1-4 was postponed until tomorrow because of the heavy track.

The ultimate, driven by Flemming, won the 2.15 class trot for the George F. Leonard purse.

Middltown, Conn., Aug. 28.—Football candidates at Wesleyan have been called out for September 13, and Professor Edgar Fauver, head of the department of physical education, expects a squad of about 75 to report at that time.

Head Coach J. Fred Martin, who comes from Oberlin college, and Captain Jarvis M. Adams, of New Haven will devote their efforts to getting a team ready to meet Bates on September 29. H. G. McCurdy, of Rowdoin, '22, and W. D. Lash, of Springfield, '23, will assist in the coaching.

The Wesleyan schedule is one of seven games. Seven members of last year's team will be back and around them a team will be built.

The Sterling baseball team defeated the strong Berkeley, R. I. team at Sterling, on Sunday by a 5 to 4 score. This was Berkeley's first defeat of the season. Both teams played fast ball, and although Sterling was outhit they managed to connect in the pinches when hits meant runs, the winning run coming in the eighth inning. The feature of the game was the hitting and fielding of the home team. Hudson was the shining light for Berkeley. The score:

Boston, Aug. 28.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, received the decision over Bobby Wolgast, of Philadelphia, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Wolgast was found to be a pound over weight before the bout began and paid a forfeit of $200.

MISS COLLETT WINS HER MATCH FROM MRS. HURD, AT SCHENECOSSETT COURSE

Eastern Point, Conn., Aug. 28.—Miss Glenna Collett, women's national golf champion, won her first round in the women's invitation tournament on the Shenecossett links here today. Miss Collet defeated Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Merion Cricke club, Philadelphia, frmer champion of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, by 4 up, and 2 to play.

Mrs Hurd did well to cling to the long-driving Providence girl for seven holes, but the latter, who was out in 40, soon began to out-distance her on the long holes and the margin slowly but surely became too great.

Miss Edith Cummings, of Onwentsia, who is a popular favorite to go through to the final, defeated Mrs. Ralph Hammer of Woodway in her match by 4 and 3. Miss Cummings is defending her title and is expected to meet the little national champion if there is no other mishap on either side in the meantime. Miss Cummings was out in a very nice 41.

Miss Anita Lihme of Chicago and Watch Hill, won her first round match from little Miss Maureen Orcutt, the 16-year-old White Breeches girl, by 6 and 4. Miss Orcutt found the going hard at first and took sixes on the first three holes. Miss Lihme played well. She was out in 42.

The Collett-Hurd card:

Miss Collett, out, 4 4 5 5 5 4 5 4 4—40
Mrs. Hurd, out 4 5 4 3 7 4 5 5 5—42

ACCIDENT PUTS AMERICAN BOAT OUT OF RACE

Rothesay, Scotland, Aug. 29.—Within ten minutes of starting the second round the American six meter yacht Lea's Spinnaker sheet carried away and she was forced to surrender the third of the series of races for the Seawanhaka cup today to her British opponent Coila III, making the series stand two to one in favor of the British craft. The Lea was fully two and a half minutes astern when she gave up.

Probably other damage was done to the American boat for she was promptly brought head to wind when the accident occurred as she was scudding down the wind.

The course was two rounds to the leeward and windward with the outer mark off Largs on the Ayshire side of the firth in a hard northwesterly breeze. The boats got away at 3.30 o'clock with the Lea about a length ahead but as soon as the Spinnakers began to draw the Coila III pulled through to leeward and kept increasing her lead.

The times at the end of the first round were 2 hours 37 minutes and 15 seconds for the Coila III and 2 hours 39 minutes and 50 seconds for the Lea. After the American boat's disablement, the Britisher lowered her spinnaker and, sailing easily, finished the course in 3 hours 49 minutes and 55 seconds.

FIRPO HAS PARTNERS IN DAZED CONDITION

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28.—Banging away with lefts, straight lefts, and uppercut lefts—Luis Angel Firpo punched four sparring partners dizzy in eight rounds of a fairly heavy workout at his training camp this afternoon. Under the cabled directions of Felix Bunge, the Buenos Aires trainer, as interpreted by Horatio Lavalle, the local boss, Firpo is devoting virtually all of his work to development of the portside piledriver.

Several times during today's sparring session the South American, after drawing his men into a corner, would loose the right, and in each instance the sharp commands of Lavalle could be heard above the thud-thud of the punches, directing the challenger for the heavyweight title to work only with the left. The big fellow obeyed, but witheld most of his power. Even so the punch catchers were well shaken. Some of the critics among the spectators thought that Firpo would do better to quit "pulling" his punches Frank Koebele, the young Brooklyn light heavyweight, whose style is similar to that of the heavyweight champion, furnished stiff opposition for the challenger.

MOLLA ADVANCES TO THE FOURTH ROUND

New York, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory who was seven times national women's tennis champion, advanced to the fourth round of the annual invitation tournament for women on the courts of the Rockaway Hunt club today. She eliminated Mrs. A. F. Riese, Michigan state champion, in straight sets: 6-2, 6-4. The New York player had no trouble with her opponent.

In other feature third round matches of the day, Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston, defeated Mrs. Ream Leachman in a hard fought match 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, and Miss Leslie Bancroft, also of Boston, defeated Mr. G. E. Gersdorff 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Sigourney was the only one of teh three stars who experienced any difficulty. Mrs. Leachman played a brilliant game, and had the Boston girl racing from corner to corner through the greater part of the match. Miss Sigourney's superior staying power won the match for her.

GLASGO IS BEATEN BY THEIR OLD RIVALS

Baseball teams representing Voluntown and Glasgo met on the field of battle at Voluntown Sunday afternoon before the largest crowd of the season, and Voluntown emerged the winner on the long end of a 10 to 2 score. A. DuPont who pitched for the Voluntown team was in rare form and held the Glasgo sluggers to one scratch infield hit and struck out 8 men. Voluntown found the Glasgo pitchers easy and collected 13 hits including a homer by Marion, a triple by A. Dupont and doubles by Margrey and Gaudette. Glasgo played a snappy game in the field, Tabor and Leroix making sensational one hand catches in left and center field which robbed Voluntown of hits that would have meant runs. The score by innings:

Voluntown	0	2	0	3	1	4	0	0	x	10	13	4

Two base hits, Margrey, Gaudette. Three base hits, DuPont. Home run, Marion. Struck out by DuPont 8, by Lacroix 8. Base on balls, off DuPont 3, off Lacroix 4, Duthra 1.

Next Sunday Voluntown plays a strong team from Noank at Voluntown.

DEFENDING CHAMPION LOSES TO VIRGINIA WILSON

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Elimination of the defending champion, Mrs. Dave Gout, of Memphis, Tenn., by Virginia Wilson, of Onwentsia, Chicago, today furnished the surprise of the first match round of the women's western golf championship at Exmoor Country club.

Miss Wilson got a lead on her more experienced opponent early in the play and turned up 3. Mrs. Gaut tightened up on the second nine but her girlish opponent shot full as well and won 2 to 1.

She scored a 91 to Mrs. Gaut's 92.

Another promising contender for the title, Virginia Pep, of St. Louis, defeating Mrs. Walter Page, of Chicago, by the wide margin of 6 and 4 and won the right to play Florence Halloran, of Salt Lake City, who today downed Mrs. C. C. Russell, of Milwaukee, two up.

The medalist of the tournament, Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Olympia Fields club Chicago, ousted Mrs. Tom Elcock, of Wichita, Kansas, 4 and 3, and will have as her next opponent, Miss Miriam Burns, of Kansas City, Missouri champion.

WORKING FOR THE PUBLIC.

The efforts of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and the governors of the eleven eastern states are not being made in the same direction. They were not intended to be.

With the sanction of the president, Governor Pinchot is making an eleventh hour attempt to prevent the wrecking of coal production. He has gathered the miners and operators together and told them collectively and individually what the situation is, that coal production must not stop, that public requirements must not be ignored and through his appeals and through such statements as have passed between the mediator and the respective sides and the facts which he has concerning the points in dispute it is hoped that the basis has been laid for an adjustment of the situation. It will require but a short time to learn what the outcome is going to be. Governor Pinchot as the chief executive of Pennsylvania is peculiarly well situated to deal with this matter, since all the anthracite is mined in that state and it is the laws of that commonwealth that govern coal production, while the police powers of the Keystone state are those which would be first to be brought into use should the situation require it.

While the governor of Pennsylvania is making a determined effort and is hopeful of preventing a strike, the other governors are bending their efforts to the perfection of plans whereby their constituents will be able to get fuel in case hard coal mining is actually stopped. They recognize the desirability of prevention but likewise realize the folly of delaying preparations for insuring some fuel while uncertainty prevails.

If the Pinchot effort succeeds there will be no need of the other plans. But if it fails the governors' preparations will be found to have been most timely. Both must be recognized as necessary undertakings in behalf of public welfare, or action which they have been forced to take because of the refusal on the part of others to give any weight to the position of the public, though it would be seriously affected as to health, comfort and earning power.

AIRCRAFT LIMITATION.

It is not surprising that Commander Owsley of the American Legion should be advocating the curtailment of aircraft for war purposes. It has been recognized that much has been gained in behalf of peace by the efforts in behalf of the limitation of armaments. But what will be the permanent gain if war preparations are curtailed in one field and increased in another!

Commander Owsley notes along with others what increased attention is being given to the development of the aircraft for war purposes, the appropriation of large sums and the building of large fleets. There is no question but what large possibilities lie in that direction and more dependence than ever will be placed upon the airplane in the future wars.

Instead of waiting until the war machines of the air have been developed to a position that would compare with the navies of the world in power and expenditures before seeking to bring about restrictions, and the settlement of questions by other means than bloodshed, the movement for their limitation might as well be started now as at any other time. In fact it is preferable.

Airplane development can be expected to go on rapidly. It has already made wonderful strides. Flying is destined to make greater changes in transportation, but there is no good reason why the several nations should desire to spend their money for war purposes in that direction any more than in some others provided it is possible to reach an understanding among them relative to limitations. That sensible idea may well be presented to those nations which now lead in war planes and which are already beginning a race to see which can outdo the others in such preparations.

Getting the nations to agree to airplane restrictions as they did to limitation of navies may come harder, but it has the merits of being sane and sensible and certainly worthy of being attempted even though it does not succeed from the first.

PLAYING INDIANS.

Shocking is the story which comes from New Jersey concerning the burning to death of two boys by their companions while playing Indians, and the worst of it is that they were boys who were old enough to know better. Boys of 16 and 17 certainly know the effects of fire and what is bound to happen to those who are tied and placed in inflammable material, to which a torch is applied.

"Playing Indians" covers many possibilities. It might easily be the simple play of children of younger age, for even if real Indians are not to be seen these days, the pictures and stories about them are bound to exist and impress. In this instance it seems to have been the play of young men mosity, but that does not appear in the reports.

Whether it was the result of dime novels or moving pictures hasn't as yet developed. There have been instances where equally serious results obtained in other ways have followed the emulation of certain characters in novels or on the screen. Not a little sentiment has for that reason been aroused against the innocent but nevertheless the actual things which have inspired such fatalities.

However much it might have been intended to check the fire before it was possible for it to do any harm, it is clearly demonstrated that the best of intentions often go wrong, and in this instance they went so far wrong that two boys were sent to a most untimely and painful death. Such reality in "playing Indians" is almost unbelievable among normal boys of that age, and especially when no ill feeling seems to have prompted the action.

MAKING VOTERS.

Certain formalities have to be complied with by those who want to become voters, and that is a goal which all citizens should desire to reach. There are provisions of the law concerning the making of voters. They are simple but explicit. They must be carried out, and it is none too soon for those who are eligible and who desire to participate in the coming town election to observe those requirements.

There will be an opportunity for those who desire to be made voters next month. The board for making voters will be in session two days, but it is necessary for those who desire to appear before the board and qualify to get their applications in by the fourth of September. These applications should be in the hands of the registrars or their assistants by next Tuesday. This leaves a week to carry out this detail but it is quite as necessary as it is to meet other requirements, for failure to get your name on the list of those "to be made" spoils all chance of going before the board this year.

Those who are citizens of this country, who have lived in the state and town the required length of time and are 21 years of age should be expected to want to be numbered among the voters of Norwich. It is proper that they should desire to have a voice in the direction of city and town affairs, as well as in those of state and nation. There is a duty in this direction resting upon the shoulders of each and every individual.

The time to display a desire to assume the full responsibilities of a good citizen is now when having passed the age limit the opportunity presents itself to become a voter. Many failed last time the board was in session to take the test. Some forgot it; others neglected it. Others have since become of age and newcomers are constantly passing the necessary limit of residence.

It thus behooves all who can to get in their applications to the registrars of voters by September 4 and thus prepare the way for being made on the 15th or 22nd. Don't leave it to someone else.

SIGNBOARDS.

Those who have occasion to travel about or through states, or ever pick their way about the highways within a locality where they are not acquainted, are invariably complaining about the lack of proper and conspicuous signboards.

Country roads or even main arteries of travel could be found and followed with no trouble whatever by those who are acquainted, but it is the person who comes from a distance, or who is traveling over unfamiliar territory who is puzzled to know where to turn, or what road to take when they come to a forks of the road and either might lead to the destination in time but the shorter and better route is desired.

The Golden Rule hasn't been overdeveloped when it comes to the matter of signboards. What is said about the billboards being too numerous, disfiguring and conspicuous cannot be applied to those guides which are important in directing the traveler.

If the policy of marking all roads should be adopted by the various towns, aside from the signposts which are erected by various organizations which seek to make plain the destination on the trunk lines, it would display a cooperation that is much needed and that would greatly relieve the users of the highways.

Just why the roads in the country should not be marked as distinctly as or more so than the streets of a city is impossible to understand. There is even greater need for it today than ever before with the large amount of traffic which all roads are subjected to these days, and with so much of that traffic, including those from other towns and other states.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will not be possible much longer to lay all the weather troubles on dog days.

That six-cent gasoline in Los Angeles is making some of the easterners envious.

The man on the corner says: August hasn't forced us to do much fanning between sneezes.

It is impossible not to admire Cuba for the prompt manner in which it has liquidated its war debt.

Those remarking that there were not many flies this summer have been forced to change their view.

Those who participated in the exchange of a Ford and a phonograph probably figured they could get about as much noise from one as another.

It doesn't help the miners' position any to brag of the millions they have on hand, wrung from the consumer, with which to fight for still most costly coal.

President Lewis of the mine workers has soured on arbitration because it has not demonstrated that the demands of the miners in the past were justified.

Down in Florida an innocent Negro is believed to have been lynched. If so it is by no means the first instance where mob rule has entirely disregarded innocence.

Governor Pinchot declared that there must be no suspension of hard coal mining. What boldness to display before those who are ready to

A LEMON PIE

The catastrophe took place two years after the wedding, previous to which the little bark of domestic happiness, guided by the tiny god of love, had sailed smoothly and tranquilly over the sea of matrimony with never a glimpse of trouble.

The blow came suddenly. Without warning the clouds gathered, the storm broke, and before the occupants knew it the tight little craft was wedged in a soft but unyielding mass of lemon pie.

It was awful!

To have struck a real rock would have been misfortune enough, but to have one's life's happiness buried in an oozy, sticky mess of lemon meringue was galling. It lacked dignity.

The skipper, Lionel Strange, knew it. So did his little mate, Grace. They knew, too, after a while, that their predicament was the result of taking on a well-meaning but boat-rocking passenger where passengers have been, always are, and always will be, taboo.

The passenger was Uncle Ed. The good ship, all unconscious of what lay before it, was sailing under the fairest of skies, on the smoothest of waters, when Lionel received a letter from Uncle Ed to the effect that he was weary of roaming under foreign skies, that he had a hankering for home and kindred, and would like to rest his tired body in the land of his birth. Would it be possible for his dear nephew and niece to put him up for a while?

Captain and mate were agreeable to such a proposition. Lionel had pleasant recollections of Uncle Ed, in childhood many a toy that would otherwise never have been his came from the good-natured old bachelor. In his college days many a sorely needed dollar reached his pocket from the same source.

And though Grace had never met Uncle Ed, she already had cause to be grateful to him, since the house they lived in was his wedding gift, without which their marriage would have been indefinitely delayed. The response was so cordial that Uncle Ed arrived on the first steamer he could get.

He was a jovial old uncle and they enjoyed him immensely—for a while. Though loath to admit it, Lionel and Grace discovered, after Uncle Ed had been with them a few days, that he was more than a trifle spoiled. Like most rich bachelors, he wanted what he wanted when he wanted it. And he wanted it often.

He was finicky in the matter of food, and after a few sessions with Dora in the kitchen Grace was ready to announce to the world that a rich bachelor uncle was not such a desirable acquisition as one might childishly imagine. Dora's culinary efforts, which had hitherto been more than passable, failed to please. Grace endeavored to do the cooking herself, a courtesy which Uncle Ed failed to appreciate, and which only served to further enrage the already belligerent Dora.

It was of no use.

After a couple of weeks Grace began hoisting distress signals. Lionel volunteered to assist her, but his efforts were productive only of scorn from Grace and ridicule from Uncle Ed.

The climax came when Grace, finding that Uncle Ed was particularly fond of lemon pie, innocently volunteered to make one, thereby bringing on the great disaster. Grace studied lemon pie for a week before, with fear and trembling, she undertook the creation of one.

Lemon pies danced before her sleepless eyes at night, or filled her dreams when her overwrought nerves succumbed to slumber. She spent an entire morning mastering its intricacies. Nevertheless, the result, she felt, justified her efforts. It was a wonderful pie, all golden-brown and snowy-white. Exhausted but triumphant, she bore it to the table, cut it, and served it.

Uncle Ed tasted his portion. The taste seemed a spark to his fiery tongue. He made a few pithy remarks on cooks in general and one cook in particular.

"Whoever made that pie," he finished, "should have been sent to jail for it."

Grace rose, her eyes glittering. "You—you—nasty—old—glutton!" she said, distinctly, and left the room.

Lionel followed, after a suitable interval. He found her packing her trunk.

"What's that for, Grace?" he asked, with husbandly authority.

"I'm leaving you, so you can enjoy Uncle Ed's society," she retorted. "It's too choice to divide with anybody."

"Grace, that's ridiculous," said Lionel, sternly. "I'm surprised at you! To make such a fuss over a criticism on your cooking!"

"It's ridiculous to make a fuss over such a disgusting uncle! A perfect pig of an uncle, whose chief worry is what to put in his stomach!"

"He's been awfully good to us. He's given us the house we live in."

"With him inside of it, I'm afraid I can't summon up any feeling of gratitude," she flung back.

"Well, you'll have to apologize to him."

"Lionel Strange," said Grace, her eyes flashing, "don't you talk to me like that! He'll apologize to me, and you, too, or else you'll stay here together, precious pair of relations that you are, and keep house by yourselves. I'll go to some place where the world doesn't center about a lemon pie!"

Slowly but surely the ship began to settle into its sticky culinary mess. The captain tore his hair. It was very well to assert husbandly authority, but if Grace paid no attention to him—One couldn't see one's life wrecked in this foolish manner. Abstractedly he heard a train whistle in the distance. Grace threw a few more things into her trunk. Lionel caught her hands and drew her to him.

"Grace, darling, I'll see what can be done about Uncle Ed. I'll speak to him today. I'll——"

Grace, with outward reluctance and inward delight, forgave her husband, and the two went downstairs to seek Uncle Ed.

But Uncle Ed was nowhere to be found. Instead a note was discovered on the library table which told them that the departing train had carried Uncle Ed along with it, on his way to Africa. He apologized for being ill-tempered and ill-mannered, saying that life in the wilds made one unfit for civilized society. Would they please forgive a grumpy old bachelor who wished them nothing but happiness?

Lionel looked at Grace, and Grace looked at Lionel, who kissed her rapturously.

"Poor Uncle Ed!" said Grace. "I'm sorry!"

And the little ship, now clear of trouble, sailed on, with fair weather and a smooth sea.—Boston Post

Stories That Recall Others

Slightly Mixed.

A little girl was sent to the library to exchange her sister's book. She was asked to try for "In Another Girl's Shoes," by Onions. By the time she reached the desk she forgot her instructions so her request was for "Onions in Another Girl's Shoes."

Comedy For Some.

Several days ago a business man boarded an open car which was crowded, and he squeezed in between a man who was absorbed with a newspaper and a woman, almost buried with bundles.

The car ambled along until the woman pressed the button to get off at her street. Her numerous bundles made her exit rather difficult and the business man politely helped her off. Just as the car started again he noticed one more bundle—a brown, bulky one. He excitedly motioned the conductor; the car stopped and the accommodating one ran back several feet and deposited the bulky package in the woman's overcrowded arms. Then he resumed his seat, conscious of the approving glances of many passengers.

Later the man who had been absorbed in his newspaper rang the bell to stop. Then he began looking around, and under the seat, and finally motioned the conductor. "See anything of a brown package?" he said. "I've lost one." At least several passengers shivered uneasily and some women tittered. The car stopped, and the conductor, with one hand poised to ring the bell pointed an accusing finger at the accommodating one. "That man there," he said heartlessly. "Ask him about it. I guess he gave your package to a woman that got off the car way back yonder."

"That so?" shouted the irate passenger, while everyone turned in their seats; "that so? Well he gave her a brand new pair of my shoes then—the only ones I've got to wear to a wedding tonight."

At the next corner a man whose face was very red got off the car and disappeared hastily.

Sunday opening of shops in England is increasing so much that shoe stores and dry goods establishments now remain open on that day in some of the industrial towns.

A tip to drivers—and pedestrians too

By THE VETERAN MOTORIST

I SUPPOSE it's because I've driven around so much in the last fifteen years that I've seen about twice as many accidents as the average motorist. Can't begin to remember them all, but I know a lot were connected with passing trolleys.

One special reason for this lies in the different rules and regulations that prevail in different localities. In some places you may not pass a standing trolley at all, and there the pedestrian crossing the street should be perfectly safe from automobiles, so long as the trolley remains standing. In other places motors may pass a standing trolley "with due care" or "not less than" six or eight feet away; in these cases both driver and pedestrian ought to watch their going mighty carefully.

My best advice is to keep up to date on your own local rules about passing trolleys, etc., and follow them scrupulously. When you are away from home, and may not know all the local provisions, abide by the strictest rules for safety that you do know.

USING ENGLISH LANGUAGE AT GERMAN CHURCH

At one of the greatest of world conferences of the German Lutheran churches which closed Sunday at Eisenach, Germany, members of the faith from 16 nations were in attendance and discussed plans which are expected to bring about a better understanding among all nations, said Rev. Hermann Hunsinger, pastor of the First Lutheran church of this city, Tuesday evening.

In speaking of the policies of the German Lutheran church, Rev. Mr. Hunsinger, said that the church in America is 100 per cent. American, this being shown when 600,000 young men donned the uniform of the United States forces and fought in the World war.

Another important announcement that has been brought about during recent months is that throughout the country the German Lutheran church is gradually drifting away from the use of the German language from the pulpit. As far as the younger people are concerned the swing is entirely towards a full use of the English language, and in years to come this will be the language of the church in the United States and Canada.

Rev. Mr. Hunsinger is already using the English language from the pulpit in the local church, especially at the Bible study classes on Thursday evenings. A part of the Sunday services are also to be in English, but Rev. Mr. Hunzinger will be compelled to speak in German in delivering his sermons to the older people, many of whom cannot readily grasp the message if in anything other than their native tongue.

The outcome of the movement will probably be that two sermons will be preached from the pulpit, one in English, the other in German, in order that the message may reach all members of the church.

"THE FOUR HUNTINGTONS" ON THE EPISCOPAL MITRE

Writing to the Middletown Press, Charles Collard Adams says:

A recent Sunday magazine contained an illustrated article showing the proposed coat of arms of Christ church cathedral, also of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut. On the latter is represented a mitre, the official head covering of a bishop. About 40 of the dioceses, according to the Living Church Annual, have adopted coats of arm bearing a mitre, while others have coats of arms not bearing a mitre. Connecticut has no coat of arms, at least until this year, and Maine has none.

Yet Connecticut was the first colony, not yet a state, to have a bishop. The few clergy met in 1783 in the now ancient globe house at Woodbury, and elected Samuel Seabury and sent him to England with a petition to the bishop to consecrate him. Under the law they could not consecrate him because he could not take the oath of allegiance to the British crown. He went to Scotland, where the non-juror Episcopal church was not under such a restriction, and he was there consecrated on Nov. 14, 1784, in Aberdeen cathedral.

The Episcopal church in Scotland refused allegiance to William of Orange, being loyal to James II. and was a "dissenting" church, the Presbyterian church being "established" in Scotland. These Scottish clergy clung to old standards and ancient customs, and the Liturgy of the Episcopal church of the United States was framed after the Scottish liturgy in contradiction to that of the Church of England, liturgy being the correct term for Holy Communion office. Undoubtedly the three Scottish bishops wore mitres with the corresponding vestments when officiating at the consecration of Samuel Seabury, whose portrait shows him to have been a most majestic person, and if his portrait had been painted with him in eucharistic vestments they would have become him.

He brought his mitre with him on his return. Whether he ever wore it after it was placed on his head I cannot say. It is preserved at Trinity college. Conditions in this country were not favorable to a compliance with ancient ecclesiastical practices. And though he ordained a number of Episcopal clergy to be deacons and then priests, and united with two bishops, consecrated in England when the oath was no longer required, in consecrating bishops for the Episcopal church in this nation, the ancient Scottish vestments did not obtain vogue.

Time has witnessed a return to ancient practices, but only in parts of this country. There are numerous bishops and priests in the Episcopal church who have adopted what they term Catholic costumes, but in New England, and especially in Connecticut, no bishop has, and but few priests have. The Rev. Henry St. Clair Whitehead as rector of Christ church, South Farms, wore eucharistic vestments, and did not hesitate to speak of the "mass," the Anglicised word for the Latin "Missa," and the Rev. Percy M. Binnington does. Rev. James Otis Sargent Huntington, head of the monks of the Order of Holy Cross, in his Franciscan (brown) garb, has been a welcome speaker from the pulpit of Holy Trinity church. His father was my much revered bishop from 1873 to 1875. His grandfather, the Rev. Dan Huntington, was pastor of the First Church of Christ in Middletown from 1809 to 1818, when he retired to his wife's ancestral home in Hadley and where he became a Unitarian, as was his son, Rt. Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, who became an Episcopalian about 1860, and bishop of Central New York in 1869.

With the well known liberality of Rev. Douglas Horton, it would be fine for him and his people to invite to speak from his pulpit, this grandson of the fifth pastor of this historic First church.

The father of this fifth pastor was a deacon of the Lebanon church and I had the pleasure some years ago of writing on the "Four Huntingtons."

STATE POLICE GET TWO IN LIQUOR RAID AT BALTIC

Two arrests on charges of actual sale of liquor were made in Baltic early Tuesday evening by a squad of state police officers from the state police barracks in Groton. The squad State Police Officer Fred T. Caron in charge, visited the Baltic hotel where they arrested George Morin on an actual sale charge and then went to High street, Baltic, where they arrested Clifford Cote, on a similar charge. At 8.30 o'clock, shortly after the arrests had been made, a special session of the borough court convened, with Justice Adams on the bench. Prosecuting Attorney Cote was assisted by Attorney Barry of Jewett City and Attorney H. H. Pettis of Norwich defended the accused.

Cote pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was fined $100 and costs. The case against Morin was continued until September 6th. The trial of the two liquor cases attracted nearly 200 people who crowded into the court room. The state police in the arresting squad were Officer Fred T. Caron, Officer Tremp, Officer Skelly, Officer Urquhart and Officer Kirschner. The court session lasted until 10 o'clock.

SPALDING STREET BOY DROWNED AT PARK

John Coulopoulos, age 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Coulopoulos of 33 Spalding street, was drowned shortly before noon Tuesday when he fell off the dam at the lower end of the lake in Mohegan park into 30 feet of water. His body was recovered about 45 minutes later, and permission was given by Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve to remove the body to the undertaking parlors of Cummings & Ring.

For over five hours efforts were made to identify the body. The boy's lone companion left the park without telling his name, and there was nothing to identify him.

The boy had been fishing from about the middle of the dam almost over the outlet pipe and evidently lost his balance and plunged into 30 feet of water. Supt. Peter VerSteeg, William Thiel and other men who were at work near by saw a little boy running and heard him shouting that a boy had been drowned. They called to him to stop but he paid no attention and disappeared. The men ran out on to the dam, hoping to be of some use in saving the boy, but he did not come to the surface. A boat was secured and William Thiel started dragging for the body, recovering it about 12.45 o'clock.

Everything possible was done to resuscitate the body. Word of the drowning was sent to the police department and Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve. After viewing the body, Dr. Gildersleeve gave permission for its removal by Undertakers Cummings & Ring.

The boy's parents became alarmed when he did not appear at his home at noon and in the late afternoon they notified the police that he was missing. The police, who had been trying all afternoon to identify the body, told them of the drowning of a small boy at the park lake and directed them to the undertaking rooms, where they identified the body as that of their son. This was the first drowning accident at the park this year.

FINED FOR BATHING IN SO. COVENTRY LAKE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 28. — Henry J. Mathieu of this city, secretary of the Mutual Protective Association of Cottages of Lake Wangumbaug of South Coventry, was fined $7 and costs at a session of the Coventry town court, held at 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the town hall of that place.

Mr. Mathieu was charged with bathing in the lake, contrary to the order of the state of health. The order was based on the contention that the lake waters were public, due to the fact, that it is being distributed and sold to customers in the village of South Coventry by the South Coventry Water Supply Company.

The case was designated as a trial case. The accused was represented by Major John Bulkeley of Hartford; the defense was made on the grounds that the lake is not a public water, therefore that bathing in the lake can not be considered a nusiance as a source of danger to public health. It is further claimed that the water company never took advantage of its authority to secure control of the water.

An appeal was taken and bonds were furnished by fellow cottage owners.

BAD WASHOUT ON NEW HAVEN ROAD TRACKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 28.—Traffic over the Providence division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was badly affected late this afternoon when about 200 yards of tracks west of the Scotland dam, at the Scotland power station, was flooded by a washout. During the forenoon the water from the power station leak was drawn off to make repairs on the dam. At this point the railroad bed is a gravel filling and a pond is close by. Water pressure from the pond became so great that it weakened the roadbed and the water was forced through, making an opening 40 feet wide and 14 feet deep. About 200 feet of the track sagged. The local work train with about 30 men was rushed to the scene about 6 o'clock this evening and later on a special train of 20 cars of trap rock was sent in from East Hartford. Railroad authorities stated that the work of repairing the roadbed and tracks would require constant labor all Tuesday night and during the day Wednesday.

WINDHAM ROAD STORE DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin

Willimantic, Aug. 28.—A small grocery and candy store, conducted by Vincenzo Giordano, better known as Jimmy Jordan, and situated just east to the entrance of the Willimantic Camp Grounds on Windham road was destroyed by fire of unknown origin about 11 o'clock Tuesday evening.

UNION DECLARES STRIKE AT BALTIC MILLS

Labor troubles at the Shetucket Worsted Mills, Inc., at Baltic still remain unsettled after a controversy lasting over three weeks. Tuesday morning at a meeting of Local No. 23 held at the town hall in Baltic a strike was declared at the mills. A. J. Gauthier, president of the Connecticut Textile council, addressed the meeting and promised the strikers the moral and financial support of both the state council and the national organization.

In a statement by members of Local No. 23 it is claimed that the operatives had agreed with M. H. Donohue, president of the corporation, upon a settlement of excessive fining, but on Monday morning found themselves locked out of the mill. The statement continued in part as follows: Members of Local No. 23, Woolen Workers, were in conference Monday afternoon and at that meeting Mr. Donohue notified them that when the weavers returned to work he would reduce their wages by approximately 20 per cent.

On Monday afternoon a number of the workers were notified to return to their work at the usual hour Tuesday morning. They reported and worked until noon and upon being notified by the committee that a vote had been taken declaring a strike, they also left the mill, to stay out until the strike was settled.

The union claims that the plant employs about 130 operatives and that the mill is 100 per cent. organized. They also claim that the cause of the strike was an attempt by the corporation to reduce the wages by 20 per cent.

Information from Baltic is to the effect that the men have been out for three weeks and had broken a waterwheel at the plant. It was also stated that the men walked out on only a ten minute notice, thus violating the rules of the union. Asked about the meeting Tuesday morning when a strike was declared, and Mr. Gauthier said the state council backed the operatives, the informant said this was news that had not been received up until Tuesday night by the management.

It is claimed that the trouble started when the company, which has been paying the operatives on a wage scale above that of the larger woolen mills, notified them that the scale would be brought down to correspond with that of the American Woolen company, the standard wage for the industry in the country. This the men refused to accept and when legitimate fines were imposed the men also refused to pay them.

Monday Mr. Donohue was notified that although the men were willing to come back, they considered the fines illegal and would only come back under protest. At this Mr. Donohue told them that the company would not allow them to come back under protest; that they must come back under the wage scale of other mills and under the conditions stated.

Some of the men did come in Tuesday morning, it was stated but left at noon when they were called out, but others remained and will continue to work as they are employes of the company who do not belong to Local No. 23.

Indications are, it was stated, that the operatives and owners are deadlocked.

MISS AMANDA B. HALL BRIDE OF LIEUT.-COM. BROWNELL

The Stonington Manor, Stonington, Conn., provided a charming background for a quiet wedding, late Tuesday afternoon, when Miss Amanda Benjamin Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hall, of Broad street, Norwich, and Lieutenant-Commander John A. Brownell, U. S. N., were married by Rev. Richard Rathbone Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church, Norwich. Only members of the two families were present.

Following the ceremony a supper was served to the guests, after which Lieut.-Commander and Mrs. Brownell left for several weeks' motor trip.

Lieut.-Commander Brownell is the son of Commander Ernest H. Brownell, Civil Engineering Corps, U. S. N., and was born in Providence. He is the commanding officer of the U. S. S. S-20 and has done considerable duty in the vicinity of New London, where he has many friends.

His bride is a prominent member of Norwich society and has become widely known as a successful writer of both verse and prose.

COMMIT MAN TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

Ernest W. Newcomb of New London was committed to the Norwich state hospital for the insane late Tuesday afternoon. Newcomb's commitment is only temporary but will probably be made permanent as soon as Judge of Probate Arthur B. Calkins returns from Upper Dam, Me. where he is spending his vacation. Newcomb, who is a former employe of the freight service of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, became so violent at his home Tuesday afternoon that his immediate commitment was deemed necessary for his own safety as well as that of members of his family.

CONN. FARM PROPERTY INCREASES IN VALUE

Although the number of farms in Connecticut has decreased by 4,160 in number and 286,808 in acreage since 1910, the total value of farm property has increased $67,591,846 in the same period, according to the annual report of the Connecticut board of agriculture for the year 1922, just received from the printer to Secretary Leonard H. Healey.

The reports of 1921 and 1922 are bound together and furnish a complete record of size, value and crops of Connecticut farms, complete records of the meetings of the board of agriculture, complete tables and statistics of all fairs in the state, and also contain important papers prepared by agricultural authorities on questions of vital importance to New England farmers. The volume is a handbook of all possible information connected with agriculture in the state during the two years covered.

The total value of farm property in 1920 was $226,991,617, and the total acreage of farm land 1,898,980. There was $2,472,693 worth of livestock owned by farmers and housed in $89,083,712 worth of buildings. The total value of implements was $13,248,097, and the value of the land in farms (61.6 per cent. of the total state area) was $101,187,115.

The percentage of improved farm land was 36.9 in 1920. The average size ofa farm was 83.8 acres and the average improved land per farm was 30.9 acres.

DENIES STATEMENTS MADE BY HAMDEN WOMAN

Mrs. Whitefield N. Thompson, the chairman of the board of directors of the state farm for women, has characterized as "absolutely untrue," the statement by Mrs. Helen W. Rogers of Hamden, a member of the board, that her colleagues on the board "entered into a secret undertaking" to effect her removal.

"Our cards are on the table, face upwards, and have veen at all times," declared Mrs. Thompson. "Everything has been open and above board in our relations with each other and with our superintendent. Mrs. Rogers has never been excluded from any of our meetings."

Mrs. Thompson said it was true that at the conclusion of a meeting of the board which Mrs. Rogers had been obliged to leave early to take a train, a director moved that Mrs. Rogers be asked to resign, but that no formal action was taken. "I think it was I who later told Mrs. Rogers what had taken place, so you see there was no effort to conceal anything from her. The secret pact which she speaks of, I should say is absolutely untrue."

The intimation by Mrs. Rogers in her letter to Governor Templeton that the resignation of Miss Anna M. Petersen as superintendent was the direct result of a dispute growing out of Miss Petersen's failure to report that one of the girls in the institution had misconducted herself with a workman, was emphatically denied by the chairman of the board. Mrs. Thompson said that she had not been aware until she saw the intimation in Mrs. Rogers' letter that this incident had anything to do with the resignation.

WAS ALMOST A NERVOUS WRECK
Says Wincarnis Restored Her Health
"Ten months ago I began to lose my strength. My household duties became burdensome. I felt exhausted after the slightest exertion. Then my nerves got so bad that at the slightest noise I used to tremble, my legs would shake and my heart beat violently causing me to gasp for breath. One afternoon a friend called to see me and she was shocked at my pitiable condition. She went out and bought a bottle of 'Wincarnis' and gave me a dose right away. I continued taking 'Wincarnis' three times a day and its effect has been almost miraculous. Gradually but surely my strength came back, a color came into my cheeks, my nerves grew steady and it seemed as if I had taken a new lease on life. Today I am a very happy woman because I am well."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

For the benefit of the Central Village news-letter writer who was sincere enough to sign her name to a communication which is herein commented upon—a privilege that is not ethically allowed the compiler of a daily news column in a non-metropolitan newspaper—it may be stated that it is as permissible for a news writer to voice the views of the people of a township with which he is more or less familiar as it is for any as equally obscure personage to say that he is wrong, or intimate such, and that she alone speaks for the right-minded people of any given community. Who is right-minded and who is wrong-minded in any community in such a democracy as the United States of America happens to be is merely a matter of personal opinion——personal opinion that may be moulded into any given form by associations or contacts or obligations or knowledge of facts as they happen to exist.

The writer of this column is no oracle. He doesn't pose as such. But he may, after nearly a score of years of experience in newspaper work—work that puts him in touch, day after day, month in and month out, year after year, with people of all shades of political opinion, people with axes to grind, reformers and their opposite ilk, know as much about his neighboring town as some good soul who knows only what is being done to uplift mankind and nothing at all about what people are doing to make life possible as they want to know it without restriction from any person or persons as to manner of living, so long as what they in no way interfere with the rights of their fellow citizens of opposite view.

The writer of this column has no apologies to make for what he has said—and the manner in which he said it—about the prospect of political upheavals in this section of eastern Connecticut at the coming town elections. He happens to know that an effort will be made to upset things—and that reformers are not at all in favor with hundreds of voters in Plainfield and Killingly and Putnam and other towns hereabouts at the present time. And, as has been written in this column before, the correspondent does not hold himself responsible for what happens—he merely records what happens and what appears likely to happen, given certain conditions and ample backing.

The fact that the 18th amendment is a part of the Constitution of the United States is no news to anyone in the territory. Calling "Little Rhody" into the case is nothing less than cheap propaganda. Connecticut can well give its attention to its own affairs. No one has insinuated in this column that rum running isn't an offence against the law—a crime, if you wish. No one will make that insinuation without being called to account for it.

What the Central Village correspondent of The Bulletin has overlooked is that there is another day after any given day, and that when that day arrives any sufficiently strong group of citizens in a democracy can exert their influence to elect such officials as they desire. It has been said in this column that that is likely to happen in Plainfield. Time will tell whether this viewpoint is correct or not.

As to whether news matter originating in Danielson is marked "Special to The Bulletin" or whether it isn't that is no affair at all of any subscriber to the paper, no more than it is to the person who writes it. An editor is a sole judge of what may be regarded as a "special" and what is just to be considered as in the ordinary run of the day's news. Apparently the matter to which the Central Village correspondent took more or less exception was not worthy of a special head. Yet such a special head was given her communication to the paper. That may rest as it is.

It so happens that having a difference of opinion with people who do not hesitate at all to closs themselves as rightminded, and all who disagree with them as headed for perdition, is not yet a crime in these United States. And likely it never will be when upholding the Constitution by force of arms requires more personal risk and patriotism than writing a letter to a newspaper.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Joseph St. John, who died suddenly Saturday while in a shoe shining parlor in Main street, was held at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. John Roux, M. S., being celebrant of the high mass of requiem, attended by numbers of relatives and friends. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Joseph, Edmund, Alfred, Victor, George St. John, sons of the deceased, and Joseph Smith, a son-in-law. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangement.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Nora Bessette, who died Saturday in Goodyear, was held Tuesday morning from her home, with services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

PUTNAM

Twenty-five years ago, twenty-four young French Canadian citizens met in a vacant store in the rear of Lapalme's, on Providence street. They were full of pep and a desire to do things. After a lengthy discussion the outcome was the birth of the Canadian Athletic club, of Putnam. The club since that time has been the life of the north end of the city and for years provided the citizens of Putnam baseball, basketball, wrestling and boxing and other sports at intervals. During the World war a majority of the members were in service and the membership was greatly depleted, but with the return of the boys from various camps from "over there" the membership began climbing again until the present enrollment is 115.

At a meeting of the club some time ago, a committee was appointed to arrange for a fitting observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the club. Plans have been perfected and over this week end the observance will be carried out.

The celebration will begin next Friday evening when the club has been invited to be guests of the management of the Bradley theatre at the showing of a feature picture.

Saturday night will be Ladies' Night. This will be held in the club rooms on Providence street. There will be dancing, an entertainment and refreshments for members, their wives and young women friends.

Sunday morning, following the high mass, the members will assemble for roll call. The day will be passed quietly in the club rooms and old times will be talked over.

The big celebration comes Monday, Labor Day. At 8 o'clock in the morning there will be a street partde, headed by the Wauregan band. After marching over the principal streets in the city the parade will disband at the baseball grounds on Main street where there will be sports of various kinds, running, jumping and freak races and a baseball game between the single men and married men. This is open to the public.

From the baseball grounds members will adjourn to Hopkins' grove, on the River road, where a Rhode Island clambake will be served. Later there will be speeches, the chief speaker being Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of Willimantic, and music and more sports. A variety of prizes have been selected for the different contests.

Miss Bertha Child, daughter of Mrs. Annie Child, a graduate of Putnam High school this year, will enter Simmons college, Boston, next month.

Chief Roy H. Seyflex, of the S. S. Bushnell, stationed in New London harbor, spent the week end with Frank H. Cordier. Seyflex made twenty-six trips across during the World war and on one trip the craft carrying two million and a half gallons of gasolene was torpedoed and he was one of the fourteen aboard who escaped. After the vessel sank the sea was on fire for a wide area. Seyflex, whose home is in California, has been in the service for fourteen years.

Mark Lewis of Cambridge, father of Mark Lewis of Putnam, is visiting in Putnam, which city he left 28 years ago. Mr. Lewis is 78, is a veteran of the Civil war and was a member of A. G. Warner post. He is intending to sell his property in Cambridge and move back to Putnam.

Pierre Ronin and family are on a trip to Montreal and other Canadian points.

Frank H. Cordier attended the double-header between Cleveland and Boston at Boston, Monday.

A collection of framed and autographed photographs of moving picture stars, to be sold for the benefit of the Day Kimball Hospital Nurses' Home fund during the street fair is attracting much attention in a local store window. The total number of shares sold in the present series, Putnam Building and Loan, is 382. The previous largest sale in the summer months was 261. Before the series closes over 400 shares will be issued.

Miss Colomber Charpentier and Miss Leda Charpentier of Woodstock avenue are spending the week with friends in Providence.

Ralph Bradford motored to Hampton Beach for the week end.

Roderick Miller, Miss Clare Milkie, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller, Wilfred Benoit, Mrs. Charles Trudeau and George Cartier left Tuesday for an automobile trip to New York. They will return the last of the week.

Miss Florence Smith is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Aline E. Hogan, of Somerville, Mass.

Miss Irene Eggleston will leave September 4th to enter Summit Hospital Training School for Nurses, in Brookline, Mass.

Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan of Hartford, bishop of the Hartford diocese will come to Putnam Sunday afternoon next to bless the new St. Mary's school building just completed at an expense of $100,000.

The ceremonies will begin at two o'clock in St. Mary's church where Rev. Fr. F. S. DesBureault of Occum will deliver a sermon in French and English. This will be followed by benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The congregation will then go to the new school building nearby which will be blessed by the bishop. All persons present will be given an opportunity to inspect the new building, as Rev. Charles F. Bedard, pastor expressed it, "from the cellar to the roof and on the roof if they want to." Opportunity will also be afforded to inspect the improvements at the old school building.

Father Bedard began his twelfth year as pastor of St. Mary's parish the 22nd of this month. Among the great improvements are the schools. Soon after his arrival here to take charge of the parish he found the housing facilities for the growing number of school children entirely inadequate. At the time Notre Dame Academy for young ladies, holding a high place among the boarding schools of the state, was occupying fine quarters. It was not long after the arrival of Fr. Bedard that arrangements were made to transfer the pupils to Hartford. As soon as this was done, the building formerly occupied by the academy was renovated and changed to meet the needs of St. Mary's school. Finally the antiquated school house was torn down and the school moved as a whole to the new quarters.

The enrollment of pupils increased from year to year. Last year it was 958. Even the new quarters became inadequate. Fr. Bedard decided he would have a new school to be used in addition to the old one of eight rooms. Plans were drawn for a 12-room school building the contract was let and now, a year having passed, the new building is ready for occupancy and when school opens next Tuesday morning a portion of the pupils will be housed in this new building.

Among the other improvements, monuments to the progressiveness of the pastor, is a fine parish house; a reconstructed and beautifully decorated church; the razing of the old church and school building; an improved and enlarged St. Mary's cemetery; a reconstructed entrance to the church, with wide, low granite steps; a rough lot in front of the rectory transferred into a fine lawn and other lesser improvements that have enhanced the value of the parish property many fold.

Father Bedard is modest in mentioning the great work he has done. He attempts to keep himself in the background and gives his parishioners credit for what he has accomplished and praises their hearty, liberal moral and financial support which has made his notable work possible.

JEWETT CITY

East Greenwich Academy has recently published a magazine called East Greenwich Crimson. On the board of editors is Gertrude Soule, whose home was in Jewett City for a while. Among the photographs is one of the Stirring Sticks, and in the group is John Chadwick of this place. Among the very readable articles is a poem, Ravings of a Flu Victim and an article, My Version—C. Columbus, written by the young man. He is president of the freshman class. The magazine is on the table at Slater Library.

Officer Henry Viegard can be distinguished as night patrolman from the ordinary citizen, by the new policeman's official uniform in which he appeared Monday night.

A meeting of the board in charge of the district nurse work was held Monday evening to take action on the resignation of the nurse, Miss Margery Leyden. Miss Leyden has accepted the offer of the Aspinook company to become their nurse, succeeding Miss Isabel Moodie, who has resigned. Miss Moodie has also resigned as a member of the district nursing board. Both resignations were accepted, and Miss Leyden was elected to take Miss Moodie's place on the board. It was voted to ask Miss Alice Brennan R. N. to fill Miss Leyden's place as district nurse, and she has accepted the offer. The work of Miss Leyden has been excellent. She has been conscientious, faithful and competent in all her duties.

Some of the members of the G. T. C., a sewing club, went to Beach Pond Monday night and gave Mrs. Adhemard Labarre a surprise party. She is spending two weeks at the pond, and had forgotten it was her birthday, so she was doubly surprised. A shore dinner was served, also fruit, candy and ice cream. She received a number of gifts. In the evening the party enjoyed rowing on the pond. The party included Mrs. Eugene Richelieu, Mrs. O. Labarre, Mr. and Mrs. John Medick and daughter, Mrs. Elsa Peckham and Miss Imelda Lewis of Jewett City, Misses Esther and Ethel Lewis of Voluntown and Elmer Bailey of Hope Valley.

Mrs. Emma Guy Cromwell, former state librarian, of Kentucky, has announced her candidacy for nomination for secretary of state in the coming democratic primary.

As events develop in the county, politics take on a new slant in eastern Windham county. It appears that a large and powerful and non-partisan army of voters have about waked up to the fact that there is no salvation for them in being blind followers of party standards. As they find things, so shall they take them. This appears to be their motto in these stirring days of late summer in 1923.

Killingly has come through the recently closed fiscal year with a heavy cash balance in the treasury. This is good news, especially in view of the fact that the balance amounts to many thousands of dollars. What is to be done about it? More or less of a peculiar question, but really a very important one. The cash surplus can be used to reduce the town's outstanding indebtedness, or it can be considered as something on which to hang an excuse for reducing the tax rate and let the future take care of itself. Each voter can consider this and decide just which course he desires to pursue and support with his vote

Before the reports were given at the victory supper Monday evening the team members enjoyed a fine lobster supper and then checkers took the platform and reports were given. The team captained by William Wood of Stonington received a special prize of a white banner for getting the largest number of individual subscriptions during the drive, this team having turned in 224 subscriptions. For the largest amount raised since Friday night the team captained by Dr. Henry L. Johnson of Watch Hill carried off the banner with a total of $28,580. The team captained by Mrs. G. B. Utter came next with $14,462 in pledges, and he men's team received the banner for best special work. The all-women's team captained by Mrs. Roy Rawlings Richmond handed in a total of 224 subscriptions, one of the largest for individual subscriptions of any team in the drive.

After totals for the entire campaign had been figured it was announced that the team captained by Arthur Perry took the prize for best single team in total amount subscribed, with $33,073 during the campaign. Among the women's teams the team captained by Mrs. George F. Barbour carried off the honors with a total of $47,757.

The special memorial committee captained by Arthur Trotman reported that 60 of the 69 memorials planned for had been subscribed for a total which showed that the members of the memorial committee had covered their assignment well. The sum of $221,200 had been raised during the campaign by the teams for the memorial and included a subscription of $3,000 from the Masons of Westerly.

Totals for the subscriptions during the past three days are as follows:

Teams	Amount
Men's Teams	$ 49,146
Women's Teams	51,317
Neighborhood Div.	72,606
Special Gift	100,000
Masons' Gift	3,000

The special gift of $100,000 was by Charles A. Morgan who gave this amount in securities with one provision: that the interest on the securities be his during his lifetime, and after his death to go to the hospital. The principal sum now belongs to the hospital but the principal must not be touched and the interest is to be paid to Mr. Morgan until his death. This was one of the largest gifts in the campaign.

Special mention should be made of the neighborhood division covering the towns outside of Westerly for these teams by far brought in the largest amounts.

The second annual clambake and field day of the Lawton Fire Department Social club was held Sunday at Camp Gaskell, Canterbury. Each member brought his wife and family and the day was a most enjoyable one for all, surpassing the same event of last year when the families were not present. Andrew Pember's big truck furnished transportation and Chef John Higginbottom was in charge of the bake. An excellent chowder was served at noon after which races with prizes for the winners proved a big attraction. The women's ball game provided plenty of amusement.

The bake was served at 3 o'clock and consisted of sliced onions, tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet pickles, white bread, brown bread, baked white potatoes, sweet potatoes, baked sweet corn, and sausage, baked chicken, fried fish, baked clams, watermelon. Ice cream and orangeade were in plenty at all times throughout the day. Flowers for the tables were furnished by some of the guests. All voted to hold another outing the same way next year.

Many from here attended Liberty Old Home day.

Edward C. Kenyon, who has been working at the R. I. Experiment station, has finished his labors there.

Mrs. Katherine Sherman is visiting her children in Boston.

Mrs. Weirs of Stonington was a visitor among friends here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan of Providence visited friends here one day last week.

James Peckham of Wakefield was a caller here Tuesday.

Among those who attended the farm bureau meeting at Lewis' farm from here Tuesday were Mrs. M. B. Lewis and Mrs. Mary McElroy.

Miss Barbara Arnold underwent a minor surgical operation at the South County hospital recently.

NORWICH TOWN

Those who attended the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, were afforded an opportunity of hearing a most interesting sermon by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, who chose for his text, Matthew 22:21. Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's. At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, a member of the society, Miss Ruth Beebe, held the close attention of a large and interested company in her talk about Trinity School at Athens, Alabama, where she is a teacher. This school was established nearly fifty years ago by the American Missionary association, for colored children, there being 250 pupils. There is an especially good kindergarten. All grades are taught and there is a four-year high school course, with manual training for the boys; and domestic science and art, for the girls, who outnumber the boys in membership. Miss Beebe completed her first year as a teacher at the closing of the spring term. She is soon to return south, to commence her duties for another year. The staff of teachers this year will comprise 11, there being six white and five colored; of the latter, two are graduates of Fisk University. Some of the children walk a distance of four miles each way to attend this school; while those who come from nearby country places are obliged to board in the town and attend school as much as possible. Many of the pupils work after school hours, to help pay their tuition.

The two notable events of last year were both Religious. The first was the revivals, conducted by Rev. H. S. Barnwell of Montgomery, the district superintendent, when 50 of the students professed Christ, during the five days of the meetings; the other was the Tennessee conference of Congregational churches, held in Athens in April.

During the service Sunday evening several young women from the C. E. society sang the following songs which are used in this school: I Am Going to Do All I can For My Lord, Swing Low, Sweet Chariot and Lord, I Want to be a Christian.

At the church night service of the Congregational church Thursday evening, the theme will be The Master's Love.

There is to be a meeting of the teachers and officers of the Congregational Sunday school, at the parsonage, Friday evening, when plans will be formulated for the coming year.

Of interest locally is an article published in the August issue of the American Organist, concerning Herbert L. Yerrington, of Norwich Town, for more than fifty years the faithful organist of the First Congregational church, which parish, during May of this year, tendered Mr. Yerrington an informal reception in honor of the event, and presented him a purse of $120 in gold. The article mentions in detail many personal items of interest during his unusual career, also quotes Organist Yerrington as having raised the funds for the building of his present instrument. An excellent cut of Organist Yerrington accompanies the article.

According to some authorities, the surface of the human body is about sixteen square feet.

FRAUD WARNING!

House-to-house solicitors are attempting to sell Phoenix hosiery in various sections of the United States. Sometimes they show alleged credentials in which the word "Phoenix" is prominently displayed. Their plan is to secure a dollar deposit, promising that the hosiery will be sent by mail and the balance collected by the postman. And that is the last their victims ever hear of them. They pocket the dollar and disappear. In a few instances, however, they have delivered some makeshift hosiery, worth about half the price.

These canvassers are outright frauds, for Phoenix Hosiery is sold only through retail stores. As Phoenix is a leader in sales everywhere, and is probably the best known line of hosiery in the world, these peddlers are trading upon that reputation to defraud the buying public.

REWARD

United States Post Office inspectors and Pinkerton National Detective Agency are now searching for these defrauders, and are working on several such cases.

We will pay liberally for information that will lead to the arrest of any of these unauthorized solicitors. If you are approached by any person offering Phoenix Hosiery and seeking a deposit of money, please notify a Phoenix dealer, or the secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, or if there is a Pinkerton agency in your city notify them. Also telegraph us collect.

We issue this warning as a protection to the public, as well as ourselves, that no one may innocently purchase imitations for genuine Phoenix hosiery.

Unscrupulous and fraudulent house-to-house hosiery canvassers are daily mulcting the American public out of thousands of dollars. BEWARE OF THEM.

UNITED EFFORT

THE marvelous precision and accuracy of "warp, weft, and shuttle" in the loom, exemplify the efficiency of co-operation and united effort.

In sixty mills, more than 35,000 skilled workers are making a united effort to produce woolen and worsted fabrics of dependable value for the millions who need them.

And through that unity—the elimination of waste, the use of efficient machines and the co-operation which only fairly-treated employees can give — the American Woolen Company is annually producing millions of yards of fabric which enables the people to buy good clothing at fair prices.

The youths are Arthur Beran and William and George Ryan. Beran is a roomer at the Cook house. When he went to his room last evening early he had the Ryan boys with him. They soon started conversation that was vile. Cook and his wife told the court this morning. Mr. Cook went to the room of Beran to remonstrate with him and he saw that the trio were partially intoxicated. He ordered Beran to vacate the room and take his associates with him. Beran resented this order. He attacked Cook, and then the others pitched in. Cook coming out of the scrimmage with a discolored eye. Mrs. Cook attempted to get where she could call the police and she was interfered with but she finally got to the telephone and on her call Police Officers John J. Cavanaugh and George Labeue arrested the trio of scrappers. Judge Prince did the rest. One of the Ryans claimed that neither he nor his associates was intoxicated, that they had not drank enough wine between them to make anybody feel the effects of it and declared that Cook begun the trouble by attacking them and contributed it till he was stopped by a blow from him, in retaliation for a punch administered by Cook. Assistant Prosecutor Frank O. Cronin, asked the court to administer severe punishment to the gang. He declared that they had been often in the court for breaches of the peace, and said they were fighters who should be solidly disciplined. Nicholas O'Connell, aged 16, residing on Montauk avenue, was arrested by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock this afternoon when detected operating an automobile without having an operater's license.

The police were called upon tonight to take care of an automobile containing a quantity of expensive samples that had been parked in the street because of the sudden departure from the city of its owner, Sol Ratner, a New York salesman. The machine was on Union street and held three suit cases of samples. Ratner locked the doors and then went to the Union Station and boarded a train for New Haven that he might attend to some business. Upon his arrival in New Haven Ratner telephoned the New London police requesting them to maintain a watch of the automobile during the night as he feared the samples might be stolen. Ratner was informed to appear at the police station when he returns to New London and there is a possibility that he will have a charge of violating traffic laws to defend. The suit cases containing samples were placed in storage, but the police were compelled to leave the machine in the highway equipped with a special lock and the steering wheel was also locked.

The police believe they have in custody a pair of youthful automobile thieves, but this will be determined tomorrow or Thursday. Early this evening Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, on duty at the corner of State and Main streets observed an automobile approaching the corner and in violation of the traffic laws as the machine was operated through the safety zone. Halting the machine the officer found two young men in it and when they were requested to display their operator's license and registration they stated that they possessed neither. One of the pair finally stated that he had registration and when he displayed it the paper revealed the name of William Murphy, 23 Bunker avenue, Brockton, Mass. When the officer called the name "Murphy" neither of the youths responded proving that the registration was not that of either occupant of the car. This was finally admitted by the youths, who declared that they had been in Brooklyn and there met Murphy who requested them to drive the machine to Brockton. At the police station the youths gave their names as Emil Valentine of Woonsocket, R. I., and John O'Brien of Ayer, Mass.

Feuster pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs on the first count, making a total that Feuster turned into the town treasury, $48.50. The other two counts were nolled. Feuster while operating his automobile at Sound View July 28th, ran down George Beach of East Lyme, Beach sustaining among other injuries several broken ribs and has since been under treatment at Lawrence hospital.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Aug. 28.—Stock prices displayed a strong tone in today's market with buying embracing a wider variety of issues. The bulk of the trading was again in the hands of the professional interests, but commission houses reported a growing public interest.

The Belgian note suggesting that Germany's war damages might be reduced and Washington dispatches forecasting an early recognition of Mexico were regarded as constructive developments by speculators operating on the long side of the market. Some brokers reported, however, that the threatened suspension of work in the anthracite mines on September 1 had a restraining influence on trading.

Despite the fact that a majority of the active members had signed a petition favoring the closing of the exchange on Saturday in order to provide for a triple holiday, the board of governors voted to keep the exchange open. September first falls on Saturday and it was to avoid complications likely to arise if the exchange was closed on that day which resulted in the petition being turned down.

Revival of interest in the railroad shares, trading in which has been rather sluggish for several weeks, was one of the features of the session. Rallies of 1 to nearly 2 points were registered by Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, New York Central and Missouri Pacific preferred. Several more July earnings reports made their appearance today. The 34 published thus far showing combined gross income of $276,450,000 as against $260,435,000 in June and $234,583,000 in July, 1922.

Chemicals and sugars again gave the best exhibitions of group strength. Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred closed nearly 3 points higher at 88 7-8 while Davison Chemical touched a new top for the year at 45 1-4 and then dropped back to 44, up 3-4. Activity of Cuban-American Sugar revived unconfirmed rumors of an early resumption of dividends. American Sugar and Cuba Cane Sugar preferred each closed at net gains of more than a point.

Baldwin led the advance in the so-called pivotal stocks, touching 125 1-2 and then easing to 124 7-8, up 2 3-8. U. S. Steel closed at 93, up 1, and Studebaker and American Can improved fractionally. Fisher Body advanced 6 points.

Money rates were somewhat stiffer. Call money held at 5 1-4 per cent. all day. Borrowers in the time money market finally have met the 5 1-2 per cent. rate asked by bankers, but the volume of business transacted was small. Out-of-town banks are the principal takers of commercial paper, the bulk of the prime names moving at 5 1-4 per cent.

Strength of French and Belgian francs was the feature of the foreign exchange market, the French rate advancing nearly 5 points to 5.74 cent and Belgian remittances jumping 18 points to 4.80 cents. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.54 1-4 cents. German marks were quoted around 17 cents a million.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 28.—Strength of Mexican bonds and the Virginia Carolina Chemical issues featured the otherwise dull and irregularly higher trading in bonds today.

Mexican 4s moved up 2 points at one time during the trading and closed 1 3-4 higher on the day. The only other change of importance in the foreign group was the loss of a point by Holland American 6s. United States government bonds were practically unchanged. Bond dealers reported, however, several large sales of Liberty bonds for the British account in over-the-counter transactions.

Railroad mortgages moved in small volume with the trading area rather narrow for the most part. Hudson & Manhattan income 5s dropped 1 1-2 and Pere Marquette 5s, 1. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s, with warrants, moved up 3 1-8 and the 7s advanced 2. Public Service of New Jersey 5s gained 1 3-8 and Warner Sugar 7s closed a point higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—All grains averaged lower in price today, lower cables, improved weather conditions and inactivity on the part of exporters creating a bearish sentiment. At the finish wheat suffered a net loss of 1 7-8c to 2 7-8c with December $1.04 7-8 to $1.05 and May $1.10 5-8 to $1.10 3-4; corn was off 1-2c to 1 3-8c; oats 1-2@3-4c down and provisions unchanged to 10c higher.

A break in Liverpool futures, weakness at Winnipeg, crop advices from Canada maintaining last previous estimates of probable yields, in addition to a better outlook for the yield in Argentina, because of much needed rains having fallen and the forecast for more favorable weather for threshing and marketing all combined to encourage selling. The lower cash market as well as a drop in sterling exchange also aided the bears.

At the same time, continued indifference on the part of foreign buyers and the reported congested condition of the domestic flour trade served to dampen bullish sentiment. Country offerings were light with receipts here estimated at 475 cars, most of which was low grade grain.

Corn was weak in sympathy with wheat futures and the weakness in in the cash corn market. Commission house liquidation was on in all deliveries, and the market showed very little rallying power.

Oats were easier with other grains.

Further advance in the hog market encouraging buying in provisions and prices averaged a little higher.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 28.—Trading broadened considerably in today's curb market with prices displaying a strong tone.

Principal activity again centers in the oil shares with most of the active issues showing substantial gains on the day. Short covering is reported to have furnished much of the impetus for the advance but public buying also was reported in some of the standard dividend paying issues.

Nearly 25,000 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana changed hands. The closing price of 53 3-4 representing a net gain of 1 3-8. Standard Oils of Kentucky gained approximately a point each. Galena Signal advanced 3 1-2 points and Ohio Oil, 2 1-2.

A five point gain in Gillette Safety Razor featured the industrial list. Trading in the motors was again sluggish.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Aug. 28.—Copper quiet. Electrolytic spot and futures 14. Tin firm; spot and futures 40.75. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead firm spot, 6.75@6.85. Zinc quiet, East St. Louis and nearby delivery 6.40@6.45. Antimony, spot, 7.50@7.60.

PUBLIC IS WARNED AGAINST HOSIERY SWINDLE

The housewives of Norwich and vicinity are warned by The Porteous & Mitchell company in an announcement in today's Bulletin to be on the lookout for swindlers selling hosiery from house to house. These canvassers show spurious credentials and claim to be selling Phoenix hosiery. They secure a deposit of one dollar and advise their victims that the hose is to come by mail and the balance collected by the postman. The canvasser pockets the dollar and that is the last heard of him.

According to the announcement, the Phoenix hose is sold only in retail stores but it is a widely-known brand and the canvassers use that fact to get a hearing and thus work their swindle.

A statement issued by the company says that Pinkerton detectives are operating in more than a dozen states trying to run down these canvassers. Post office inspectors have also been called upon, where there is evidence of use of the mails, as in some instances these swindlers claim to sell Phoenix but deliver a makeshift worth about half the price. The Porteous & Mitchell company requests anyone who is approached by a hosiery canvasser to call at the store immediately, giving them the facts, so that they may place the information before the proper authorities.

New Riding Qualities Appeal to Prospects.

It is evident from the expressions of buyers and prospective buyers that a decided improvement has been made in the riding qualities of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars. No one who calls at the salesrooms to inspect the new line misses an opportunity to sit in the deep and roomy seats and comment on their exceptional comfort. The seats and body are considerably lower than before, not only adding to riding ease, but affording much more leg room.

In addition, the gear shift lever has been moved forward, giving an unusual amount of room; the instruments have been grouped on an attractive panel, and the leverage of the clutch pedal has been altered in such a way that the slightest pressure of the foot answers the purpose. This latter improvement is of especial interest to women, who find it a great convenience in driving in heavy traffic.

Breed Theatre.

Granted that photoplay fans demand of a feature that it contain human interest, thrills, and tear-compelling qualities, Temptation, which is now being shown at the Breed theatre, should prove an irresistible lure for the remainder of its two-day stay at that house.

The story was written by Lenore Coffee who has succeeded in giving to the eternal triangle a new slant. Edward J. Le Saint, who directed the picture, has done full justice to the material supplied him, with the result that this offering prices highly acceptable.

In the all-star cast to which is entrusted the various roles are such popular players as Bryant Washburn, Eva Novak, June Elvidge, Phillips Smalley and Vernon Steele. The story deals with the trials and troubles which occur when a young couple is unexpectedly thrust into a huge fortune. The old adage which states that if you give a beggar a horse he will ride himself to death, is verified in the events which transpire during the course of the story. Temptation will give photoplay patrons their money's worth, plus.

Other pictures on the bill include Movie Chats and an Educational comedy.

At the Strand.

Another excellent program of B. F. Keith vaudeville is scheduled for the Strand theatre the last half of this week with acts scheduled as follows: Dalby & Allen offer a comedy novelty; Sybil Gray, assisted by Florence Wilson, offer Syncopated Melodies"; Ward & Bohlman appear in a cycle of fun; Stanley Hughes and company offer a comedy dance novelty.

The photoplay feature is Wild-Cat Jordan, with the daredevil actor, Richard Talmadge in a series of thrills.

A news weekly will complete the program.

Shriners' Dance and Entertainment.

Sphinx Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., will give a moonlight dance and entertainment on the grounds of the Shrine club, 105 Spring street, Hartford, Wednesday evening, August 29th, 1923, from 8.30 p. m. to midnight, daylight saving time. All Shriners and their ladies are invited to attend.

The Nobles have been requested to wear their fezs to add to the Shrine atmosphere of the party. Arrangements have been made to elaborately decorate the grounds and a raised platform will be built for dancing. Music will be supplied by a specially select dance orchestra. The Colonial Quartet will entertain and refreshments will be served.

Big Parish Lawn Fete

At the annual lawn party of St. Patrick's parish there will be entertainment for all comers. Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero and Chairman William J. Fitzgerald and aides with Mrs. James J. Casey in charge of the canvassers promise a variety of snappy novelties and a round of diversion. Come and meet your friends and hear Hartford K. C. Minstrel troupe.

BRINDISI SUSPECTED OF SLAYING TWO WOMEN

Denver, Colo., Aug. 28.—Police investigating the slaying yesterday of Mrs. Roy McGlone, and her chum, Miss Emma Vascovie, today said they had linked Joseph Brindisi, of Denver, more closely with the crime and revealed that the two women were shot to death with a revolver owned by Roy McGlone.

While police were searching for Brindini, McGlone returned to Denver from the mountains. He told the authorities that his wife lived in constant fear for her life, that she had been threatened with death three times recently. He said that the revolver, found lying between the bodies of the two women in the McGlone apartment, was taken from a linen closet, where he had placed it.

Mrs. Edna D. Highlund, proprietor of the hotel at which Brindisi and Miss Vascovie resided, said that Brindisi had rushed into his room late on Monday, changed his clothes and left hurriedly.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

• Rescuing the Princess

One day as Little Jack Rabbit was travelling on his journey through the Ragged Giant's Bunny land, he saw a big raven sitting on a dead tree.

"Creak, creak, creakety, creak,
I'm a dismal bird, I am.
With my old black suit and my mournful toot
I frighten the snow white lamb."
he shouted.

"But you can't frighten me," laughed Little Jack Rabbit.

"No?" croaked the raven. "Maybe you have met ravens in travel. But let me tell you a secret," and down flew the raven to whisper something in Little Jack Rabbit's ear.

"I'll try," he answered and then he and the raven set off together.

Now what the raven had whispered was that not far away stood a beautiful castle where dwelt an enchanted princess who could only be freed from the evil spell which bound her by a white horse crossing the enchanted drawbridge.

Well, by an by, Little Jack Rabbit and the raven came to a meadow in which grazed a splendid white horse. At once the raven led him by the forelock up to where the bunny boy stood.

Hopping upon the white horse, Little Jack Rabbit rode off towards the castle but on reaching the drawbridge he saw that it was built of about wires as much as a foot apart so that no one could walk upon it without slipping through.

"Wait a minute," said the raven, and he looked about for a wonderful stick which a giant had once hidden in a tree close by. It was quite a magic stick that could open any door it touched. Well, after a while the raven found the stick hidden in a hollow tree and giving it to Little Jack Rabbit, he said:

"Guide your white horse carefully across the drawbridge and knock upon the castle gate with this magic stick. And when you meet the princess, give her this little ring. Now, go and luck be with you.

Urging his white horse across the dangerous drawbridge, Little Jack Rabbit at last knocked upon the gate with his magic stick, which opened at once. Pretty soon, the lovely princess came out of the castle carrying in her hand a snow white dove, who, on seeing the little rabbit began to sing:

"Our freedom, comes with bunny boy
Upon his milk white steed.
A golden ring he brings to you
By which you shall be freed."

No sooner had the little rabbit slipped the ring on her finger than the raven changed into a handsome prince, and the next day they were married and lived happily ever after in the castle. And Little Jack Rabbit rode away on his wonderful white horse in search of new adventure.

NORWICH WOMAN SUES TO COLLECT COURT JUDGMENT NOT YET PAID

Harriet M. Toothill of this city has filed suit in the superior court against Albert E. Wheaton of Lebanon to recover on a judgment granted her May 15th last in the superior court for New Haven county. The complaint represents that on May 18, 1923, the plaintiff was granted a judgment by the New Haven county superior court against the defendant for $1,500 damages and $106.33 costs. The judgment has not yet been paid and the plaintiff is now seeking damages of $2,000.

The plaintiff in this action has also filed a second suit against Albert E. Wheaton of Lebanon, and John B. Mince of Lebanon, this being a foreclosure action, in connection with the unpaid judgment granted her by the New Haven county superior court. According to the complaint in the second suit, Richard Pond, attorney for the plaintiff, on June 26, 1922, signed in her behalf a certificate of a judgment lien upon property in Lebanon owned by the defendant. The real estate was attached on the original writ in the action tried by the New Haven court, the date of the attachment being May 22, 1916. John B. Miner of Lebanon who is named as a defendant in the action is now in possession of the real estate as a tenant and claims some interest in the property. Foreclosure of the judgment lien and possession of the property are asked.

NEMROD GROTTO PROMINENT IN BRIDGEPORT PARADE

Bridgeport papers give special mention to the Norwich delegation of Nemrod Grotto attending the 5th annual convention and field day of the New England Inter Grotto Association at that city on Friday and Saturday.

At this convention were many Grotto delegations composed of bands attired in specially designed uniforms and patrols with gaily decorated regalia, but none could surpass those worn by the Norwich boys, as wes evidenced by the continued rounds of applause the entire three and one-half along the entire three and noe-half mile line of march of the Saturday morning parade.

Nemrod's position in the parade was part of the second division and was composed of their own 22 piece band, in the regular military uniform excepting the hat, which was replaced by the Grotto fez, this being followed by Nemrod's patrol, also of 22 members, clad in their own designed Persian orange and blue costume, while the color and standard bearers with two guards wore white trousers and blouse. Brinking up the balance of this section of the parade were the remainder of the delegation, all clad in dark clothes and fez to the number of fifty-two.

So much interest was shown toward the local boys that a general watchword has been sent out through all the Grottos of this state to be "On to Norwich" for the next ceremonial of Nemrod which will take place during the fall months for which plans are now being formulated.

CONDITIONS EXCELLENT AT NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

At a recent investigation held by state investigators of the Disabled American Veterans at the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane the representatives of the veterans found that the institution is one of the best yet visited by them. The food, they found, is much better than that served at the Middletown hospital.

Out of 47 ex-service men visited it was found that only four are of the "milder" type. It was recommended that they be transferred to the government hospital at New York city. The classification at the local institution, the investigating party found, is much better than in any of the other state hospitals visited in New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Superintendent Franklin S. Wilcox and his staff were commended by both the state and national officials of the Disabled American Veterans. The department is investigating the Allingtown hospital at New Haven this week.

The plaintiff paid $500 in accordance with the agreement. The plaintiff's family did not like the premises and the defendant's as agents for Frank L. Lathrop of Norwich, sold to the plaintiff certain other premises.

The plaintiff claims that he made demand on the defendants that they apply the $500 in accordance with the agreement. This they have not done and he is now seeking damages of $750.

The Integrity Mutual Casualty Company of Chicago, today filed a praecipe in federal court against the Casualty Information Clearing House, Inc., Chicago, 22 insurance companies and 35 officers for damages of $5,000,000 says an Associated Press dispatch of Tuesday.

Samuel A. Harper, attorney, who filed the praecipe declined to comment on it except to say the charge probably would be conspiracy with resulting injury to the business of the complainant.

The praecipe is returnable in November. Among the companies named as defendants are: Aetna Life Insurance Company and Aetna Casualty and Surety Company, Hartford, Conn., and Norwich Union Indemnity Company, New York.

Officers and directors of the Casualty Information Clearing House, with other connections, named in the suit, are:

All individuals were named personally in addition to their names being given with their official connection with the companies named.

Attorney Harper supplemented his original statement by adding that the defendant corporations are members of the Casualty Information Clearing House. He charged that the clearing house was used as a subterfuge to attack all mutual insurance companies and said that by sending literature through the mails, they had prejudiced the people against companies operated on a mutual basis.

SAVINGS $1,355 LOST AT YANTIC RESTORED BY DENTIST

(Special to The Buletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 28.—Through Dr. E. E. Gorton, dentist, of Church street, this city, an elderly French woman, employed in a mill in Stafford Springs, has been refunded $1,355.88 which she lost near the village of Yantic recently. The amount, representing the woman's life savings was found Sunday afternoon by Dr. Gordon and after the find had been advertised the woman and her daughter called on Dr. Gorton and after identifying the bag in which it was contained the money was handed to the owner. The woman seemed amazed when informed that her bag contained over one thousand dollars. It was said that she is somewhat peculiar and when deducting her savings from her small weekly salary she never counted the amount laid aside and did not know what the total was, after forty years of saving.

Dr. Gorton and Charles Perkins of Valley street were returning from a visit in New London Sunday when the doctor saw a black bag at one side of the road. The Stafford woman said that she and a party of friends had motored through Yantic Sunday and she believed that the bag dropped out of the car when the door suddenly opened. The party had gone back to look for the bag but the search was unsuccessful.

Last winter Dr. Gorton recovered a purse belonging to Mrs. Todd of Conantville, which contained about $24.

COUPE PLOUGHS THROUGH FRONT OF HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 28.——Unnerved by his attempt to avoid an automobile collision on Main street and Mansfield avenue with a Chevrolet delivery truck driven by Joseph Nahass, of Valley street, this city, George Greendennor, Olympic avenue, Stafford Springs, narrowly escaped injury, when he lost control of the new Jewett coupe which he was driving and the machine shot over the sidewalk and crashed into the home of Merton E. Phillips, 15 Mansfield avenue, at 6.15 o'clock, Tuesday evening.

The machine was badly wrecked and part of the house was considerably damaged. Greendennor and Nahass were both traveling in an easterly direction on Main street and when opposite Mansfield avenue the local man, who was in the lead, started to go down the avenue from the right side of Main street. Greendennor was traveling at a fair rate of speed, and was about to pass Nahass' car when it was swung around. The Stafford man swung sharply to the left to avoid a collision, and according to his statement the excelerator of his machine caught and the car mounted the sidewalk, shot over fifty feet of lawn, ploughed through the front veranda of the Phillips home and crashed into the side of the house. Two veranda posts were torn down as well as the woodwork and plastering in the living room and four veranda chairs were smashed. No one was sitting on the veranda at the time. Mrs. Phillips was at her husband's gas station a few feet from the house and Mr. Phillips and his little daughter were eating supper, when they heard the crash. An upright piano which was set against the wall was pushed several feet into the room and a large chair and several pictures were thrown into the center of the room, along with the collection of debris. A male companion riding with Greendennor was cut about the face and hands by flying glass from the windshield, but the driver and a woman who occupied the rear seat escaped injury.

The front of the Jewett car was wrecked and it was hauled to a local garage for repairs. It is thought that charges of reckless driving will be entered against both men, it being claimed that Nahass failed to put out his hand as a warning signal, as he was about to turn.

POETRY

THE PATH TO THE WOODS.

Its friendship and its carelessness
Did lead me many a mile,
Through goat's-rue, with its dim caress,
And pink and pearl-white smile;
Through crowfoot, with its golden lure,
And promise of far things,
And sorrel with its glance demure
And wide-eyed wonderings.

It led me with its innocence,
As childhood leads the wise,
With elbows bare of tattered fumes,
And blue of wildflower eyes;
With whispers low of leafy speech,
And brook-sweet utterance;
With birdlike words of oak and beech,
And whisperings clear as Pan's.

It led me with its childlike charm,
As candor leads desire,
Now with a clasp of blossomy arm,
A butterfly kiss of fire;
Now with a toss of tousled gold,
A barefoot sound of green,
A breath of musk, of mossy mold,
With vague allurements keen.

It led me with remembered things
Into an oldtime vale,
Peopled with faery glimmerings
And flowerlike fancies pale;
Where fungous forms stood, gold and gray,
Each in its mushroom gown,
And, roofed with red, glimpsed far away,
A little toadstool town.

It led me with an idle ease,
A vagabond look and air,
A sense of ragged arms and knees
In weeds grown everywhere;
It led me, as a gypsy leads,
To dingles no one know,
With beauty burred with thorny seeds,
And tangled wild with rose.

It led me as simplicity
Leads age and its demands,
With bee-beat of its ecstasy,
And berry-stained touch of hands,
With round revealments, puffball white,
Through rents of weedy brown,
And petaled movements of delight
In roseleaf limb and gown.

It led me on and on and on,
Beyond the Far Away,
Into a world long dead and gone—
The world of Yesterday;
A faery world of memory,
Old with it hills and streams,
Wherein the child I used to be Still wanders with his dreams.

THE LITTLE WORD.

There is a little word in every heart,
A word unspoken, yet alluring, sweet,
That runs like singing fire in the veins,
That makes the heart and makes the pulses beat.

It floats beyond the rim of consciousness;
It flutters down the aisles of memory,
Impalpable . . . and yet, persistent still—
Like broken, half remembered melody.

Or, like some brilliant bird, it suddenly
Springs upward from the copses of the mind,
Lifting and soaring to the spaces where
The blue invites, where calls the singing wind.

The breath of it makes bright black coals of hope;
Its magic makes the mist of dreams take shape;
Its voice breathes: "Courage, for a time —endure!"
The word, the small, unspoken word? Escape!

GOV. PINCHOT SUBMITS PROPOSAL TO ANTHRACITE MINERS AND OPERATORS; JOBBERS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIGH PRICES

Calls for Recognition of Basic Eight Hour Day for All Employes, Increase of 10 Per Cent. in Wages Sept. 1, and Full Recognition of the Union—Would Settle "Check Off" Matter by Giving Union Right to Have a Representative Present When the Men Are Paid Off—Miners and Operators Agree to Meet Governor Pinchot Friday—Coal Commission Lays the Responsibility for for High Prices of Anthracite Last Winter Directly to "the Speculative Jobber or Wholesaler."

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—(By The A. P.)—Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania tonight laid a proposition before officials of the miners' union and the representatives of anthracite coal operators on which he asked them to compromise the controversy which threatens a shut down of the mines on September 1. His suggestion called for a flat increase of ten per cent. in the pay of all mine workers; for the abolition of all other than eight hour working day arrangements; for the dropping by the union of its demands for "check off" collection of dues. With the provision that union agents might be stationed in company offices on pay day to collect from the men; for "full recognition of the union by the operators," and for acceptance of the principle of collective bargaining. He dismissed both groups of leaders from the executive office with the request that they return him an answer by Friday noon to the proposition as made.

Three Main Points.

The three main points of his scheme of settlement were set forth as follows:

"1—Recognition of the basic eight hour day for all employes. If longer hours are necessary at certain times or in certain occupations, the overtime to be paid for at the eight hour rate.

"2—A uniform increase of ten per cent. to all employes, this increase to take effect September 1.

"3—Full recognition of the union by the operators, without the checkoff, but with the rigat to have a union representative present when the men are paid."

"A fourth point proposed complete recognition of the principle of collective bargaining."

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, immediately summoned a meeting of the full scale committee of anthracite miners for 10 a. m. tomorrow. The committee has 88 members in addition to union officials who have handled negotiations.

Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' policy committee, likewise called in as many of his associates as could be gotten for consultation.

Comment was withheld by both sides, not only because of a desire for time to study the proposals, but also because of a peremptory request from the governor that they give him their first responses Friday.

The governor's proposal for a wage increase was based on the calculation that ten per cent. would add 60 cents per ton to the cose of mining coal, and that the operators, armed, he said, with unusual profits during recent months, could absorb ten cents per ton of this amount. The remaining 50 cents per ton, he said, "in the end should not be taken from the consumer," and he promised to make proposals later for getting this absorbed out of existing cost of transporting and distributing coal.

The employers' repeated tender of arbitration to settle all present details of the controversy he set aside. He suggested that the wage and working arrangement he proposed should be made effective for not less than one year.

To Meet Again Friday.

As before, the governor called both groups to seats around a table in the big official reception room, facing each other while he read his ultimatum.

"Your Excellency, in behalf of the United Mine Workers, I promise that every consideration will be given to your proposals," Mr. Lewis told him at the conclusion, "and we shall meet you again Friday."

"We'll do the same," said Samuel D. Warriner, chief spokesman for the operators, "and meet you at that time."

All chances of settlement of the controversy by direct negotiations between employer and employes' representatives had been lost, the governor said in stating his propositions, yet the public interest requires that it be settled without a strike. He had gathered information from the Pennsylvania state governmental sources, from the United States, from the operators and miners, and from all available unofficial sources. Notwithstanding, he suggested that the scale committees and the anthracite board of conciliation should settle any points which his proposals left open.

"The whole body of wage rates in the anthracite field is antiquated, haphazard, and honeycombed with inequality," he said, of his main proposal. "I suggest that the athracite conciliation board be authorized to undertake and complete within a year a thorough revision, and for that purpose be supplied with necessary help. The proposed increase of ten per cent. is recommended in view of the high degree of skill required among the miners, and the extra-hazardous nature of the occupation. Each year 500 miners are killed and 30,000 are injured."

Strongly the governor emphasized the view that public opinion would enforce a settlement. It was said that he time he gave the assembled parties to the controversy to make an answer was to leave an opportunity for them to estimate the public view, only twelve hours will be left after Friday noon before the union suspension order takes effect, but it was pointed out that even should some 95 of the mines close down Saturday, production would be little endangered, because of the Sunday and Labor Day holiday next week.

JOBBERS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIGH PRICES LAST WINTER

Washington, Aug. 29.—Responsibility for high prices paid by the consumer for anthracite last winter was laid directly to "the speculative jobber or wholesaler" in a report issued today by the coal commission. In some instances, it was found by commission investigators, four wholesaler purchases intervened between the mine and the retailer, "margins" running from twenty cents to an aggregate of $4.75 a ton.

"Should a stoppage of mining occur on Sept. 1," said the report, "it will accentuate the ready panic demand for anthracite and unless the buyer and the retailer representing him learn from past experiences, unscrupulous wholesalers will have another opportunity to repeat their speculative activities of last fall and winter on any anthracite coal that may be on the market after Sept. 1, as well as following the resumption of mining.

"In the absence of any definite regulatory powers over either mine prices or wholesalers' margins on the part of the state and federal authorities, the extent of such activities, and the amount of premium added by wholesalers will depend largely upon the willingness of the retailer and the consuming public to pay the prices demanded. It is only with the retailers consent that the middleman may receive as much in margin as the coal miner receives in wages from the same ton of anthracite."

Declaring that under normal conditions wholesalers have a proper place in the distribution of coal, the report continued:

"They furnish an outlet for the coal of small mines whose total tonnage is too small to warrant the maintenance of a selling organization. In times of normal market, competition among wholesalers for the operators' available tonnage on one hand and for the consumers' and retailers' trade on the other, keeps margins and prices low and commensurate with the services rendered as distributors of coal. In time of a panic or seller's market, however, the independent wholesalers tend to become speculators, and buy and sell among themselves, thereby pyramiding margins and advancing prices without rendering any equivalent service in bringing the coal nearer to the consumer.

Premium Prices Last Winter.

"The wholesalers whose activities resulted in premium prices last winter are, nominally at least, not directly connected with the mines producing the coal, although there are a considerable number of cases in which operators and wholesalers, while separate and distinct corporations, are related through interlocking stock ownerships, interlocking directorates, and interlocking officers. In some cases the interrelations extend to a chain of operators and wholesalers.

"In times of seller's market, anthracite is passed from one to another of these closely related interests, each taking a profit on the transaction with the result that wholesale margins are pyramided and the consumer pays extremely high prices and profits to a group of related interests. In other cases the pyramiding results from speculative buying and selling among wholesalers who are separate and independent. Many cases of pyramiding of margins both by related interests and among really separate and independent wholesalers have been traced by the commission.

Between Mine and Retailer.

"Anthracite coal especially yields itself to speculation among wholesalers whenever there is an interruption of production due to stocks, railroad disability, or any other cause. In tracing carloads of high premium anthracite coal purchased by New England retailers last winter it was found that as many as four wholesale purchases and sales some times intervened between the mine and the retailer.

"More than half of the 750 cars of anthracite coal of domestic sizes traced passed through the hands of only one wholesaler at margins varying from 20 cents to $3 per gross ton. Margins frequently taken were 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.25, $1.75 and $2.50 per gross ton, the majority of margins being between 50 cents and $1.25 per ton.

"A considerable proportion of the cars traced, however, went through the hands of two wholesalers at margins varying from 25 cents to $4.75 per ton. In the case of the carload on which $4.75 was taken, the first wholesaler took 50 cents and the second $4.25 per gross ton.

Margins Taken by Wholesalers.

"Total margins taken by wholesalers on cars passing through the hands of three jobbers ranged from 65 cents to $4.03 per gross ton. On two cars sold to the same retailer for which the total of margins taken was $4.03, the first wholesaler took 15 cents, the second $2.73 and the third $1.15, and on a third car which the total margin was $4.03 the margins taken by the three jobbers were respectively 15 cents, $2.90 and 98 cents per gross ton, a loss of 50 cents per ton by the third wholesaler intervening in the sale of one carload, was the only loss reported by wholesalers on the 750 cars of domestic sized traced.

"On a small number of cars passing

LATEST RETURNS FROM ELECTIONS IN IRELAND

Dublin, Aug. 29 (By the A. P.).—The election situation tonight, with unofficial returns and estimates continually coming in, is such that it is almost impossible to form any accurate idea of how the returns stand. No count is yet complete for any constituency, and those of the candidates whose names have been mentioned as among the elected have not yet been officially declared so.

The declarations announced today, however, greatly increased the confidence of the government and its supporters, and tended to lower the hopes of the republicans. Labor made a poor start, and neither the farmers nor the independents fared well in the first round of the balloting. The outstanding feature of the elections has been the extraordinarily heavy pollings of the ministers. A comparison of the party strengths of those already unofficially declared to have been elected gives no idea of ultimate strengths pending allocation of the surplus votes.

Tonight it was semi-officially stated that Eamon De Valera had polled 17,000 votes in County Clare against 8,000 for Prof. John MacNeill, minister of education. Both figures are above the quota, but it is expected that each will be increased as the count continues. De Valera probably will carry in two other republicans with him.

The main feature of the relative strengths is that the government and the republicans are the two chief parties. The government, however, outnumbers the republicans by more than two to one. The farmer, labor and independent groups each will be smaller than had been anticipated.

At 11 o'clock this evening the returns indicated the election of 27 government members, 9 republicans, 4 farmers, 4 laborites and 7 independents.

STONEHAM'S DEALINGS WITH DEFUNCT BROKERAGE FIRM

New York, Aug. 29.—The National Exhibition Company, owners of the Giants, was served with a federal grand jury subpoena late toda ycalling for the production Friday morning of the checks covering $170,000 alleged to have been advanced by Charles A. Stoneham to E. M. Fuller & Company, bankrupt brokerage firm, through Thomas F. Foley, Tammany leader.

One of the checks subpoenaed, it was said, was for $25,000, which hitherto had not come to light and had not been included in the checks Stoneham produced before the referee in bankruptcy.

The checks called for in the subpoena total $170,000, but they were said to include $10,000 advanced by Foley personally. There also was said to be an error of $2,500 in the amounts listed. This would leave the amount actually advanced by Stoneham at $162,500.

The $25,000 check which was called for was referred to in the subpoena as "a certified check of the National Exhibition Company dated on or prior to April 24, 1922, drawn to the order of Thomas F. Foley for the sum of $25,000."

Princess Anastasia of Greece Dies in London

Was Widow of William B. Leeds "Tin Plate King"—Cancer Caused Death.

London, Aug. 29.—Princess Anastasia, wife of Prine Christopher of Greece and formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the American Tin Plate magnate, died in her London home tonight. She passed peacefully away at 11:55 without regaining consciousness. Prince Christopher, the Queen Mother Olga, William B. Leeds, Jr. and his wife, Princess Xenia, and other members of the family were at the bedside.

The immediate cause of death was cancer complications by cirrhosis of the liver. It is thought likely that the body will be sent to the United States immediately for interament in the family mausoleum at Woodlawn cemetery, New York, where her father and mother rest. Although some of the relatives tonight expressed the hope that the interment might be in the Greek Royal cemetery at Tatoi, near Athens, where the late King Alexander is interred.

An English speaking Russian priest administered spiritually to the princess during her last hours. When she was married the princess became a member of the Greek Orthodox church. It was impossible to obtain a Greek Priest in London, so a Russian Priest was subetituted.

Prince Christopher is prostrated.

Anastasia was known on two continents as "the dollar princess." Her death, after an illness, contracted in Greece three years ago makes a series of tragic events connected with the Greek royal family, into which she chose to marry against the wishes of her relatives.

These events began with the dethronement of King Constantine, followed by the death from monkey bite of King Alexander. The return and subsequent exile of Constantine, the Greek revolution, the death of Constantine and the banishment of the Greek royal fomily, including Prince Christopher, Anastasia's husband from Athens.

The real malady from which the princess suffered was cancer and she spent a considerable part of her immense fortune seeking a cure. She apparently enjoyed good health upon her last return from America, but the strain of a busy social season in Paris and London was too much for her, and soon after taking up her residence in London, the disease reasserted itself.

The great Leeds fortune is so thoroughly covered in the will of the late William B. Leeds that it is unlikely there is any danger of the enormous funds leaving America. The interest on the principal, which Princess Anastasia drew during her lifetime, reverts to her son William, in the event of his death the entire principal will go to his offspring, if any; otherwise it will go to the New York Lying-in-Hospital, as was the desire of William B. Leeds.

HOLSWORTHS MAY SETTLE MARITAL DIFFICULTIES

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 29.—The marital difficulties of Wayne C. Holsworth, well known Boston landscape architect, and his wife are rapidly on the way to solution, friends of the couple who have followed their actions closely asserted tonigth. When Constable Maurice Kennedy of Windsor, Conn., went to the architect's Needham Heights some a few days ago to serve a warrant for assault—a warrant was sworn out by Mrs. Holsworth—he took with him Mrs. Holsworth. Constable Kenedy came away without serving the warrant, and Mrs. Holsworth stayed in her husband's home.

Mrs. Holsworth swore out the warrant on the charge that her husband visited her mother's home in Windsor last Sunday, assaulted her and ran away with their two years old son. As yet the Connecticut authorities have done nothing further with the assault warrant or the extradition papers for the architect.

THEFT OF PAINTING ENTOMBMENT OF CHRIST

Sacremento, Calif. Aug. 29.— The original of The Entombment of Christ, painted early in the seventeenth century by Guido Reni, a recognized master of the Bolognese school, and considered by critics as almost priceless, was stolen from the E. B. Crocker art gallery here last Saturday, it became known today. A nationwide search is in progress to recover it.

The masterpiece, eight by ten inches in size was torn from its frame and carried away by one of the thirty visitors who were at the gallery Saturday.

The central figure ofthe famous painting is the body of Christ being placed in the tomb, while surrounding the body is a group of six figures.

According to W. F. Jackson, curator of the gallery, it is virtually impossible to set a price on the picture. The Crocker art gallery was given to the city of Sacrement in 1885 by Mrs. Margaret E. Crocker.

RUMOR OF CENSORSHIP OF CABLES BY THE CUBAN GOV'T

Announcement Made by the Commercial Cable Company—Havana Government Has Recognized Opposition in Washington to the Cuban Policies Relating to the Lottery and Railroad Questions—No Official Confirmation by State Department—Late Reports Stated That Observation Would be Limited to Messages of Political Significance.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Imposition by Cuba of a censorship on cables between the United States and the island, announced today by the Commercial Cable company, lacked official confirmation in despatches received tonight bby the state department. A message from the American embassy in Havana contained no reference to censorship.

It was indicated in one official quarter that if a censorship was applied rigidly to the exclusion of interchanges between American commercial concerns and their Cuban offices the Washington government undoubtedly would make the matter one for immediate representations to the Cuban government.

The belief prevails in circles in closest touch with the Cuban situation that the Havana government has recognized as formidable the opposition to its policies, particularly those relating to the lottery and railroad questions, revealed in the recent activities of the assembly of veterans and patriots. Mass meetings under the auspices of the assembly for the purpose of making more effective its protest against the lottery bill and the Tarafa transportation measure and its demands for better government have resulteed, it is indicated in despatches received by officials here in a widespread movement throughout the island and not entirely friendly to President Zayas.

It is regarded merely as a coincidence, however, that the three main objects of the assembly represent the principal objectives sought by Ambassador Crowder in his efforts to assist the Cuban government in stabilising its affairs

General Crowder has left Washington for a ten day visit in Colorado Springs, Colo., after which he expects to return here for a brief stay before going to his post in Havana.

Captain Logan N. Rock, military attache assigned to assist Genera. Crowder, and who accompanied him to Washington, left Washington tonight for Havana via Key West.

WIDOW MAINTAINS "KID DROPPER" WAS INNOCENT

New York, Aug. 29.—In grim Essex Market court, whence her husband, "Kid Dropper," walked yesterday to meet death at the hands of a rival gangster, Mrs. Jack Kaplan met with friends today to plan the funeral of the fallen terror of the East Side.

Conversing in low tones, under the eyes of a scote of detectives and uniformed policemen on guard to prevent a rumored outbreak of gang warfare which it was feared would result from the Dropper's slaying, the little group agreed on ceremonies with which the gang chieftain will be laid away. The body was taken to a Harlem funeral parlor tonight where services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Scores of sleuths will be on guard against a recurrence of gang warfare.

The widow, garbed in black, but bearing up under her grief witnout tears as became the wife of one who had lived and died by the pistol, took occasion to denounce as a lie the story of Louis Cohen, the Dropper's slayer, that the Dropper had demanded $500 of him on pain of death.

"I can prove," she declared with flashing eyes, "that my husband and I were out of town at the time Cohen mentions. We spent a month at an upstate hotel, and only returned recently."

While the widow was planning the Dropper's funeral, a half dozen gangsters, members of "Kid Dropper's South Riders" and of the rival "Little Augie" gang, were being arraigned in various courts, all under heavy police guard, and were held in every instance in high bail.

The threatend gang warfare had not broken out up to tonight, but the entire police force on the East Side was on the alert.

Strong arm squads from headquarters, familiar with all the ins and outs of the underworld, footed through the Ghetto the old gas house district, the Bronx and Harlem, watching for the first indications of the threatened outbreak.

JAPANESE VALET FOUGHT POLICEMAN WITH SWORD

New York, Aug. 29.—A New York policeman and a Japanese valet, the latter bent upon hari kari, fought a blood curdling battle for life tonight. Fugi Harima, who tried suicide with two twelve-inch butcher knives, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

Patrolman John L Dawson subdued Harimi and was telephoning for an ambulance from the Japanese's Fifty-ninth street apartment when Harimi got up and, seizing a Japanese officer's sword, battled with the bluecoat. Dawson fought with a chair.

Once the policeman lost his footing and went down on his knees. The sword brandished above him but Dawson regained his feet before it struck him. Once he fell and sprained his ankle.

LIMITED TO CABLEGRAMS OF POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE

New York, Aug. 29.—The Commercial Cable company received word late to night that no censorship had been declared on cablegrams passing through the company's Cuban offices, as were reported by the company today. Cuban officials, in a message to the company's main office here, declared that "observation" would be limited to cablegrams of "political significance."

"The present measure should not be considered as censorship," the message stated, "but merely as observation limited to messages of political significance. Commercial messages, code or otherwise, will not be interfered with."

AGREEMENT WITH CUBANS ON THE TARAFA BILL

New York, Aug. 29.—A formal announcement issued at the close of today's conference between representatives of American sugar companies and Col. J. M. Tarafa of Cuba, author of the Cuban Railway Consolidation bill against the passage of which the sugar interests have protested, indicated that an accord may yet be reached which will relieve the state department of the necessity of further intervention in the matter.

"A substantial understanding has been reached upon the points under discussion," the formal notice stated "as a result of today's conference upon the so-called Tarafa bill."

Neither sugar company officials nor counsel for Col. Tarafa would comment further upon the progress of the discussions, but it was learned that several additional meetings are to be held as soon as the attorneys have prepared a draft of the conversations held thus far.

It was made clear that the conferences on the Tarafa bill had the approval of the state demantment at Washington, which had indicated to both Col. Tarafa and the sugar interests that the government would prefer that the two opposing interests reach a private agreement.

Reports were current in the financial district that Col. Tarafa had conceded practically all of the conditions of the sugar interests and that it would be necessary to draft an entirely new measure on the subject of railway consolidation, eliminating both the additional taxes originally imposed in the measure and the closing of private seaports owned in Cuba by American companies.

TWO ARMED BANDOITS AT WORK IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 29.—Nathan Rappaport told the police today that two men who stoped his automobile in Whitney avenue early today, robbed him of $63 at the point of a gun. He says that he was confronted by a man who ordered him to stop when a second man got into the car. Both with guns held against him made him drive into Cliff street where they searched his clothing.

For the fifth time since the motorsing of the fire department the members of Engine Company No. 1, on Bank street have been called out on false alarms rung in from Box 71 on Chapman street. The last instance was shortly before 10 o'clock Tuesday evening. The matter was reported to the police. A certain man was seen to run away from the box Tuesday night after it had been rung. It is thought that the same person is responsible for the false alarms.

George Greendennor of Olympic avenue, Stafford Springs, was charged with reckless driving, in police court, Wednesday morning. Greendennor was the driver of a Jewett coupe which crashed into the side of the Merton E. Phillips home, on Mansfield avenue, Tuesday evening. The Stafford man explained that as he was about to pass to the left of a Chevrolet truck, driven by Joseph Nahass of Valley street, this city, the latter swung to turn from the right side of Main street into Mansfield avenue. While avoiding a collision he put his foot accidentally on the accelerator and lost control of his machine which plunged over the lawn, mounted the veranda and after ripping away veranda posts and smashing up four chairs, tore a large hole in the side of the house and came to a stop.

Joseph Nahass was also charged with reckless driving. Both men pleaded not guilty. George W. Howard of Pleasant Valley, the first witness called, testified that Nahass had sounded his horn and put out his hand before making the turn. Raymond L. Generous, 1189 Main street, said that Nahass was traveling about 16 miles an hour. He heard a horn but did not know which driver had sounded it. Joseph Menditto stated that he saw the accident and that Nahass had put out his hand as a signal. George Greendennor claimed that he was traveling about 25 miles an hour, when, without warning, Nahass started to turn. In the excitement his foot came in contact with the accelerator and the crash followed. Nahass said that he put his hand out and came to a stop when he noticed the other car trying to pass him.

Judge Foss found Nahass not guilty. Greendennor was found guilty and the minimum fine of $25 and costs was imposed, amounting to $33.25.

Guests present came from Norwich, Hartford, East Hartford, Burnside and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Condon left later in the day to spend a ten days' honeymoon in New York state. The bride's going away suit was blue. She received a large number of gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Condon will make their home with the bride's parents in this city. SHEEP PARTICULARLY SUBJECT TO PARASITES

Sheep probably suffer more from parasites than do any other kind of livestock, says the United States Department of Agriculture in a publication just issued entitled Farmers' Bulletin 1330, Parasites and Parasitic Diseases of Sheep, by Maurice C. Hall, of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Most of our losses in sheep, mutton and wool are from animal parasites, as sheep suffer comparitively little from bacterial diseases, it is said. Lambs and young animals are most susceptible to parasites and suffer most from them.

Special emphasis is placed in the bulletin upon disease prevention. It is the sheepman's business to prevent disease, and as soon as an outbreak is noticed a competent veterinarian should be called in. Act promptly, the department urges, to ascertain the trouble when sheep become unthrifty. A post-mortem examination of one of the sick animals may disclose the trouble and save others. Parasitized animals usually do not have fever—they are unthrifty, and unthriftiness may go on to emaciation with a fatal termination.

Pasture rotation, use of forage crops, feeding from racks or bare floors, draining or filling swamps, and restraint of wandering dogs are measures the department recommends as being of value in parasite control. It points out emphatically that permanent pastures perpetuate parasites. Parasite eggs pass in the manure, usually. The disposal of the manure determines the fate of these eggs, whether they find their way back into the animals and hatch out or not.

AMERICAN SUMAC.

Detailed information concerning the kinds of sumac desired by the extract makers, the proper methods of gathering, harvesting and curing the leaves, and suggestions for improving the quality of the articles are given in United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin 706, American Sumac. A Valuable Tanning Material and Dyestuff. This bulletin may be obtained free upon application to the department

Our domestic source of tannin, the American Sumac, has never been properly developed, say officials of the department, although American sumac contains practically as much tannin as the Sicilian variety. However, owing to lack in care in gathering and curing the leaves of this wild plant, which grows in vast quantities on uncultivated land in the Eastern and Middle Western States, the domestic article now on the market is inferior in quality and brings a lower price than the imported article. Sumac is used in tanning light colored and special leathers but unless the leaves are gathered at the proper time and properly prepared for market, a darker color than that desired will be given the leathers treated with it.

LAYING SEASON OF PULLETS AT HAND

The pullet laying season is just beginning. Some men report they had one or two pullets lay their first egg early this month. This brings up the following questions in the mind of everyone. It is too early in the season for pullets to lay? Should they be forced now or should they be kept back? Should they be put in winter quarater or kept on the range? The right answers to these questions are vital to the poultry industry. The same answer will not be right in every case because conditions under which poultry are kept are different on most every place, but the principle is about the same.

To begin with, if pullets are starting in to lay now or about ready to lay, they should be put immediately in their winter quarters so that as few sudden changes of conditions will be effected at any one time. That is, when the days begin to shorten, the weather begins to be cold, green feeds, begin to chill; and then onto all these changes the laying pullets are put into new quarters they are bound to be affected generally causing indigestion colds, roup or some other ailment. This will immediately start them into a moist which will stop them from laying at least six weeks and liable to prevent laying until some time in February.

From this one can see it is not so much the facts that the birds begin to lay too early as it is to keep them surrounded with as near like conditions all the time as possible, keep their quarters dry and free from draughts, feed no sour or frozen foods. Give them an extra feed when the days begin to shorten, by the use of lights. In this way the pullets will generally come through without as much chance as a set back.

NOW IS THE TIME TO DESTROY ALL WEEDS

This is the time of the year when every owner of land, whether backyard garden, orchard or farm field, should be interested in destroying the weeds. Some of the worst weeds we have are getting ready to seed now. One weed destroyed at this time of the year will save the necessity of destroying thousands next season. Some of the worst of these weeds are rag weed, chick weed, barnyard grass, and the running crab grass so common in the light sandy soil of this district.

It is well known that the pollen quent cases of hay fever and asthma from ragweed is one of the most fre- This is another reason for its destruction.

In the garden, the asparagus and strawberry plants need especial care at this time to keep them clear and free of weeds. It will pay to pull out by hand all weeds so as to have the patch or field go into the fall and winter clean.

In the orchard, it is well to use a mowing machine and mow off the tops of tall weeds. This not only will help destroy weeds, but will make the harvest of the apple crop easier

In the vineyard and raspberry patch a scythe or sickle may be used to mow off the weeds. These may be allowed to remain in the rows to serve as a mulch, thus affording a little additional protection to the roots later on during the winter.

POTATO PESTS BUSY

Recent studies at the New York state agriculture experiment station have revealed the fact that the burning of the potato vines so noticeable during July and August, is caused to a large extent by the feeding of small greenish insects known as leafhoppers, which congregate on the under side of the leaves.

The station specialists assert that these are the same hoppers that are found on young apple trees earlier in the season and that as the potatoes appear above ground they leave the apples and begin feeding and egg-laying on the potato vines. These pests can be found on the potatoes in all stages of development for the remainder of the season.

Formerly "hopperburn," or tipburn, as it was called, was thought to be due altogether to the effects of dry weather, but the station experiments would seem to indicate that the injury is due largely to the feeding of the leafhoppers, and is aggrevated by long continued dry spells.

Beginning usually at the growing tips of the tender new leaves, the insects suck the juice from the tissues and cause the tips and margins of the leaves to turn brown and to curl up over the upper surface of the leaflets. The injury is greatest during August, when adult and young leafhoppers are present in large numbers and when the rainfall is unually insufficient.

Observations in the station fields indicate that hoppers can be held in check with three or four applications of a spray mixture containing five pounds of copper sulphate or blue vitrol, 10 pounds of lime, two and a half pounds of powdered leaf arsenate and 50 gallons of water. This spray seems to act largely as a repellant and was effective in checking egg-laying by the adult hoppers.

Growers are especially warned to apply the spray to the under sides of the leaves, as that is where the leafhoppers will be found. Spraying from above, the station adds, does not seriously disturb the insects, although a fair degree of protection against tipburn has been obtained when the spray is applied from above.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE WONDERFUL EGG

Now, one day as Little Jack Rabbit rode upon his wonderful white horse, that same white horse, which you remember in the last story had walked over the wires of the drawbridge, he came across an old man sitting by the wayside.

"Good day, my little traveller," said the man, setting down a large basket covered with a black cloth, as Little Jack Rabbit drew rein.

A pretty mermaid swam up to the shore.

"May I ask what is in the basket?" inquired the bunny boy.

"If you will come with me to my humble cottage you shall see." replied the old man.

As soon as they came to a small cottage near the edge of the wood the old man closed the door and pulling off the black cloth, out of the basket jumped a snow white goose.

"Lay, lay!" exclaimed the old man and immediately the great white goose laid a golden egg.

"Take it," said the old man, "and if at any time you are in trouble, crack the shell."

Then opening the door, he led the goose to the brook which flowed nearby."

Little Jack Rabbit was sorely puzzled not knowing why the old man should give away this wonderful egg. Nevertheless the bunny boy carefully placed it in his pocket and remounting his white horse, rode away. By and by, after a while, he came to the ocean. Reining in his great horse he looked across the waters, when, all of a sudden, a sweet voice sang:

"Under the ocean's restless tide
Is the mermen's kingdom far and wide
Where the coral grow on beautiful trees
And the sea mosa waves like the forest leaves,
And the sea shells sing the same soft tune
And they rest on the hilly sandy dune.
Oh, I never long for an earthly home,
For I love my kingdom among the foam."

and the next minute a pretty mermaid swam up to the shore.

"Don't you want to come with me to my beautiful kingdom under the sea?" she asked with a smile.

"What shall I do with my horse?" inquired Little Jack Rabbit?"

"Oh, I will wait in the meadow yonder," answered the obliging animal.

"Can you swim?" asked the mermaid looking doubtfully at the little rabbit.

"Dear me!" thought the bunny boy, and taking the golden egg out of his pocket carefully he broke the shell. Inside was a tiny boat which as soon as he placed it in the water increased in size until it was large enough to hold him.

"Jump in," cried the mermaid and I will push it for you," and away it went over the ocean's sparkling spray and after the bunny boy had played all afternoon with the mermaid princess, she led him back to Bunny Fairyland.

MISS COMMINGS BEATS MRS. SMITH IN FEATURE MATCH AT SCHENECOSETT

Eastern Point, Conn., Aug. 29.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, women's national golf champion, today won her second round match in the Shenecossett invitation tournament here from Mrs. J. H. Lapham, of Apawamis by five and three.

Miss Edith Cummings, the Owentsia star, had one of the closest calls of her life in the match with Mrs. Alex Smith, of Shenecossett. The wife of the noted professional carried Miss Cummings to the 20th hole after leading her all the way to the 18th green. The Chicago girl did not play exceptionally well on the outward path and on the ninth green, Mrs. Smith missed a short putt to be 2 up.

Mrs. Smith won the tenth when her opponent required a six and maintained the lead of two holes until the 14th where she lost after missing an approach. Mrs. Smith became dormie one after halving the next three holes in par figures on the 18th. Miss Cummings ran down a five-footer for a beautiful birdie three which saved the match. She halved the 19th in fives when Mrs. Smith missed her putt. On the next Miss Cummings got a five, but Mrs. Smith missed another putt and took a six.

Mrs. Smith distinguished herself again later in the day by being runner-up to Miss Audrey Faust, of St. Louis, in the driving contest and second to Mrs. Richard E. Norton, of Philadelphia, in the approaching and putting.

Miss Collett, who was out in 40 today, and who played almost perfect golf, will meet Miss Faust in the upper semi-final tomorrow as the latter gained a victory over Mrs. R. H. Barlow, of Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia, by three and one.

In the lower half Miss Cummings will meet Miss Anita Lihme, of Chicago and Wauch Hill. Miss Lihme won her match today from Mrs. N. A. Brown, of Wheatley Hills by three and two.

MAYFLOWER WILL NOT START IN THE FISHERMEN'S RACE FOR LIPTON CUP

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 29.—The Boston schooner Mayflower, built two years ago to fish and race, has lost another opportunity of showing her speed in competition with the picked flyers of the Boston and Gloucester fleets. The vessel, still absent on the Banks when the open fishermen's race for the Lipton and Prentiss cups was postponed on Monday because of fog, arrived early today on the eve of the new date set for the contest. But unless there is a further postponement there is no chance that the Mayflower will be on the starting line at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It appears tonight that the Henry Ford of Gloucester, the Elizabeth Howard of New York, and the Shamrock of Boston—the same schooners that stood ready to dispute the title of the fleet on Monday—would be the only entries tomorrow.

Captain J. Henry Larkin brought the Mayflower into port today with nearly 200,000 pounds of fish on board. All Gloucester was on holiday for the 300th anniversary celebration and the schooner remains tonight tied up at the fish house with all her catch on board. Unloading is to begin tomorrow morning. When the fish are out of the Mayflower, and before she can race, must be hauled out for cleaning and the removal of her propeller, a day's work at the least. It was said that unless lack of breeze or another force forces further postponement the Mayflower is definitely out of the racing.

Two of the schooners entered in the race went out over the course today, the Henry Ford and the Elizabeth Howard. There was no breeze, but the vessels performed satisfactorily in the light airs prevailing.

Captain Marty Welch kept the new Shamrock fast to her wharf all day.

Three fishing crews tonight are whistling for a wind tomorrow. The time set for the start is 10 o'clock. The coast guard cutter Modic again will act as committee boat. The race will be sailed over a triangular course, seven miles to a leg, off Thacher's Island, the five-mile run out to the first mark from Eastern Point and back at the finish, making a total distance of 31 miles.

DEMPSEY IS A BETTER FIGHTER THAN BALL PLAYER

Saratoga Springs N. Y., Aug. 29 (By the A. P.).—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was knocked out today—but not on the floor of a ring with a referee counting over him. The titleholder was knocked out of the pitcher's box when his offerings were batted to all corners of the lot during a baseball game between the training camp attendants and cottagers on the shores of Saratoga lake. After one disastrous inning on the mound, Dempsey was shifted to first base, where he performed like a major leaguer. He collected a half dozen hits, driving runs in ahead of him every time he smashed the ball.

After a three-day layoff, Dempsey is scheduled to resume training tomorrow, to continue, probably without further interruption, until he winds up the conditioning grind for the defense of his title against Luis Angel Firpo at New York Sept. 14.

Aside from a cold, the champion is in excellent condition and eager to resume work. The three days of rest doing nothing became so tiresome that it made Dempsey restless. His cold, while not serious, continues to bother him and upset his usual cheerful disposition. Every one of his sympathetic callers today offered a positive cure for colds, varying from rubbing his chest with coal oil to sleeping in a room with a pail full of tar beside the bed. Dempsey smilingly told them he would follow their instructions.

Jack McAuliffe, the Detroit heavyweight, who was knocked out by Firpo in one of the Argentine's engagements, arrived in camp to join Dempsey's sparring staff. Dempsey immediately began quizzing McAuliffe about Firpo's punching power and boxing skill. Farmer Lodge, a Minnesota giant, is expected to arrive tomorrow to absorb his share of Dempsey's wallops.

FIRPO'S WIND IS AT THE PERFECTION POINT

Atlantic City, N. J. Aug. 29 (By the A. P.).—A cold driving rain, falling throughout the early part of today, compelled Luis Angel Firpo to pass up his daily workout in preparation for his title match with Jack Dempsey in New York Sept. 14.

The South American champion started out for his regular jaunt along the beach and boardwalk at 7 o'clock this morning and had walked briskly for about a mile when rain began falling in sheets. Reluctantly he turned for home, for he is in fine physical shape and doesn't care to shirk the training task that has been set for him by his Argentine trainers.

When he returned to his cottage in Chelsea, he let loose for a while on the heavy sandbag that is suspended in the garage, then pulled the weights.

The rain continued falling heavily until 2 o'clock, when it let up for a spell. The sparring outfit was summoned and the party motored to the dog racing track, where the training ring is pitched, but the ring canvas was water-soaked and a chill wind blew, so Trainer Lavalle declared a full halt for the day.

Discussing Firpo's condition, the trainer called attention to his wind, which he believes is as near perfection as that of any heavyweight in the ring. Firpo breathes easily, even in his heaviest workouts, and never seems to tire. Yesterday, after going through eight rounds of sparring at a brisk pace, he stepped from the ring breathing as easily as one asleep.

Although the big fellow has taken some hard punches on jaw, face and body during his first week of training, never once has he lost his serious, workmanlike facial expression or appeared to have been hurt. He has smiled only twice while working, once when he misjudged a left hook intended for young Frank Koebele's jaw and once when the Joplin Ghost's chin slipped away from a right uppercut.

OUIMET AND GUILFORD ENTER NATIONAL AMATEUR

Boston, Aug. 29.—Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, former champions, have forwarded their entries for the national amateur golf championship at Flossmoor. Although Guilford failed to qualify in the national open championship, he has been showing excellent form on local courses recently. One of his feats was a round of 70 over the difficult course of the Weston Golf club, setting up a new course record, and another was a 300 yard drive on the course at Norwich, Conn.

OLYMPIC TRIALS MAY BE HELD AT HARVARD STADIUM

Boston, Aug. 29.—An effort to crystallize sentiment in favor of having the National A. A. U. championships and the final Olympic trials next year run off at the Harvard stadium will be made by Manager T. J. Kanaly of the Boston Athletic association. Coach Jack Ryder and a delegation of B. A. A. men who left tonight for Chicago to participate in the national championships at Stagg field beginning Friday. They will use as an argument the success, financially and otherwise, of the combined meeting at the stadium in 1920.

Manager Kanaly also will try to persuade a number of stars of both the east and the west to compete in the B. A. A. carnival to be held on Tech field, Cambridge, on Sept. 15.

DAVIS CUP TEAMS READY FOR FINAL STRUGGLE FRIDAY

Forest Hills, N. Y. Aug 29.—The American and Australian Davis cup teams completed their training today for the challenge round matches which begin Friday on the courts of the West Side Tennis club. The captains of both teams report their men in excellent condition and will enter the contest at top form.

The draw for the order of individual play, as well as the rotation of matches will be made tomorrow. Great interest is being evinced in the draw, as it will, undoubtedly have a distinct bearing on the outcome of the entire three day's conflict.

Anderson and Hawkes are expected to bear the brunt of the singles play both Friday and Monday for the Australians, while Tilden and Johnson "big and little Bill," take the singles courts for the United States. The doubles lineup Saturday is still uncertain.

The challengers will put up a much stronger fight than was at first expected, according to officials who have been in touch with both teams throughout their final training. Definite final nominations will probably be withheld until within twenty-four hours of the respective matches.

RECORDS BROKEN IN WESTERN WOMEN'S GOLF

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The leading women golfers of Ohio, Michigan, Utah, Missouri and Texas, and the champions of Chicago, along with a girl member of the home club today survive in the womens western golf association championship at Exmoor, after the second round had produced some records and been marked by the elimination of the medalist, Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago.

Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhardt, of Dallas, Texas, set a record for the 1,473 yard course with 42-41—83 in defeating Mrs. Elizabeth Klotz Pennett, of Chicago, 2 and 1 and the latter scoring an 85, or 3 under womans par.

Scarcely had this record been recorded when Mrs. Lee Mida of Chicago, came in with 39-41—80 in her victory over Lucille Dusenbury of Kalamazoo, in the consolation event. Mrs. Mida shot 10 birdies and seven pars but slipped on the seventeenth hole, taking 7.

RAIN CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF GRAND CIRCUIT RACING

Readville, Mass., Aug. 29.—A downpour of rain after three heats of the second day's program of the grand circuit meeting here had been run off today caused the postponement until tomorrow of the five races scheduled. Favonian, piloted by Cox, had just won the first heat of the Massachusetts 2:08 class trot for $10,000 in a spectacular finish with Eleanor Guy, second and Clyde the Great, the favorite third when the rain came.

Scores of visiting motorists drove their machines around the track for hours during the forenoon and early afternoon by request of the track officials to aid in breaking up a heavy layer of mud and as a result the going was fair when the races were called at 3 o'clock. The events put over include two futurities, for two and three-year-olds, the 2:07 pace and the 2:09 trot. As many races as possible on the regular Thursday program will also be run off tomorrow.

LACOSTE STILL IN THE RUNNING AT RYE

Rye, New York, Aug. 29.—Rene La Coste, French Davis cup player, was the only tennis star not an American to enter the semi-final round of the southern New York championship at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club today. He defeated Francis T. Hunter 6-4, 6-1.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—The Leanders, of England, and the Undines, of Philadelphia, entered the finals of the international eights, the big rowing event of the Canadian national exhibition, today. The Leanders beat the Toronto University crew a length and a half in the first heat, covering the course in 6.07. The Undines eliminated the Argonauts of Toronto in 5.56 1-2.

More than 50,000 persons were strung along the course. The Leanders and the Undines will meet tomorrow afternoon.

SWEDISH MERMAN SETS TWO NEW SWIMMING MARKS

London, Aug. 29.—The Swedish swimmer Arne Borg, according to an exchange telegraph respatch from Gothenburg, has set a new world's record. He covered 499 yards in 11 minutes 8 1-2 seconds, thus bettering Ross's record of 11 minutes 24 1-5 seconds.

Borg also covered a thousand yards in 12 minutes 47 2-5 seconds, lowering his own record of 13 minutes 13 7-10ths and one thousand meters in 14 minutes 1-2 seconds, lowering his own record of 14 minutes 11 7-10ths

LIGHT WINDS BECALM YACHTS AT ROTHESAY

Rothesay, Scotland, Aug. 29.—The four-hour time limit had expired before the American six-meter yacht Lea and the Britisher, Coila III had completed the fourth heat today for the Seawanhaka cup, and on the expiration of the stated time the race was called off.

The yachts covered a triangular course, with marks at Kerrycroy and Wemyss Bay light. Southwesterly airs at the outset gave them a beat on the first leg, and the Lea, which was across the line two lengths ahead, opened out to a big advantage in shooting to the windward.

Then the boats were becalmed, but eventually made the Kerrycroy mark in a northerly zephyr, the American leading by nearly five minutes. The breeze shifted to the south and the Lea maintained her advantage until both boats were again becalmed, in a heavy rain, near the Wemyss Bay mark.

The American challenger quite fulfilled expectations as the better boat in light airs, and was unfortunate in not scoring a victory. The score stands at two heats to one, in favor of the Coila III.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

New Orleans has a woman's indoor baseball league.

The Detroit District Soccer League plans to start the coming season with 15 clubs.

The lid has been clamped down tight on the boxing games in Missouri by the governor of that state.

Norfolk, Va., is to dedicate its gigantic stadium and athletic field on August 26.

Mike McTigue and Young Stribling, the Georgia battler probably will meet at Columbus, Ga., on Labor day.

Jem Mace was in his 40th year when he defeated his rival, Tom Allen, in a terrific battle for the championship.

Hutchinson and Sapulpa have been running neck and neck for premier honors in the second half of the Southwestern league pennant race.

Twenty-five thousand dollars in prizes will be given for the 150-mile international motor boat sweepstakes in the coming Gold Cup regatta at Detroit.

Portland's recent run of nine straight victories did much to boost the percentage of the Beavers in the Pacific Coast league standing.

At the seven-day autumn meeting of the Ontario Jockey club, opening at Toronto on Sep. 22, the sum of $23,000 will be disbursed in prizes for steeplechasing alone.

Like the baby in the well-known soap ad, the city of San Diego evidently won't be satisfied until it gets a franchise in the Pacific Coast baseball league.

Tom Kennedy, one-time national amateur heavyweight champion, has accepted a position as matchmaker of one of the boxing clubs in Hollywood, California.

The sympathy of thousands of ball fans will go out to John (Dots) Miller, former major league star player and more recently manager of the San Francisco Seals, who has been forced by ill health to retire to his home in New Jersey.

H. A. Walker-Macran, the Bristol (Eng) policeman discovered by Tex O'Rourke as a possible contender for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight crown, has already crowded a remarkable life into twenty-two years. The son of a clergyman, he was educated at Oxford University. Knowing that the police force offers excellent opportunities in these days, he decided to start at the bottom of the ladder, and after a spell in the army he joined the Bristol constabulary.

POETRY

PASTEL.

A radiant reflex sweeps
From amber arches of autumnal skies—
See! Its glow of sunset color dyes
These saffron oaks. From them outleaps
A flame transfiguring tawny leaves
And twisted twigs and branches that await,
In stolid dumbness, the frost-rimmed hour of fate—
And over sere spaces where golden sheaves
In harvest time arose,
On buff stubble, dappled with deep purple shade,
The amber glory also glows.

On you and me, in this wood-sheltered glade,
The same effulgence falls:
It draps in rutilant russet your drab coat,
Upon your wind-browned cheeks and brow, likewise,
It now bestows
A shimmering disguise—
Your stature, lofty, stalwart, recalls
Something

CANAL BUSINESS.

Hopes entertained in regard to the Panama canal are not only being realized but exceeded. From the day when the plan to build the waterway was advanced there had been the desire on the part of this country to make a contribution to improved facilities for traffic between the oceans. It did not overshadow the desire to bring our western and eastern coasts nearer together and because of the advantages to be gained for ourselves the idea of making the canal a paying proposition was not urged. If it could be done there would of course be no objection to it, but it was not the purpose of the large expenditure. In fact the cost of building was so large that there was no reason to expect that it would net a profit on the investment.

But canal traffic has been steadily growing. The governor of the Canal Zone on a visit to Washington is highly enthusiastic over the showing and even claims that the country is getting a return of better than three per cent on its money.

Business has developed to the point where the tolls collected for the month of July amounted to over $2,130,000, or the greatest of any month since the opening of the canal, and with the business eastbound and westbound evenly divided. During that month vessels paid an average toll of $4,481.88 and of the 501 vessels passing through the canal 474 were commercial transits, which exceeded the previous record established in May by 55.

That there should be steadily increasing recognition of the advantages furnished by the canal is not surprising. It is a short cut that means money in the pockets of the steamship owners and it is natural that the inducement should appeal to new business between the Atlantic and Pacific ports.

Where the use of the canal will go to is only limited by its capacity to handle the vessels seeking to benefit by it. Its value to world transportation, as well as to this country, has long since been established.

RUSSIAN IMPROVEMENT.

It is an encouraging report that Colonel W. N. Haskell brings from Russia where as the result of his administration of the American relief work he has had an unusual opportunity to study conditions and changes. That he should not minimize the benefits that have been contributed by this [illegible] to the betterment of conditions and the saving of life in that country is to be expected. The United States has given freely that humanity might be aided, and it is but natural that such an influence should make an impression upon those who received it, whether they happened to be those who were saved from starvation or others who had a chance to note the good effects of the relief measures.

Colonel Haskell expresses the opinion that communism in Russia is dead and that the country is on the road to recovery. Certainly it has been through long years of trying experience, with war, revolution, wild experiments in government and starvation to contend with. If it has turned the corner and hit the right trail at last it will be gratifying to more than Russia.

How long it will require for it to get back anywhere near to normal is not easy to say. It depends upon many things. Progress is apparently being made but there are observers who hold after a personal visit to relief stations that the time is not ripe for recognition of that government.

That not only offsets what certain of the radically inclined have declared but it jibes with the position taken by this government. Congressman Beedy of Maine who refused an official guide for his tour of Russia believes there should be no recognition of a government that is using its money for world wide propaganda of revolution when it is not able to supply the most ordinary needs of the people, and that the government should not be recognized until it recognizes the property rights of American citizens and assumed the liabilities as well as the assets of the old government.

Russia has changed and it is improving. Without a doubt it has a long road to travel and much confidence to create before it gets the much needed aid that will come through recognition.

ANOTHER GOLD BRICK.

Earlier in the year there was circulated a story to the effect that rich deposits of gold had been discovered in Labrador. Such tales travel fast and nearly as fast are those who respond to such stories without waiting to have them substantiated. They flocked into Labrador quite as they did into Alaska, and the big difference was that while Alaska contains gold and the prospector had some chance of getting it there was no such situation in Labrador.

Labrador had never established a reputation for harboring gold. It hasn't now, though some were certain it was going to, and there is no prospect that it will. It probably does contain about as much gold as was discovered in that famous hole in the ground, called a gold mine, on Wauwecus hill, but the quantity isn't so great but what if it was put in one's eye the vision would not be interrupted.

The story about Labrador's goldfields was a gold brick. Some swallowed the bait, and with it the hook, sinker and line. They have become wiser through experience. They know that all that glitters is not gold and all the stories that are circulated are not true. Going off at a tangent on no better ground than the fact that someone had said that there was gold in Labrador and that he had secured an option on a large acreage was the height of folly. And yet there are those who are doing that same thing almost every day, though it may not be gold in the rough that is the object.

It is possible to get some people right up on their toes by the alluring presentation of statements that are not so. Playing upon the gullibility of the individual is an old practice. It is a much better paying proposition than the shouting to the world of the discovery of gold in Labrador. But the result is much the same for those who are carried away by it and fail to protect themselves by insisting upon adequate proof.

WESTERLY'S HOSPITAL DRIVE.

No better evidence of a recognition of the need of hospital facilities within its borders could be asked than that which has been given by the people of Westerly and vicinity in subscribing two-thirds of a million for building, equipping and endowing a hospital in that town.

Being dependent upon other cities, including Norwich, for hospital service Westerly had good reason for entering with enthusiasm into the drive for funds that would permit it to make itself independent in this respect. The appeal was one which the entire community, and those adjacent, had reason to heed. Any community of such size owes it as a duty to itself to provide hospital facilities, and even though means of getting to other hospitals are better than they were, there is a pride in independence that is commendable. This Westerly has felt and the public spirit is greatly to its credit. Raising a third of a million is no easy task, except that it be in a cause which is so generally endorsed as the Westerly hospital project has been.

Within a few weeks a campaign for funds will be started in Norwich for a nurses' home at the Backus hospital. The need is unquestioned. Nurses are a vital part of such an institution and adequate provision must be made for them in the way of quarters.

There are the best of reasons why there should be a general and generous response on the part of the people of Norwich for the betterment of this valuable institution on which the public so greatly depends. The excellent example set by Westerly may well be kept in mind. Wise is the community that looks carefully to its own welfare.

CUTTING TAXES.

Taxation is a subject that never fails to arouse interest, and that applies to federal as well as to city and state. No sooner are taxes established than there is a demand for their curtailment or removal, but too often there prevails the idea that expenditures ought not to be interfered with.

Congressman Madden, chairman of the house appropriation committee, is not one who takes that view. He is an advocate of reducing the income tax, not by just going ahead and slashing, and leaving things to adjust themselves, but by insisting upon a reduction of expenditures. There cannot be extravagance, or there cannot be the proper attention given to actual needs, if there is not sufficient revenue. Where revenue is inadequate and expenditures are not curbed taxation becomes necessary.

Chairman Madden would go about the tax reduction systematically. He would pave the way for it by checking needless expenditures and as there was a cutting in the appropriation each $100,000,000 he would use the knife on the income tax to that extent. In other words he believes that if appropriations are cut that the taxpayers should reap the benefit of it by lessened taxation.

The idea is one that will appeal. There are certain requirements that must be provided for and there are some demands that might, with the proper thought, be rated as wasteful or needless. If the congressman can bring congress to adopt his views taxes could no doubt be cut, but he faces a hard task.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Cool as the summer has been it hasn't succeded in fooling the wild geese.

It takes deep seated optimism to figure it cut that there'll be no coal strike.

The man on the corner says: What Germany seeks is a painless method of paying its debts.

Would it be well to include the new Laurel Hill road as one of the seven wonders of Norwich?

If that buried hoard dug up in Maryland proves to be Bergdoll's will it be a case of "findings are keepings?"

France gives Germany some good advice when it urges it to develop the same paying spirit that it did back in 1870.

New obstacles are to be put in the way of the liquor sellers. Someone is always interfering with get-rich-quick schemes.

Canada is reported to be sending bad liquor into the United States. And there are those who insist there isn't any other kind.

The first real relief in the coal situation comes from the declaration of weather forecasters who can see no signs of an early, severe winter.

Not only is the cool weather pointing to the early disappearance of the strawhat but it makes the youngsters think of the early arrival of snow, coasting and skating.

Possibly Laddie Boy is going to like his new home because he can dispense with a press agent and settle down to a quiet existence out of the glare of an insistent limelight.

In New York and Boston interest has been centering in deciding what are the seven wonders of those cities. What would be included in such a list for the Rose of New England?

TRAGEDY OF CANS

"Say, kid, lookut," chuckled the jolly fat girl "in the handkerchiefs." "Gran's bust again. You remember me telling you about her, you know, trying to grab off that grab from down state and me giving him the bum eats, what? Well, say, sweetie, listen.

"After that she kind of, you know, didn't pull off no more of them stunts for quite some time, and I kind of began to think she was getting back to normalcy, like they say, and then, believe me, she bust out in a new place.

"Say, kid, lookut!" She sure worked overtime trying to crank this one up and get him going good for her swell granddaughter, and of course, it was me that made him turn turtle.

"Say, kid, listen. I was right next to Gran the very first night she come honking up to our place, and started to telling how she was down to my Uncle Tom's awfuss, and how my Uncle Tom introduced her to such a swell, you know, widow man, everything, and how he wasn't so awful young and and he wasn't so terrible old, neither, and seems like he made an awful hit with Gran, saying how he was so lonesome after his first wife died on him and everything. So, of course, right off, Gran asked him for supper.

"And say, kid, lookut. Gran's cute, I'll say she is! She kind of, you know, didn't say nothing about me coming to supper the first time this here, you know, widow man come. She only just kept raving on how swell he [illegible]

"But, say, girlie, lookut. After he was to her place a coupla times she give me a ring and says how this guy was coming up the next night, and how about me coming, too. I says sure. I'm all for getting a swell meal, and you don't take no chances on Gran's.

"Well, say, sweetie, lookut. I kind of fell for this guy myself, he was so swell looking and refined and everything. And, say, kid, listen. I didn't start right in treating him rough like I did the other guy. I was reel kind of refined acting myself.

"And, say, kiddo, listen. Me and him got along swell for quite a while. I guess I was kind of different to anything he'd ever saw not in a cage and seemed like he kind of liked to watch a wild woman work. He didn't seem even like he cared such an awful pile one night when Gran thought she'd be reel swell and have some kind of a first course for supper out of grape fruit and I broadcasted mine all over his clothes.

"But, say, girlie, lookut. I don't know but what maybe I'd be going to be Mrs. Widow Man right now if I hadn't a been such a swell daughter and everything and trying to do like my ma wanted me to. You see ma seen an ad in the paper one night about a person could get canned goods awful cheap if they come over and got 'em and carried 'em home, and I says sure I'd go over and buy a wagon load.

"Say, kid, lookut. Just when I come out the door that swell bundle of canned goods busted open on me. And, say, kid, listen. Them canned goods started to roll down the sidewalk and I didn't have sense enough to just leave the first ones roll and lassoo the ones that was left, so I started to run after 'em, and, say, gee, kid, seemed like there wasn't nothing all up and down State street except canned goods joy ridin'.

"Honest, kid, it was a scream. I pretty near laughed myself to death—seems like I just can't do nothing real dignified, and right in the middle of it one of them big cans cut loose and skidded kerplunk into some guy's legs. And, say, girlie, listen. He give a hop and I give a holler, and then I looked up at his face! Say, kid, lookut. It was Gran's widow man. I'll say it was. Can you beat it?

"And say, girlie, listen. I wisht you could seen his face when he saw it was me. He give them crazy canned goods a look and he give me a look and then he beat it and I ain't seen him or heard no news of him since. Neither did Gran.

"And, say, sweetie, listen. Gran was awful sore at him when I told her, him not speaking to me or helping me, or nothing, but I guess she was kind of sore at me and ma, too. She's made quite a few remarks lately about how folks that's always buying cheap goods maybe they lose more'n what they save."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George H. Moses, who is mentioned as the most likely successor to John T. Adams as chairman of the Republican National Committee, in the event of the nomination of President Coolidge by the next Republican national convention, is one of the present representatives of New Hampshire in the United States senate. Although he never filled elective office until he entered the senate in 1919, Senator Moses is not without experience in practical politics. He has been active in public affairs in New Hampshire ever since he was a student at Dartmouth College, when he was the private secretary to the Governor of the State. Later, as a newspaper man, he came in close touch with Granite State politics. He was appointed Minister to Greece and Montenegro, in 1909 by President Taft, and remained in Athens until 1912. He has always been an ardent Republican and has a wide acquaintance among the leaders of that party.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Bootleg Problem.

Mr. Editor: Of all the issues of a public, national character, the present system of bootlegging overshadows them all. Socialism, bolshevism, Mormonism, or any other ism is insignificant compared with this young monster. Its youthful growth has been phenomenal in reaching all the approachable borders of our national territory. While other social, economic or adverse problems are more or less sectional, bootlegging has become universal and a serious national problem. It would be much more serious were there no known remedy.

Now for the sequence.

The remedy is well known—simple, just, and amply qualified to effect a permanent cure. To whom must we look to administer the treatment but to judicial octors? City, town and state police and prosecuting attorneys may provide a faithful and exhaustive diagnosis and present it to the judicial doctor, who is supposed and sworn to administer treatment for the quickest and most enduring cure. But thus far where are any permanent cures? Relapse is more common than cure and indictes that administration of a quack remedy instead of the infallible specific.

It is with regret and unnecessary disgrace that the monsters are allowed their freedom for a small portion of their illegal harvest, which they value as a license to continue the traffic, when an application of the familiar specific remedy would effect a sure cure. Fines and suspende prison ecrees for statutory crimes are nothing more than quack remeies calculated to foster criminal industry for the support of a large percentage of the so-called legal fraternity. If fines and suspended prison decrees are not calculated to continue criminal clientage, there must other reasons unexpressed publicly. Relapse would be rare after a few months or years of imprisonment at some manual labor for bootlegging.

In connection with this view of lower court proceduce we must not forget the action taken at a state bar meeting in Hartford not many years ago in opposing prohibition and the Volstead act. Since then probably a number of the same fraternity have passed up to the judiciary without any apparent change of sentiment or principal.

The state's attorney of New London county has publicly expressed his chagrin at the laxity of the lower courts. It is to be hoped that some force may be brought to bear to produce more effective service in the lower courts and minimize the scandal so commonly expressed, as well as to eradicate the evils that are a menace to civilization.

Bootlegging is not conducted by an ignorant, pauper class of Americans, but mostly by criminal aliens of foreign nationality who can command means for purchase of the goods and transportation. As evidence of this fact, a coterie of 50 smuggling bootleggers paid a foreign craft $25,000 to land them on American shores with their illicit freight. A mule team from Canada with twenty bootleg smugglers reaped a harvest of $10,000. Some idea of profitableness may be gained when a fee of $500 is paid for a temporary purpose.

With the 15,000 miles of national border to guard, we can well term it a momentous problem to solve, and it never can be solved with suspending quack treatment.

There is a cure for most ills before they become chronic, and the age and development of this problem are seriously affecting the sentiment of the undetermined, weak, conscienceless semi-Americans who are always open to efeat.

Some regulating force is certainly necessary to produce more effective judicial service; otherwise boasting America is lapsing into a social pan demonium. Let's hear others' views of the situation. Agitation is a good clarifier for filthy subjects.

Stories That Recall Others

That Grown Up Feeling.

During the school year part of the class was sent along with the one above and the remainder held back. Paul happened to be in the group that was promoted and was plainly elated at the prospect of changing.

Noticing his evident joy the teacher said, "You seem awfully glad to be leaving me, Paul. Don't you like me anymore?"

"Oh, yes," said Paul reassuringly, "I like you all right, but," glancing at the higher grade, "I'm just glad that I don't have to stay in here with all these little kids."

Horrors of a Nifty Hat.

Speaking of absentminded need, an extremely conscientious and rather timid woman tells about going shopping for a new fall hat recently. As the clerk in the first shop was busy she waited on herself, and tried on several very Frenchy creations, but a study of the price tickets convinced her that they were too high. Slowly and causally she left the shop.

Rather leisurely she examined displays in other windows and finally entered another store. An affable clerk immediately offered to wait upon her. She explained what she wished and the clerk arranged a chair before a mirror and invited her to be seated. "What madam has on is rather a nifty creation. Does madam want—" the clerk was beginning but "madam" was gazing at horror at her own reflections, for on her head reposed indeed a "nifty creation"—a $45 toque that she had tried on at the first shop where she left her doubtful looking summer straw.

She is telling as one of the adventures of her life the hasty trip back to the first hat store, for every step of the way she expected a policeman to stop her. She is still wearing her old straw hat.

At nine, Dante composed a masterly sonnet; Tasso wrote verses at ten; Mozart learned the haplschord in his fourth year; Byron indicted fluent and passionate love verse when he was ten; and Macauley wrote a "Compendium of Universal History" in his eighth year.

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when properly prepared and taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest quality willow charcoal powdered to extreme fineness, then compressed in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. They are also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and you get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

FIRST VISIT TO NORWICH IN FIFTY-TWO YEARS

After an absence of 52 years from his native city, Captain George A. Tracy has returned to Norwich from his home in Fresno, California and is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles W. Spaulding of 12 Penobscot street, the house standing within a few feet of the place where he was born, and spent his childhood.

The life of Captain Tracy reads like a story book, filled with adventures he has had in nearly every port of any size in the world, while sailing the seas, and with stories of the far west in the days when prairie schooners were the most popular method of travel through the states that were just being opened up for settlement.

In speaking of his life Captain Tracy said:

I was born on Penobscot street (it then had no such name) on November 15, 1841, the son of John and Sarah Tracy, and spent my boyhood in Preston, going to work on a farm in Bozrah when 13 years of age and remaining there for six years.

When I was 18 years old I made up my mind I wanted to go to sea and my father took me to New York and signed me aboard a ship, the David Brown, and I sailed from New York for San Francisco on April 27, 1860, the trip around Cape Horn taking 131 days. We discharged our cargo and took on wheat for Liverpool and on October 11, 1860, started down the west coast of America, reaching the horn in 39 days. We stopped at La Plate and then started out again, keeping in sight of land for 30 days. Then we cut off northeast and headed toward Liverpool.

The ship had been leaking for some time but we had kept the water back. Northeast trades set in strong and a heavy head sea was encountered and water began to come in faster than it could be pumped out. On January 8, 1561, the captain ordered the boat over the side and we left the boat with 10 feet of water in her hold and took to the boats, 1200 miles from land. With us were four women and five children, one an infant only two days old. We tossed about in the storm all that night and the next day the baby died and was wrapped up and put overboard. Nine days later, after trying experiences, we were picked up in mid-ocean by a Spanish bark and carried to Havana, and from there to New York where I first heard of trouble between the north and south.

On April 27, 1861, I sailed for China around the Cape of Good Hope, the trip lasting 93 days, an excellent run. When the ship reached Siam I left her and shipped on a Siamese boat with an American captain and made several trips to Hong Kong where after 20 months on the water I was made second mate, my first raise in pay.

At Shanghai, China, I left this boat and joined a ship sailing for London and made the trip in 93 days, the ship being sold at London, and I had to pay my way back to the states aboard a Liverpool packet and had several narrow escapes from icebergs.

The Civil war was then on and I went aboard a government transport, running between New York and New Orleans, later going on a steamship and then aboard a schooner, being in command. My first trip as commander was 123 days to China and there I had smallpox and "enjoyed" being in a Chinese hospital.

I came back around Cape Horn in 121 days to New York and never saw land in all that trip. Several trips to Europe followed and then I decided to quit the water for good.

While in Texas I had met Major Perry and his wife and they invited me to Albany and I went with them and there I met Miss Sarah McElvoy. November 23, 1868, we were married in Albany.

Going into business I bought a meat market on Staten Island and 14 days later the whole thing went up in smoke and I was broke. Then went to Ohio and went farming without much result and when the government opened land in Dakota I went there and took a quarter section. I had only been there a short time when a cyclone struck my house and ripped part of it out, carried small buildings nearly a half mile and twisted coops and sheds around in fine style. We were all in the cellar at this time and were safe from the wind storm.

Disgusted with my luck and the way the railroads served the country I went to Arizona where I met a man who said, "So you came to Arizona to live? You'll never get out for Arizona will make you too poor to leave. That's how we all got here." After a short time I was as poor as he said I would be so I harnessed the team and started for Flagstaff, 60 miles away, and had a hard trip. That place was not fit to live in in those days so we started out for somewhere, we didn't know just where, and then began the longest trip with a wagon I ever took or want to take. Some of the time we were 40 miles from the nearest water and were pinched for thirst but after traveling from October until December we finally arrived in California and soon went to Los Angeles, 1600 miles from where I had first harnessed the horses for a trip to "somewhere."

I stayed there for a while and then went to Staten Island, Cal., in charge of a farm. A friend advised me to buy the place and by using a credit man I did so and that year raised 1600 sacks of beans and 2500 sacks of potatoes and lost my time, the market being bad that year.

My wife was taken ill about this time and one doctor's trip cost $15.50, so I moved into Woodbridge to be near a doctor. Friends expected my wife would die, but she grew better, and we left.

We then went to Fresno, where land was cheap, being what we called hogwallow, but I leveled it off, planted trees and vines and started raising raisins and peaches, and many of these I crated and sent to Norwich relatives. I finally paid for the land. One year I got $4,000 profit from my crop and began to be on easy street. Finally I sold the place for $12,000. I now could get much more if I owned it. My wife and I went visiting, later returning to Fresno, where we built a bungalow. On June 23, 1915, not long after we had built the bungalow, more bad luck hit us and the house and contents went up in smoke, with three other houses.

We then went to Merced to live with my son, later going to Santa Cruz, and then back to Merced. Here my wife was taken ill and after a lingering illness died in September, 1922, after we had been happy together for 54 years.

I then went back to the home of my son Albert in Merced and stayed until this summer. Thinking if I ever was to see Norwich and my people again I had better start east soon, I decided to start out, and having been in most parts of the world, but never through the Panama canal, I took a ship at Los Angeles bound for New York. We started on July 11 and stopped at several places along both side of the canal and arrived in New York on Aug. 12th. It was the easiest trip on the water I ever took, some different than those around the Horn in the days when a man had to know sailing before shipping aboard a vessel.

I have looked around Norwich and have been to Bozrah and unless someone told me what they were I would never know them, for they have changed much in 52 years. Norwich from a small city has grown into a city of nearly 30,000 population and everything is different than in the days of '58.

My one aim now is to own a boat and enjoy the water, for that is what I like best in life, although I like to ride in my auto and have made many trips in it in 11 years. My family at one time numbered six but now there are but two of us left, my son Albert of Medced, who owns a fig ranch, and myself. My daughter Minnie died some years ago, and two of my sons, Harry M. and Fred, both died as results of railroad accidents.

In Norwich today there remains my sister, Mrs. Charles W. Spalding, and my brother, Frank W. Tracy, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., formerly of Norwich. Another brother, Daniel W. Tracy, was foreman of The Bulletin for many years but passed away eight years ago last July, and my nephew Charles L. Tracy, is now one of the operators on The Bulletin, which as a daily paper was in its infancy when I left Norwich.

VANDALS BREAK INTO ROQUE CLUB HOUSE

Between 9 and 9.30 o'clock Tuesday night a gang of youths broke into the Norwich Roque and Tennis club building on Rockwell street, perpetrating acts of vandalism. Arthur L. Peale, who lives near the roque grounds, heard an unusual noise at the courts and on investigating discovered eight or ten young men about 18 or 20 years of age running from the grounds and up Rockwell street.

Mr. Peale found that the youths had broken into the clubhouse and had overturned a large table, smashing the table legs, had overturned chairs and had smashed some of the locker doors, and also a number of bottles of soft drinks which had been left in the clubhouse. Women Tell Each Other How They Have Been Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Perrysburg, O.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered, but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a lady I met on a car, and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles, and she took the Vegetable Compound, and it cured her. So then I went and got some, and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see any woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ada Frick, Route 3, Perrysburg, Ohio.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Washington, Sunday.—A new and modern light vessel, equipped for the first time with a radio fog signal, an automatic apparatus that enables vessels with radio direction finders to obtain bearing from a distance of thirty miles or more in any weather conditions, has been assigned to Nantucket Shoals, off Massachusetts, Secretary of Commerce Hoover announced.

"This is probably the most important lightship station in the world," Mr. Hoover said. "It is a mark steered for by nearly all trans-Atlantic vessels and it is also one of the most exposed stations as the vessel is anchored forty-one miles from land, in the open Atlantic."

The new vessel was especially designed and equipped for this station. It has oil, fuel and water tanks of sufficient capacity to remain on station for one year, thus eliminating the difficulty and expense of coaling.

Richard Dimon and three of his young friends from Columbia spent a day in Hartford recently.

One woman's silk stocking used to wear out on the sides of the feet over the joints before they were out elsewhere. Now, before she wears a new pair, she rips the seams on the soles for an inch along the balls of the feet, spreads and fills in the rips with a neat darn. This gives more width over the joints and prevents excessive wear there.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, Aug. 28.—The rally in stock prices, which began Monday morning, continued through today's session with trading in larger volume and extending over a broader list.

Speculators for the advance found encouragement in the statement of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, that fall business was opening up in an encouraging way and that business confidence was justified. Pool operations were again in evidence in a number of issues, but no-called public buying was still reported to be negligible although interest is increasing.

The report of the American Agricultural Chemical company showing net profits of $501,480 as against a deficit of $1,124,071 in the previous fiscal year was construed by operators on the long side of the market as an indication that the chemical industry has "turned the corner." Davison Chemical continued its sensational advance, climbing 7 1-2 points to 53, a new high record for the year, as against a low of 29 7-8 last week. Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred climbed 5 points and the common, 1 3-4. American Agricultural Chemical Preferred advanced 2 3-8.

Two other reports that attracted attention were the semi-annual statements of the Iron Products corporation, which showed net earnings of more than $1,000,000, or at the annual rate of $14 a share, and the Stromberg Carburetor company, which showed net earnings of $620,959, or at the annual rate of $8.28 a share.

Railroad shares threw off recent sluggishness and advanced with the industrials, the revival of interest being attributed in some quarters to the record August car loadings and the substantial improvement shown by the July earnings reports over those of the same month last year.

U. S. Steel, selling ex-dividend, closed at 93 3-8, which represents a net gain of 1 5-8 if allowance is made for the dividend payment. Baldwin and American Woolen each closed nearly a point higher, but Studebaker and American Can closed at slight fractional losses. Gains of 3 to nearly 6 points were scored by Cosden Oil Preferred, United Railways Investment Preferred and a few others.

Call money held at 5 1-4 per cent all day. Time money continued firm with all new business arranged at 5 1-2 per cent.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the weakness of French and Belgian francs and the creation of a new low record for all time by German marks at 10 cents a million. French francs dropped 7 points to 5.67 cents and Belgian francs dropped nearly 15 points to 4.65 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Heavy selling of wheat, especially by houses with eastern connections gave the market a downward swing today, the September delivery going below the dollar mark for the first time in several weeks. Profit-taking orders soon absorbed the offerings and brought about a rally, which was aided by new outside buying. At the finish wheat was unchanged to 1-2c lower with December $1.04 5-8 to $1.04 3-4 and May $1.10 5-8 to $1.10 5-8@3-4; corn was 1-4c to 1c up; oats gained 1-8 to 3-8c and provisions were unchanged to 20c higher.

Liquidation and stop-loss selling was on a fairly large scale at the start of the session, while the buying was almost entirely in way of accepting profits on recent short commitments. Small receipts of wheat, 275 cars and a more optimistic tone of the foreign news relative to settlement of the Ruhr question, stimulated a little buying, but tone of great importance.

A report telling of the shipment of 152,000 bushels of wheat from Black Sea ports last week with additional heavy charges being made for future delivery, was the chief bearish influence. Export trade at the Seaboard was reported very dull and Liverpool cables told of larger offerings of Manitoba and American wheat with holders inclined to accept lower prices. On the decline, good buying was met here and the market steadied somewhat. Weather conditions were generally more favorable.

Corn futures were quiet and fractionally lower early, but later developed strength on the firmness in wheat and a better demand for spot corn.

The trend of the oats futures was in sympathy with the tone of other grains, being easier early and firm towards the finish.

Buying of September lard, presumably due to a better foreign outlook, gave strength to provisions.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—Bond prices displayed a strong tone in today's trading but closing prices generally were a little below the highs of the day. This was true particularly of foreign issues where prices moved up in many cases a point or more only to ease before the close. However, most of the French bonds were fractionally above yesterday's final figures.

Active United States Government bonds held steady in dull trading.

St. Paul Convertible 4 1-2s moved up 2 3-4 and the refunding 4 1-2s, 2 3-8, New Haven Convertible 6s, 1 1-2, and New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2s, 1.

Virginia Carolina Chemical liens were active throughout the day, the 7 1-2s with warrants, closing 1 3-8 higher. American Agricultural Chemical 7 1-2s closed 1 1-4 higher on the day and Marine 6s advanced 1 1-2.

Oils continued to lead the advance, Galena Signal climbing 2 1-2 points, Ohio Oil, 2 1-2, and Standard Oils of Indiana, Kentucky and New York, Marland of Mexico, cities services and prairie moving up a point or so.

Gillette Safety Razor added 2 points to its five point gain of yesterday while Glen Alden Coal, making its first appearance since Saturday, climbed 1 1-2 points to 69. Motors continued sluggish.

Interest in the mining group was confined largely to the penny stocks with fluctuations narrow and irregular.

You don't need to bother with bar soap any more

The hardest part of washday—rubbing, rubbing with bar soap. Extra rubbing on the dirtiest places. Heavy rubbing of the wet clothes on the washboard. What a cruel drudgery it is!

Today you don't have to go through all that back-breaking, hours-long labor. A new kind of soap is freeing women from washday drudgery.

With this new soap—Rinso—soaking takes the place of hard rubbing. Just soaking the clothes loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and shining as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is actually ground-in such as neckbands, cuff edges, and so on, will need a light rubbing with a bit of dry Rinso. Then these obstinate spots disappear.

You don't have to change any of your washday habits with Rinso. Just use it wherever you used to use bar soap—for soaking, for boiling, or in washing machines.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux, the largest soapmakers in the world. Get Rinso today. It comes in two sizes—the regular size and the big new package. At all grocery and department stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Rinso takes the place of bar soap

His Hat In The Ring

Gov. Jonathan M. Davis, of Kansas, who has announced his candidacy for President on the Democratic party ticket. He is a "dirt farmer" on the style of the new Senator, Magnus Johnson, but differs somewhat in that he rejects the idea for special concessions to the farmer, believing he ought to work out his own salvation on business lines. All he insists in his idea is fair play to the agriculturist.

Breed Theater

Thrills galore, were given to the photoplay patrons of the Breed Theatre when "Temptation" was presented at that house for the first time yesterday. Not only did the picture contain the hair-raising elements so dear to the heart of the moving picture fan, but also provided tear-compelling moments.

"Temptation" is the title given to a story which revolves about the adventures of Jack Baldwin and his luxury-loving wife. When the story opens the two are in moderate circumstances. A tremendous fortune suddenly comes to them, with the result the wife loses her head. Her husband vainly tries to stop the tide which he realises must inevitably land them on the rocks.

Ultimately money and the things it will buy cause him to lose his head and it is then that his wife awakens to the knowledge of the unhappiness looming up ahead. Matters are complicated by a man who makes up a third corner of this triangle, and a widow who has fallen in love with tthe husband. The result is a series of complications, which go far towards making "Temptation" a story of unusual interest.

The cast of stars is headed by Bryant Washburn and Eva Novak supported by such well know players as June Elvidge, Phillips Smalley and Vernon Steele.

"Temptation" was written by Lenore Coffee and directed by Edward J. Le Saint. The production is in seven reels and will remain at the Breed theatre today. Other pictures on the bill include Movie Chats and an Educational comedy.

Using slightly moistened air, a device to be operated over a stove is claimed to dry vegetables and fruits in such a way that their original flavor is retained.

DENIES TWENTY PER CENT. REDUCTION AT BALTIC MILL

Regarding the strike at the Shetucket Worsted Mills, Inc., Baltic, declared Tuesday morning by Local No. 23 at a meeting in the town hall in Baltic as a protest against a twenty per cent reduction in wages, M. H. Donahoe, president and treasurer of the plant, said Wednesday afternoon that there was no reduction of twenty per cent as claimed by the striking employes. Mr. Donahoe also denied the union statement that there was a lockout at the mill.

In regard to the reduction of 20 per cent., said Mr. Donahoe, there was no reduction made from the list now being paid. What we did do was to withdraw the bonus we had been paying them and which we could not continue under present conditions. Our list is the same as the American Woolen company of Providence, R. I., except that on three color fillings we were paying five and a half cents more than the American list.

We simply withdrew the bonus paid on certain kinds of work. We have not been paying a bonus on all styles of cloth made in our mill. The list was to remain on three and four color filling as before. Considering the condition of the market today we certainly did not feel inclined to pay more than the American Woolen Co., with whom we have to compete. The reduction of twenty per cent we deny.

They took exception to excessive fining. We have been over our books covering the past eight months and found that the average fine amounted to six cents per cut of cloth of 60 yards, or one-tenth of a cent per yard on the average pieces woven during the above time.

There was no lockout. Members of the union, all we could get in touch with, were notified Sunday that the mill would not open Monday morning as we were not willing to allow them to return to work "under protest." When we inquired what "under protest" meant we learned that the strikers were going in "under protest" to right themselves with their union as they had violated the union rules by leaving their work without due notification to the mill management.

In conclusion Mr. Donahoe said: We certainly feel that we cannot, under existing conditions, do any better than we have already told the employes. It is our intention to finish up such goods as we have on hand and close the mill indefinitely unless there is a settlement soon.

The mill employs about 125 hands. The trouble started when the weavers left their looms on ten-minute notice and the remainder of the employes walked out in sympathy in response to a call from the weavers.

EDWARD HARLAND MILLER IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

News reached Norwich friends on Wednesday that Edward Harland Miller, of New York, is in Bellevue hospital, suffering from a broken left hip, the result of an accident, the nature of which was not stated at first.

Mr. Miller, a native of Norwich Town, has been accustomed for years to come to Norwich at this season, to spend two weeks' vacation. He was due here Aug. 15th, but failed to appear, to the surprise of his friends.

Earlier in the summer Mr. Miller visited friends at Newburgh on the Hudson. He retains in a marked degree his fondness for and interest in Norwich and has served as vice president of the Norwich Society in New York. It is planned to have local acquaintances send him cards and messages of sympathy to the hospital.

Inquiry at the accident department of Bellevue, Wednesday evening, resulted in the assurance that Mr. Miller was comfortable. For information as to the cause of his accident The Bulletin was referred to the captain of the Twenty-third precinct station. It was recorded there that Aug. 21st Mr. Miller, who resides on 131st street, Manhattan, had had a fall on the street, resulting in the broken hip.

NORWICH GIRL IS MISSING FROM HOME

The Norwich police are seeking the whereabouts of Brifia Kulish, aged 17 years, who disappeared from her home Monday. In an endeavor to locate the girl, Capt. George Linton of the Norwich police department last Wednesday afternoon requested the New London authorities to keep a watch for the girl, who disappeared from home late in the afternoon, but who was seen in New London either Monday night or Tuesday night. When the girl disappeared she wore a working dress, but did not wear a hat.

Auto Dealers Outing

The second annual outing of the Connecticut State Automobile Dealers' association, which is to take place on Thursday, September 6th, is planned this year on a much more elaborate scale than last year's outing. The association has chartered the steamship Nasau, which will sail from Long Wharf, New Haven, at 9.15 in the morning, daylight saving time, and cross the sound to Fairy Beach, which is in the neighborhood of Oyster Bay.

FORMER BULLETIN EDITOR ADDRESSES ROTARY CLUB

Abner P. Hitchcock of Canaan, N. Y., a former editor of The Norwich Morning Bulletin, was in a very pleasing reminiscent mood when, as a guest of Rotarian William H. Oat, he addressed the members of the Norwich Rotary club at the regular noonday luncheon on Wednesday at the Wauregan. Mr. Hitchcock is well known through his writings in The Bulletin under the caption "A Farmer's Talk to Farmers," a column which he has been writing for the past 11 years. "The Farmer," as he is known, captivated his audience when he recalled many an amusing anecdote of prominent Norwich men whose names have been written into the history of Norwich. Many of these people he passed on, but Mr. Hitchcock vividly brought them to life with his word pictures and anecdotes. Many of Mr. Hitchcock's hearers could remember the days of which he spoke and recalled the very people who were so prominent in the civic affairs of Norwich some thirty years ago when Mr. Hitchcock was editor of The Bulletin.

In opening his talk Mr. Hitchcock said that it a great distinction to have been born in Norwich, but everyone was not so fortunate. Some who have been born elsewhere had the good sense to come to Norwich when they had reached the age of discretion and others with more good sense had departed when their usefulness here was over. I am one of those, he said. One of the memories of Norwich that comes to me first, said Mr. Hitchcock, is that of the Wauregan hotel of the early 80's, William K. Shew, son-in-law of A. P. Sturtevant, a prominent woolen manufacturer conducted the hotel in those days and was a very accomodating manager. John T. Clark, who is a guest here today, and who has been at the hotel since 1882, was one of the regular boys in those days.

I remember here was a little room in the old hotel where Billy Shew used to serve a certain brand of milk from a certain cow to thirsty individuals who were his guests. The milk from this cow was very spiritously inclined and was eagerly sort. Mr. Shew said that the "Critter" was part Jersey and part Santa Cruz but most everybody thought the Jersey strain was overestimated.

Mr. Hitchcock also spoke of Isaac "Ike" Bromley, also an editor of The Norwich Bulletin, who was born to wield a venomous pen when aroused and as an illustration told of an editorial battle waged between Mr. Bromley and the editor of a New London paper. Mr. Hitchcock said that Mr. Bromley silenced the editorial guns of the New London writer when he wrote in his editorial column "that the hounded editor of New London has mistaken the regurgitations of a sour stomach for the promptings of remorse."

Mr. Hitchcock recalled to mind the political trend of the times when Increase W. Carpenter was mayor and Paul B. Greene was the "unofficial mayor." The speaker described Mr. Greene as 6 feet some inches tall and Mr. Carpenter as six feet some inches broad and a queer looking pair they made when out together, he said.

Other prominent men of those times were H. H. Osgood, whose political motto was "You can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar," and Col. Allen Tenney. Others to whom Mr. Hitchcock referred were John T. Wait, Jeremiah Halsey, the Abraham Lincoln of New England, Charles E. Dyer, Stiles Stanton, John F. Rathbone, William Henry Hovey and many other prominent old timers.

In speaking of his class reunion at Williams college, this spring, Mr. Hitchcock said, that as his class was celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the graduation, a large loving cup was presented to the class. In making the presentation the president of the colldege said: "May this cup be ever filled, not with what the law allows, but with the best the land affords."

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Hitchcock was given a real outburst of appreciative applause. Following his talk Bill Park led in the singing of the Farm Song for Mr. Hitchcock's benefit and "The Farmer" thoroughly appreciated the verses about the chicks, the ducks, the pigs and last of all the "old Ford."

Charles W. Taylor, resident manager of the Austin, Nichols Co., gave a very interesting talk on the wholesale grocery business and the growth of his company.

Mr. Taylor said in part: President Chat and members of the Norwich Rotary club. I am going to try and tell you something about the wholesale grocery business, as that is the classification that I represent. Our firm started business in 1836 on State street, New Haven under the name of Stoddard, Gilbert & Co., and after a time a branch house was opened in Bridgeport.

In September, 1902, a branch was opened on Water street in this city. Noah Rogers was the manager and Charles D. Tingley looked after the stock and shipped out the orders. As the business grew the firm was compelled to look for a building where they could have a side track in order to cut down the expense of hauling and on January 1st, 1916, they moved into our present location at 23 Commerce street, which was known as the Carpenter building.

A short time after this the firm opened a branch in Waterbury which made four houses in this state.

In 1923, the firm merged with Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., New York. I came with the firm in 1916 and covered the Berkshire territory from Newtown, Conn., to Lee, Mass., and in 1917 I was transferred to this city to take charge of the local branch. Time has changed the wholesale grocery business the same as other lines of business.

We used to ship our orders to New London by boat and via rail to points north on the New Haven and Central Vermont roads and then later on we had the trolleys to carry the goods to Willimantic, New London and Westerly and we received a large quantity of merchandise via trolley from our house at New Haven.

But after a time these trolley express lines were discontinued so we took up the auto truck as this was the most modern way of making deliveries and today with a very few exceptions we put the merchandise in the customers store or storehouse, so you see we are giving the trade service so that he don't have to go to the railroad station for his stock and has no claims for damage or loss to collect.

We deliver by truck to Stafford Springs and as far as Putnam. Along the shore we deliver from Niantic to Westerly.

This branch was started with two employes and today we have 16. Our firm has expanded greatly in recent years and this has worked to the advantage of our customers as we are able to handle large quantities of merchandise and we pass this saving along to the trade.

At the present time we have 16 grocery houses and employ about 400 salesmen so that we cover most of the United States and some foreign trade.

In order to be in position to give our trade the highest quality at a right price our firm purchased from the Wilson company a number of canning plants, which included some of the best in this country.

We operate seven vegetable packing plants, one pickle plant, one milk factory, three fish and salmon canneries, one preserve plant and two grocery manufacturing plants, one at Brooklyn and one at Chicago.

We pack olives at our Brooklyn plant and employ 225 in this branch of our business.

We have a coffee roasting plant at Brooklyn with a capacity of 65,000 lbs. per day.

In 1919 C. W. Patterson became president of our company and under his leadership we have expanded to a still greater degree.

About July 1st of this year our company took over the wholesale business of Acker Merrall and Condit Co. of New York.

For over a century this firm has been regarded as one of the finest grocery concerns in New York, handling high class merchandise. Our brands are Sunbeam and Republic and these labels are used on coffee, tea, salad dressing, spices, jams and hundreds of other items.

Most of the imported goods that we handle are purchased abroad by our own representative.

Following Mr. Taylor's talk Louis J. Martin, district representative of the California Associated Raisin company gave a very interesting talk on the growth of the raisin industry in California since about 1850, when the industry started in a small way. Then only a few tons of raisins were produced in California but today California produces better than a quarter of a million tons annually and within the next year or so it is anticipated that the half million mark will be passed.

Mr. Martin also told of the various methods of growing the grapes from which the raisins are produced, curing and packing.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and L. M. Carpenter was song leader. There were several selections by the various members of the club, one especially pleasing number being the lullaby song by Joseph C. Worth, who is getting in practice to entertain his young son who arrived on Wednesday morning. Mr. Worth was presented a small gift in honor of the occasion and responded, thanking the members of the club, ending his remarks by saying that he had decided to nam the baby "Opium" because his father was a "Wild Poppy."

Russell A. Clapp, chairman of the programme committee announced that the song leaders during September would be Eben Learned, Alfred G. Bliven, Lucilus Briggs, and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell after which the session closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

PLAYGROUNDS TO HOLD EXHIBITIONS TONIGHT

The first annual exhibition of the recreation commission's playground work, will be held this (Thursday) evening at the Greeneville playground at 6.30 p. m. D. S. T. The program has been arranged without rehearsals and is merely for the purpose of showing a few of the daily activities, taken from the program at the play centers.

As the dramatic department held its exhibition Aug. 23, at Mohegan park, the program will not carry any of this work, and the industrial work, which has been conducted on the grounds during the season, will be exhibited in one of the downtown store windows, the first part of next week.

The recreation commission has created six play centers during the past season, and the number of childrne who have been cared for from week to week totals over 30,000. A fair standard of recreational educational work has been attained and a good foundation laid for more extensive work in the future.

The prizes that will be given out at tonight's exhibition, will number 110, and these prizes have been donated through the generosity of Grosvenor Ely. Chairman Fitzgerald will present the prizes, following tonight's demonstration, and all place winners in track and field, cross country, hockey, dodge ball, center ball, etc., will be given a prize.

The exhibition will start promptly and in the event of rain, the exhibit will be conducted on Friday night, at the same hour. The following is the program:

Boxing, Sr. and Jr., boys, three one-minute rounds; Wrestling, senior and junior boys, one bout, four minutes; pyramid building, senior, junior and intermediate boys.

Group games—Junior, Mid. boys (competitive): Three legged rave, pig race, wheelbarrow race, shoe shoe race, midget relay; archery, senior and junior boys and girls; folk dancing (all classes from all playgrounds) (a) I See You; (b), Danish dance; (c) Irish reel; hockey, boys and girls, seniors; final interplayground championship; court No. 1, boys; court No. 2, girls; dodge ball, senior girls; straddle ball, senior girls, all playgrounds; final interplayground championship; boys and girls (all classes), mass physical drill; band concert.

through the hands of four jobbers the total margins taken on individual cars ranged from $1 to $2.25 per gross ton. On the car for which margins amounted to $2.25 per ton, the first wholesaler took 25 cents, the second 40 cents, the third 35 cents and the fourth $1.25 per ton.

"Some mining companies were found to have had special arrangements with wholesalers by which the mine billed coal to the wholesaler at the prices approved by the Pennsylvania fair practices committee with the understanding that if the wholesaler sold the coal at a price above the mine price billed plus a stipulated wholesale margin or commission, the wholesaler remitted the balance to the operator.

"Other mining companies sold coal to individuals, in some cases their own officers, at prices agreed upon with the fair practice committee. These individuals then sold the coal to other wholesalers at higher prices. Such practices applied especially to shipments to destinations outside the state of Pennsylvania, thus indicating the ineffectiveness of state regulation of prices at the mine over coal entering into interstate commerce."

ATTITUDE OF CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Hartford, Aug. 29.—The members of the Connecticut chamber of commerce would rather endure the hardship and suffering of a coal strike to obtain the principle of freedom of employment, according to the result of a referendum vote on the coal situation, made public tonight, which shows 418 members in favor to 14 members opposed to the threatened coal strike.

Stanley H. Bullard, president of the organization, today sent to President Coolidge the following telegram:

"The Connecticut chamber of commerce, an organization comprising over 800 firms, corporations and individuals as well as thirty local chamber of commerce, which have a membership in excess of 30,000, has, by referendum vote, almost unanimously expressed itself as supporting the anthracite coal operators' offer to arbitrate all questions in issue in the present controversy. The body is unalterably opposed to the inauguration of the check-off system. In casting their favorable votes, our membership has had in mind the sacrifice and hardship which may be forced to endure in order to make secure the American principle of freedom of employment."

Copies of the telegram also were sent to Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania; E. W. Parker, director of the anthracite bureau of information; E. E. Hunt, secretary of the United States coal commission in all parts of the United States.

The emergency coal committee of the state chamber of commerce soon will meet to make plans to procure for Connecticut a part of the surplus supply of anthracite coal at the mines, it was announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Wollo Kowsky of the lower village were charged with assault on Mrs. Bridget Breault of Anthony street, in the police court on Thursday morning. Both pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Breault stated that Sunday afternoon while returning home from a Polish picnic in the woods off Bricktop road, she was assaulted by Mrs. Kouwsky, the latter using a soup bone as a weapon. A torn and tattered hat worn by Mrs. Breault, was introduced as evidence. The plaintiff claimed that her assailant called her vile names. Mrs. Breault's charges were denied by the Kouwskys who said that the plaintiff was the aggressor. It was claimed that the latter had attempted to use a stone as a weapon in attacking Mrs. Kouwsky who received a bruised nose.

Frank Braun, who was at the picnic on business, heard a wrangle between the parties, but did not see any blows struck.

Judge Frank H. Foss warned both families, especially the women, that they must cease their altercations and keep apart. He continued the case for three months. Kouwsky paid the costs of court, amounting to $7.95.

In the Coventry town court late Wednesday afternoon, John Spring was charged with assault on his wife and twenty-four-year-old son, on Sunday, Aug. 12. Grand Juror Robert G. Brooks prosecuted. Spring pleaded not guilty.

His wife, son and daughter testified before Justice of the Peace William B. Hawkins, that the family head had made things unbearable in the home for several years, coming home intoxicated and beating up the family. His last offense was committed last Saturday when he suddenly came back from Bristol where he is now employed. Spring returned to Bristol but was taken back to Coventry by Deputy Sheriff A. E. Harmon. The accused was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $46, and given a twenty-day suspended jail sentence and ordered not to return to his family for the next six months.

Announcement has been made by the United States Civil Service commission that an examination will be held at Willimantic September 12, for rural carrier at Mansfield Center and vacancies that may occur later on rural routes from that post office. A rural carrier on a daily wagon route of 24 miles received $2,000 per annum with $30 additional per mile per annum for each mile or major fraction thereof in excess of 24 miles. The salary on motor routes ranges from $2,450 to $2,600 per annum, according to length. Both classes come under the same examinations. The position is open to both men and women.

State Attorney Thomas F. Keane of Tolland said Wednesday that the appealed case of Henry J. Mathieu, charged with illegally bathing in Lake Wangumbaug from which South Coventry receives its supply of drinking water, will be given a speedy trial in the superior court at Rockville at the September term. The court will open next Tuesday at which time Mr. Mathieu will be put to plea. Mathieu was fined $7 and costs in the justice court recently in Coventry.

Thursday, State Policeman Russell Harmon of the Stafford Springs barracks, and the officer who placed Mr. Mathieu under arrest, was in this city and Coventry to gather up additional evidence for the state. An official of the state board of health was also at the office of Town Clerk Louis Daniels at South Coventry, Thursday, to secure what deeds were available in connection with the rights and privileges of the South Coventry Supply company.

The various circles of the Sorority of the Methodist church recently had a picnic at Crystal Lake, Stafford. There were thirty in the party. The Entre Nous circle will meet next week with Mrs. Edgar Jacobs.

A handsome quilt made by Mrs. Napoleon Bacon over half a century ago is on exhibition in the show windows of a local furniture store.

State Policeman Harris John Hulbart of the Stafford Springs barracks was at the patrolmen's room of the town building Thursday and was kept busy all day giving examinations to persons seeking motor vehicle driver's licenses.

Archibald W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center, agent for the state board of education, was at the common council room Thursday forenoon to meet children between 14 and 16, who sought to obtain employment certificates.

One local man realized Thursday forenoon that it is a dangerous project to undertake to climb a very steep ascent with an overloaded wagon. The accident took place on Spruce street when the driver of a team drawn by two large horses and loaded with cord wood attempted to climb the hill. Finding that the load was too large he succeeded in backing onto the east sidewalk where he started to unload. He had taken off about half of the cord when the horses backed out over a small incline, leading on to private property. There were no serious consequences, in spite of the risk.

ELKS' COUNTRY FAIR OPENS WITH A BIG BOOM THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Aug. 30.—With half a dozen bands accompanying several hundred Elks from Norwich, Putnam, Webster and this city, several parades led the way to Elks' park on Pleasant street, Thursday night, where the Elks' Country Fair was ocially, opened by Mayor Charles A. Gates. Following the local bands were the city and town fathers and the guest of honor, Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti, of Hartford. Thousands of spectators coming from various surrounding towns lined the sidewalks to witness the parades and later crowded Elks' park, where a glimpse of the general layout brought to them the realisation that the affair this year by far exceeds any of its predecessors.

The first parade formed on Bank street and the line of march was down Valley to Jackson, to Union to Main, to Bridge, to Mountain, to Pleasant street and to the park. Following was the formation: Marshal and aides, platoon of police, Chief Allan MacArthur in command. First division, B. P. O. E. band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director; members of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311. Second division—White Eagle Polish-American band, members of Willimantic lodge No. 1311. Third division—Boy Scout band, city and town officials and guests in automobiles.

A short distance in the rear of the first parade The Rose of New England boys came marching along, led by Tubbs' band. Later in the evening the delegations of "Bills" from Putnam and Webster arrived with their bands and marched in procession to the park.

The reception committee included Mayor Charles A. Gates, Eugene E. Hickey, James McGlone, James H. Hurley, Arthur E. Small, J. Francis Keon, Pierre J. Lerarnee, Frank P. Lombardo, Joseph Giraco.

The weather was ideal for a fair and one of the largest crowds ever assembled in the Thread City was on hand to hear the opening address by Mayor Gates. On behalf of the city of Willimantic and the Willimantic lodge of Elks the city's chief executive extended greetings to the public. Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti spoke briefly and eloquently on the principles of the B. P. O. E.

At 5.45 o'clock Mayor Gates officially declared the fair open. Immediately after things began to take on a lively appearance, the bands played, wheels began to spin, the booth tenders issued their raucous call and a general hum of activities resulted.

Several new buildings had been erected, a veranda had been added to the well patronized dance hall and the booths had been redecorated in white and green. Splendid exhibitions are provided in the various classes and the high class vaudeville entertainers contribute greatly to the general enjoyment. Delegations of Elks from Rockville, Manchester, Meriden and other places will be here to attend the fair during its run.

JEWETT CITY

Postmaster D. F. Finn has received the trans-continental air schedule, tried out experimentally for five days beginning on the morning of August 21, to be regularly established at once. Concerning a letter from Jewett City, intended for delivery in San Francisco the figures are interesting as well as astonishing. The letter will leave here, this evening at 7.36 addressed via air mail to San Francisco, it will be in New York via the Federal express, train No. 171, from New London, at 1.30 Saturday morning, thence it will be transferred via special service to the aviation field on Long Island. The first flyer with the Jwett City letter in the San Francisco pouch with many others will leave at 11 a. m. and proceed as follows, on what is little less than a wonderful schedule: Arrive at Cleveland, 3.45 eastern time, Chicago, 6.45 central time, Omaha, 11.45 central time, Cheyenne, 415 a. m. mountain time Sunday, Salt Lake City, 945; Reno 2 p. m. western time, arriving at San Francisco at 4.15 p. m. western time Sunday afternoon, travelling 2680 miles The man in San Francisco will get his letter, early Sunday evening although it didn't leave Jewett City until Friday night

There was no advance in postage during the trial five days. Now, 24 cents will be necessary for San Francisco letters.

A Jewett City man met one of the aviators in New York the other day, and like many who listened was interested in hearing about the lighted way from Chicago to Cheyenne, a distance of 885 miles.

The story of the continually changing time reminded a local man of his visit to Pittsburgh, not long ago. His watch indicated in Jewett City advanced time, according to that he had leeway to burn on his train for Ohio. The eastern standard time on one end of the station warned him that he had only a moment to make it. Another clock, only a few feet away, with central standard time, indicated that he had missed his train by an hour. While the gate man told him the next train would make up presently.

There is very low water in several of the never-failing wells in all parts of Griswold. Victor Campbell of Pachaug has one of the never-failing blessings. No matter how little the rainfall, or how long and arid the summer he could go out anytime and draw up a bucket of the real old cakes brand, clear and cool. One evening after dark, early in the week Mr. Campbell went out to draw a pail of water. The bucket failed to connect with anything but wind in the bottom of the well. Returning to the house he "guessed the bottom had fallen out of the well."

A few thousand feet away, the Pachaug Grange are drilling a well on their new fair grounds on the Voluntown highway.

Mr. Campbell thinking the matter over, loyed as "how they must have struck water and tapped his vein". Next morning still thinking about his dry well, he went out to note any possible change during the night. A six foot chain lay on the ground, beside the curb; the rope was hurriedly drawn up, and sure enough the end chain was missing, and the rope was tied to the bucket. Investigation brought out the fact that a very young member of the family had broken the chain, then not being able to tie it had taken it off and tied on the rope. Mr. Campbell "hove" a sigh of relief put the chain in place, and the never-failing Campbell well, stands unimpeached, and true to name.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR RACING CARD AT THE NEW LONDON COUNTY FAIR

Some exceptionally good horse racing is promised in the eight events scheduled for the three days of the New London County Fair beginning next Monday. Horse racing was given a good boost during the second week in August when the Bay State Short Ship Circuit held forth at the local track. Local horse race enthusiasts had their appetites wheeted by three days of as fast and close racing as has ever been seen on the half mile oval. These race enthusiasts anticipate equally as close racing if the time is not quite so fast as was made during the Bay State meeting.

The events of the race programme at the County Fair number eight, three the first and second days and two on the last day. The events are Monday, the 2.25 trot, the 2.19 pace and 2.13 trot. Tuesday, the 2.25 pace, the 2.13 pace and the County race, trot or pace, class 2.35. Wednesday, the 2.16 pace and 2.17 trot. The entry list includes about 70 horses, a large number from eastern Connecticut. Entered in the various events is a number of horses that performed here during the Bay State meeting. Included in this number are Plain Mary, W. C. Kinsella's bay mare, Cameron, George B. Bates' bay gelding, Princess Volo, owned by J. O. Fox, of Putnam, Ruby Aubry and Don De Lopez, two horses from Dave Warman's stables at Providence; Miration, a bay mare owned by Johnny Pilgard, of Hartford, White Hackle, a bay gelding owned by the estate of W. B. Martin, of Rockville, and Boutwell, a brown gelding, from the stable of Frank D. Whitcomb, of Springfield. All the horses were at the local track during the Bay State meet and have quite a following among the local horse lovers.

One of the feature events of the three day programme will be the third race on the card for Tuesday which is the County race for trotters or pacers owned in New London county. Several of the horses entered in this event will get their first taste of racing when they get the word on Tuesday afternoon. Others have performed on the local track and tracks in Southern New England. A large amount of local interest centers about the three horses entered by Frank A. Smith of Norwich, Sallyanne, Austin D., and Natrona. Other horses that have a strong following are Mary W., a bay mare entered by Arthur C. Williams of Lebanon, Peter Bates, a bay gelding, owned by Eugene Maynard, also of Lebanon, Peter Agan, 2nd, a chestnut gelding by famed Peter Agan, owned by Nelson Fontaine, of Taftville.

GREB-WILSON TITLE BOUT BY MEGAPHONE

The Greb-Wilson bout tonight at the Polo Grounds, for the middleweight crown, will be announced, round by round, from the Bulletin office window. The bout is scheduled for 10 o'clock. (D. S. T.)

No one will be permitted in the editorial rooms during the bout.

MANY TENNIS STARS ENTERED FOR COUNTY SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP

When the entries for the first group in the Eastern Connecticut Men's Open singles tournament closes tonight, it is expected that there will be close on to 100 entries, including some of the best racket wielders of the various tennis clubs in this section of the state. There is every indication that there will be an exceptionally large number of entries in the second group for which the entry list closes on Saturday noon.

Already Russell A. Clapp, chairman of the tournament committee, has received entries from Watch Hill, where a number of noted tennis players are summering; from New London, Old Lyme Country Club, Jewett City, Willimantic and many other places in the state. The pairings will be made Friday evening and notifications given Saturday morning, play starting in the first group on Sunday morning. The second group will start play later in the week. The pairings for this group will be made Saturday.

Since it was announced that a tennis tournament was to be held at the Norwich Golf Club, inquiries from all parts of Eastern Connecticut have been received by Chairman Clapp regarding the play. Every one has expressed their enthusiasm and interest in the tournament and there is every indication to believe that this will become an annual event. If the tournament this year proves to be successful it is the intention of the Norwich Golf Club to secure additional courts and another year run a real Eastern Connecticut tournament. Another year a tournament will include both men and women and mixed teams and maybe a junior tournament will also be conducted. Tennis during the past few years has not been given the attention in Norwich that it has in other cities but as the National Lawn Tennis Association has been endeavoring to promote interest throughout the country in this sport the Norwich Golf Club has fallen in line with many other clubs throughout Connecticut reviving this sport.

Prizes for the winner in the men's singles and for the runner-up will be silver loving cups. In event of the tournament becoming an annual affair there will be a large cup emblematic of the title to be played for each year and will become the permanent possession of the one who wins the title a number of years in succession.

The results of the drawings made Friday night will be announced in this paper Saturday morning.

LAWMAKERS SWEEP DOUBLE HEADER WITH BRIDGEPORT

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Albany defeated Bridgeport in both games of today's doubleheader, winning the first game 6 to 2, and the second, 7 to 5. Schinkel's home run with two on in the fifth inning gave Albany its winning margin in the first game, while Long's double in the second, scoring two runs in the eighth inning, broke a 5 to 5 tie. Catcher Smith of Bridgeport was hit on the right arm by one of Edmondson's pitches in the first game, and it is feared he has a fractured arm. The scores by innings:

First game:	R.	H.	E.

Albany	0 1 1 0 0 4 0 0 0 x	6	8	0

Harts Sets a Record.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 30.—Harry Hartz, driving the No. 7 Durant entry at the Altoona speedway this afternoon, attained what is believed to be the greatest speed ever made with a racing car of 122 cubic inch piston displacement, reeling off the miles and a quarter oval lap in 56 4-5 seconds, a rate of 122.3 miles an hour. His best time was made in the fifth lap of the track.

DEMPSEY HITS HARDER THAN FIRPO, SAYS MCAULIFFE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Jack McAuliffe, the Detroit heavyweight weighing 206 pounds and towering 6 feet, 2 inches, was all but knocked out in less than three minutes in his initial training session with Jack Dempsey today. After the disastrous first round, McAuliffe was unable to continue for the second. He crawled out of the ring with his right eye closed and bleeding from a ripped left ear.

In the three minutes he faced the heavyweight champion, the half-blind McAuliffe did not land a solid smash while Dempsey with McAuliffe grogg

PINCHOT'S PLAN.

As a mediator of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania has offered a compromise to the coal miners and operators, and a compromise means of course a yielding by both sides.

Should the plan be accepted it will mean that increased wages to the extent of $42,000,000 will be received by the miners, or half of what they asked, together with other considerations which are decidedly in their favor. To the operators it will mean an increase in the cost of producing coal and the acceptance of their views on certain demands, even though the operators had showed their willingness to submit the whole matter to arbitration for a settlement in accord with facts rather than an adjustment based upon the distress that might be caused the public.

If the miners put their demands high enough so that such a compromise might result they have unquestionably been offered just about as much as they hoped to get, while if the operators accept they are relieved of the responsibility of having yielded to the miners' demands which could easily have subjected them to the charge that they were working hand in hand with the miners, knowing full well that whatever was the increase the consumer would have to stand it.

Out of it all the coal consuming public seems to be assured of an advance in the price of fuel. It is true that Governor Pinchot declares that the operators ought to absorb ten cents of the additional cost of mining a ton of coal, and he hopes to have the remaining half dollar eliminated through transportation and distribution interests. As yet there is nothing clear about his plans in that direction. Unless it can be accomplished, acceptance means the miners win and the public and operators lose.

Today will probably tell whether coal production is going to be stopped. Perhaps the consumer should be satisfied that he faces no more than a 60 cent increase in the case of coal, and show a readiness to pay what it called for in order to avoid the hardships with which he has been threatened or escape the trouncing that was promised, but he may also realize that every such move pushes farther away the day when there can be expected any reduction in the price of coal.

GANGSTERS.

Much is said, and with good reason, about lynching as practiced in the south. The shooting down of men in the city of New York is entitled to no more consideration. It is in fact the manifestation of mob rule and can by no means be condoned. Gang rule, no matter where resorted to, deserves nothing less than punishment to the full extent of the law.

Gangsters and gunmen carry on their nefarious business in the metropolis under a bit different conditions than the lynchers do in the south. The former have no respect for law of any kind. They are not attempting to right wrongs but resort to their methods for a livelihood. In the south lynching is the result of a distorted notion that the mob should take the law into its own hands instead of insisting upon the meting out of justice through the orderly processes of the established legal machinery the protection of which every citizen has reason to expect under the provisions of the federal constitution.

Yet it makes no difference whether it is the gangster or the lyncher, there exists the plain duty of the authorities. There should be no winking at the violators of law and order. Those who hold life so cheaply and have no respect for law should be made to pay the penalties. The public expects and is entitled to that protection, and if there were more instances where those who take life were given to understand that the penalties mean what they say there would be fewer cases of such violence.

Leniency may have its place but there is such a thing as overdoing it, both in failure to bring those who deserve it to the bar of justice, and in encouraging the idea that there is always a way for the dancer to dodge paying the fiddler.

Periodically New York is aroused to clean out its gangsters. Conditions there seem to indicate that the time is ripe for another housecleaning of that character.

MILLIONS OF ACCIDENTS.

Regardless of what it has accomplished in the past or is actually preventing, the need of the safety first effort is well emphasized by the statements which has been issued by Commissioner Stewart of labor statistics, in which he shows there are practically two and a half million disabling industrial accidents annually resulting in a wage loss of at least $1,600,000,000.

These accidents are of varying degrees. Some are much worse than others. In the cases of 21,000, however, death was the result, 1650 resulted in permanent total disability and 105,000 in permanent partial disability.

Just how many of the accidents might have been prevented is not disclosed. It is to be presumed that a large percentage of them might have been with the exercise of proper precautions and the establishment of important safeguards. Industrial accidents may well be put in the class with many highway accidents that could be prevented if there was the proper effort put forth, a willingness to exercise care and to play safe rather than to take chances.

With such an enormous wage loss, a large proportion of which is not covered even by compensation, there are established good and sufficient reasons for all the arguments and efforts that had been made in behalf of safety first. Many are the instances, even in cases where death has resulted, where the observance of simple precautions would have prevented any injury. Negligence on the part of the individual, or the failure to safeguard generally recognized danger spots, contribute heavily to the accident list. Were it so that concern for possible consequences served as a guide there can be little question but what fewer changes would be taken and less accidents would occur. The imposing accident list certainly calls for the devotion of greater instead of less thought to the matter of personal safety wherever the individual happens to be, especially when so many are preventable.

ROBBING THE PUBLIC.

It is a significant report that has been made by the coal commission in fixing the responsibility for the high price of anthracite coal last winter. Water that has gone over the dam cannot be regained, but by the very facts that have been set forth by the coal commission fertile ground exists for dealing with those who gouged the public.

During all the controversy that has existed over coal production and coal wages, charges have given the impression that it was the operators who were getting all the benefits. It is a matter of record that they have made large profits in the past year, one statement being to the effect that they are the largest in history, but from the coal commission's figures they sink into insignificance in comparison with the wholesale robbery that was practiced by certain middle men who saw the opportunity to speculate, did speculate and trimmed the public to a handsome sum on each ton to say nothing of the aggregate.

Regulation of the coal industry thus does not hinge on the operators and miners alone. It is to be realized that conditions were created which made the opening for the coal speculators. That being the case, provisions that would make such conditions impossible again need to be established as a matter of common protection.

The situation that has been revealed by the coal commission indicates that if those who are responsible for such robbery cannot be reached it should be made impossible for others to indulge in such practice again. Need for action seems to be clearly established.

IRELAND'S DECISION.

Once again it has been possible for the people of Ireland to say whether they wanted a government such as that conducted by the Irish Free State, or whether they desired to have a government established along the lines recommended by De Valera. Figures have not all been tabulated but it is already shown that the followers of De Valera are in a decided minority and that while there are factions among the people of the Emerald isle, the majority is standing back of the Irish Free State government.

This is in accord with the expression which they gave some time ago relative to the acceptance of the Free State plan. Then it was a question of following or denouncing De Valera, and that the revolution might be ended and peaceful conditions permitted to return there was a very strong sentiment against De Valera. It was action that was regarded as for the good of Ireland.

Since that time it has been possible to appreciate the changes for the better, the termination of the wanton murders and the frightful destruction of property. It was to be expected that Ireland would stand strongly behind the government which it now has, and by the election results that is just what it appears to have done.

It may be that De Valera will never abandon his efforts in spite of the sentiment of the people as repeatedly shown, but Ireland has shown that it knows what is good for it even to the repudiation of De Valera. It is just such a decision that augurs well for the future of the Irish Free State. Ireland needs a continuance of reconstruction policies rather than destructive ones.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: So long, August. See you next summer!

Germany's floating debt has reached such a point that pontoons will soon be required to keep it afloat.

Lucky is the chap who can so regulate his vacation that it lasts all the year—gets it in fact while he's working.

Whether one agrees with Lord Birkenhead's declarations, it has to be admitted that he knows how to create publicity for his lecture tour.

State police are once more active in arresting violators of the law concerning liquor. The wonder is why there has been such a spell of inactivity.

Greece is given a lot of needless and distressing trouble when some of its subjects proceeded to murder a party of Italian boundary workers in cold blood.

Considering the improved financial condition of Austria, Germany may yet wish it had followed a different course.

Some live to a ripe old age, but others, who might, dodge in front of autos, go out in canoes, play with guns which are loaded or fail to stop, look and listen.

The real appreciation of what the long vacation means isn't grasped by the school children until they realize that there's an end and school must soon be resumed.

It is not a selfish view the consumer takes of the coal situation. He knows he is at the mercy of those who care nothing about the high price or how much he suffers because of it.

DEEP PERPLEXITY

"Heck!" barked the tall, nervous looking young man who was preparing to go out among them, pausing with his necktie half tied. "Carraway told me very particularly that one of these sisters is very jassy and the other is distinctly highbrow and dignified, but that both are peaches. Their names are Elma and Alma and darned if I can remember which is which! What am I to do?

"Won't you be able to tell by looking at 'em?" asked his roommate, who had an agile mind accustomed to worming itself out of tight corners. "That's easy!"

"But they're twins," the tall, nervous young man explained, shaking his head. "They look exactly alike. They're terribly popular and I want to make a hit and how can I make them think I am Santa Claus and Beau Brummel if I start chattering about—er—Browning to the jassy one?"

"What do you know about Browning?" asked his roommate with great interest. "Nothing! I don't know why you have to talk about Browning anyway—never in my life have I ever been in a group of people who deliberately conversed as well educated persons are supposed to converse. I suppose they get so tired being educated that they throw caution to the winds when they get away from the culture class and revert to type like the rest of us.

"Maybe if Elma is the highbrow she would appreciate being taken for Alma, the jassy sister. I have noticed that secretly nearly everybody likes to be mistaken for what he isn't, no matter how high he has soared. No doubt, President Harding would be just plain tickled and amused to have somebody in a dry goods store ask him where the linen counter was. If a man is the biggest banker in the land he swells all up when he is mistken for Pennington P. Pounce, the eminent author who wrote 'What For and Why.'

"No doubt Elma often longs for Alma's ability with the tart comeback and the snappy repartee and wishes she had that sort of cleverness so she could attract somebody like Willing Spender, who has the dandy scarlet sport car, fifteen thousand a year and no relatives, and who had betrayed great interest in little Alma, who doesn't appreciate her blessings.

"When they go out to dinners tactful hostesses always put long-haired professors and discoverers of unheard-of things next Elma, saying that here is a girl with brains who can entertain such renowned and difficult men—and everybody knows that it's no treat to have to listen to a man with whiskers droning on about the ninth meridian or the burial customs of the Foojees when one's sister is making the most eligible young man in the crowd go into convulsions of mirth as he listens to her.

"Sisters will drag out three theatre invitations, two dances and a house party bid from her glittering performance while all that Elma will have to show for laboring like a slave trying to understand Prof. Wrigging's one word in five is the consciousness of acute heroism without even a vote of thanks, to say nothing of a medal.

"On the other hand, you might make the hit of your life with frivolous little Alma if you started in with the assumption that she know something.

"No matter what beautiful teeth a girl has and how charming a laugh, deep down in her heart she is scared to pieces for fear her bluff will be called and the empty roominess of her skull be discovered.

"It's a strain to keep up with a jassy girl, and lots of men get tired of it. They yearn for some deeply intelligent little creature who will let them tell her their serious inmost thoughts and not interrupt, and who will say 'yes, yes, go on!' at the proper points. Alma has seen Elma do this stunt and oh, how she wishes she were not ticketed as she is, as being funny, amusing, rattlebrained and a regular case.

"And again, supposing that you make no mistake whatever and at the first shot talk slang to the slangy one and blank verse to the highbrow girl—you're all right, too. No matter what happens, you can't lose—see? Whachu worrying about?"

"Well," said the tall, nervous young man, beginning to retie his tie with some assurance, "if they're like most girls all I've got to do is shut up and let 'em do all the talking anyhow! 'Sall right, I guess!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Corrects False Impression.

Mr. Editor: Under a special to your paper from New London, under the caption of "One Arm Around Girl While Driving," I desire to correct any false impressions that might arise from the article as published.

After a full hearing before the justice of the peace in Waterford, it appeared clearly, from the evidence, and was neither denied nor disputed, that Mr. Carter, the driver of the automobile in collision with my car, gave forth and exhaled strong odor and acted of intoxicating liquors.

This was corroborate by several witnesses, directly after the accident, and there was evidence in the case that one of the cars was being operated in a zig-zag course. It is not difficult to surmise as to which car it was.

The operator of the other car, Mr. Carter, said that I was driving with my arms around a girl, which was the cause of the accident. The young lady in question was my fiancé, to whom I have been engaged for two years, and it is only a fair deduction from the evidence that, due to Mr. Carter's condition, as shown by the evidence, his vision was somewhat dulled and his imagination somewhat sharpened by the use of alcoholic liquors, which would account for his testimony in regard to my driving.

Mr. Carter was perfectly agreeable to accepting the judgment of the court, to receive a nolle upon payment of the costs, being a very moderate rebuke and punishment for the negligent driving of his car, as shown by the evidence, but inasmuch as I was driving carefully, with all due attention to my driving, and in every way a careful and prudent manner, I was unwilling to be included within the court's judgment by paying the costs of the prosecution in a case where Mr. Carter's guilt was clearly shown, not only by disinterested witnesses but by the state police officer, Mr. Palmer, and I therefore took an appeal to the court of common pleas, where I am fully persuaded and advised by my counsel, Mr. Morgan, that the case, if retried, will result in a full exoneration of my conduct on the night in question, and placing the blame upon Mr. Carter solely, by the evidence shown that it clearly belonged.

Very truly,
LLOYD B. JONES.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John Hays Hammond, whose position as head of the Federal Fuel Commission has kept him prominently in the public eye of late, is known as "a man who does things." After making a world wide reputation as a mining engineer Mr. Hammond, some years ago retired from the active practice of his profession to become adviser of great corporations, to give personal attention to his own large investments, and to lend his services to the nation in various capacities. No one acquainted with Mr. Hammond's career can dispute his ability. One must have ability of a high order to have made the record that he has achieved since leaving the Sheffield Scientific school some 40 years ago. His early years were filled with adventure in many parts of the world. One of the most thrilling episodes of his career, as is well remembered, was his trial and condemnation to death by the Boers for his share in the famous Jameson raid.

Stories That Recall Others

The Lost is Found.

Two lads, ages five and six, became the proud possessors of a pup, a gift appreciated by the whole family. After the second day the puppy was given more freedom, and the second night was locked in the shed. On arising the next morning father went to release the pup, but it was not in the shed. Both father and mother hunted but to no avail, and the father left for work wondering what the boys would do when they learned the dog was missing.

After father left, mother went over the neighborhood calling for the pup, but as it was time for the boys to get up she returned home, dreading to break the news. At the kitchen door the pup greeted her, and she asked: "Why, Buster, where have you been?"

"He's been up here with us. Junior went down and got him real early before you and daddy were awake, and put him in bed with us," said the younger boy.

He Killed Caesar.

Most high school pupils, especially boys, if they prefer any study at all, prefer mathematics to Latin. At least that was the case with this class of boys. At the close of the school term last June the class that had just completed a nine months' struggle with Caesar congregated outside the building and gave nine "rahs" for Brutus.

"Why are they yelling for Brutus?" asked a sensitive Latin teacher of a girl who happened to remain in the class room after the close of the final session.

"He killed Caesar," the girl responded knowingly.

Eight popes have been named Urban, the first of them holding that position from 222 to 230.

It was the headquarters of the Bengal artillery in the early eighties. At The Hague conference the use of the bullets was forbidden by international agreement.

At one time many of the theatres in America were painted white. The idea was conceived by Haverly, the celebrated minstrel manager, who thought that white was a lucky color.

TIME TO GO

Goldenrod is shining all along the leafy way,
Oh, Miss Summer, here's your bonnet and your shawl;
Hope you'll linger long enough to gather a bouquet,
You'll be very welcome when you come another day.
But the pleasantest of visits has an ending, after all,
Oh, Miss Summer, here's your bonnet and your shawl!

You wore a smile each morning that was wonderfully bright,
Oh, Miss Summer, here's your bonnet and your shawl!
But some of your acquaintances, they sat up all the night!
Mosquitos singing ragtime with delirious delight;
And the locust in the treetop, with his shrill, derisive call,
Oh, Mss Summer, here's your bonnet and your shawl!

The fields are full of blossoms, on the hill there hangs a mist,
Oh, Miss Summer, here's your bonnet and your shawl!
You had a charm about you that nobody could resist,
Tho' now and then your temper took a rather ugly twist,
But we'll think of you with longing when the winter's snow falls
Oh, Miss Summe, here's your bonnet and your shawl!

HIT BY TROLLEY CAR, UNKNOWN MAN DIES AT BACKUS HOSPITAL

Crushed under the front end of a one-man trolley car near the north entrance to the fairgrounds at East Great Plain about 9.45 o'clock Thursday night, an unidentified man, about 40 years of age, died at the Backus hospital about three-quarters of an hour later. The car, which was in charge of Motorman Edward Kozowsky, was approaching the end of the West Side run when the man stepped from behind a pole alongside the tracks directly in front of the car. He was knocked under the fender and dragged several feet, receiving injuries which proved fatal. The wheels did not pass over his body, as the car was not running fast and was stopped within a distance of a few feet.

Word of the accident was at once telephoned to police headquarters and Capt. D. J. Twomey summoned Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, who responded immediately. The ambulance was also called and the police patrol hurried to the scene. The unconscious man was rushed to the hospital in the ambulance.

The man was alone and was evidently on his way home when he stepped in the path of the car. There was nothing in his clothing to identify him. He had a small amount of money in his pocket and two one-dollar bills were found near the spot where he was struck by the car.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified of the man's death and after viewing the body at the hospital gave permission for its removal to the undertaking rooms of Hourigan Bros.

SAYS WORKERS NEVER RECEIVED ANY BONUSES

We stand ready to accept the American Woolen company price list, but we would insist upon American Woolen company working conditions, said A. J. Gauthier, president of the Connecticut Textile council, in a statement issued Thursday evening in regard to the strike at the Shetucket Worsted company plant in Baltic. Mr. Gauthier's statement, which is an answer to a statement issued Wednesday by M. H. Donahoe, president and treasurer of the plant, follows:

Permit me to take issue with statements purporting to come from Mr. Donahoe, president and treasurer of the Shetucket Worsted Co., Inc., Baltic. The weavers walked out of this plant as a protest against excessive fining and the arbitrary attitude of the superintendent of that plant. Mr. Donahoe disclaims an excessive fining, but it is significant that when, previous to walking out, a committee of the employes sought to see some of the cloth upon which excessive fines had been imposed, this privilege was denied them. This transpired in the absence of the president. The fines apparently were imposed by the superintendent, but this gentleman, while he had the authority to impose such fines, claimed to have no authority to reduce them. Faced with these conditions, and with no apparent means of redress, this peculiar situation prompted them to take the action which the workers took. After a conference which was held between myself, committee of workers and Mr. Donahoe, the workers voted to return to work under protest, with the provision that some officer of the national organization should take up the matter of fines with the management. At this conference no hint was given by Mr. Donahoe that he proposed to reduce their wages. He stated that his mill would open the following Monday morning.

The workers reported for work Monday morning, only to find that, for some unknown reason, the management had experienced a change of mind and the plant was closed. Some time in the forenoon of the same day in a conference with the president of this local he notified them that his mill would be open the following morning, but weavers who returned to work would do so under a reduced price list, a reduction of two cents per yard on one and two-color filling and a reduction of two cents and three mills upon piece dyes. Mr. Donahoe speaks of bonuses. This is a surprise to us. None of our workers in that mill ever received any bonuses. The workers, of course, could not submit to these reductions, which meant a decrease in pay of approximately four or five dollars per week. He speaks of the American Woolen company price list. We stand ready to accept American Woolen company price list, but we would insist upon American Woolen company working conditions and with the same good quality of yarn used by the American Woolen company.

At 12 o'clock, standard time, a tempting dinner of salads, relishes, baked beans, rolls, sandwiches, doughnuts, cake, pie, cheese and coffee was served. Rev. Charles W. Hanna, the retiring pastor of this church, who with Mrs. Hanna were among the guests, said grace which was followed by the Doxology in unison, Miss Alice Bishop, the church organist, accompanying on the piano.

The afternoon was devoted to sociability and singing, with Dr. Charles H. Lamb as song leader, and Miss Bishop at the piano.

After a vote of thanks to the Bozrah Cornerites for their hospitality, the meeting ended about 4 o'clock.

Liquor cases were the general run of business for the city court and Judge Libby Thursday morning. All but Falcone were given jail sentences of 30 days with judgment suspended for one year. In round figures fines and costs imposed in the court session Thursday totalled a little over $1,700.

Cases against William Brackett and John Muller charged with violation of the prohibition laws were nolled for lack of evidence.

PLAYGROUNDS GIVE FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION

Thursday night at Greeneville the first annual exhibition of the recreation commission of the city of Norwich, demonstrating educational recreation, was held before 5,000 people when the combined play centers presented a program starting at 6.30 and lasting until 8 o'clock, followed by a band concert.

The program had been arranged without preparation for the purpose of showing a few of the activities taken from the daily program at the playcenters, and it could not have been better if a month's preparation had been given to it. The demonstration, which was presented before Mayor Milo R. Waters, Chairman of the Commission W. J. Fitzgerald and members of the committee and a big gallery, comprised organized play, physical training, mass athletics and folk dancing.

At 6.30 sharp Supt. Harold Anson Bruce blew his whistle which started the band and the six ring show. Event No. 1: The first part of this number exhibited boxing for senior and junior boys in three one-minute rounds. Three sets of boxers occupied rings 1, 2 and 3, and much interest was evidenced in the juniors as they put up a spirited contest. All three rings showed considerable boxing science and with the rings staked out and the seconds plying the towels between the rounds, the scene presented was unique.

Following the boxing, rings 1, 2 and 3 presented an exhibition in wrestling, bouts of four minutes' duration. The holds were well executed and the contests were fast and furious.

Event No. 2 presented pyramid building for seniors, juniors and intermediate boys. Rings 1 and 3 were occupied by Greeneville squads, ring 2 by Elizabeth street and ring 5 by Lake street. Three high pyramids were executed by each of the three groups, which comprised ten boys to a squad. Advanced work was the second part of this number and showed a Greeneville squad of mixed seniors and juniors in some perfect four high formations. The work was excellent, to say the least.

Exhibit B of No. 2 showed group games for midget and junior boys. No. 1 was the three-legged race, which was won by Bartnicki and Domaleski, a Greeneville team, from a big field of contestants. No. 2 followed with old-fashioned piggy back race and the winners were Higgins and Christianson.

The third number was the wheelbarrow race, won by Higgins and Swanton of Greeneville. The fourth event, the shoe race, caused much amusement as each boy started from a given line and was forced to sort out his shoes, put them on his feet and race to the finishing line, this event being won by Keeley.

The last of the group competitive games was the midget relay race, which developed a tie between Greeneville and Elizabeth street, with Lake street in third place. This event was one of the hits of the evening, as the spectators from the various play centers showed much enthusiasm over their entries.

The third event on the program was senior and junior boys and girls demonstrating archery. This event showed the best bow and arrow performers from each play center in rings 1, 2 and 3 pegging the targets.

Event No. 4 was the folk dance number bringing into action the girls' departments from each play center in six rings. The first exhibit was the folk dance I See You, which was very well done and carried a singing feature with it. The second dance was the Danish Dance of Greeting, and the third dance was the Irish Tilt. It would be hard to say which dance or which grounds did the best work, as all the dances were well done and brought much deserved applause. The band assisted in this number and the children were all attractively dressed in white. The dances were most cordially received and were considered the hit of the evening, as the six rings presented a most pleasing scene.

Event No. 5 followed the folk dances which was the senior girls' championship of the playgrounds. After two stubbornly fought halves, the Lake street girls emerged victorious over Laurel Hill by the score of 2 to 1. The game was well fought out and each center cheered their favorites lustily.

Event No. 6 exhibited the girls' dodge ball inter-playground championship between Lake street and Elizabeth street, which was won by the former with a score of 6 to 3. While this contest was occupying the center ring the other rings demonstrated games between the other centers. Exhibit 2 of this event was the straddle ball championship, senior and junior girls' inter-playgrounds. This event developed in a triple tie between Greeneville, Lake street and Hobart avenue. It was an exciting event, six playgrounds taking part in the championship.

The final event was the grand mass physical drill. This event was opened with a salute to the flag, which was followed by the drill and ended with the singing of America. All the children from the various play centers —both boys and girls—took part in the physical drill.

The exhibition was enlivened by selections from Tubbs' band throughout the program, and the addition reminded one of a six-ring circus, for with the music playing and the acts going in each ring the scene was highly interesting and instructive.

The program was run off by the entire playground corps of instructors headed by Supt. Harold Anson Bruce and Instructors Catherine Dodd, Lake street; May Kelley, Greeneville; Katherine Farrell, Hobart avenue; Philip Allen, Greeneville; Alfred Henault, Elizabeth street; Justine Morrison, Laurel Hill; Margaret Shugrue, Elisabeth street; Eleanor Byrne, Falls; Harvey Freeman, Lake street; Edward McKay, Elizabeth street.

After the playground festival Tubbs' band rendered popular selections for the balance of the evening.

Mayor Waters, Chairman Fitzgerald and members of the recreation committee expressed themselves highly pleased with the festival, which is the first of its kind ever held in the city of Norwich. The exhibition wound up the playground work for the season, which has been a big success.

Wonderful for Piles Says Peterson

If you received every week a dozen or more letters like the ones below from people who have suffered torments from piles, wouldn't you feel happier than the man whose life is devoted to money grabbing?

"Gentlemen—I have been suffering with a fistula for the past twenty years. During that time I have tried numerous remedies, all of which have failed.

"Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box, that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers." Very truly yours, Chas. E. Caswell, 283 Third St., Albany, N. Y.

Here's another from Mr. Edgar Thomas, age 76, of Hemlock, N. Y. He writes:

"I had the itching piles, also high blood pressure. I saw Peterson's ad in the paper. I used one box and a half of Peterson's Ointment for itching piles and the piles disappeared, also the high blood pressure." 35 cents a box at all druggists.

...town caucus is to be held this evening in the town hall by the newly organized citizens' party for the purpose of nominating its candidates for the offices of tax-collector and selectmen. The selectmen expected to be nominated by the party are Charles B. Hutchins of Danielson and James Warren of Dayville. The probable nominee for tax collector will be Raymond Allen, formerly postmaster of Danielson. Mr. Allen has many friends in this town who will back him to the limit. One of the principal aims of the new party is the reduction of the salary of the new officials. A week from today, Sept. 7, the republican party will hold their caucus. The probable nominee for tax collector is the present official, George A. Williams of Dayville. Mr. Williams has had the office of collector for a number of years already, and has always been a capable and efficient town officer. The democratic party has not yet decided on any date for their caucus, but it is understood that James R. Walsh will most likely be the nominee from that party.

An incident of an accident that occurred recently on the state highway near South Killingly has amused a number who have heard about it, although the seriousness of the situation in which it occurred was such as to startle all who came in touch with it. A group of six Woonsocket men riding in a Ford car that overturned had a ukelele with them. They had been playing and singing as they rode along. When the car overturned the men were all pinned beneath the machine, which did not sustain a scratch and was again in service after all was righted after the accident.

Such activities as have marked the past two weeks in the effort to clear up the illegal business in this section of the county is as nothing to what is coming during September, if all the reports one hears are to be believed. "The condition of a state is no better than the quality of its citizenship." That is the announcement with which Director H. H. Ellis of the State Trade School at Putnam opens his fall publicity campaign, in an effort to increase the attendance at thiss spendid school, which the state has built in the neighboring town and is maintaining in co-operation with the town of Putnam for the benefit of all the young people of this part of the state who may be interested in acquiring a practical education—one that will fit them to take a place in the industrial life of the nation and contribute to their own and their country's good. A complete announcement appears in this paper today (Friday) relative to the courses the Trade School has to offer, and these courses will appeal to girls as well as to boys and youths.

The Condition of a State Is No Better Than the Quality of Its Citizenship

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR INDUSTRIAL POSITION, AND BELIEVE IN SUSTAINING POSITION AND PROGRESS BY AN APPROPRIATE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

Read what the State of Connecticut cooperating with the Town of Putnam is doing for boys and girls in this section of the State, through classes in trades and home economics at the State Trade School, Putnam.

THE AIM OF THE SCHOOL
Is to provide educational opportunity in the trades for young men over 14 years of age, fitting them to become all round mechanics and making possible, where native ability permits, further progress to supervisory positions.

THIS AIM IS ACCOMPLISHED
By providing thorough instruction with modern equipment and on actual jobs, under usual trade conditions, together with such mathematics, drafting, and science as the particular trade requires. All instruction is individual. The boy is advanced from operation to operation as rapidly as he acquires the skill and knowledge involved in each, and is not kept on any job for the sake of production. He is thereby offered a wide range of experience during his course.

INSTRUCTION IS FREE TO RESIDENTS OF CONNECTICUT
Students are required to purchase a few personal tools, depending on the trade selected.

COTTON MANUFACTURING DEPARTMENT
For the boy who wishes to follow the cotton industry this course offers a thorough training in spinning, weaving, carding, loom fixing, warp preparation, yarn calculations, designing, cloth analysis, drafting, and a necessary amount of machine shop practice. A very broad general training in cotton manufacturing. Instruction in this department is given on actual mill products meeting textile trade standards.

MACHINE DEPARTMENT
Instruction here is given on work of a practical and necessary nature meeting trade requirements. About one-third of the students' time is devoted to mechanical drawing, mathematics and design.

CARPENTRY DEPARTMENT
Students taking this course receive instruction in cabinet making, mill work, and house building. Contracts are taken by this department for house building, which the students execute in accordance with trade practices. Shop talks, architectual drafting, and mathematics constitute one-third of this course.

DRAFTING DEPARTMENT
Drafting is the language of engineering and invention; and men from this trade often rise to high positions. Students in all departments devote part of their time to drawing as required by the various trades. Cabinets, electrical lay-outs, house plans, machines and tools are designed with a view to practical methods of construction. Architectual drafting and mechanical drawing may be taken as separate courses.

ELECTRICAL DEPARTMENT
The school is fully equipped with electrical apparatus, and the student is familiarized with modern methods of electrical construction and installation. Many types of electrical jobs are taken in the department and completed successfully. Approximately one-half of the students' time is devoted to related subjects, shop talks, drawing, mathematics, machine and carpentry shop practice.

HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT
Besides providing studies and practice in the home-making arts for girls of the local high school, this department offers free part time, evening and summer courses in the various phases of cooking, sewing and laundry practice. These courses are proving very popular.

TYPES OF COURSES OFFERED

Regular All Day Trade. This course requires 4800 hours to complete; one-third of the students' time is devoted to academic subjects.

High School Cooperative Course. A trade training and high school education in four years.

Part Time Courses for those employed may be arranged for by consultation with the School Director.

Evening classes run thirty weeks in the year, beginning in October.

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES
Athletic activities are promoted by an organized student association with weekly periods for participation of all students.

FACULTY OF THE SCHOOL
Is composed of members qualified in professional preparation, technical knowledge and skill to teach their respective subjects, and who possess an understanding appreciation of the learners' difficulties.

TOO MANY FARMERS ARE RUT-RUNNERS

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

We old farmers are naturally conservatives.

That is to say, having got into a good deep rut, most of us would rather follow it than scratch our tires trying to twist out to one side or the other.

That's what a true-blooded conservative is, always and of inherent necessity,—a rut follower.

This isn't said in way of derogation or contempt. There are worse things one might do than follow a rut. In the spring, for instance, when the country roads are simply gridironed with ruts, about the only practicable way to negotiate them is by picking the most eligible rut apparent and sticking to it.

Nevertheless, we all feel somewhat consoled when the roads dry up enough so the road commissioner can start his scraper over them, filling up those same ruts. They have their uses, indeed, but few of us hanker after them, every day and all the long year round. We're sincerely glad when we can spin along without danger of dropping into any of them.

Yet, figuratively speaking altogether too many of us are but worshippers and rut followers in our farming. There is nothing new in this charge. For untold years it has been a common figure of speech to say of some man who didn't seem to be getting anywhere: "He's fallen into a rut." For untold years preachers and lecturers and editors and school teachers have been warning their proteges not to "get into any rut."

In immediate response to which admonitions and exhortations, the larger half of the human race at once hunts up a good, big, deep, muddy old rut, flops into it kerplunk and then starts off at its "life work" of finding fault with the roads!

This is the perfect accord with the tendency of "human nature" in all other directions. I mean its apparently ineradicable impulsion to do the wrong thing at the wrong time in the wrong way—and then begin picking at Providence, as if Providence were to blame for its own shortcomings.

We farmers have been very often charged with this sort of rut worship. "Why don't you get out of the rut and try something new?" has been the question flung at us, time after time, by bystanders.

All the answers I've ever heard to this hackneyed old conundrum have fallen into one of just two classes: either a heated denial of being in any rut, or an even more heated denial that it's any of the inquirer's business. Neither of which is an answer, at all.

It is no answer because in the case of the chap whose wheels are wallowing hub-deep along a mud-filled rut the denial that he's in one is so manifestly false as to be ludicrous; while in the case of the other who says it's nobody's business but his own, the retort is simply an ebullition of bumptiousness.

As a matter of fact, you and I both know that altogether too big a proportion of working farmers are rut-runners. That they may deny the charge or get mad over it doesn't alter the fact. Nor is there very much likelihood that anything which can be said or done will alter the fact. It is one ingrained in human nature; not only ingrained but clinched and riveted in conservatives, to which category we have seen that most farmers insensibly belong.

As an illustration of what I mean, take the present situation in southwestern Kansas. Last summer—July and August, 1922—the prospects for a good winter wheat crop looked fine. So farmers put in all the wheat they could handle, thousands and thousands of acres. No sooner was it sown than the heavens dried up. From mid-August, 1922, to mid-May, 1923, not a drop of rain fell in southwestern Kansas. Nor was there any snow during the winter. The wheat sown never sprouted. The crop in sixteen counties was a total failure. So complete a failure that the tenant-farmers of those sixteen counties haven't a bushel of seed wheat to sow again, nor a dollar with which to buy seed. As a result, bankers, business men and railroads are being called on to raise a half million dollar fund to buy seed wheat for these impoverished tenant-farmers.

And this is the fourth time in ten years that they've had to pony up from half a million to a million dollars to keep those same tenant-farmers going. With wheat, every time, of course.

The—fourth—time—in—ten—years!

Now, if that isn't following a rut, what is it? How many times must those chaps get stalled in their rut before they'll discover that they're in one? How many times will they have to call for help on the bankers and railroads whom other western farmers are denouncing as "Shylocks" and "robbers" before they appreciate the fact that their rut-riding is most emphatically somebody's business besides their own?

But Kansas is a long way off. How about Connecticut farmers? Are we any of us following ruts to our own disadvantage, because we are either too stubborn or too stupid to get out of them?

I used to have a bunch of potato-growing neighbors. There was the father and three stalwart sons, each with a fairly good farm, and all devoted to the production of potatoes. So long as labor could be obtained at reasonable rates and fertilizers bought at possible prices, these neighbors did well. They made money. They improved their farms. They bettered their homes. They seemed on the high road to prosperity.

Then, as the labor shortage developed, farm wages began to rise. The price of fertilizer went up with leaps and bounds. It began to cost them double and treble to produce a bushel of potatoes. Yet the price of potatoes, after one short upward flurry, settled dully back to about the normal low figure. Instead of getting a profit from their crop, they found themselves making it at a loss. Instead of people paying them for their potatoes, they had to pay people for taking the tubers. That is, they had to sell for a dollar or less what had cost them a dollar and a half to raise. Naturally, this couldn't continue indefinitely. They, however, were used to raising potatoes. It was their specialty. They kept at it for a few years, taking their regular annual losses, in the hope that the tide would turn. But it didn't. Instead of improving, the potato situation grew worse and worse. And now their farms are gone and they are working for wages in an electrical plant in a neighboring city.

I do not know that they could have saved their farms and homes by getting out of that potato-rut, when they found it was leading them to loss and bankruptcy. All I know is that they didn't try.

At the same time I have known a few other farmers who have saved themselves from ruin by twisting out of the rut and hunting up a better road. One, very near to me, finding that he couldn't pay taxes and church dues by the regular corn-potatoes-oats-hay rotation which he had been brought up in, gradually switched off to the growing of sweet-corn and cabbages and a few such things which he could sell from house to house at fair prices and for cash down. He didn't get rich, it is true. But, the last I knew, he was having enough to eat, and wasn't worrying over his inability to get a hired man.

Viewed from present farmerish standpoints, that shows something of a success!

Another, brought up to the dairy business but finding it an impossible one to carry on, turned to canning, and found a ready market for his home-canned vegetables and fruits at prices which pay better than cream or milk.

Another, after several years' experience paying out money for the privilege of making butter for the city market, finally sold all his cows, put the pastures into black-cap berries, and sold them for enough to enable him to buy butter cheaper than he could produce it.

There are said to be more ways than one to skin a cat. There are more ways to manage a farm than just for wheat, or potatoes, or the dairy.

If I were a young farmer, starting in at the job, I'd do one thing before I touched hand to a plow-handle or threw harness on a horse. I'd take time enough off to find out who my possible customers were, and what those possible customers wanted to buy and pay fair prices for. Then I'd do my level best to get 'em what they wanted.

Not what the farm had been accustomed to produce; not what I myself best liked to raise; not even what the soil seemed naturally best fitted for. But what it could be made to grow which would sell readily and promptly and at a remunerative price.

It may very likely be that there are not enough such crops, whatever they are, to go around. If all the farmers of my town had switched to sweet-corn or black-caps they might easily have glutted the local sweet corn and black cap market. Whereby their last state would have been worse than their first.

I mention these particular cases, merely as illustrative of a general truth, not as examples for universal imitation.

The farmer must depend for his income upon selling his products. This makes it imperative that he should have products which will sell readily. He can't expect people to buy what they don't want, just because he has a surplus of it.

If they want potatoes badly enough to pay a remunerative price for them, well and good; give 'em potatoes and take their money. Do they already have more potatoes offered them than they want? Then try 'em with black-caps or canned succotash or frog's legs. I've heard of one man, whose farm is mostly a swamp, who is making a good thing by sending frog's legs to the city hotels. Then there is the one with several clear, cold streams on his land, who has made a series of trout ponds and gets quite an income from them.

If you can't skin your particular cat the exact way you'd like to, good sense would advise trying someone of the other permitted methods.

If you're in the wheat rut and progress is hopeless, why not get out of it? If you're in the potato rut, or the corn-oats-hay rut, or any other old rut which is becoming a No-Thoroughfare, why not look around and on both sides to see if there isn't any other possible route which is less rutted and promises smoother wheeling?

And don't forget one thing; if you're really in a rut you yourself will have to find the way out. You may get helpful hints or suggestions from others. But that's all. Whether you shall get out or stay in is up to you. If you decide to climb out, the choice of the new highway is likewise solely in your own hands. "Other men's failures will never save you." Nor will other men's successes, either.

Because you decide to stop following like a donkey in a packtrain along the old rut is no reason why, like a silly ewe, you must jump through the same hole in the fence the rest of the flock are negotiating.

As this community has grown, so has this store enlarged facilities for service to keep pace with the growing demands of the people. The very moment you enter the doors, ou instantly recognize there is a big institution equipped and ready to serve the needs of a great city. And in addition to the fact that no detail of service is incomplete, everything from the selection of your furnishings to the actual placing of them in your home is surrounded with an atmosphere of friendly helpfulness. A great store in name and in fact as well!

Look to your canning needs early. Vegetable season now at its height. So enjoy them now and consume freely for Old Jack Frost will be making a call some night soon and then many vegetables now plentiful will be out of the market.

HOW PLEASURE BEACH GOT INDIAN NAME

Since the name of Pleasure Beach, located at Waterford, Conn., between Ocean Beach and Crescent Beach, has been changed to Poquiogh, the original name of the pleasure resort many people have wondered how the name is pronounced.

Chief Lemuel Fielding of Norwich states Wednesday that the name originated from the language of the Pequot Indians and is pronounced Po-kwe-o, meaning round clam. He said that the Pequot and Mohegan Indians used to assemble at this beach and gather in round clams and therefore the name Poquiogh was given. The beach today still provides many round clams to people who go there from surrounding towns to gather is supplies every summer.

The name Pleasure Beach was changed by the residents there because mail addressed to the beach often went astray, going to Pleasant View or to Pleasure Beach another shore resort further down the coast. Rather than to give the beach a new name the residents decided to take the original name of the beach.

WESTERLY

Nearly a hundred voters and taxpayers of the town of Westerly assembled in the town hall Thursday night for the special financial town meeting. Town Moderator Eugene B. Pendleton called the meeting to order and Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple read the call. The three questions considered were, formulating a progressive plan for the betterment of road condition; the appropriation of $500 for expense of obtaining data, and appropriating $1500 for town hall maintenance.

Henry L. Burdick said that, speaking for the committee which asked for this special financial town meeting, he wished to introduce Professor Samuel H. Webster of the Rhode Island State College. Having spoken for twenty minutes on the subject of roads, Professor Webster said that Westerly had taken an advanced step along highway lines when a road commission was elected. The ideal way of operating is for the commission to elect a road commissioner and tell it to go ahead. Experiment has proven many former ideas in road building were obsolete. He even recommended gravel roads with upkeep as preferable when expense was considered.

A resolution offered by Henry L. Burdick was seconded by Harry R. Milner. This resolution set forth that, since the town has reached its debt limit and since additional assessment for highway purposes seems inadvisable; and since it appears that a systematic expenditure of highway appropriations along lines of a preconceived plan of highway upkeep and development seems to be the best course to adopt; and since the voters of the town have the right under the act of the legislature creating the board of highway commissioners for the town of Westerly to order or instruct the said board with reference to the expenditure of any special appropriation for highway purposes; and since said board of highway commissioners has in its employ a thoroughly competent engineer; therefore, it was resolved that:

First. The sum of $500 be appropriated for the purpose of formulating a plan of highway upkeep and development for the whole town.

Second. The board of highway commissioners was instructed to have its engineer, A. L. Leon, prepare a plan of highway upkeep and development and present that plan in person at the next annual financial town meeting in February.

Third. The egineer was authorized to spend said appropriation as he may deem proper and necessary for the purpose of formulating such plan, such expenditure, however, being subject to the approval of the town council.

Charles Butler, chairman of the Westerly highway commission, considered such a resolution out of order. He said if Mr. Leon takes a notion to leave he could leave tomorrow, as the engineer is only engaged from day to day.

Mr. Milner declared then it is "time he was engaged for the season!"

Mr. Pendleton, town treasurer, said that no further appropriation could be made under the budget of 1923. That the appropriation made Thursday night might not be available and that they probably had exceeded the income. At a recent council meeting it was stated that tax collections had probably exceeded the budget estimate by $5,000.

A rising vote on the resolution stood yes 39, no 13, and the resolution was declared carried.

Town Clerk Whipple said that with what the town treasurer had said and that in mind, he offered a resolution that $1500 be appropriated for the town hall. Mr. Whipple said $775 was paid in insurance carried over from previous years. That $324 for sewerage assessment had not been taken into consideration, or a $335 amount for more insurance, and town hall receipts had fallen off $315, causing the deficit. The resolution was voted.

Members of Granite City camp, Modern Woodmen of America, paid a surprise visit to Joseph E. Baggs at Pleasant View, Thursday evening, when a dog roast was held on the beach.

Granite City camp, M. W. of A., and Royal Neighbors will combine for a joint outing at the Hummock, on Labor day.

Saturday night, the new white way lights recently set up on Main, Broad, High and Canal streets, will be turned on for the first time. The installation equipment is of the latest type. The glass globe has a rippled surface which imparts a sparkle to the light, giving it more life than a constant one. The work of changing over the circuits and placing the bracket arms in position has been going on steadily for the past week or ten days. The last part of the equipment to be received was the nitrogen-filled 1000-candle power bulbs and with their arrival and installation the business streets of Westerly will be so well lighted that there may be some difficulty in knowing whether it is night or day-time.

A well known official of the town of Westerly is the owner of a new sedan of which he is so proud that not a week has passed that he has not conveyed his friends to at least one dinner party every few days to neighboring inns or hostelries. This official has great respect for the law—both the letter and spirit. Knowing this, Wednesday evening when a visit to a Connecticut inn was in view the operator's license papers were secured from the car and a Connecticut guardian of the law "put wise."

The party had not proceeded far over the Connecticut line when the guardian held up the machine, saying that the registration number was wanted for the machine carrying the very number plates of that automobile. Diligent search failed to locate the papers and it was then that the Westerly official remembered that they were on his desk. Returning, the best the desk could produce was the 1921 papers and the party again crossed the line, only to be stopped by the same "guardian" who said 'nothing doing on '21 papers." It was then that the Westerly man realized "that he was in the hands of his friends." The proper papers were produced and the party proceeded. It is said that on the return home at 1 a. m. Thursday, the Westerly official insisted on stopping at the Connecticut "minion of the law's" residence to leave word that he had 1923 papers.

There are also drains and sewer pipes being laid which requires some excavating. Twenty industrials averaged 93.40, net loss, .30. High, 1923, 105.38; low, 86.91.

Twenty railroads averaged 80.01, net gain, .04. High 1923, 90.63, low, 76.78.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, Aug. 30.—Chief interest in today's stock market, the most active since July 2, centered in the spectacular fluctuations of Davison Chemical, which opened 1 1-2 points higher at 53 1-2, spurted to 72, dropped back to 50, advanced to 90 and then saw-sawed up and down around where it closed for a net gain of 3 points on the day.

While gyrations of this stock brought about a few bullish demonstrations in other issues, it had a rather unsettled effect on general speculative sentiment. Selling pressure was brought to bear on the copper shares when the price of the red metal fell to 13 5-8 cents a pound, the lowest price this year. Other industrial leaders also lost ground, there being a disposition on the part of traders to take profits after three in view of the approaching holiday.

days of rising prices, particularly

The rails were conspicuously firm during the morning with an active demand noted for the seasoned dividend payers, but they eased with the rest of the list in the later trading. Delaware & Hudson closed at a net gain of more than 3 points, but the other hard coal carriers showed little change on the day.

U. S. Steel, Baldwin, American Can and most of the other so-called pivotal stocks closed at fractional recessions. Seasonal dullness in the automobile industry is generally held responsible for the heavier offerings of the automotive issues. Chandler dropped 2 5-8 points and losses of 1 1-2 to nearly 2 points took place in Studebaker, Mack Truck, Maxwell Motors A, and Stewart-Warner Speedometer. In the copper group, losses of 1 to 2 points took place in American Smelting, Anaconda, Kennecott, China, Utah and Inspiration.

Gulf States Steel, which has been heavily bought by southern interests, advanced 3 1-4 points to 88. Some of the other individual strong spots were American Cotton Oil preferred, American Car & Foundry, Allied Chemical preferred, Central Leather preferred, International Harvester, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Market Street Railway first and second preferred and Savage Arms, up 2 to nearly 4 points.

Call money opened at 5 1-4 per cent. and then advanced to 5 1-2 the stiffer rate being attributed to withdrawals of anticipation of month-end settlements. Time money business was conducted on a 5 1-2 per cent. basis. The commercial paper market was quieter with 5 1-4 per cent. the ruling rate.

Establishment of another new low record for all time as 8 1-2 cent a million by German marks was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.54 3-4 but Francs france sagged slightly to 5.64 1-2 cents. Italian and Greek exchanges registered moderate recessions, indicating that threats of war between the two countries were not yet being taken seriously in financial centers.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Trading in the grain pits here today was the lightest in volume in some time and the undertone during the latter part of the session was firm. There was some scattered liquidaion of long September wheat, with evening up of short contracts and also changes over from September into the deferred deliveries. Elevator interests were the principal buyers of September while eastern houses aided in absorbing the offerings, the bulk of which came from local operators. Wheat closed at a net gain of 1-8c to 1-2c with December $1.05@1-8 to $1.05 1-8 and May $1.10 7-8; corn was 5-8 to 1c higher; oats gained a shade to 3-8c and provisions advanced 10 to 12 1-2c.

Although quotations at Liverpool were higher general cable news placed the trade in an uncertain fram of mind and consequently operations were limited, the market exhibiting an irregular trend. Possibility of a strike by the grain elevator men here Saturday was given only passing attention. Improved weather conditions were reported and Canadian forecasts were more favorable, now that harvesting is general in most sections of the Canadian West.

Strength in cash corn together with buying by a few commission houses started some short covering and improved the tone of the corn market, but the trade was light.

Trade in oats was small and influenced by the action of the corn market.

Provisions trade was light but firm being influenced by the higher nws market.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 30.—Price movements were irregular and within a narrow range in today's trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange. The volume of transactions continued small.

United States government bonds were inclined downward but net changes were relatively unimportant being limited to 2-32 of a point. Foreign issues also pointed downward, Serbian 8s dropping 1 1-4.

Railroad mortgages were dull with the majority moving upward. St. Paul 4s of 1925 advanced 1 3-8, and Pennsylvania 6 1-2s and New Haven 7s, francs, each gained 1. Interborough Rapid Transit 6s improved 1 1-2.

Industrial liens generally yielded. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7s dropped 1 1-2, and Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light 5s and Public Service of New Jersey 5s each declined 1.

New York, Aug. 30.—Trading in the curb market today was featureless with price changes generally limited to fractions.

Glen Alden Coal was quite active, advancing at one time 2 1-2 points and closing 1 3-4 higher. Reading Coal rights, however, were dull at fractionally higher prices. The motors were quiet, Durant yielding fractionally and Reo moving up fractionally.

Standard Oil of Indiana sold 1 1-8 lower, probably on selling after announcement was made that it would continue to sell gasoline in the

NEVER A FAIR LIKE THE 1924 NEW LONDON COUNTY FAIR

But four more days remain before Labor day the opening day for the New London County Fair at the local fairgrounds, to continue through September 3, 4, and 5, and every superintendent has been swamped with entries, practically every inch of exhibition space being signed for at the present time.

Nearly three hundred head of pure bred cattle, blooded sheep and swine, prize poultry, pet stock and pigeons, local manufactured goods, home made articles and a host of other interesting exhibitions already being signed up.

The big automobile show is to take place in a tent just inside the main entrance and many models of new cars will occupy the space 50 by 140 feet which has been set aside for them. This is one feature of the 1923 fair.

The flower exhibition this year will be three times as great as ever before and Superintendent Edwin A. Tracy has been assigned over 100 feet of space in the main exhibition hall.

Another special feature this year is to be the farm machinery and farm appliances, all the latest and best models to be displayed by such representative companies as C. S. Mersick & Co., of New Haven who show at only three New England Fairs, T. H. Eldredge, The Connecticut Machinery and Sales Co Inc., of Norwich and The Jordan Hardware company of Willimantic and Carl W. Brown of Norwich, will exhibit lighting plants and other labor saving devices for the farm.

During the past feww weeks the space beneath the new grandstand has been repaired and benches placed to care for the wire coops, and the poultry exhibit will take place there this year, the Juvenile department going to the old exhibition building beneath the old grandstand.

There will also be a large exhibit by the New London County Grange, another by the League of Women Voters of Connecticut in charge of Miss S. F. Gleaton, field secretary, and Mrs. John Conway of Baltic. The Bureau of Child Hygiene will also have space in the Farm Bureau tent west of the main exhibition hall and Mrs. Albert H. Chase will be in charge assisted by Public Health Nurses. The Connecticut College Endowment Fund will occupy space in the main hall also this booth being in charge of Miss Dorothy Gregson. Another feature will be the exhibit of basket work by the Norwich State Hospital, in charge of Harry Kromer.

In the Juvenile department Secretary Raymond has received many fresh entries some of which were refused with thanks, among them two akunks (not tamed) offered by a couple of boys.

Besides the exhibits there will be band concerts by Swahn's Band and the Italian Columbus Band which will occupy a stand on the baseball diamond in the center of the grounds.

Nine fast racing events, six headline acts of free vaudeville; a balloon ascension with a triple drop by a daring woman jumper, a motordrome, ferris wheel, athletic shows, and the Coleman Carnival and Whaling exhibit, also many midway attractions never before seen at the local fairgrounds.

Admission prices will be, adults 75 cents, children 25 cents, autos 50 cents; grand stand 75 cents and $1.00, autos inside track 50 cents. Parking space will be free.

Fireworks Each Night At Fair

Spectacular fireworks will be the night feature at the Connecticut State fair a Charter Oak park, Labor day, he directors have signed a contract for a nightly display of Pain's fireworks, the foremost manufacturers in the country furnishing amusement features of this nature. The main part of the display will be a spectacle called "The Temple of Concord," a panorama of light and color lasting fifteen minutes. The entire fireworks program will consume one hour, preceded by a band concert and vaudeville acts from in front of the main grandstand.

Several special days were designated on the week's program as the chief of the directors. Tuesday, September 4, will be "children's day," when all children will be admitted free to the park. Last year school opened the tuesday following Labor day, and the children in this vicinity were denied their annual treat of a free day at the fair, but this year the school program will allow the "kiddies" to disport for a day at Charter Oak. Wednesday will be "Hartford day," when Mayor Kinsella and the other city officials will be special guests of the fair management. Thursday, September 6, when the Charter Oak stake will be the feature of the race program will be known as "Connecticut day." Governor Charles A. Templeton and staff will be the special guests for the day.

The mammoth Exposition hall, now nearing completion, is to be used to house an automobile show and merchants' exhibit this year. The building, which is a distinct asset to the fair equipment at the park, is 161 feet long and ninety feet wide, and has a steel frame. The auto show will occupy the central section of the building and practically all the leading local dealers will show 1924 models of cars for the first time during fair week. The surrounding spaces will be devoted to booths for the display of merchandise of various kinds.

Entries are coming in fast for all departments of the fair, and with increased premium lists and improved accomodations for exhibitors the management is confident of presenting an agricultural exposition worthy of the state of Connecticut. Reduced prices of admission have also been arranged by the directors for the 1923 fair, and increased attendance figures are looked for throughout the week.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

The demand as well as the supply has greatly increased. The Wealthy, William Favorite and the McIntosh are the principal apples now being displayed on the markets. Native melons are beginning to appear on the markets and the quality as well as the demand is quite satisfactory. Carman peaches are now appearing on the markets here, selling for $1.35 per 14-quart basket. Clapp's Favorite pears are now being sold on the markets for $1.50 per 14-quart basket. Lima beans and cabbages are still limited on the markets and at present are quite high in price. Corn is quite plentiful in the markets.

It is not too late to can tomatoes. Tomatoes of good quality can be easily found at most of the market places. Quotations are expected to be higher within another week. Canning should be finished within a few days as peaches are now making their appearance.

TAFTVILLE

The card party given by the Ladies of St. Anne, the French-speaking Children of Mary society and the English-speaking Children of Mary society on the grounds of the Sacred Heart church rectory and school on Thursday evening was a pleasant success. Rows of electric lights and Japanese lanterns strung over the grounds gave ample light to the players and made an attractive decoration. The Ideal orchestra rendered pleasing selections throughout the evening and refreshments of ice cream and orangeade were served. As the weather was favorable, a large crowd attended. The proceeds are to be used to pay for the painting of the church rectory.

POETRY

GOD OF THE WAYSIDE WEED.

Oh, worship the God of the mountains,
And worship the God of the sea,
And the God of the miracle music
Of the wind-swept harps of the trees;
Oh, worship the God of the heavens
Who holdeth the stars as they speed,
But wording, oh reverently worship
The God of the wayside weed!

Lo, down at your feet in the grasses
God's finger has written His name;
His truth in the gold-hearted daisies,
His joy in the buttercup's flame;
In the clover-bloom's honey-crammed cells,
And chimeth His name in soft music
On the moss-rose's golden bells.

Oh, not for the praise of the mighty
He has written His name plain and low—
For the child-heart, the sad-heart, the weary,
For those who must toil as they go;
Our God of the common places
Is the God of the humblest need,
And the lowest may carry his burden
To the God of the wayside weed.

'Tis easy 'tis easy to worship
The God of the wayside weed,
For the common way sings of His glory,
The common way speaks to our need;
Out from our glad hearts oft rushes
A hymn of new faith, hope and trust,
'Tis easy, 'tis easy to worship
The God who brings beauty from dust!

—Alice J. Nichols.

THE LITTLE HOUSE OF DREAMS.

Oh, little house with windows wide,
A-looking toward the sea,
How have you come, why have you come
To mean so much to me?

Your walls within my heart are raised,
And oh, how strange it seems,
My hopes but measure to your roof,
Oh, little house o' dreams.

Oh, little place where friends will come,
The tangled world to flee,
Brave little nook, where peace will bide,
And hospitality.

Pray, where's the magic wand I need
To touch your shingled gems,
And change you to a house in truth,
Oh, little house o' dreams?

—Claire Wallace Flynn.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—What do you say to a tramp in Richmond Park?

She—I never speak to them.—London Mail.

She—What a climb that was! (pensively). It must be an awful thing to be paralyzed.

He—Yes, you feel so mean the next morning.—Jack O'Lantern.

"Don't you find it difficult to make both ends meet?"

"Not the end of my money and the end of the week."—London Answers.

Motoring Son—This, dad, is a sparking-plug.

Farmer Father—That so, son? When I was your age, a spark plug was a quiet old hoss hitched to a buggy with just room enough for two.—Boston Transcript.

"How many people in New York?"

"More than 6,000,000."

"I don't see how you all live!"

"O, we patronize each other."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

First Co-ed—Did Harold propose last night?

Second Co-ed—No, he is like an hour-glass.

"And how is that?"

"The more time he gets, the less sand he has!"—Notre Dame Juggler.

Mother—Peggy, what do you mean by shouting in that disgraceful manner? See how quiet Raymond is?

Peggy—Of course he's quiet. That's our game. He's trying to think of excuses. He's paps coming home late and I am you.—London Opinion.

Golfer—Doctor, you remember you recommended golf to take my mind off my work?

Doctor—Yes.

"Well, can you prescribe something now to get it back again?"—Life.

"So you went after the job. I thought you believed that the office should seek the man?"

"I do, but this is a fat job, and I was afraid it might get winded before it reached me."—Boston Transcript.

Alice for the first time saw a cat carrying her kitten by the nape of its neck. "You ain't fit to be a mother," she cried, scathingly. "You ain't hardly fit to be a father!"—Youth's Companion.
